Powers and Pollok have not yet announced whether they would put on such a race. If they do not, some enterprising Buffalo promoter might be able to pick up a little change by putting the event on at one of the Buffalo armories. The Buffalo promoters, however, have an awful hug on Longboat and might insist upon having the Indian start. Meadows and Ljungstrom, in a fifteen-miler, ought to draw like a poultice, particularly in a town like Buffalo, where the Canadian athletes have always been looked upon as the grandest little performers ever.

And even if Meadows did win again it would be almighty interesting to see just ho who would go about it, for he hasn't run any two of his most recent races in just the same way.

NINE CARS LEFT TRACK

A Grand Trunk double-leader freight of twenty cars, in charge of Conductor Emsley, met with an accident at one o'clock this morning, four miles from Campbellford, through a flange on a wheel of the fourth car breaking. The disabled car and the following eight left the track, and two which were empties, were thrown across the rails. The roadbed for some distance was damaged but no one was hurt. The auxiliary from Lindsay was summoned and it is expected that the track would be cleared this afternoon. The passengers and baggage of passender from Belleville was transferred to a train made up here and sent down to the scene of the accident and the same was done with the passenger train going east from here. This afternoon's Belleville train left on time and in case it is unable to get through the passengers and baggage will be transferred.

JUDGMENT RESERVED

In the two charges against Ira McNutt, Magistrate Edmison, at the County Police Court this morning, reserved judgment for two weeks and allowed the defendant his liberty, on the promise of the father and the brother, that he would be produced on the day when judgment will be given.

CANADIAN LITERATURE

Subject of Interesting Address at Normal School—Talented Speaker

A large number attended the lecture at the Normal Schol last evening given by Miss A. B. Warnock, of Toronto, known to readers of the Mail and Empire as Katharine Hale. "Canadian Literature" was her subject, and she dealt with it in a very interesting manner. Miss Warnock has an extensive knowledge of the literature of the Dominion and is a very pleasing speaker. She urged her hearers to pay more attention to the literature of their own country, a large amount of which was of a high order of merit. The works of Isabella Vallancy Crawford and Alma Frances McCollum were referred to by the speaker in a complimentary manner. Miss Warnock's reading of Robert Service's poem, "The Cremation of Sam McGee," was one of the features of the evening.

TAKING SOUNDINGS ON LITTLE LAKE

A staff of men from the engineering department of the Trent Canal are at work taking soundings on Little Lake. They have attracted a good deal of attention as holes have to be cut in the ice and rods put down in order to secure the information desired.

During the winter soundings have been taken on the canal system all the way from Hastings to Peterborough. A number of parties have been at work, three parties being employed between Rice Lake and the city. The work is nearing completion and much valuable information has been secured.

The work has been done under the supervison of Mr. L. Sherwood.

A SPIRIT FROM THE OTHER WORLD

Cavan Township Residents Much Disturbed Over a Recent Occurrence

It is reported that the residents of Cavan are disturbed over an occurrence which has followed the death of well known farmer of that place. It is stated that relatives of the deceased claim that a figure identically the same as that of the dead man has appeared before them on several occasions and conversed with them about property, which was left by him. A curious part of the affair is that the figure never appears in the presence of one of the male relatives.

CADET CORPS AT THE GROVE

A Cadet Corps has been formed at the Grove School, Lakefield, notice of which is given in last week's militia orders from Ottawa. The corps will consist of one company and will be attached to military district No. 3. John W. F. Light has been appointed captain, and Joseph Crombie and John C. Newburn, lieutenants.

Deputation From Havelock

A deputation consisting of Mr. J. Alex. Culverwell, C. E., Port Hope; Reeve Knox, of Havelock; William Mathieson, Havelock; Jas. Wark, of the C.P.R., Havelock, and Thos. Wood, of the same town, are in the city to-day on business.

PLAYTHING FOR BABY.

Make a pattern by cutting a piece of paper 10 by 3¼ inches. At one end cut out a V shaped piece 4½ by 2¾ inches. This will form legs in pattern of body of doll. Place pattern on sock and cut double so leg portion comes out of ribbed top of sock.

The cap is a four inch triangle cut double and sewed up to form pointed caps and is cut from foot of sock, as are the arms, which are 3 by 1½ inches, rounded at one end to form hand and sewed up.

Sew up legs of body portion and stuff solid with cotton. From a white hose cut a piece 3¼ by 7 inches, sew up short end. This forms the head, which must be whipped to body portions. Seam in back, stuff, sew up head at top and tie a string tightly around the body where the head is sewed on, which will form neck of doll. Sew up arms, stuff and sew to shoulders. Stuff cap and sew to head seam in back.

Make tassels or rosettes of yarn and sew to ankles and wrists and top of cap. Gather a half yard of No. 2 ribbon to match yarn and place around neck. Paint face in water colors or draw with ink producing brownie features, and you have a doll that every child will be delighted with. The bright fancy hose make the most attractive dolls.

THE BEST APPLES.

Some That You Will Recognize as Old Friends In This List.

North America is the great apple producing region of the world, and New York leads all the other states in the quantity grown, although varieties quite as choice are produced in other states, particularly Missouri, Oregon and Washington. To have perfect fruit the soil and the climate conditions must be of the most favorable.

A list of what may be called the best apples—best in one sense or another—has been arranged. The list comprises these varieties: The Belmont, Bethlemite, Bullock's Pippin, Cogswell, Early Joe, Esopus, Spitzenburg, Full Wine, Garden Royal, Melon, Mother, Northern Spy, Pomme Grise, Porter, Primate, Red Canada, Summer Pearmain, Summer Rose, Swaar, Wagener and Westfield. To this list are added the Baldwin and the Rhode Island Greening—two of the best known apples the country over.

Other popular apples include the Gilliflower, Vandevere, Malden's Blush, American Beauty, Fameuse, Pound Sweet, Talman Sweet, Winespice, Bellflower, Red Astrakhan, Pearmain, Autumn Bough, Roxbury Russet, Sops o' Wine, King, Twenty Ounce, Hubbardston and Peach Pond Sweet.

The Pippin wherever found seems to be always well liked. But one Pippin differs from every other. What one state knows as Pippin another state greets by quite a different name. The Ben Davis, for instance, so known in the middle west, is known in New York state as a New York Pippin.

Almost every propagator of apples has found, if his experience and his orchards are extensive, specimens which he thought entitled to such names as Seek No Further, Nonesuch and Sine Qua Non, so that if one receives an apple bearing one of these names in Massachusetts it may differ exceedingly from one of the same name offered to him in Wisconsin. But they are all likely to be worth the eating if their grower has seen fit to honor them with such names.

The longer apples remain on the tree, unless the weather becomes too cold to permit their exposure, the better the flavor and keeping qualities. The fruit that comes to perfection the farthest north, as that in the Hood river region of Oregon, appears to have the finest keeping qualities without deterioration in flavor.

Of the varieties raised in the east the winter russets keep longest without being put in cold storage and really reach the full perfection of flavor only late in the winter or in the early spring. It used to be considered a marvelous and almost an impossible thing to keep apples over from the fall till the first summer apples appeared, but with methods of cold storage so extensively used as they are now this is easily achieved and with far less deterioration in flavor than might be reasonably expected.

Split Not Yet Healed.

Cleveland, O., Feb. 26.—The split in the ranks of the Ohio Federation of Labor that started in Cleveland over the Electrical Workers' row won't be settled for some weeks. The Thos. arbitration board named at Toronto, after meeting here for three days, adjourned last night till March 10. The sudden death of Benj. Stanger, attorney for the Reid faction of the workers, made necessary the securing of another attorney to take up that side of the case. The board will come together here March 10, and hopes then to get the affair peacefully adjusted.

26 Below Zero In New Hampshire.

Andover, N.H., Feb. 26.—Shivering beneath its heavy blanket of snow, central New Hampshire Thursday night and early yesterday was visited by the coldest weather of the present winter. Thermometers registered 26 degrees below zero. Recent snow storms have been followed in each case by gales, and the drifts on many of the mountain roads are fully fifteen feet deep.

Made Blind by Jump.

Brockville, Feb. 26.—A peculiar accident befell Edward Ball yesterday. He jumped from a runaway to escape a collision with three cakes of ice, which were being shot into a storage. Ball alighted on his feet and immediately collapsed. Upon being removed to the hospital it was found he was suffering from injuries to the brain, causing total blindness. His condition last night was critical.

Bitten by Muzzled Dogs.

Niagara Falls, Feb. 26.—A little daughter of William Price had her arm terribly lacerated by a dog wearing a wire muzzle. The animal attacked her in front of her home.

The dog was shot yesterday, and the head sent to Toronto for examination.

A cocking main was held near Welland on Wednesday night.

Insurance Companies Lose About $125,000.00 by the Wreck at Spanish River

Double Liability for About Twenty-five Persons

A loss of somewhere in the neighbourhood of $125,000 is what the Accident Insurance Companies estimate the wreck at Spanish River bridge means to them.

They figure that about 25 of those who met death carried Accident Insurance, and the average insurance, according to the tables, is $5,000. In case of death in a railway disaster there is a double liability, making the figure $6,000, or $5,000 to be more conservative.

Their loss may total more than that, for the commercial travellers, a number of whom were killed, usually carry very heavy insurance. In addition, some of the companies make the policies payable on the death of the wife while travelling, though the policy is taken out in the husband's name. In such cases they pay the husband the same amount as they would have paid the wife were the husband killed.

We issue the BEST Accident and Sickness policy offered to the public.

GOOD NEWS FOR THE CUSTOMERS OF ROBT. FAIR & COMPANY

THE ANNOUNCEMENT of the ABOLITION OF THE GERMAN SURTAX will be hailed with satisfaction by shoppers at the "Golden Lion." Being large importers of European goods, including German novelties of high class manufacture, the surtax duty on which has always been felt to be in the nature of a reprisal against Canadian buyers. This surtax on goods of German production has had the effect of increasing the cost of goods one-third additional on the regular import duty. Germany having now abandoned this undue discrimination against Canadian exports, it will be good news to many of the shoppers at the "Golden Lion," who will in future receive the full benefit of the reduction in the cost of these goods on account of the Canadian surtax being taken off.

THE FRENCH TREATY OF 1907

The amended tariff on goods of French origin will permit Canadian buyers to participate in the lower rate of duty it prescribes.

ALL OUR SPRING IMPORTATIONS will therefore benefit by the removal of the surtax and the lower rate on French goods.

AN EPOCH-MARKING CONGRESS OF THE CATHOLIC CHURCH

The Knights of Columbus, the Ancient Order of Hibernians and other societies of the Catholic church will hold an immense meeting in Chicago in the early spring, as a preliminary to the great Eucharistic Congress in Montreal in September. The Catholic church and people are making the most extensive preparations for this congress which is the most sacred that they hold.

The platform or altar on which one of the celebrations will take place in the public streets of Montreal will alone cost $50 000. The same scene will be repeated in the Council inside in the most Catholic city on the continent, as Montreal is called, to emphasize the devotion of the Catholics and their homage to the Pope. No such forward movement of a great religious body has ever been undertaken in America before.

Peterborough will be represented at the Congress.

The board on this advice decided to advertise for a male principal (possessing first-class professional certificate) at a salary of $1,000, and applications to be received up to March 22nd.

It was then moved by Fennel and Brewster,—That in view of the fact that through the representations of Mr. Lees that the Board would not have to pay over the grant in question to the staff, their salaries were raised $60 per each assistant teacher, and $25.00 for the principal, and furthermore, as the teachers are demanding the urban grant regardless of the increase in salaries, be it resolved that the entire staff of the Public School be immediately notified that the present contracts existing between them and the Board be cancelled at Easter of this year, and any teacher desiring to remain on the staff must do so at the following salaries per annum:—Principal, $550.00; assistants, $370.00. LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Will the Company Do It?

To the Editor of the Review.

Sir,—It is being circulated round that the Private Bills Committee of the legislature did not grant the city's request as made by the deputation, but required that the city's mortgage is to be made to cover the Purity Company's movable machinery as well as the rest. Can you tell me if this change was made, Mr. Editor? It is a most important one, and may "hurt the whole business." Will the company do it? The treatment handed out to bonus and loan hunters this session ought to be a lesson to them. Sir James Whitney's warning that these "special cases" have about played themselves out, will probably prevent further deputations.—Ratepayers have the right to have their property safeguarded by popular vote, and it is a wrong thing (or a few to go up and ask the Legislature to ignore the people. Mr. Kendrey and Mr. Downey deserve our thanks.

Yours, etc.,
FAIRPLAY.

PROPOSAL MADE TO REFER VETO QUESTION TO PEOPLE

Unionists Are Not Believed to be Opposed to Such an Action on the Part of the Liberals—Budget's Fate Seems Sealed if Means Cannot be Found of Dealing With the Veto Bill.

London, Feb. 28.—The month is closing with the fate of the Government still hanging in the balance if John Redmond sticks to his determination to lead his Irish followers against the Budget. Unless the Government not only discloses a scheme of dealing with the veto of the House of Lords, which he approves, but also gives assurance that it can down the opposition of the Lords to this scheme, no means are apparent by which the Government can save the budget. Strong rumors are current of a profound change in the political situation following Prime Minister Asquith's audience with the King Saturday. Immediately after that audience Mr. Asquith summoned his colleagues to a Cabinet Council, which lasted three hours. The impression prevails here that the Premier surrendered to the radical extremists, who object to reforms of the Lords being discussed before the veto question is tackled.

It is also rumored that there is a proposal for submitting the single question of the House of Lords' veto power to a popular direct vote, upon the result of which legislation would follow immediately upon the reassembling of the House at the conclusion of the spring recess. It is believed that such a referendum would receive no serious objection from the Unionist party.

However, all is mere surmise until Monday. Then the country will know how far these rumors are correct, for Mr. Asquith will at that time make a statement which may possibly meet the objections raised to his policy. The opinion grows nevertheless that another general election is inevitable.

DANGER OF MASSACRE

Thibetans Are Greatly Incensed Against Chinese Invaders.

Darjiling, British India, Feb. 28.—The circumstances surrounding the flight from Lhasa, the capital of Thibet, of the now deposed Dalai Lama, the nominal head of the Thibetan Government, are as follows:—The Dalai Lama, following his wide wanderings, arrived at Lhasa in December with authority from Pekin to take over the Government from the Provisional Governors who were appointed following the invasion of the Holy City in 1904 by Col. Sir Francis E. Younghusband at the head of the British column, when Great Britain secured from Thibet certain concessions in the matter of trade and in that of the foreign relations of the country. The Dalai Lama was installed at the palace and monastery of Potala amid popular demonstrations, and all went well for the first month.

Then the Dalai Lama protested to the Chinese Amban in charge of the military affairs, because of the excessive number of Chinese troops on the Sze-Chuen frontier, where they were sacking the monasteries and killing the monks. This protest served to stir up the whole question of the status of Thibet. The Amban declared that it was a Chinese Province, and said that he would deal with the rebels on the frontier as he pleased. Other questions of authority arose, and finally the Amban ordered into Lhasa 2,500 Chinese troops, who were encamped at the outskirts of the capital.

Then the Dalai Lama with three of his Ministers and sixty retainers fled through a gate at the rear of the palace enclosure, and were fired upon as they escaped from the city.

The Thibetans generally resent the treatment of the Dalai Lama, and as they have other grudges against the Chinese, the Chinese officials at isolated points are in great danger of being massacred.

SUIT AGAINST MRS. HETTY GREEN

St. Louis, Mo., Feb. 28.—Mrs. Hetty Green was sued Saturday in the Circuit Court to compel her to relinquish a note for $5,000 on which she has drawn 8 per cent. interest since 1874. Although the interest for that period has amounted to $14,475, Mrs. Green has repeatedly refused, according to the petition to accept $5,000 in cash and resign the investment. Her son, Col. E. H. R. Green, is named with her as a defendant in the suit.

The note was executed on Dec. 31 1874, by Mrs. Catherine Holland, and secured with a mortgage on real estate. It was to be payable in five years and draw 8 per cent. interest. The loan was made by the trustees of the estate of E. M. Robinson, father of Mrs. Green. Col. Green is now administrator.

Mrs. Holland died in 1906, after paying $13,600 interest on the $5,000 note, and her son, Charles H. Holland beings the suit. He says he vainly offered Mrs. Green $5,475, principal and interest for 1910, for the note Feb. 11, at the Chemical Bank, in New York.

HON. MR. FOSTER AT THE CAPITAL

Ottawa, Feb. 28.—The result of the Foster-Macdonald libel suit was generally unexpected in political circles here. Both parties, for the most part, expected a disagreement, though some of the lawyers who have been following the case closely say that the moment Mr. Macdonald pleaded privilege, no other verdict could have been expected.

Hon. Geo. E. Foster returned to Ottawa yesterday. Asked if he had any statement to make, he replied that at present he did not care to make any comment, but might have something to say in a few days.

R. L. Borden, the Conservative leader, was also asked if he had anything to say, but replied that he had no remarks to make.

HAT PIN WENT THROUGH EAR

While he was collecting fares in a crowded car yesterday something attracted the attention of a woman passenger standing in the aisle clinging to a strap.

She turned her head quickly and drove the point of an 18-inch pin which she wore in her hat into the lobe of the conductor's left ear. The conductor, with his ear transfixed on the hat-pin, howled with pain, but with the aid of the embarrassed woman the pin was removed. The wound was cauterized later by a physician.

VANCOUVER PREACHERS FORM UNION

Vancouver, B.C., Feb 28.—The Ministerial Association of Vancouver, composed of virtually all the Protestan ministers of that city, has applied for and obtained affiliation with the Trades and Labor Council, in the same manner as a recognized trade union, accepting the condition imposed by the council that delegates individually must pay the per capita tax in other cases borne by the several local unions.

In effect the action taken give Vancouver the distinction of having the first full-fledged union preachers in Canada—probably in the world.

PLAN TO RAISE TREASURE SHIP

Seattle, Wn., Feb. 28.—An expedition has been organized by an expert diver to raise the steamer Islander, sunk ten years ago in 320 fathoms of water near Juneau, Alaska, while bound for Seattle with $2,000,000 of Klondike gold in her strong box. The location of the steamer is known, but the depth of water has forbidden attempts to salvage. The plan proposed is to lift the vessel with a huge metal seine.

Workmen's Kindness to Distressed.

Galt, Feb. 28.—Mrs. Freure, who lost her husband as a result of a natural gas explosion at her home, and James Bastin, whose wife and daughter died from a like cause, were handed checks for $340 and $122 respectively, representing proceeds of subscriptions from employes in several workshops.

BYE-ELECTIONS IN QUEBEC PROVINCE

Montreal, Feb. 28.—Nominations took place Saturday in Argenteuil and Drummond, the vacancy in the former county being caused by the elevation of Hon. W. A. Weir to the Superior Court bench, and by the resignation of H. Laferte in Drummond. In the last named county, Hon. Jules Allard, Minister of Lands and Forests, who has resigned his seat in the Legislative Council, was nominated by the Government party, while Mayor Garceau was put up by a coalition between the Nationalists and Conservatives.

HAD GARBAGE FOR THEIR FOOD

Burlington, Vt., Feb. 28.—Disdaining to ask for town aid and too proud to beg, a family of six persons, three of them children, for three years have been living on a tiny farm in the outskirts of this city on garbage which the father of the family, 70 years old, has daily collected, ostensibly to feed pigs.

The authorities yesterday were asked to take charge of the family of two insane, middle-aged women, both widows; their aged father and three children, a boy and two girls, aged four, seven and fourteen years respectively. The women have gone insane because of the diet.

HON. GEO. E. FOSTER LOSES SUIT AGAINST THE GLOBE

After a Nine Days Hearing Notable Action is Drawn to a Close, But the Plaintiff May Appeal for a New Trial During the Next Month.

Toronto, Feb. 28.—The nine days' trial of the Foster-Macdonald libel suit came to an end at 8.45 o'clock on Saturday night with a victory for the editor of The Globe.

Neither one of the suitors was present when the jury returned, neither were Messrs. Johnston and Rowell, but they were represented by Junior Counsel George Wilkie. Mr. Foster's leading counsel, I. F. Hellmuth, K.C., however, was on the job, and made a last stand for his client by requesting that the result be entered on the books as the jury had written it, but Mr. Justice Magee instructed that the entry be made "judgment for the defendant with costs." Mr. Hellmuth then applied for and was granted a 30 days stay of proceedings.

The jury took the case at 3.30 on Saturday afternoon, and they were closeted until the time stated, except for a half hour off for luncheon and a few minutes when they came out abot seven o'clock to hear further instructions from the judge, Mr. Hellmuth having taken strong exception of his lordship's summing up. At different periods throughout the afternoon and evening those on watch heard voices rising and mingling in contentious debate from the jury room which indicated that anything but a unanimous spirit was prevailing.

It is said that the vote stood seven to five in favor of a straight verdict for the defendant, until an agreement was finally reached by the seven consenting to the last sentence, letting Foster down somewhat lightly.

An estimate given by one connected with the case places the costs of the trial at $10,000. It was stated that The Globe's expense of preparing the defence was $1,000, and counsel fees for nine days sitting $5,000, while the costs of the other side were placed at about $4,000.

In view of Mr. Hellmuth's charge that the court's instructions to the jury were decidedly unfair to his client, it is possible that an effort may be made towards bringing about a new trial. He has the right to apply within 30 days to the Divisional Court for an order for a new trial.

The suit arose out of statements spoken and published by Dr Macdonald, editor of The Globe, concerning Hon. George E. Foster, and his handling of trust funds while manager of the Union Trust Co. from 1901 to 1905. A royal commission had investigated the affairs of the Union Trust in 1906, and had criticized somewhat adversely the part which Mr Foster had played in several questionable deals. Mr. Foster had been subjected to much criticism especially by the Liberal press, following the royal commission disclosures, and The Globe, in an editorial published Oct 1, 1908, accused Mr. Foster of practically taking money from the Union Trust till. The Dominion election campaign was in full swing at the time, and Mr. Foster challenged Editor Macdonald to meet him on the platform and substantiate his charges. Mr. Macdonald did not take up the challenge. At a meeting of his constituents in North Toronto on the night of Oct. 1, 1908, Mr. Foster replied to the strictures of the editorial head of The Globe in the following terms:

"Where is the Rev. J. A., this Peter the Hermit, this crusader, this Coeur de Leon? Why does he not come here and defend his vile charges, for vile they are? He subscribes to the articles of faith and has put on his Master's robes, yet almost every day from behind his ink pots he bears false witness again his neighbor, that neighbor being George E. Foster. When I challenge him to meet me on the platform that I may prove him to be the liar that he is, he hides behind his ink pots and utters more lies."

Editor Macdonald returned to his charge in a speech delivered at Orillia on Oct. 20, using the following words:

"My charge stands. It was this. That he asked for a private rake-off in a deal with trust funds, that he directed the suspicious way in which that personal rake-off should be paid, that he got that rake-off and that he had no right or title to that money."

Mr. Foster issued a writ against Rev. J. A. Macdonald on Oct 23, 1908, for $50,000 for slander and libel.

HANGED HIMSELF BEFORE RELEASE

Vancouver, B.C., Feb. 28.—William Ashworth, whose two months' term for wife-beating was up yesterday, committed suicide in jail on Saturday by hanging himself with small pieces of string. He had had a reconciliation with his wife, who Friday night brought him $15 with which to go to Prince Rupert. Yesterday morning the two children, sent to the jail with new clothing for their father, found that he had hanged himself.

Stratford Industries.

Stratford, Feb 28.—The George McLagan Furniture Co. are adding a large addition to their extensive plant. They will employ one hundred more mechanics.

Bates & Blake, a new firm, have begun the manufacture of dog muzzles. They employ about 25 men, who work at home, thus dispensing with the cost of operating a plant.

CZAR DRIVES IN THE STREETS

St. Petersburg, Feb. 28.—With no preliminary announcement in the court circular the Czar has definitely left his five years seclusion and is seen almost daily driving in the streets. Thrice last week he has traversed the main streets at the busiest hour of the afternoon with no interruption to the traffic beyond keeping the crossings clear as his victoria, drawn by two horses, approaches, when the police chance to see him.

His Majesty uses a roomy English victoria with a low back, entirely open. The coachman and footman are seated high in front.

The Czar's reception everywhere has seemed to be friendly and respected without any demonstration. His example is now followed by all the members of the imperial family in St. Petersburg. In addition to visiting relatives, military schools and hospitals the Czar has called on some of the leading families.

MURDER CHARGE AGAINST WIDOW

Kirksville, Mo., Feb. 28.—Warrants issued by the Adair County Circuit Court on a report of a special grand jury resulted in the arrest of Mrs. Alma Proctor-Vaughan, and Dr. J. K. Hull of Monroe City, Mo., on the charge of murder by strychnine poisoning of Prof. J. T. Vaughan. Mrs. Vaughan, widow of the professor, was released on $25,000 bail, and the physician on $7,500 bonds.

Sentenced to Keep Sober.

New York, Feb. 28.—On condition that he promise not to take a drink of liquor in the next twenty-five years, sentenced was suspended on Michael Lyons, who had been convicted of assisting a burglar to break into a drug store for the bribe of a drink. The testimony showed that Lyons was drunk at the time.

Fire did $7,000 damage to the Montreal Cotton and Wool Waste Co.

LATE TICKS FROM WIRES

Two officials of the Austrian Government fought a duel at Vienna on Saturday, in which one of them was killed.

At the annual meeting of the Peel Liberal Association resolution endorsing the Government's naval policy was adopted.

An alarming state of affairs prevails along the Turko-Bulgarian frontier, where a condition approaching a state of war exists.

Two Toronto girls were arrested as "white slaves" at Black Rock while on their way to Buffalo. Two Toronto men were taken into custody in connection with the case at Buffalo.

Fire in the Gier block at Macleod Alberta, did $10,000 damage. The American Hotel at Moncton, N.B. was damaged to the extent of $20,000 and a blaze in Naylor's factory and the Standard Glove Works at St Johns, Quebec, threatened the destruction of the town.

Hon Mr. Cushing explained the reason of his resignation in the Alberta Legislature, and a lively debate took place, in which Mr. Boyle joined the ex-Minister in attacking the Government's railway policy, which was defended by Premier Rutherford and Attorney-General Cross.

SUNDAY PAPERS ARE BARRED

Buffalo, N.Y., Feb. 28.—Canada has given the thumbscrew on the Sunday lid another twist. Sunday papers are barred absolutely from Fort Erie, Ont., under an order just issued.

The orders, which the Government has just issued, prohibit the sale of newspapers in Fort Erie on Sunday and forbid all persons to bring newspapers into the village on Sunday even for their own use. The foregoing law, relative to Sunday newspapers, has been more or less enforced in other parts of Ontario for two years, but heretofore Fort Erie has been exempt because of the many Americans living there.

It is believed that the recent protest of the ministerial association at Windsor, Ont., over the importation of Detroit papers, is the cause for the new order of enforcement all along the line.

JURORS' ACT IN NEW BRUNSWICK

Fredericton, N.B., Feb. 28.—In the Legislature the Premier introduces the Jurors' Act, and said that at present selection was in the hands of the sheriff, who was open to the charge of favoritism in making a choice of men. The bill provides for a committee, consisting of the clerk of the court, clerk of the peace, and the sheriff, to make the selection of both the grand and petit jurors by drawing names from a box containing tickets with the names of all eligible to serve, thus securing absolute fairness.

PHILADELPHIA UNIONISTS TO GO OUT IN SYMPATHY

Interference With Traffic is Having its Effect on Busines and Citizens are Anxious to See a Settlement of the Car Strike.

Philadelphia, Pa., Feb 28.—Action fraught with possible momentous consequences to Philadelphia was taken by the Central Labor Union last night, when that body, representing 140 unions, which claim a membership of 125,000, voted to begin a sympathetic strike next Saturday in aid of the striking street railway employes.

Meanwhile there is hope that the street railway strike will be arbitrated, despite the repeated declarations of the transit company, controlling all the lines in the city, that "there is nothing to arbitrate."

There is a strong feeling, especially among business people, that the strike should be settled speedily, as all lines of business suffer because of the stagnation resulting from the interference with traffic.

There was surprise at the reported unanimity of the vote in favor of a general sympathetic strike. Leaders of various trades unions had said they were opposed to a general strike because it involves the matter of broken trade agreements. Others doubted their ability to order all workmen to lay down their tools and have the order obeyed. There is no doubt, however, of the strength of the feeling that unionism is at stake and the consequent feeling that a fight to preserve the union is necessary.

Members of every labor organization in Philadelphia in any way connected with the American Federation of Labor, participated in the conference yesterday.

A man and a boy are dead and four other boys were seriously hurt as a result of a trolley car jumping a switch at Sixth and Jackson streets downtown last night and crashing into the front of a cigar store. There had been a disturbance down the street and some one had turned the unused switch at this point. A trolley car, driven at high speed, jumped the track and crashed through the crowd on the sidewalk, only stopping after it had torn the front out of the store.

Cars were stoned, motormen and conductors beaten and many passengers were struck by flying missiles in the rioting which was renewed here yesterday afternoon, after several days of comparative quietness. Nearly a dozen riot calls were received at police headquarters, but in most instances the mobs were dispersed with riot sticks alone. Seventy-one arrests were made.

In an attack on a car at Germantown avenue and Manheim street, a motorman was stabbed in the back with an oyster knife. His assailant escaped.

Following an attack upon a car in Manayunk, in the northwestern section, Thomas Wagner, aged 15, was shot through the chest by a policeman. He will die. Another boy was shot through the hand in the same crowd.

MARRIES HER MILLIONAIRE EMPLOYER

Victoria, B.C., Feb. 28.—Stephen Jones, owner of the Dominion Hotel here, the Jones Block in Vancouver, and other properties in British Columbia cities, representing a valuation of over a million, was married in Los Angeles, Cal., to Miss Elizabeth Thompson, formerly of New Westminster, and has started with his bride on a two years' round-the-world ramble.

Miss Thompson applied to Jones about two years ago for work in the dining-room of the Dominion, and was engaged as waitress. Her attractiveness and brightness won her speedy promotion to the cashier's desk, and later, at Jones' urging, she went to a ladies' college.

Her engagement to her former employer was announced private two months' ago.

GETTING TIRED OF THE DEBATE

A move is expected to be made today in the House by D. A. Gordon, the Liberal member for Kent, who will ask that the debate be brought to an early termination. At the present rate of progress it will continue for several weeks to come.

Meanwhile other public business is falling behind. The estimates are not half disposed of and all those that are to come are contentious. Yet the financial year will close on March 31. The revision of the Bank Act is to come yet. Another important measure is Hon. Mackenzie King's anti-combine measure.

These will occupy a considerable time and it is hardly possible if all proposed measures are dealt with that Parliament will prorogue before June.

INVESTIGATION OF THE METHODIST CHURCH AT GESTO

Windsor, Ont., Feb. 28.—An investigation committee composed of Rev J. Philp, chairman, of Essex; Rev. T. Blatchford, of Cottam; Rev. D. Wren, of Maidstone, and Rev. S. T. Toll of Walkerville, met at Essex Saturday afternoon to investigate the affairs of the Gesto Methodist Church, and the condition in which it was left by the erstwhile pastor, Rev. David Hicks, who is now occupying a pulpit of the Methodist Church in Corunna, Mich. Mr. Hicks will be given an opportunity to explain matters at a court of trial which will be held in Essex in three weeks.

The investigation committee discovered that the missing pastor left debts to the amount of $1,200. The committee formulated three charges against Rev. David Hicks; first, obtaining money under false pretences; second, falsehood, and, third, leaving the work irregularly.

A letter was received from the Toronto missionary authorities in which they denied that they ever received $210 from the Gesto people.

TO MAKE CHICAGO A NOISELESS CITY

Chicago, Ill., Feb. 28.—A movement to make Chicago a "Noiseless city," came one step nearer realization Saturday, when Chief of Police Steward issued an order for the rigid enforcement of the city's "anti-shouting" ordinance. This means that peddlers must not call out their wares.

The ordinance was to have gone into effect on Jan. 1, but its enforcement was postponed to give peddlers a hearing.

"BOB" COOK IN THE ROLE OF A FICTIONIST

Orangeville, Feb. 28.—Governor Bowles, of the county jail, wonders whether Bob and Dr. Fred Cook are in any way related.

He says that Bob's story in Toronto of how close he came to getting out of his cramped quarters here is all moonshine. Bob has a reputation as a "blowhard," and would be in his glory when quizzed by reporters.

Great Britain, China and Thibet.

Pekin, Feb 28.—W. G. Max Muller, British charge d'affaires, has made friendly representations to the Chinese foreign board on the subject of Great Britain's concern over the situation in Thibet, and with reference to the preservation of peace and order in the border states, has asked China to state formally her policy and intentions.

Unopposed by Laborites.

London, Feb. 28.—The Labor party decided Saturday night not to oppose Joseph Albert Pease, whose promotion to the Ministry necessitated his re-election in Rotherham. The decision of the Laborites was due to the refusal of the miners to provide a candidate.

TRY TO BREED A TAILLESS CAT

New York, Feb. 28.—To determine the effect of darkness upon various forms of animal life, experiments are being conducted with insects and fishes at the Carnegie Branch of the Experimental Evolution at Cold Spring Harbor, L.I. The experiments are in charge of Dr. A. M. Bants.

A concrete cave has been built, 42 by 10 feet, and eight feet in height. It is five feet underground. It is equipped with tanks in which live fishes of various kinds have been placed, while crickets and other insects have been placed in compartments that are dry but without a ray of light. Other odd experiments have been in progress for some time, one of them being the effort to breed a tailless cat.

RIOT QUELLED BY THE MILITIA

Eldorado, Ark., Feb. 28.—Following the wounding of three white men, the formation of a mob and an attack on the negro section of the city, Eldorado Saturday night went under control of the military.

A white man was crowded from the sidewalk by a negro. Bystanders took a hand, and the negro plunged at one of his adversaries with a knife. No one was injured, and the negro escaped.

Early Saturday night citizens started to search for the negro and when the party entered a resort they were greeted with revolver shots. Three of the party were wounded.

A mob formed and had begun the destruction of the negro cabins and property when the local militia company was ordered out.

ISSUES OF THE DEMOCRATIC PARTY

Buffalo, N.Y., Feb. 28.—Chairman Norman E. Mack of the Democratic National Committee, makes it evident in the March number of his magazine, The National Monthly, that he believes the tariff reform and the high cost of living are to be two of the principal issues of the Democratic congressional campaigns of the present year.

The Daily Review

A GREAT CHANGE

Four years ago a vote was taken in the British House of Commons on the question of tariff reform, and a motion favoring the reform was defeated by a vote of 488 to 28. It was jubilantly proclaimed that this settled the fate of tariff reform in Britain and that it would not be heard of again, but it has been heard of again and played an important part in the late elections. Last week another vote was taken on a motion similar to the one proposed four years before and the majority against it was 31. A change from an adverse majority of 390 to 31 in four years shows that tariff reform has made remarkable progress in the old land. A very few more years of the same educational campaign should turn the present small adverse majority into a substantial favorable one.

In the debate Canada was referred to by the advocates of tariff reform. The Conservative leader apparently foresees that the growing demand for wheat will cause a further rise in the price, and he points out that if a preference to colonial wheat brought more land under the plough and resulted in increased railway accommodation in Canada, it might well be that, if the price was not diminished, the rise which the growing demands of the world might otherwise produce would be prevented. The argument brings home the benefit that a preference in the English market would be to Canada, for it would stimulate agriculture and the demand for colonial produce would call people "back to the land." And if agriculture benefitted, so would commerce and manufacture, for the increased agricultural population population would call for more manufactures and merchandise. Mr. Bonar Law drew a lesson from Canadian experience. He pointed out that after thirty years trial our tariff policy had resulted in Americans pouring across the border to enjoy the benefits of the great natural resources that had been developed in the Dominion. The Liberals opposed the National Policy when it was proposed; their organs decry protection now, but even its administration by unfriendly hands had benefitted Canada, and if it had been administered by those who believed in it the resulting benefits would have been greater.

The vote in the English House of Commons must be very encouraging to the tariff reformers, and had that question been decided by the voters in the recent election without the issue being complicated by others which caused much feeling, there is little room for doubt that it would have been approved by the country.

TAXES AS PUNISHMENT

In support of the local option in taxation measure an advocate says:—"The proposal is that a man shall not be punished for improving his property or rewarded for allowing it to lie idle." But does the present system of municipal taxation provide punishment for a man who improves his property? That is most certainly not the principle that underlies taxation. If a man erects a building, it is supposed that the house will need fire protection and that he should share with others who own buildings, the expense of providing such protection. And as the building will be erected for the purpose of being occupied, it will require its quota of police protection, and of light, streets, sidewalks and other municipal improvements for these services. To require payment for services rendered is not punishment; it is equity.

No good purpose can be served by mistaking the position. If the owner of vacant land which is held for an increase in value or until there is an increase in value should turn over part or all of the increase to the community, because it is a value created by the community and therefore belonging to it, very good; that is a proposition that can be argued with force, but it is different from saying that to assess a building for services required owing to its existence is to punish the builder for improving his property. And it will be found very difficult to tax the unearned increment in land. The proposal made in England, and which will no doubt be carried out, is to have appraisers appointed to value the increment in the value of land so that it may be taxed. This will be found expensive, and in many Canadian municipalities might be found impracticable. The bill before the Legislature, as we understand it, is to permit municipalities to levy a higher rate on land than on improvements. It may be that a discriminatory rate of this kind would be a rough and ready way of taxing the unearned increment in land, although it would ot be a scientific way of applying the principle, but to allow each municipal council to apply the law and fix the respective rates for land and improvements as it saw fit would be unsafe. The members of municipal councils do not pretend to have studied the science of taxation, to such an extent as to be able to say how much of the burden land should bear as compared with improvements, and there would be great confusion and danger of much harm in permitting local option in this matter. The Legislature, if it wishes to deal with the subject, should give it such attention that it can deal with it intelligently and for the whole province, otherwise it would be safer to leave it alone.

A GENEROUS OFFER

Wm. Madill Will Refund Your Money if Parisian Sage Does Not Banish Dandruff

Pretty strong talk, perhaps you'll say, but its honest talk, every word of it, because if Wm. Madill was not absolutely certain, if he did not know from actual results obtained, he could not make such a generous offer.

Parisian Sage, which can not be obtained in every town in Canada, is also guaranteed to stop falling hair and itching scalp.

It is the ideal, delightful, rejuvenating hair dressing that makes hair grow in abundance. Parisian Sage is a prime favorite with women, because it keeps the hair brilliant and fascinating, is daintily perfumed and is not sticky or greasy.

The price for a large bottle is only 50 cents at Wm. Madill's, who guarantees it. Sold everywhere, or direct, all charges prepaid, by the Canadian makers, Giroux Mfg. Co., Fort Erie, Ont.

5000 Facts About Canada

The public will warmly welcome the new 1910 edition of that indispensable booklet, "5000 Facts About Canada," compiled by Frank Yeigh, whose writings and lectures on Canada are widely known. The popularity of the publication is shown by its sale of nearly 50,000 copies, not only in Canada, but through the Empire, and indeed the world. The 1910 edition contains a large percentage of new matter, under such heads as—agriculture, mining, banking, trade, railways, wheat growing, education, religions, etc., while a new feature is a budget of Empire facts. The book is a revelation of the riches and resources of the Dominion. It is published at 25 cents a copy by The Canadian Facts Publishing Co., 667 Spadina avenue, Toronto, Canada, or may be had from newsdealers.

THE RAW MATERIAL FOR THE FACTORY

The question of supply of raw material to the cheese factory and creamery is a first consideration; the finished product in paying quantity and of good quality is mainly dependent on a large supply of good milk and cream.

As the supply is also of importance to every director of any dairy company, every factory owner and every maker, such men should see to it that each patron is interested in cow testing. Once a patron begins testing each cow individually he commences to take far more interest in the herd generally, and is likely to supply not only more milk and cream, but far better quality and cared for better. In many herds the milk yield has been increased by twenty, and even thirty, per cent. in three years, through a knowledge of each animal's capacity, which led to weeding out the poor cows and feeding the good ones a little better. Is it not to the advantage of every factory to see its patrons prosperous? If farmers supply more milk or cream from a given number of cows, or from a certain number of acres, it means that the factory receives more raw material from the same territory, thereby lessening the cost of hauling, and lowering in proportion the expense of making, while a longer factory season is possible as the milking period is extended.

Factory officials are invited to recommend cow testing to all their patrons. If a list of names and addresses is sent to the Dairy Commissioner, Ottawa, literature on the subject will be mailed direct to each.

The Man From Brodney's

By GEORGE BARR M'CUTCHEON

Copyright, 1908, by Dodd, Mead & Co.

Lady Agnes waved her hand lazily toward the group below, sending a mocking smile to Chase. "The Asiatic plague," she said cheerfully.

"The deuce!" broke in her husband, not catching her meaning. "Has it really broken out?"

"Deppy, you are the dumbest creature I know!" exclaimed his wife.

Chase smiled broadly. "She refers to the newly acquired harem, Lord Deppingham. We're supposed to die with the Asiatic plague, not to—not to"—

"Not to live with it! Ho, ho, I see, by Jove!" roared Deppingham amiably. "Splendid! Harem! I get the point. Ripping!"

"They're not so bad, are they, Bobby?" asked Lady Agnes coolly, going to Browne's side at the railing. It may not have been true that Browne was in love with Lady Deppingham, but it was more than evident that his wife felt convinced that he was.

"Splendid!" was the sudden exclamation of Drusilla's vagrant lord. The others looked up, interested. "Say, everybody, Lady Agnes and I have hit upon a ripping scheme. It's great!"

"To better our position?" asked Deppingham.

"Position? What—oh, I see. Not exactly. What do you say to a charity ball, the proceeds to go to the survivors of the plague we're expected to have?"

The princess gave a quick, involuntary look at Chase's face. Browne's tall fellow countryman was now leaning against the rail beside her chair. She saw a look of surprised amusement flit across his face, succeeded almost instantly by a hard, dark frown of displeasure. He waited a moment and then looked down at her with unmistakable shame and disapproval in his eyes.

"We might just as well be merry while we can," Browne was saying. "Think of what the French did at the time of the commune. They danced and died like ladies and gentlemen. And our own forefathers, Chase, at the time of the American Revolution—remember them too. They gave their balls and parties right under the muzzles of British cannon. And Vicksburg—New Orleans, too—in the civil war! Think of 'em! Why shouldn't we be as game and as gay as they?"

"But they were earnest in their distractions," observed Deppingham, with a glance at his wife's eager face. "This could be nothing more than a travesty, a jest."

"Oh, let us be sports," cried Lady Agnes, falling into an Americanism readily. "It may be a jest, but what odds? Something to kill time with."

"I don't like Mr. Browne," whispered Genevra suddenly. Chase did not reply. She waited a moment and then went on. "He is not like Deppingham. Do you understand?"

Lady Deppingham came over to them at that instant, her eyes sparkling.

"It's to be tonight," she said. "A fashionable charity ball—everything except the newspaper accounts, don't you know. Committees and all that. It's short notice, of course, but life may be short. We'll have Arab acrobatics, Persian dances, a grand march, electric lights and absolutely no money to distribute. That's the way it usually is. Now, Mr. Chase, don't look so sour! Be nice, please!" She put her hand on his arm and smiled up at him so brightly that he could not hold out against her. She caught the touch of disapproval in Genevra's glance, and a sharp, quick flash of rebellion came into her own eyes.

"What is a charity ball?" asked Genevra after a moment.

"A charity ball is a function where one set of women sit in the boxes and say nasty things about the women on the floor, and those on the floor say horrid things about the women in the boxes. It's great fun."

"Charity is simply a hallucination, then?"

"Yes, but don't mention it aloud. Mr. Britt is trying with might and main to prove that Bobby and I have hallucinations without end. If I happen to look depressed at breakfast time he jots it down—spells of depression and melancholia, do you see? He's a dreadful man."

Saunders was approaching from the lower end of the balcony. He appeared flustered. His face was red and perspiring and his manner distrait.

"Well, Saunders?" said Deppingham as the lawyer stopped to clear his throat obsequiously.

"I have found sufficient food of all descriptions, sir, to last for a month at least," said Saunders in a strained, unnatural voice.

"Have a cigarette, Deppy?" interposed Browne, seeing that something was amiss with Saunders. In solemn order the silver box went the rounds.

Saunders spoke up, as if suddenly recollecting something. "I have to report, sir, that the stock of cigarettes is getting very low. They can't last three days at this rate, sir."

The three men stared at him.

"Good Lord!" exclaimed Chase, who could face any peril and relish the experience if needs be, but who now foresaw a sickening deprivation. "You can't mean it, Saunders!"

"I certainly do, sir. The mint is holding out well, though, sir. I think it will last."

"By George, that is a calamity!" groaned Chase. "How is a man to fight without cigarettes?"

Genevra quietly proffered the one she had not lighted, a quizzical smile in her eyes.

"My contribution to the cause," she said gayly. "What strange creatures men are! You will go out and be shot at all day and yet"— She paused and looked at the cigarette as if it were entitled to reverence.

"It does seem a bit silly, doesn't it?" lamented the stalwart Chase. Then he took the cigarette.

CHAPTER XX.

THE CHARITY BALL.

THEY were not long in finding out what had happened to Saunders. After luncheon, while Browne and the three ladies were completing the preparations for the entertainment, Miss Pelham appeared before Deppingham and Chase in the former's headquarters. She had asked for an interview and was accompanied by Mr. Britt.

"Mr. Saunders has deceived me," she announced steadily. "I leave it to you if his attentions have not been most pronounced. Of course, if I wanted to, I could show you a transcript of everything he has said to me in the last couple of months. He didn't know it, but I managed to get most everything down in shorthand. I did it at the risk, too, your lordship, of being considered cold and unresponsive by him. It's most difficult to take conversation without the free use of your hands, I must say. But I've preserved in my own black and white every promise he made and"—

"I'm afraid it won't be good evidence," volunteered her lawyer. "It will have to be substantiated, my dear."

"Please don't call me 'my dear,' Mr Britt. Never you mind about it not being good evidence. Thomas Saunders won't enjoy hearing it read in court just the same. What I want to ask of you, Lord Deppingham, as a friend is to give Mr. Britt your deposition regarding Mr. Saunders' attitude toward me to the best of your knowledge and belief. I'll take it verbatim and put it into typewriting free of charge. I—I don't see anything to laugh at, Mr. Chase!" she cried, flushing painfully.

"My dear girl," he said, controlling himself, "I think you are misjudging the magnitude of a lovers' quarrel. Don't you think it is rather a poor time to talk breach of promise with the guns of an enemy ready to take a pop at us at any moment?"

"It's no worse than a charity ball, Mr. Chase," she said severely. "Charity begins at home, gentlemen, and I'm here to look out for myself. No one else will, let me tell you that. I want to get the deposition of every person in the chateau. They can be sworn to before Mr. Bowles, who is a magistrate, I'm told. He can marry people and"—

"By Jove!" exclaimed Deppingham suddenly. "Can he? Upon my soul!"

"His manner changed as soon as that horrid little wife of Selim came to the chateau. I don't like the way she makes eyes at him, and I told him so this morning down in the storerooms. My, but he flew up! He said he'd be —— if he'd marry me." She began to use her handkerchief vigorously. The men smiled as they looked away.

"I—I intend to sue him for breach of promise," she said thickly.

"Is it as bad as all that?" asked Deppingham consolingly.

"What do you mean by 'bad as all that?' He's kissed me time and again, but that's all."

"I'll send for Saunders," said Deppingham sternly.

"Not while I'm here," she exclaimed. "Just as you like, Miss Pelham. I'll send for you after we've talked it over with Saunders. We can't afford a scandal in the chateau, don't you know."

"No, I should think not," she said pointedly. Then she looked at Chase and winked, with a meaning nod at the unobserving Deppingham. Chase followed her into the hall.

"None of that, Miss Pelham," he said severely.

Saunders came in a few minutes later, nervous and uncomfortable.

"You sent for me, my lord," he said weakly.

"Sit down, Saunders. Your knees seem to be troubling you. Miss Pelham is going to sue you for breach of promise."

"Good Lord!"

"What have you promised her?"

"That I wouldn't marry her; that's all, sir," floundered Saunders. "She's got no right to presume, sir. Gentlemen always indulge in little affairs—flirtations, I might say, sir. It's most common. Of course I thought she'd understand."

"Don't you love her, Saunders?"

"Oh, I say, my lord, that's rather a pointed question. My word, it is, sir. There may have been a bit of—er—well, you know—between us, sir, but—that's all, that's quite all, absurdly all, 'pon my soul."

"Saunders," said Britt solemnly, "I am her attorney. Be careful what you say in my presence."

"Britt," said Saunders distinctly, "you are a blooming traitor. You told me yourself that she was used to all that sort of thing and wouldn't mind. Now see what you do! It's—it's outrageous." He was half in tears. Then, turning to Deppingham, he went on fiercely: "I won't be bullyragged by any woman, sir. We got along beautifully until she began to shy figurative pots at me because Selim's wife looked at me occasionally. Hang it all, sir, I can't help it if the ladies choose to look at me. Minnie—Miss Pelham—was perfectly silly about it. Good Lord!" he groaned in recollection. "It was a very trying scene she made, sir. More than ever it made me realise that I can't marry beneath me."

"Saunders," said Lord Deppingham sternly, "she loves you. I don't understand why or how, but she does. Just because you have obtained an exalted social position at Hammersmith Bridge is no reason you should become a snob. I dare say she stands just as well at Brooklyn bridge as you do at Hammersmith. She's a fine girl and would be an adornment to you such as Hammersmith could be proud of. If you want my candid opinion, Saunders, I think you're a silly ass!"

"Do you really, my lord?" quite humbly.

"Shall I prove it to you by every man on the place? Miss Pelham is quite good enough for any one of us. I'd be proud to have her as my wife—if I lived at Hammersmith Bridge."

"You amaze me, sir!"

"She's a very pretty girl," volunteered Chase glibly.

"Oh, she could marry like a flash in New York," said Britt. "A dozen men I know of are crazy about her—good looking chaps too." The sarcasm escaped Saunders, who was fidgeting uncomfortably.

"Of course, you know, the breaking of the engagement—I simply say the row—wasn't of my doing," he submitted, pulling at his finger joints nervously.

"I'm afraid it can't be patched up either," said Britt dolefully. "She's been insulted, you see."

"Saunders, we can't have our only romance marred by a breach of promise suit," said his lordship resolutely. "There has simply got to be a wedding in the end or the whole world will hate us. So far you have been our prize young lover. You are the undisputed hero. Don't spoil everything at the last moment, Saunders. Patch it up and let's have a wedding in the last chapter. You should not forget that it was you who advocated multimarriage. Try it once for yourself, and if you like it, by Jove, we'll all come to your succeeding marriages and bless you, no matter how many wives you take unto yourself."

Saunders, very much impressed by those confidences, bowed himself out of the room, followed by Britt, of whom he implored help in the effort to bring about a reconciliation. He was sorely distressed by Britt's apparent reluctance to compromise the case without mature deliberation.

The charity ball began at 10 o'clock, schedule time. Drusilla Browne, asserting herself as an American matron, insisted that the invitation list should include the lowly as well as the mighty. She had her way, and as a result the bank employees, the French maids, Antoine and the two corporals of Rapp-Thorberg's Royal guard appeared on the floor in the grand march directly behind Mr. Britt, Mr. Saunders and Miss Pelham.

"One cannot discriminate at the charity ball," Drusilla stoutly maintained. "The hoi polloi and the riff-raff always get in at home, so why not here?"

"I shall feel as if I were dancing with my greengrocer," lamented Lady Agnes. Later on, when the dancing was at its height, she exclaimed with all the fervor of a charmed imagination: "I feel as the Duchess de What's-her-name must have felt, Bobby, when she danced all night at her own ball and then dressed for the guillotine instead of going to bed. We may all be shot in the morning."

The Indian fakers and showmen gave a performance in the courtyard at midnight. They were followed by the Bedouin tumblers and the inspired Persians, who danced with frantic abandon. There was but one unfortunate accident. Mr. Rivers, formerly of the bank, got very tight and fell down the steps leading to the courtyard, breaking his left arm.

Lord Deppingham and Chase kept their heads. They saw to it that the watch over the grounds and about the chateau was strictly maintained. The former led the grand march with the princess. She was more ravishingly beautiful than ever. Hollingsworth Chase was dazzled. Something seemed to shout coarsely, scoffingly into his ear: "Now do you realize the distance that lies between? She was made for kings and princes, not for such as you!"

He waited long before presenting himself in quest of the dance he hungered for so greedily—afraid of her! She greeted him with a new, brighter light in her eyes. A quiver of delight long in restraint came into her voice. He saw and felt the welcome in her manner. The blood surged to his head. He mumbled his request. Then, for the first time, he was clasping her fingers, touching her waist, drawing her gently toward his heart. Once as they swept around the almost empty ballroom she looked up into his eyes. Neither had spoken. His lips parted suddenly, and his fingers closed down upon hers. She saw the danger light in his eyes and knew the unuttered words that struggled to his lips and stopped there. She never knew why she did it, but she involuntarily shook her head before she lowered her eyes. He knew what she meant. His heart turned cold again, and the distance widened once more to the old proportions.

Coal on Peace River.

Ten thousand acres of coal, beautiful, rich bituminous coal, which will coke to the extent of 86 per cent., have been located on the Peace River just across the border of British Columbia, by a syndicate which includes several prominent capitalists of eastern Canada. This is the latest sensational discovery in the far-famed Peace River country. Small seams of coal have been found at intervals along Peace River well up towards the mountains, but nothing of the extent and the quality of the huge coal area which has been filed upon by this syndicate of capitalists. The claim was filed upon this year by Mr. Brutinel, who recorded his claim with F. C. Campbell, the new British Columbia Government representative at Fort St. John, who went north early in the spring. The coal area was surveyed by Theo. Davis, a mining engineer, whom Mr. Brutinel took north with him, and who declares that the coal he found on the Peace River was of a quality that would prove excellent for manufacturing as well as for domestic purposes. It will be four years at least before the syndicate will be enabled to proceed with the development of the Peace River property. Within that time the Canadian Northern Railway will have completed the extension of their Morinville line to Peace River Crossing.

NOTABLE STAR IN "GAY MUSICIAN"

Manager J. P. Slocum after a most successful Tour of the Pacific coast with "The Gay Musician" returns to the Grand to-night with this fascinating light opera which visited Peterborough earlier in the season. The company which appears here to-night will be much stronger than the one which appeared at the Grand before and several new principals of distinction in the musical comedy realm will be seen in the leading parts. A notable addition to the cast is Miss Texas Guinan the prima donna of the opera and a talented artist who has been flatteringly received in the principal cities of the west. She relinquished a most important metropolitan engagement to accept the alluring offer from Mr. Slocum to sing the leading role in "The Gay Musician."

NEW BRIDGE AT BOBCAYGEON

A deputation from the Peterborough and Victoria county councils visited Boocaygeon last week and inspected Little Bob bridge, and agreed that a new concrete bridge on a level next season should be built to replace the old one that has been in use for a great number of years. It is expected that the width of this new bridge will be 16-ft.

LIBERALS ON THE DEFENSIVE

Along with their glorification of each other, the Liberal speakers at the Opera House meeting attempted a defence of the course of the Liberal Government, and raked history remote and recent in an endeavor to show cause why the government should be supported, or rather might be supported. The growth of the country, and especially the development of Western Canada, was appealed to as an evidence of the foresight of Liberal leaders. But people have not forgotten to whom that development is due. The Conservatives opened the way to the North West, and by the construction of the Canadian Pacific Railway laid the foundation for the development that has taken place. While the Liberal, head office Canadians who desired to take up Western lands has to pass through the United States, and Canadians who would have found homes in the Canadian West if the country had been properly opened up to them swelled the population of Dakota and other states instead of settling on Canadian territory. The North West was opened and developed in the face of the strenuous opposition of the political party that would now take the credit for what the others accomplished and what they fought against.

It was to be expected that the naval scheme of the Government would be defended by members of parliament who support the government in everything it proposes or does. Mr. Macdonald would have his hearers believe that the scheme was worked out and planned by the British admiralty authorities, but the record tells a different tale. The British authorities wished a direct contribution of war vessels, or failing this, the construction of a naval unit that would be able to give effective assistance and would be under the direction of the navy authorities in case of need. The Government have rejected these suggestions and the plan it has laid before Parliament is its own. It is disapproved because it will be very costly without being of any benefit. It does not include one vessel that could take its place in a line of battle, and would therefore, be useless for effective co-operation with the Imperial navy of for defending our own trade or coasts. The scheme has been altered since made public, and the make up and cost of the naval plant as now proposed, including the purchase of obsolete vessels, will be:

Niobe and Rainbow	$ 1,325,000
Four Bristols	9,400,000
Six Destroyers	5,200,000
Naval College, barracks, etc	715,000
Total	$15,640,000

If these estimates are not exceeded the annual interest charges in this expenditure will be at least $469,200 per annum, and allowing 10 per cent. for depreciation and taking the estimate of the Minister of Militia for other annual expenses the burden each year will be:—

Interest on first cost	$ 469,200
Depreciation	1,302,000
College, barracks, etc	1,040,000
Training ships	1,244,000
Bristols and Destroyers	2,855,000
Total annual charges	$7,000,200

This is without considering the cost of fuel and repairs. If by this large expenditure we were assisting the empire, there would be no reason for incurring it, for we would then be aiding the power to which we owe so much and be assisting in our own protection. But this fleet, without a vessel that would face an enemy such as it would have to meet if it attempted to be of service, will give no assistance in the defence of the empire and will be useless in guarding our own coasts. Such a scheme cannot be defended by incorrectly ascribing the plan as one outlined by the British admiralty.

Protestations of loyalty are not an excuse for a policy that cannot be upheld on its own merits. Mr. Beland said "independence is not an advantage to-day and never has been." Will Mr. Beland obtain from his leader a statement as to whether he has changed his mind? Here is what Sir Wilfrid Laurier said —

"There is not a country on the face of the earth which ever achieved its independence except at the cost of blood and war and enmity with the parent state. I hold out to my fellow countrymen the idea of independence; but whenever the day comes it must come by the consent of both countries, and we shall continue to keep the good feeling and the good-will of the Motherland. If we are true to our record we will exhibit to the world the unique, the unprecedented example of a nation achieving its independence by slow degrees, and as naturally as the severing of the ripe fruit from the parent tree."

With this language on record it cannot be surprising if uneasiness is felt lest the scheme of building an inefficient fleet at a time of need and withholding it from the control of the Imperial authorities unless special permission is given, is one to move forward independence a few of those slow degrees. If the Premier has abandoned the idea that he held out to his fellow countrymen he has not told us so.

Mr. Beland recalled that it was Sir George Cartier who presented the first militia bill. At any rate it was while Sir George Cartier was Premier, and he was loyal and patriotic, but the gentlemen from Beauce did not add that Sir George Cartier's militia bill was opposed and defeated by the Liberals of the day and that he was forced to retire from office.

"You people here," Mr. Macdonald said, "will be able to share in the tremendous exploitation of the products of the West when the Trent Canal is finished." When it is finished—but when, Oh when, will that be?

Mr. Hugh Lumsden's charges regarding exorbitant payments to contractors of the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway were touched on lightly. A committee has been appointed to investigate them, but its field of investigation is limited, and if wrong doing is shown the committee cannot go to the bottom of the matter and bring the responsibility home to those behind the engineers. The contracts for construction are based upon such prices as these for the work, taking one as an example. For solid rock $1.50 per yard; for loose rock, 50 cents per yard, and for common excavation 21 cents per yard. Mr. Lumsden states that he found as Chief Engineer that contractors had been allowed solid rock and loose rock prices for common excavation, and that in this way the country has lost large sums. He would not accept responsibility for the exorbitant payments and resigned. A full and complete investigation should be held, and not an incomplete one by a committee with limited instructions, and a majority of its members inclined to find nothing wrong.

MR. BRADBURN WITHDREW BILL

To Amend Municipal Act—Proposed Two-Thirds Vote of Ratepayers Voting

In reporting the proceedings of the Ontario Legislature, Friday's Mail and Empire says in part:—

The old, old question of the bonus was raised by Mr. Bradburn's bill to amend the Municipal Act. At present bonus by-laws must receive a majority of two-thirds of the qualified electors. Mr. Bradburn proposed that it be changed to two-thirds of the vote cast.

Mr. Nickle favored the bill, as it would do away with many of the applications now made to the Private Bills Committee to vindicate bonuses which the electors had not approved of. Mr. Nickle deplored the fact that some municipalities were seeking to exempt industries from school taxes. Municipalities had no right to thus curtail their educational funds.

Dr. Lackner (Waterloo) expressed approval of the bill. Ratepayers who did not take the interest to vote should not count, he said. Mr. Ferguson (Grenville) opposed the bill, because he was opposed to all bonuses. Municipalities were in a frenzied state of unhealthy rivalry, he said. The present almost prohibitive majority should be retained.

Hon. M. Lucas said he thought the Legislature and the municipalities were doing better. The fences had not been lowered in the Private Bills Committee in recent years and the principle was upheld that there should be no exemption from school taxes. He asked that the bill be withdrawn.

MANY RECOLLECTIONS.

Sir James Whitney said many recollections passed before his mental vision regarding the bonus system. Some fifteen years ago those who prejudiced against protective tariff and all its offshoots made an onslaught on the bonus system. A drastic law was passed which made it practically impossible for the municipality to give a bonus. The result was what always follows the passing of a ruthless or unreasonably drastic law. The Legislature had been flooded with applications to allow municipalities to give larger bonuses than they would ever have attempted under the old law. The municipalities had been squeezed too tightly by the unreasonable excess of the new law. Sir James did not mean that the door should be thrown open to wider, read bonusing, and he favored the retention of what was practically a unanimous vote. Mr. Bradburn withdrew his bill.

LIBRARIES SHOULD BE FOR WORKING MEN

Reporting the address of Mr. J. H. Burnham at the Library Institute at Lindsay, the Warder says, in part—

"Mr. Burnham, of Peterborough, was the next speaker, and during his address, stated that he strongly objected to any town or city asking Andrew Carnegie for money for the erection of a library, as it appeared to him to be begging.

"In travelling around Ontario there appears to me to be too many libraries that exist for the elite, more than for the working man. This should not be, as the people of Ontario do not require our libraries as the working man does, as they will find enough reading matter for themselves and without going to a library. It is the man and woman that work that require our libraries, and they should receive every consideration, and be invited to attend."

TROUBLE AHEAD FOR THOSE WHO DO NOT PAY POLL TAX

Several Cases Before Magistrate Dumble—Blacklister Found Intoxicated Denied Having Been Served With Notice

Magistrate Dumble issued a warning to the assemblage at the Police Court this morning after he had dealt with several cases where poll tax had not been paid. It was to the fact that in any case where he found that any young man tried to get out of paying the small sum of $1 he would impose the penalty allowed by law, that of $5.

One defendant produced a certificate showing that he was a member of the 24th Field Battery, and that let him out. Another claimed he was not a resident, but lived wherever he worked. His parents will be asked to be present in court to-morrow morning, to furnish some information on this point. Two other cases had been settled by the payment of the $1 and 85 cents as costs.

George Thompson was arrested on Saturday night at the home of his brother-in-law, and he admitted being drunk when the charge that "he being on the prohibited list was found under the influence of liquor," was read at the police court this morning. He denied having been served with the notice.

License Inspector Stewart was called, and he explained that Thompson had left the city before the notice could be served on him. He returned a month later, and, according to his brother-in-law, the notice had then been given him.

The defendant denied having received the notice at any time. When asked from whom he secured the liquor, he stated that he had bought one bottle at a store on Simcoe street, but could not remember where he got the other two.

At the request of the chief the case was enlarged until to-morrow morning, and the defendant was allowed his liberty on his promise to appear.

The human flag finale of the last act was a pretty piece of stage craft.

Mr. Rehill, the tenor of the company, has an unusually good voice and presence, and his singing and acting were in keeping with the manly character he assumed, and his work altogether was quite refreshing after the efforts of the conventional effeminate comic opera tenor.

SEIZED WITH STROKE AT HOME

The many friends of Mr. John Watson, 478 Rubidge street, will regret to hear that he was seized with a paralytic stroke on Saturday evening as he was about to partake of the evening meal. He had been around the city in the afternoon and reached home in the best of health. Dr. Halliday was summoned and to-day, Mr. Watson's condition shows improvement.

"DEATH CAUSED BY AXE IN HANDS OF PRISONER"

By Staff Representative.

Norwood, Feb. 28.—The inquest into the death of Margaret McPherson was completed to-day, and the jury returned the following verdict:—

"That the late Margaret McPherson came to her death from the blow of an axe in the hands of the prisoner, whom we believe to be in custody in the county gaol at Peterborough."

The only new evidence was that of Dr. McClennan, of Peterborough, and Dr. Holdcroft, of Havelock, who performed the post-mortem.

LEADING PART IN MUSICAL PLAY

Mr. Walter Claxton, the talented Peterborough boy, who has met with wide success on the stage, is now taking the principal role in "Her American Husband," with the book and lyrics by George Totten Smith and the music by Richard Legrand. Mr Claxton is said to be making a pronounced hit in the piece, which is referred to by the press as bright, wholesome and of superior quality in the matter of music.

A clipping says: Mr. Claxton, in selecting his company, has not only surrounded himself with New York players for the interpretation of this charming musical play, but has been particularly careful to secure ladies and gentlemen of refinement and high musical attainment. Clean, wholesome and entertaining, the fascinating story of "Her American Husband" is unique in its charm and its brilliant comedy."

A Muzzled Dog

Muzzles are becoming popular with Peterborough dog owners, although the dogs' views on the question have not been ascertained. This morning a large white dog with a wire contrivance on his head that looked like a young bread basket was seen on Hunter street, and he attracted considerable attention. He was gazing intently into a large puddle, and it is presumed he wanted to see if the muzzle were on straight.

THEATRICAL

Mr. Hamlet of Broadway

Eddie Foy, supported by clever principals and assisted by an unusually attractive and well drilled chorus, made his first bow to a Peterborough audience at the Grand on Saturday, in the Shubert musical play, "Mr. Hamlet of Broadway." Mr. Foy who has a big following in New York, and the other principal American as well as Canadian cities, proved a smooth and effective comedian, and his methods and humorisms found much favor at both the matinee and night performances. Prominent in his support were Miss Josie Intropisi, whose work was excellent in the character of Mrs. Barnaby Bustle, Harold J. Rehill, as Captain of the Utica Blues, and Miss Belle Gold, as Molly Brown.

In the score there are no melodies which caught the fancy for more than the passing moment, but all the numbers were given most effectively by the soloists with the chorus helping immensely. The costumes were elaborate, and the piece generally was given with all the skill and tastefulness, as regard to detail, for which the Shubert productions are notable.

The travesty on Hamlet was very amusing, and quite an original departure in musical comedy. The audience thoroughly appreciated the burlesque on the famous Shakespearian drama.

The encores for the songs were numerous, and "Down Where the

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

The Review does not hold itself responsible for opinions expressed by its correspondents

Where are We at?

To the Editor of the Review.

Sir,—The city's bill for the Purity Ware has got to be amended, so the Legislature says, in important points before it can become law. The chief objection to the by-law at the time it was submitted to the people was that it exempted the company's movable machinery from the city's mortgage. The Legislative Committee agreed with this objection and now it remains to be seen whether the American Co. will yield. If not the whole thing is "up in the air." But why not let us turn our attention to something much more important? A local company has hinted at big expansion if it can get power and we have no power to offer it below $20 per h.p. Cheap power was always considered chief asset, but here we are up against it. This company will expand somewhere else if we cannot make our boast good. Now, why is it that the CHEAP POWER PROJECT has fallen through, and with it much of our hope for the future? What do you think is the reason?

Overseer Johnston's Work

To the Editor of the Review.

Dear Sir,—In a recent issue of the Review several reports of the fishery and game overseers are published. In the report of Overseer A. J. Kent, of Bewdley, the statement is made "that the fish in the Otonabee should have better protection," and in the report of Overseer J. R. McAllister, of Gore's Landing, the sentence appears:—"The law has been well observed in Rice Lake, but he understands that there have been some bad poachers at work on the Otonabee river, and the harm is done, mostly by people from Peterborough with gill nets. He got one gill net in the Otonabee river, but he did not know who set it."

In connection with the above statements I would like to say that the fish have been better protected in the Otonabee river under Overseer David Johnston, than they have been in the past twenty years. It seems to me that Overseers Kent and McAllister would have plenty to do in their own districts. When they were patrolling the Otonabee river what was going on in their own territory? I would think that they would be doing their duty better if they stayed where they were appointed to work.

I might state further that whereas a few years ago there were a large number of poachers at work in the Otonabee river, now there are practically none. I do not like to see Mr. Johnston's good work reflected on in this manner.

If Overseers Kent and McAllister knew that there was poaching in the Otonabee river why did they not notify Mr. Johnston? If they had done that they would be doing more for the protection of the fish than by hinting that Mr. Johnston's work is not satisfactory.

Yours,

E. DEVELL,

Otonabee.

THE PURSUIT OF SALLY

And the New Professor in the Woman's College.

By LOUISE OSBORN.

[Copyright, 1909, by American Press Association.]

"They'll never think of looking for us here in the grove at this time." Sally Purdon looked anxiously over her shoulder with less confidence than her words implied.

"But what if they don't find us?" asked Julia breathlessly, trying to keep pace with her companion. "If we aren't able to get back to the village in time for the dinner that won't help us very much."

"We'll manage to get back all right," said Sally, looking critically through the trees at the fading light of the autumn sun. "It will be dark enough soon for us to make a dash out through the other end of the grove, through one of the farms, and from there we can get to the village from the upper end. The sophomores won't expect us in that direction."

"Quick!" Sally had suddenly changed the tone of her voice and was crouching with an arm around her companion behind a clump of laurel bushes. "They're in the grove," she whispered. "Lie flat and don't breathe!"

"Oh, dear!" whispered Julia as the sharp twigs scratched her face, but Sally's palm, clapped suddenly over her mouth, cut her complaints short.

The sound of hurried footsteps on the dead leaves and whispering voices came nearer. "They're in here somewhere," said one. "We must get Sally anyway." The footsteps suddenly ceased within a few feet of the crouching freshmen.

"They've circled us," whispered one, and the sound of the crumpling leaves announced at least a temporary relief for the freshman. When the sounds were lost in the distance Sally crawled carefully from the bushes, dragging her friend, limp and distracted, with her.

"Fiddlesticks, Julia," said Sally, with scorn. "Why, if the girls had known you were such a baby they would never have elected you vice president."

"Oh, I wish they hadn't. It's dreadful. Do they steal just the officers?"

"Of course. Just me and you and the treasurer and the secretary," Sally explained. "You ought to be proud to be worth stealing. Let's make a dash for the farm now before they come back." Argument having failed, Sally tried to carry her friend by main force. "Quick!" she urged. "They're coming."

The returning footsteps only made the timid vice president more stolid. "I can't move!" she moaned.

Suddenly the figure of a sophomore sprang from behind the shadows of the trees. Julia started to scream.

The plucky little freshman president let go her hold on her helpless friend, dodged the attempted grasp of a second sophomore who had appeared on the scene and ran with a sure foot and a steady pulse through the dark grove toward the farm and the open country beyond. She leaped skillfully over a fence, dashed down a country lane, crept under a hedge and found herself on the open highway that led to the village.

It was now about 6 o'clock, and she had half an hour to make her way through the ranks and traps of the vigilant sophomores to her expectant classmates awaiting her in gala attire at one of the village tea rooms. Freshmen presidents had evaded sophomores before and reached their class banquets, but they had been disguised as peddlers or smuggled in tied up in laundry bags or wrapped in burlaps and delivered from caterers' wagons hours before the banquet.

"I'll just have to trust to luck and my own muscle," thought Sally, with undaunted nerve, as she walked along the country road.

But when, as she rounded the last corner and turned into the village street, she heard the sound of quick footsteps behind the hedge at her side she felt a fatiguing sense of defeat.

"There she is," she heard some one call, and Sally made a sudden cut across the street and dashed through the campus gate into the protecting shadow of one of the college buildings. Safe for a moment, she crouched along the wall to the corner of the building. Then, with head bent forward, she made another quick turn and rushed headlong into—

With a quick sense of relief it came to her that sophomores didn't wear overcoats. It was only a professor.

"Excuse me," she said, trying to speak as if butting head first into professors was an everyday occurrence.

"Sally!" he said, and for a moment the plucky freshman president lost her pluck and forgot all about the pursuing sophomores and the expectant classmates.

"Stephen Dray," she gasped, "how could you?"

"How could I what? Didn't you know I was here?" The man stood before her in bewilderment.

"How could I? Why, I didn't even know that you knew I was here," she stammered, trying to make herself clear. "Oh, you are the most unreasonable man in the world. Did you come today?"

"Come today, Sally! Why, I'm a professor here. I thought I'd try to bury myself here with my books and forget"—

"Oh," said Sally in surprise, "and I came here to get my degree." She wrung her hands with impatience. "Stephen, you are so inconsiderate. You ought to have known that I'd want to come here to college. And I was having such a nice time, and now you're going to spoil it all. Why will you be so persistent?"

"You can jolly well change your mind about my persistence, Sally. Why"—he clutched his hands helplessly at his side—"why, Sally, I—I shan't even speak to you—only, of course, as an instructor."

"An instructor? Stephen, are you really an instructor?" Sally laughed a funny little laugh that made Stephen wince. "Well, I'm sure I beg your pardon, Mr. Instructor, for butting into you."

The sound of the exasperating sophomores urged Sally on. "Goodby, Stephen," she said, but Stephen detained her with an outstretched hand.

"Just once, Sally"— he began. "Do you want me to chuck the whole thing and get away?"

"Why, no; of course not!" she assured him, preoccupied with the sound of the approaching voices. She hurried past him and crouched down. Then, with a sudden determination, she whispered, "Stephen!"

He turned and came back.

"Help me, Stephen," Sally whispered, rising to her feet. "They're after me—the sophomores. You're not an instructor now; you're just Stephen. Please"—her hands clutched his arm convulsively—"please get me to the banquet, and I'll"—

Stephen, mindful of his own not far distant college days, caught the situation in a flash. "Get down!" he commanded. "Lie as flat as you can." Sally obeyed, and Stephen threw his ample overcoat over her. Then, bending down, he began to examine the bark of a tree a few feet away.

The sophomores, completely mystified by the sudden disappearance of their prey and not daring to make known the object of their quest to a professor, hurried by. "I thought he was the new English instructor," Stephen heard one of the sophomores exclaim, "but he seems to be doing botany experiments."

Two minutes later Stephen left the tree and came cautiously over to Sally. "I guess I can dash down to the gym room now," suggested Sally from beneath the coat.

Stephen had other plans. "Here!" he ordered, lifting her up and tucking her hands into the sleeves of the overcoat. "Can you tie your hair down so that it will go into my hat?" And, while Sally worked with sure fingers pinning down her disheveled hair, the instructor began unlacing his heavy boots.

"The coat is long enough to cover your dress, and the collar turned up will come to your ears, and the hat pulled down will cover your forehead. Sit down a second while I fasten these over your shoes. You can walk a little way with the two pairs, I fancy."

The shoes fastened and the hat drawn down, Sally jumped to her feet with a thrill of victory, and, without stopping to consider the plight of the bootless Stephen, hurried bravely on to the banquet and slouched past the exasperated sophomores like some weary tramp.

The next day curiosity was rife. "How on earth did Sally Purdon evade the sophomores?" asked the upper class men, and the freshmen, knowing the manner of her disguise, asked in vain for the name of the one who furnished her forth so generously. "It was a miracle," Sally told them, with a twinkle in her eye that only increased their curiosity.

"Stephen," she exclaimed, "it was the biggest freshman triumph in years." She laughed with enthusiasm and gratitude. "But I don't just know how to get your things back again. Perhaps I could drop them out of my window some night and"—

"Oh, never mind that," interrupted Stephen, disregarding the fact that he was wearing a borrowed hat and shivering for the want of a coat. "What I want to know is what you started to say you'd do if I saw you through."

"Oh!" gasped Sally in alarm. "Didn't you know? And maybe you wouldn't have done it if you had known."

"Sally Purdon," Stephen asked almost severely, "will you marry me or won't you?"

"Stephen Dray," said Sally, trying to imitate his tone, "I will."

Praises French Mothers.

The Duchess de Chaulnes, who is visiting in this country with her mother, says that one thing she has learned during her residence in France is that young society women in that country take better care of the children than American mothers do. She says that when the child is as young as three years old it is allowed to sit at the luncheon table with its mother and members of the family and there learns table manners and the art of table talk in such a way that it is never awkward or at a loss in after years. She intends, she says, to bring up her boy in that way and scores those mothers who go out with their pug dogs while time serving persons are taking care of their children.

Insurance Companies Lose About $125,000.00 by the Wreck at Spanish River

Double Liability for About Twenty-five Persons

A loss of somewhere in the neighbourhood of $125,000 is what the Accident Insurance Companies estimate the wreck at Spanish River bridge means to them.

They figure that about 25 of those who met death carried Accident Insurance, and the average insurance, according to the tables, is $5,000. In case of death in a railway disaster there is a double liability, making the figure $6,000, or $5,000 to be more conservative.

Their loss may total more than that, for the commercial travellers, a number of whom were killed, usually carry very heavy insurance. In addition, some of the companies make the policies payable on the death of the wife while travelling, though the policy is taken out in the husband's name. In such cases they pay the husband the same amount as they would have paid the wife were the husband killed.

We issue the BEST Accident and Sickness policy offered to the public.

SAND BEDS OF NO AVAIL AGAINST DISEASE GERMS

Engineer P. W. Sothman, Chief Engineer of Hydro-Electric Commission Believes Filtration Plant "Greatest Mistake"—Ozonation Needed.

The following article from the Toronto World will be of interest here in view of the fact that a filtration plant for Peterborough has been talked of—

"If the city completes the construction of its filtration plant along the present lines it will be, in my opinion, the greatest mistake that can be made."

P. W. Sothman, chief engineer of the hydro-electric commission gave the foregoing opinion to the World yesterday, and, in doing so, he spoke with force and vigor. His view is that sand beds will prove of no value whatever in cleansing the water of the microscopic and elusive coli communi and other minute brethren of the bacilli order. Mr. Sothman concedes that sand filtration should be effective in eliminating occasional dead cats and dogs, derelict boots, pieces of wood and solid matter in general, but when it comes to bacteria which could hold a largely attended convention on a pin point, he is frankly dubious.

A STUDENT OF FILTRATION

Mr. Sothman has spent much more time than has the average engineer in investigating water conditions and their remedies. Since 1891 he has been a student of filtration, and last summer while in Germany, looked into methods of filtering in use there. His interest is entirely personal, and his opinions are given as those of a citizen of Toronto interested in its well being.

It was pointed out to him that one of the arguments for sand filtration in Toronto was that the process had been proven a success in Europe. Mr. Sothmon replied that it was suited to certain conditions, where solid matter was to be sifted out, but that he had never known it to cope with bacteria. A microbe, if arrested by the filter, was liable to break up into as many as ten pieces and if one escaped it would lose nothing of its character as a carrier of disease.

Mr. Sothman said he understood the sand filtration plant at Philadelphia, costing $25,000,000, which it was thought at first was successful in preventing typhoid, had later proven its ineffectiveness to keep out the germ of that disease.

OZONATION REMEDY.

That a sure way to kill bacteria is ozonation, or the application of electricity to the water, is his belief. The process is simply that of passing the water to be purified through a pipe, the sides of which are charged with electricity. Given a sufficient amount of the electric fluid, he contends that no germ could live. The principle of the Lindsay plant was right, but its defect lay in the quantity of electricity being insufficient.

A COMBINATION PLANT.

"I believe that what Toronto should have is a combination of ozonation and sand filtration," he said. "I estimate roughly that the cost of filtration plant could thus be reduced from $750,000 to $600,000 and that the yearly cost of operation would be much less. The sand would be used to take out the substances in the water, and this process would not be the expensive one of trying to rid the water of all impurities by means of sand. The ozonation portion of the treatment would not be costly. I don't think it is too late to adopt the construction of a combination plant."

It is possible, though not likely, that a halt will be called in the world of construction. The defeat of Controller Harrison, father of the filtration scheme, and the election of Mayor Geary, who made criticism of sand filtration part of his campaign material, has weakened its cause, but thus far Dr. Sheard and City Engineer Rust have refused to alter their attitudes.

IMPORTED AS WHITE SLAVES

Two Canadian Girls and Two Men Arrested at Buffalo One Girl is Known Here

Buffalo, Feb. 27.—Two Toronto girls, giving their names as Agnes Fletcher, aged 21, and Ethel Taylor, aged 19, and two Toronto men, giving their names as Edward Armstrong, aged 27, and Wm. Wilson, aged 30, were taken arrest here and will be given a hearing before United States Commissioner Robinson tomorrow morning. The girls were arrested on a train bound for this city at Black Rock last night. They declared to immigration inspector Landa that they had come to join their friends, who had come in ahead to establish a home for them in this city. The answer did not satisfy Landa, and in going over some letters the girls had he discovered that they were being imported as "white slaves." From the letters he learned that the men on the case were living at No. 418 Seneca street. He enlisted the services of the police and they visited the house. They found the two men established in luxuriously furnished quarters, having got the furniture on the instalment plan. They admitted they had just come from Toronto.

Armstrong said he had known the girls for a long time, that he was employed in a cigar store in Toronto, and that the girls said they would like to go to Buffalo and suggested to him that Wilson and he finance the trip. He blamed the girls.

A telegram came to the house from the girls, notifying the men to get away, as they had been taken into custody. They did not know at the time that the men had been already arrested.

Agnes Fletcher, who is referred to in the above despatch, is known in Peterborough. She came here about two years ago from Bobcaygeon and was employed in one of the local hotels and as a domestic. When she left this city she went to Toronto.

A POETICAL CONTRIBUTION

A correspondent who signs himself, "H.T.M.," sends the Review the following verses;—

COMMISSIONER WANTED.

Have you heard the very latest,
Peterborough has a snap,
Two thousand bucks to give away,
Who'll be the lucky chap?

Commissioner is the title,
The name sounds very fair,
Step up some hungry workless one,
To fill the vacant chair.

The office is a sinecure,
There is nothing much to do,
Just stand around and draw your pay,
Then take a trip or two.

You tour the country far and near,
For travel and for fun,
Then come back home and puff and blow,
Of the mighty things you've done.

The kit you'll have to carry,
Is a broad, expansive smile,
White vest, plug hat and walking cane,
Aught else is not worth while.

By promises of a bonus,
Exemption and the like,
You call some doubtful enterprise,
This way O pikers pike.

They then proceed to sell us stock,
The strangers! We the stung,
Then bye and bye a big bust up,
'Tis thus the trick is done.

Fools and their money soon must part,
Is a proverb old, but true,
We'll appoint a man to help waste ours,
And pay him a salary too.

R. R. GAMEY, M.P.P., URGES THE EXTENSION OF THE T. AND N.O.

Government Takes the Power to Build to Porcupine—Motion Introduced to Increase Englehart's Salary by $1,500 a Year.

Toronto, March 2.—There was nothing of particular importance in the routine of the Legislature yesterday, aside from matters affecting the T. & N.O. Railway.

"My opinion," said R. R. Gamey, "is that the Government ought not only to take power, but to build the line right through to Sudbury."

The occasion of this utterance was a motion of Hon. Dr. Reaume to increase the salary of J. L. Englehart, chairman of the T. & N. O. Commission, from $3,500 to $5,000, and to take power to build an extension of the line into Porcupine.

"The knowledge of the Government so far," said the Minister, "does not justify the extension of the line, but conditions may arise to make it desirable before another session of the House."

There was no definite survey, he stated, which would indicate definitely the point of departure from the main line or the terminal point. It would, however, leave from a little north of Matheson, somewhere in the neighborhood of Monteith, and proceeding west or southwest, would pass to the north of Night Hawk Lake and on into Whitney and Tisdale.

Mr. Gamey, in support of his proposition to extend through to Sudbury, declared that it would open up a splendid mineral country. In addition to the new field there were splendid deposits of nickel and silver north of Sudbury.

Then the completion of the Manitoulin and North Shore Railway would give access to the water by the most direct route from the mineral fields. The Government road could have running rights over this line. In addition, running rights over the T. & N. O. should be given to the Canadian Northern and the C.P.R. into the mineral districts.

Moreover, the T. & N. O. should be extended west into the great clay belt. "We are constantly talking," he said, "of the value of this clay belt. It is our business to open it up as soon as possible."

"Why should we not," he declared, reverting to the extension to Sudbury idea, "build the road, where we know there is a country to be served, where we know that there is a business that would build up the road."

Both the Minister of Public Works and Mr. Gamey paid high tributes to the value of Mr. Englehart's services to the Government railway and to the province.

Sir James Whitney called the attention of the House to a statement in one of the morning papers to the effect that the staff of the Ontario Agricultural College had threatened to resign, and the rise in their salary had been made to retain them. "There is absolutely no truth in it," the Premier said. "No threat of resignation was made. If there had been, it would have been accepted."

A. E. Fripp (W. Ottawa), in moving the second reading of his bill to amend the Charity Aid Act, by which hospitals are allowed to collect from the municipalities from which patients come, the actual cost of their keep, explained that it was founded in the Manitoba Act, which had been found to work admirably.

Hon. W. J. Hanna thought the bill a good one, but the municipalities should have a chance to be heard before it should pass. The bill was withdrawn, Mr. Fripp explaining that his object in introducing it was largely to draw the attention of the municipalities to their duty.

The bill of R. F. Preston (N. Lanark) to simplify the Medical Act to obviate constant recourse by medical men to legal advice on the meaning of its provisions, received its second reading and was referred to a special committee named from the legal and medical members of the House.

W. D. Macpherson (W. Toronto) carried the second reading of his bill to amend the Municipal Act. The bill which was introduced on the representations of the Toronto City Council, proposes to lower the property qualifications for voters in cities of 100,000 and upwards from $400 to $200. It also provides that where a large number of money bylaws are to be voted on they are all to be placed on one ballot.

Two other bills of Mr. Macpherson, also introduced at the instigation of the Toronto City Council, got their second readings. One gave permission to municipalities to enter into contracts for power for periods up to ten years, instead of only one year, as at present. This, Mr. Macpherson said, would allow them to compete with the companies on more even terms.

Mr. Macpherson's other bill places sheriffs and constables at the order of the Ontario Railway and Municipal Board for the enforcement of orders.

W. H. Hearst (Soo) gave notice of a bill to amend the Act for the Prevention of Accidents by Fire in Hotels and other like buildings.

E. N. LEWIS BELIEVES EXPERT SAILORS WOULD HELP BRITAIN

Member for West Huron Thinks Opinion in Canada Does Not Sufficiently Favor a Navy and Most Oppose Contribution to the Empire.

Ottawa, March 2.—The naval debate had two features yesterday.

E. N. Lewis (Con., West Huron) provided one, when he balked at the naval policies so far introduced and suggested that the Government should, instead, train 40,000 fishermen each year for naval service in time of emergency.

He said he did not believe that four out of five men in Ontario were in favor of a Canadian navy, and he did believe that more even than that were opposed to a contribution to the British fleet.

M. Y. McLean (Lib., S. Huron) made the members gasp with astonishment when he asserted that Canada owed nothing to Great Britain, and declare that to argue that Great Britain had protected Canada from invasion was "silly."

The best speech in many ways from the Government view was that made by C. A. Wilson of Laval, who, by the way, is a descendant of a British soldier, but in reality a French-Canadian to the core. His contention is that we were steadily growing more and more autonomous, more and more independent, but always within the Empire. When Great Britain withdrew her last soldier from Canada, and withdrew the North Atlantic and Pacific squadrons, she did it with the conviction that Canada should look after her own militia, and eventually her own navy. We had taken up the first, and we were now taking up the second.

As to the plebiscite, he did not think the matter of defence should be referred to the people—the responsibility of acting was on the Government and on Parliament. Mr. Wilson spoke in English.

Victor Geoffrion (Chambly-Vercheres) ridiculed Mr. Monk's position, but said he was not entirely responsible for his policy. Mr. Bourassa had taken him upon Mount Royal, shewn him all the Province of Quebec and tempted him saying: "If you will obey and follow me, all this will I give to you." Mr. Monk had succumbed.

P. E. Blondin, Conservative whip for Quebec, opposed the proposals, both of the Premier and the leader of the Opposition, and declared for Mr. Monk's amendment. He challenged Mr. Lemieux or any other Minister to contest a bye-election with him in Champlain on the naval question.

Major Sharpe (Con., N. Ontario) in supporting Mr. Borden's amendment said that he had addressed a letter to his constituents asking them to express their views. The result was that a small majority declared against any naval expenditure, a considerable number favored a Canadian built navy, but the great majority favored a cash contribution.

Major Sharpe said he was strongly opposed to contributions to the imperial navy as a permanent policy. He was inclined to agree with the argument that there should not be taxation without representation. But it was clear that there is an emergency and that if Canada is to remain an integral part of the Empire, her plain duty is to come to the assistance of the Empire. Our assistance should be commensurate with the danger we apprehend.

G. Boyer, (Vaudreuil) addressed the House in French, supporting the bill. W. B. Nantel, Herrebonne, at midnight moved the adjournment.

At present, the Intercolonial Railway, being the property of the crown, be sued only by its own consent. The new bill abolishes the necessity of consent in small actions for damages, the limit being $200. The damages may be for negligence, but not under contract.

R. L. Borden asked the Premier if he would be able to make an announcement regarding the waterway treaty before the end of the session. Sir Wilfrid said: "All I can say is, I hope to be able to do so."

DUNDAS LAD EXPIRES AFTER BEING BITTEN BY BULLDOG

Ten-Year-Old Boy Suffers Intense Agony and Has all the Symptoms of Mad Dog Poisoning as a Result of a Bite on the Lip Six Weeks Ago.

Hamilton, March 2.—"Please, oh, please, shoot me," pleaded little John Taylor, the ten-year-old son of Joseph Taylor, Dundas, who was brought to the city hospital yesterday suffering from hydrophobia of the most virulent type. He died last night.

Until six o'clock yesterday evening, when he passed into a state of coma, he was fully conscious, except when in convulsions, and so great was the agony he endured that he kept begging the doctors who surrounded his cot to put him out of his misery. So great were his convulsions that he would have been thrown out of his cot by them had he not been strapped to it. He frothed at the mouth and displayed all the symptoms of the dread disease.

When brought to the hospital yesterday, the boy was able to tell of his mishap. Five or six weeks ago, he was playing with an airgun, when his white bulldog leaped up and tried to seize the gun. One of the dog's teeth penetrated the boy's lip. The wound was immediately cauterized, and the dog was killed two days afterwards.

The boy suffered little inconvenience from the injury, and appeared to be entirely recovered until, on Sunday, he was seized with what the doctors thought was a bad cold. His worst symptom was a severe pain in his chest.

On Monday he grew worse and became so restless that it was impossible to keep him still a second. When water was offered to him he could not drink it for the contraction of the muscles of his throat. In fact, attempts to drink water threw him into a violent fit. Later in the day, the slightest change of temperature or draught had the same effect as the water.

After being brought to the hospital he kept constantly trying to clear his throat, making a noise that resembled somewhat the barking of a dog. The contraction of the muscles also gave him the appearance of snapping and biting.

One convulsion succeeded another until he lapsed into a state of coma last evening. Outside his room his father paced the floor, almost crazed. The end came at 10.30, the boy dying without regaining consciousness.

LANDSLIDE ON NATION RIVER

A large section of the 75-foot clay bank of the river, about six acres in extent, gave away, going into the river with a rush and breaking the ice, which was a foot and a half thick.

Barns and outbuildings belonging to P. Bray, farmer, along with one of his cattle, were carried down with the slide and burned.

Huge elm trees, formerly on the height of the river bank, are now some hundred yards from their original resting place, all of them in an upright position still.

OPPOSITION TO TAFT MEASURES

Washington, March 2.—After a two hours' conference with President Taft yesterday, leaders of Congress announced that they would oppose all amendments to the several administration bills when it became apparent that the amendments were offered in a spirit hostile to the main purpose of the proposed legislation.

The discussion had special reference to the interstate commerce bills.

GRAIN KING TO RETIRE FROM PIT

Chicago, March 2.—James A. Patten, grain king, will retire from "the pit" and from all lines of commercial activity July 1. Mr. Patten himself is authority for this statement. He says, "I have enough; what's the use of piling up more?" His only plan for the future is to enjoy the great fortune he won in a spectacular career on the Board of Trade—a career that will be historic. He is believed to be worth $12,000,000.

With this giant of the grain pit there will go into retirement two other men of mighty prowess in the market—Wm. T. Bartlett and George W. Patten. They are his partners in the house of Bartlett, Patten & Co.

BIG DRYDOCKS ARE NECESSARY

Montreal, March 2.—That the construction of more docking facilities on the Canadian coast should precede the construction of bigger ships, is the opinion expressed by Sir Montague Allan, in an interview with a representative of London "Canada."

The most immediate need in connection with the transatlantic service to Canadian ports, he said, is the construction of a dry dock at Quebec. There are now 17 vessels running to St. Lawrence ports which are too large to enter the only existing dock at Levis, while the one at Halifax is over 800 miles away.

$30,000 DIAMOND HORSESHOE STOLEN

New York, March 2—The mysterious disappearance of a diamond horseshoe—regarded as one of the largest in existence—and a diamond heart, aggregating $50,000 in value, from the boudoir of Mrs. Sanford Erlanger, wife of a stock broker, at the Ansonia, last Thursday, is baffling the skill of Pinkerton detectives.

The diamonds vanished from a chatelaine bag which Mrs. Erlanger had left on top of her dresser while she was at her bath.

SAYS CANADA IS WELL ADVERTISED

London, Eng., March 2.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—Sir G. Reid, Australia's new high commissioner, interviewed here, said there was only one reason why Canada was so far ahead of Australia in immigration, namely, advertisement.

HERO OF GREAT FLOOD IS DEAD

Northampton, Mass., March 2.—Daniel Collins Graves, the hero of the Mill River of 1874, one of the greatest disasters that New England has known, is dead, aged 79.

Graves, while returning home early in the morning of May 16, 1874, learned that the reservoir at the head of Mill River Valley had burst. Unharnessing his horse, he leaped on its back and rode the length of the valley, awakening the several hundred inhabitants of the villages threatened by the onrushing waters.

Despite his warnings more than 14 persons were drowned.

NO HOPE FOR THE UNITED MINE WORKERS

Halifax, N.S., March 2.—The result of the conferences between the clergymen of the town and officials of the coal company, looking to a settlement of the strike, which have been held almost daily for the past week, was given to the press yesterday.

General Manager Butler places the position of the company clearly before the men and the U.M.W., and the answer of that union appears to be that they will accept nothing short of the original demand for recognition by the company, so that the situation remains practically where it was before.

The following are the conditions laid down by the company, refusing to recognize the U. M. W.:

1. Former employes out of work will be re-employed as fast as possible, dependent upon the several classes of labor offering in due proportion, so as to enable the mining work to be carried on with advantage.

2. No discrimination in the work will be made against such men. All contracts and agreements with employes will be honorably carried out. The individual rights of every employe will be protected. Each employe will have the right to lay his just grievance before the head of this department with the right of appeal ultimately to the president.

SHOT WAS FIRED BY DETECTIVE

Halifax, N.S., March 2.—Practically the first disturbance in connection with the Springhill coal miners strike, which has been on for seven months, occurred yesterday, when two of the employes of the company came up town in company with Detective Conrad Timms.

A row occurred between the company men and some of the strikers, near Rogers' Corner, and one of the men was badly beaten. Timms and one of the men retreated to the palisade, and in the fracas a shot was fired. Timms is charged with discharging firearms.

CANADIAN TRADE WITH WEST INDIES

Kingston, St. Vincent, B. W. I. March 2.—The royal commission on trade relations between Canada and the West Indies was given an enthusiastic reception. The members conferred with Government officials and prominent business men, and the concensus of opinion seemed to be that improved steamship facilities and a reciprocal reduction in duties would tend to increase the trade and strengthen the imperial bonds uniting Canada and the Indies.

To safeguard the local revenue, it is proposed that the preference take the form of slightly increased duties on certain American imports, such as flour, soap, and cordage, and a corresponding decrease in, or the maintenance of, the present tariff respecting similar Canadian products.

SUIT INVOLVES IMMENSE SUM

Montreal, March 2.—E. W. Humphreys, who at one time managed the Canadian branch of the De Forrest wireless, has entered suit here in the Superior Court to recover claims aggregating two and a half million dollars. The defendants are John A. Roeblinger, Sons & Co., the Northern Commercial Telegraph Co., Ltd., Fred C. Dixon and Samuel Carsley.

Humphreys seeks to annul a loan in which he is interested with the defendants and to also annul a contract. These two claims are for $2,000,000 and he then sues the Northern for $412,500, the profit he claims he would have made had certain contracts been lived up to.

A LIBEL CASE VERDICT

In the suits brought by Hon. Geo. E. Foster against Dr. Macdonald, editor of the Globe, the action for slander ended abruptly. For Dr. Macdonald it was claimed that he had not charged Mr. Foster with anything criminal, and that view having been sustained the action for slander dropped and it was made clear that Mr. Foster had not been guilty of any criminal act—that it had not been alleged that he had been. The libel suit, however, was proceeded with, and the verdict of the jury states that "while Mr. Foster acted in good faith while acting in the capacity of General Manager of the Union Trust Company, his actions were open to criticism, and he is not entitled to recover damages from Mr. Macdonald." The verdict that Mr. Foster acted in good faith should set at rest innuendoes that he had not been faithful to his trust as manager of the company, and the other part of the verdict shows that the jury believes in a freedom of the press that will allow it to criticise the actions of public men in discussing the qualifications as candidates for representation of the people. Men in responsible positions cannot be too careful, and the people should be equally careful in their selection of representatives to whom they entrust the duty of administering the affairs of the country. It is not likely that this case will end here, for counsel for Mr. Foster objected to evidence that was admitted and to the Judge's charge, and an appeal may be expected.

MR. STRATTON AND THE NAVY

Mr. Stratton has announced that he is not worrying about the German war scare. He does not believe there is any danger of Germany making war on England, because the Germans do an immense business with the British people. But many Germans believe they could do a much bigger business with the world at large if the United Kingdom were crippled and the British Empire broken up.

Germany has sixty million people in a country about the same size as the province of Ontario. Seven children are born in Germany while four are born in the United Kingdom. The Germans believe they must have room to expand, and the only way to get room is to take territory from some other power. The power which has the most suitable territory for German occupation is the British Empire with its vast undeveloped, sparsely settled acres, rich in fertile agricultural lands, timber and minerals within the temperate zones.

When the Germans wished to take territory from Denmark they did not allow the fear of losing trade to stand in the way of war. They attacked Denmark and annexed Schleswig-Holstein. When the Germans wanted Hanover, Hesse and Nassau they did not hesitate for fear of losing Austrian trade, but made sudden war and annexed the coveted provinces. When the Germans needed still more territory for expansion they provoked war with France and took Alsace and Lorraine, besides forcing the French people to pay an immense money indemnity. The Germans now covet the colonies of the British Empire, and fear of losing British trade will not deter them from making war when they think their navy is strong enough to destroy the British navy.

No doubt if Mr. Stratton believed there was any real danger of a war with Germany he would condemn the Laurier policy of buying from the British Government ships that are out of date and only suitable for time of peace, ships that could not go into the front of battle if war should come, but would have to be protected by the Dreadnoughts of Australia and New Zealand.

But suppose that Mr. Stratton should prove to be wrong! Of what use would be all the protestations of loyalty of Sir Wilfrid Laurier, Dr. Beland and Mr. Stratton, if the ships on which Canada will have expended from eleven to fifteen millions dollars, are of a class unfit to go into the line of battle, and must hide in the harbors of Canada while the battleships of the other colonies do the fighting for us?

EDITORIAL NOTES

Whenever you write to a friend say a good word for Peterborough as a pleasant place to live in.

If you have any plan which you think would help the growth of Peterborough, write to the Review about it.

What do you think of the proposal for a railway to the north outlined in a letter published in last Saturday's Review?

None of the speakers at the Liberal meeting in Peterborough tried to explain why Sir Wilfrid Laurier is so anxious to prevent a thorough investigation of the over-classification on the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway.

If the Liberals in power at Ottawa were spending their own money instead of the money of the people of Canada they would not be so ready to pay double prices as they are even to benefit political friends.

Hon. Mr. Pugsley paid five thousand dollars of public money to a Liberal friend for a sawdust wharf which he purchased a short time before for seven hundred dollars. The difference between five thousand dollars and seven hundred dollars is four thousand three hundred dollars. How long would it have taken him to have earned $4,300.00 by honest industry?

BEEF CATTLE VERSUS DAIRY

Subject of Interesting Debate Before Zion Farmers' Club

The Zion Farmers' Club met on Thursday last, Feb. 24th, and a very interesting and profitable meeting was held, about 35 members being present. The subject for discussion was a debate, "Resolved, that from a financial and educational point of view beef cattle are superior to the dairy breeds," and a lively tilt between the speakers followed. Messrs. A. Armstrong, J. H. Garbutt and C. Graham supported the beef cattle while Messrs. B. Allan, W. Garbutt and G. Main championed the dairy herd.

The affirmative was sustained by one point.

The next meeting will be held on March 10th and Mr. W. A. Rowsboro will give an address on "How to increase the profits on the Farm." and Mr. Fitzgerald will also give an address. A full attendance is requested as important business is to be dealt with.

"We are only little ones, but we know Zam-Buk eased our pain and cured our sores. Perhaps it would cure you, too, if you tried it?"

Isn't this sound advice from "babes and sucklings?" Take it! The speakers are the children of Mrs. L. Webster, of Seymour St., Montreal, and the mother adds weight to their appeal. She says: "My little girl contracted scalp disease at school. Bad gatherings formed all over her head, and not only caused the child acute pain but made her very ill. The sores discharged, and occurring on the scalp we feared she would lose all her hair. She was in a pitiable plight when we tried Zam-Buk, but a few days' treatment with this balm gave her ease. Then the sores began to heal, and we continued the Zam-Buk treatment. In a short time she was quite healed.

"My little boy sustained a serious scald on the neck. It set up a bad sore, and quite a few things we tried failed to heal it or give him ease. Once more we turned to Zam-Buk, and we were not disappointed. It acted like a charm in drawing away the pain, and soon healed the wound."

Zam-Buk is "something different" in the way of balms. It contains powerful healing herbal essences, which, as soon as applied to skin diseases, kill off the germs and end the painful smarting. Other essences contained there so stimulate the cells that new healthy tissue is speedily formed. Eczema, itch, ulcers, cold sores, abscesses, festering sores, blood poisoning, chronic wounds, cold cracks, etc., are healed and cured in this way. Use it for all skin injuries and diseases. It is also of great service for piles. All druggists and stores at 50 cents box, or Zam-Buk Co., Toronto.

The Man From Brodney's

By GEORGE BARR M'CUTCHEON

Copyright, 1908, by Dodd, Mead & Co.

"Hush! We were fools! Don't, please! I do not love you. I was carried away by— Oh, can't you understand? Remember what I am! You knew and yet you have degraded me in my own eyes. Is my own self respect nothing? You will laugh and you may boast after I am married to"—

"Genevra!" he protested as if in great pain.

"Excellency," came from the lips of Selim at the lower end of the chamber, breaking in sharply upon their little world, "there is no time to be lost." Time to be lost! And he had held her in his arms! Time to be lost! All the rest of time was to be lost! "They may return at any moment."

Chase pulled himself together. He looked into her eyes for a moment, finding nothing there but a command to go. She stood straight and unyielding on the very spot which had seen her trembling with emotion but a moment before.

"Coming, Selim," he said, and moved away from her side as Neenah came toward them from the opposite wall. Genevra did not move. She stood quite still and numb, watching his tall figure crossing the stone floor. Ah, what a man he was! The little Persian wife of Selim, after waiting for a full minute, gently touched the arm of the princess. Genevra started and looked down into the dark, accusing, smiling eyes. She flushed deeply and hated herself.

"Shall we go back?" she asked nervously. "I—I have seen enough. Come, Neenah. Lead me back to"—

"Most glorious excellency," said Neenah, shaking her pretty head, "we are to wait here. The sahib and Selim will join us soon."

"Where are they going?" demanded the princess, a feeling of awe coming over her. "I don't want to be left here alone." Chase and Selim had opened a low, heavy iron door at the lower end and were peering into the darkness beyond.

"Selim will explain. He has learned much. It is the secret passage to the coast. Be not afraid."

Genevra looked about her for the first time. They were standing in a long, low room, the walls of which reeked with dampness and gave out a noxious odor. A single electric light provided a faint, almost unnatural light. Selim raised a lighted lantern as he led Chase through the squat door. Behind Genevra were enormous casks, a dozen or more, reaching almost to the ceiling. A number of boxes stood close by, while on the opposite side of the chamber four small iron chests were to be seen, dragged out from recesses in the distant corner. Observing her look of wonder, Neenah vouchsafed a casual explanation.

"It is the wine cellar and the storeroom. The iron chests contain the silver and gold plate that came from the great rajah of Merpat in exchange for the five huge rubies which now adorn his crown. The old sahibs stored the chests here many years ago, but few know of their existence. See! They were hidden in the walls over there. Von Blitz has found them."

"Von Blitz!" in amazement.

"He has been here. He has carried away many chests. There were twenty in all."

"And—and he will return for these?" queried the princess in alarm.

"Assuredly, most glorious one. Soon, perhaps. But be not afraid. Selim can close the passage door. He cannot get in. He will be fooled, eh? Why should you be afraid? Have you not with you the most wonderful, the most brave sahib? Would he not give his life for you?" The dark eyes sparkled with understanding—aye, even mischief. Genevra felt that this oriental witch knew everything. For a long time she looked in uncertain mood upon that smiling, wistful face. Then she said softly, moved by an irresistible impulse to confess something, even obscurely:

"Oh, if only I were such as you, Neenah, and could live forever on this dear island!"

"But, most high, there are no princes here. There is no one to whom the most gracious one could be sold. No one who could pay more than a dozen rubies. Women are cheap here, and you would be a woman, not a most beautiful princess."

"I would not care to be a princess, perhaps."

"You love my Sahib Chase?" demanded Neenah abruptly, eagerly.

"Neenah!" gasped Genevra, with a startled look. Neenah looked intently into the unsteady, blue gray eyes and then bent over to kiss the hand of the princess. The latter laughed almost aloud in her confusion. She caught herself up quickly and said with some asperity: "You foolish child, I am to become a prince's wife. How can I love your sahib? What nonsense! I am to marry a prince, and he is not to pay for me in rubies."

"Ah, how wonderful!" cried Neenah, with ravishing candor. "A prince for a husband and the glorious Sahib

Jacob von Blitz stepped into the light.

Chase for a lover all your life! Ah!" The exclamation was no less than a sigh of rapturous indorsement.

The princess stared at her first in consternation, then in dismay. Before she could find words to combat this alarming prophecy, so ingeniously presented to her reflections, Selim and Hollingsworth Chase returned to the chamber. She was distressed, even confounded, to find that she was staring at Chase with a strange, abashed curiosity growing in her eyes—a stare that she suddenly was afraid he might observe and appreciate. A wave of revulsion, of shame, spread over her whole being.

With the swiftness of lightning she recalled the things that had been said of more than one grand dame in Europe—aye, of women at her own court. Even a princess she had known who—but for shame! she cried in her heart. It could not be. Despite herself a cruel, distressing shyness came over her as he approached, his eyes glowing with the light she feared, yet craved. Was this man to remain in her life? Was he? Would he come to her and wage the unfair war? Was he honest? Was he even now coveting her as other men had coveted the women she knew and despised? She found herself confronted by the shocking conviction that he knew she could never be his wife. He knew she was to wed another, and yet— It was unbelievable.

She met his eager advance with a quick, shrill laugh of defiance and noted the surprise in his eyes. Dim as the light was, she could have sworn that the look in those eyes was honest. Ah, that silly Neenah! The reaction was as sudden as the revolt had been. Her smile grew warm and shy.

"Von Blitz has been here," he was saying half diffidently, still searching deep in her eyes. "He's played hob. And he's likely to return at any minute."

"Then let us go quickly. I have no desire to meet the objectionable Mr. Von Blitz. Isn't it dreadfully dangerous here, Mr. Chase?"

"Yes, now and always Mr. Chase," she said steadily. "You know that it cannot be otherwise. I can't always be a fool."

His face turned a deep red; his lips parted for retort to this truculent estimate, but he controlled himself.

"Yes, it is dangerous here," he said quietly, answering her question. "As soon as Selim bars that door upon the inside we'll go. I was a fool to bring you here."

"How could you know what the dangers would be?" she asked.

"I'll confess I didn't expect Von Blitz," he said dryly.

"But you did expect"— she began, with a start, biting her lips.

"There's a vast difference between expectation and hope, princess." Neenah had joined Selim at the door when the men re-entered the chamber. Now she was approaching with her husband.

"May Allah bless you and profit for himself, excellencies," said the good Selim. Neenah plainly had advanced her suspicions to the brown body servant. Genevra blushed, and then her eyes kissed. She gave the girl a scornful look. Neenah smiled happily, unreservedly, in return.

"Allah help us, you should say, if Von Blitz returns," interposed Chase hastily. "Is the door barred?"

"No, excellency. The bars have sprung. I cannot drop them in place. As you know, the lock has been blown away. The charge sprung the bolts. We must go at once."

"Then there is no way to keep them out of the chateau?" cried Genevra anxiously.

"They can go no farther than this room," explained Selim. "We lock the double iron doors from the other side—the door through which you came, most glorious excellency—and they cannot enter the cellars above. This is the chamber which opens into the underground passage to the coast. The passage was made for escape from the chateau in case of trouble and was known to but few. My father was the servant of Sahib Wyckholme, and I used to live in the chateau.

"Once there was a boat, a launch, which lay hidden below the cliffs on the north coast. The passage led to this boat. It was always ready to put out to sea. But one night it was destroyed by the great rocks which fell from the cliffs in an earthquake. When I came here I at once thought of the passage. You will see that the doors into the cellar cannot be opened from this chamber. The locks and bolts are on the other side. I knew where the keys were hidden. It was easy to unlock the doors and come into this room. I found that some one had been here before me. The door to the passage had been forced open from without, cracked by dynamite. Many of the treasure boxes have been removed. Von Blitz was here not an hour ago. He wears boots. I saw the footprints among the naked ones in the passage. They will come back for the other chests. Then they will blow up the passageway with powder, and escape from the chateau through it will be cut off. I have found the kegs of powder in the passage and have destroyed the fuses. It will be of no avail, sahib. They will blow it up at the other end, which will be just the same."

"There's no time to be lost," cried Chase. "We must bring enough men down here to capture them when they return—shoot 'em if necessary. Come on! We can surprise them if we hurry."

They were starting across the chamber toward the door when a gruff, sepulchral oath came rolling up to the chamber through the secret passage. Quick as a flash Selim, who realized that they could not reach and open the door leading to the stairs, turned in among the huge wine casks, first blinding his lantern. He whispered for the others to follow. In a moment they were squeezing themselves through the narrow spaces between the dark, strong smelling casks, back into a darkness so opaque that it seemed lifeless.

"They won't suspect that we are here," whispered Selim as the door to the passage creaked. "Keep quiet! Don't breathe!"

The single electric light was still burning as Selim had found it when he first came. The door swung open slowly, heavily, and Jacob von Blitz, mud covered, reeking with perspiration and panting savagely, stepped into the light. Behind him came a man with a lantern and behind him two others.

They were white men, all. Von Blitz turned suddenly and cursed the man with the lantern. The fellow was ready to drop with exhaustion. Evidently it had been no easy task to remove the chests.

CHAPTER XXII.

SEVERAL PHILOSOPHERS.

THE four burly men sat down upon the chests, Von Blitz alone being visible to the watchers. They were fagged to the last extreme.

"Dis is der last," panted Von Blitz, blowing hard and stretching his big arms. "I fix him," he growled. "His time vill come, by tam! I let him know he can't take my vires avay mit him. Der dog! I fix him some day purdy soon. Und dem tam vimmens! Dey run avay mit him, eh? Ach, Gott, if I could only put my hands by deir necks yet!"

"Vat for you fret, Yacob?" growled one of the Boers. "You couldn't take dose vimmens back by Europe mit you. I tink you got goot luck by losing dem. Mieder Chase can't take dem back needer. Don't fret."

"Vell," said Von Blitz, arising. "come on, boys. Dis is der last of dem. Den ve blow der tam t'ing up. Grab hold dere, Joost. Up mit it, Jan. Vat? No?"

"Gott in himmel, Yacob, vait a minutes! My back is proke!" protested Joost stubbornly. Von Blitz swore steadily for a minute, but could not move the impassive Boers.

"Vat for you tink I vant you in on dis, you svine? To set around und dream? Nobody else knows about dis treasures, und ve got it all for ourselves—ve four und no more, und you say, 'Vat's der hurry?' It's all ours. Ve divide it oop in der cave mit all der money ve get from der bank. Vat? Yes? Den, ven der time comes, ve send it all by Australia und no von is der viser. Der natives von't know, und der white peebles von't be alive to care aboudt it."

"I don't like dot scheme to rob der bank," growled Jan. "If der peeples get on to us, dey vould cut us to bieces."

"But dey won't get on to us, you fool. Dey vouldn't take it demselves if it vas handed to dem. Dey're too honest—yes. Vell, don't dey say ve're honest too? Vell, vat more you vant! Dey don't know how much money und rubies dere is in der bank. Ve von't take all of it—und dey won't know der difference. Ve burn der books. Das is all. Ve get in by der bank tonight, boys."

"I don't like id," said Joost. "Id's stealing from our freunds, Yacob. Besides, if der oder heirs should go before der government mit der story, vat den?"

"Der oder heirs vill never get der chance, boys. Dey vill die mit der plague—ha, ha! Sure! Dere von't be no oder heirs. Rasula says it must be so. Ve can'd vait, boys. It vill be years before der business is settled. Ve must get vat ve can now and vait for der decision aftervards. Brodney has wrote to Rasula, saying dat dot Chase feller is to stay here vedder ve vant him or not. He says Chase is a goot man! By tam, it makes me cry to t'ink of vot he has done by me—dot goot man!"

To the amazement of all the burly German began to blubber.

"Come on, Yacob," said Jan gruffly.

Von Blitz shook his fist at the door across the chamber and thundered his final maledictions.

These were Brantford and Sydney. St. John, N.B., with 860 per cent., had the greatest gain. Toronto's increase was 78 per cent., and Vancouver's 72 per cent. Regina was in second place with a gain of 719. Some of the figures of the Ontario cities were: Ottawa, 141 per cent.; Peterborough, 210; London, 156; Fort William, 16.

CLASS SAID FAREWELL TO MR. AND MRS. JOHN HART

Mr. Hart Presented With Gold Watch and Chain, and Mrs Hart With Gold Brooch Set With Pearls—Are Leaving for the West.

About forty members of the class of Mr John Hart assembled last evening at the home of his aunt, Mrs. Hart, sr., to say farewell to himself and family, in view of their proposed early removal to the distant West. Mr Hart has endeared himself to the members of the George street Methodist church, where he has been for some years a tireless worker. During the evening a programme of music and addresses was carried out and refreshments were served, after which Mrs. Wm. Stubbs read the following address, and Mr. T. Caldwell presented Mr. Hart with a gold watch and chain, and Mrs. Hinds presented Mrs. Hart with a gold brooch set with pearls.

ADDRESS.

Peterborough, Ont.,
March 1st,
1910

Mr. and Mrs. John Hart:

Dear Friends,—It was with great regret that we, the members of your Sunday morning class, heard of your decision to sever your connection with us. However, we must not be selfish, for what will be our loss will be others' gain.

This life, truly, is a series of meetings and partings; some are removed from our presence by that overpowering ambition that "urges on the West," others are removed from our midst by death, but it has been the kind decree of Providence that you are still spared to your family, whose future is uppermost in your mind. We trust that your desires may be fully realized, and that God's choicest blessing may attend you and your family, no matter where you reside. Canada has a great heritage, of which we, as loyal Canadians, are justly proud, and we are confident that if you are successful in gaining a goodly share of the "golden harvest" it will be used for the extension of His Kingdom. The opportunities for personal work for our master are as varied in the great North West as are the privileges for the acquisition of wealth, and we know from our association in church work that your efforts will be always for the uplifting of the unchristian Europeans that yearly throng our shores.

Since your appointment as leader of our class we have always noted your loyalty and self-sacrificing devotion to the cause of Christ and His Church, and, while we are proud of your manly instinct to do the best you can for your family, (we still lament your departure. In order that you may always retain a bright spot among your "pictures of memory" we wish you and Mrs. Hart to accept these slight tokens of our affection and regard for your many estimable personal qualities.

SALARY INSUFFICIENT TO SECURE QUALIFIED TEACHER

Difficulty Experienced in Securing Junior Science Teacher for Collegiate Institute, With Present Salary Schedule —$1100 Not Enough.

The last clause of the report of the Committee on Appointments, read before the Board of Education at their regular meeting last night was discussed by the members and as a result the following notion was carried. "That the matter be referred back to the Committee on Appointments for to take into consideration and discuss it with Principal Kenner, and take action as soon as possible."

The whole report was as follows:—

To the Chairman and Members of the Board of Education:

Gentlemen.—Your Committee on Appointments beg leave to report as follows:

Owing to the resignation of Mr. John Hart, janitor of the Collegiate Institute, to take effect March 1st, it was necessary for your committee to secure the services of a competent man to fill the position. After careful consideration your committee recommend that Mr. W. G. McKee be appointed, duties to start 1st March, and salary to be according to schedule. Mr. McKee comes highly recommended, and your committee are satisfied that he will fill the position to the entire satisfaction of the Board.

As instructed your committee advertised for a teacher for the Collegiate Institute staff to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Mr. Hofford, which takes effect 1st April. In response to the advertisement your committee received but five applications, and only one of these applicants has a University degree, and he would not be a suitable teacher for the position.

Your committee are of the opinion that to secure a teacher who is sufficiently well qualified to fill this position, and one who would be approved by the High School Inspector, it will be necessary to increase the salary schedule applicable to this department, and would recommend that the Board give the matter immediate consideration.

Unless immediate action is taken the provincial status of our school shall be impaired, and your committee believe that the ratepayers will not favor the lowering of the present high standard.

Respectfully submitted,

W. H. HILL,
Chairman.

Dr. Morrison thought the difficulty might be surmounted by engaging a lady teacher to fill the vacancy to be left by the resignation of Mr. Hofferd. If one could be secured, the Board would be justified in engaging her. There were two lady teachers on the staff at present and he did not think it would be weakened by the addition of a third. Rather than change the present salary schedule, he would suggest that the best lady teacher be secured at the present salary of $1,100.

On motion Principal Kenner was heard. He stated that great difficulty would be met with in endeavoring to secure a qualified lady teacher. Very few took the science course. In answer to a question if it were possible to re-arrange the staff, Mr. Kenner replied that at present there was only one science man.

Mr. Hill—Mr. Hofferd is leaving to take a position with a higher salary, the minimum of which is $1,200. Why cannot we place our minimum at $1,200 in the event of a qualified male teacher being secured. The trouble is now that we cannot get one at $1100. After all the teachers are the most important asset in our schools and is it wise to get inferior ones?

Mr. Dumble—Is the Government grant sufficient to enable us to get the best teachers to give the pupils the best possible training? United action on the part of High School Boards might secure more support from the Government. "Don't you think it time to ask the Government for more money?" asked Mr. Dumble.

Dr. Morrison moved, seconded by Mr. John Crane, that the matter be referred back to the Committee on Appointments.

TERRIBLE DISASTER

Snowslides Buried Train Near Seattle and Many Deaths Result

Special to the Review.

Seattle, Wash., March 2.—Twenty-three persons are known to be dead and twenty-five others are still missing following the sweeping far into the depths below the entrance to the Cascade Tunnel of twenty cars of the Great Northern Railway by an avalanche of snow. The big relief parties that were sent out from Wellington, the nearest point to the disaster, worked all night and are struggling with the snow to-day, assisted to frantic efforts by moans and cries from underneath the debris indicating that at least some of the victims are still alive. The work of rescue is almost dangerous. The snow on the mountain sides above is still melting and occasionally large quantities become dislodged and give way.

WELCOME RETURN OF FINE PLAY

The return of the great pastoral play, "David Holcomb," is an event of great interest to local playgoers. When this good production which is in a class with "Way Down East," and "The Old Homestead," was at the Grand before, it proved a genuine and very agreeable surprise to the audience, and the character of the play and the splendid acting of the company won it unanimous approval. In view of its very cordial reception here on the occasion of its first visit, Mr. Turner decided to book the play for a second engagement, and it will undoubtedly attract large audiences to the Grand on Saturday, when matinee and night performances will be given.

The play is clean and refreshing, and the presenting company is one of unusual ability. Mr. William Lawrence in the principal role, is an actor of high standing on the American stage, and has been careful to select a cast that most satisfactorily lives up to the demands of their various parts. The piece is attractively staged.

THEATRICAL

"The Affinity"

Theatre-goers who were looking for originality certainly found it last night in the serious comedy "The Affinity," from the French of Brieux, in which Miss Mabel Hackney and Mr. Laurence Irving took the principal roles with much distinction. The play is totally different from the conventional offerings of the stage, both in theme and in the dramatist's treatment of the story. It deals with the free love relationship between a professor of natural history (Laurence Irving) and Charlotte, the affinity (Mabel Hackney). There is nothing in common between them but their mutual physical attraction, and the object of the play is to show the utter hopelessness of domestic bliss in such a union. It shows it most effectively too, and in spite of the bright comedy and laugh-provoking situations, a striking lesson is conveyed that should convince even the most casual observer that the affinity alliance, in the popular acceptance of the relationship, is one that it most desirable to avoid even apart from a moral standpoint.

Miss Hackney, as the impulsive, irresponsible Charlotte, gave a most satisfactory and natural portrayal of the part. Her tearful departing from her lover at the conclusion of the second act, was a most realistic and human bit of emotional acting. Mr. Irving did justice in every way to the part of the professor engrossed in love and natural history specimens, and one could not fail to appreciate his position of varying happiness and acute discomfort. His methods are excellent, and his acting was always very consistent and life-like. In brief, he showed himself to be a finished exponent of the true art of the stage.

At the conclusion of the second act the applause was enthusiastic and persistent, and Mr. Irving, in a clever curtain speech, made some interesting and humorous references to "The Affinity." He also explained the author's idea in writing the play and paid a graceful tribute to his distinguished father, the late Sir Henry Irving.

REV. I. G. COUCH OUT OF DANGER

Will Address Public Meeting in Grand Opera House March 11

Those who heard Mr. E. J. Colton in the Y.M.C.A. last April, will recall his impressive address on conditions, commercial and moral, in the Orient. A VINDICTIVE KNIFE.

The Weapon That Tried Several Times to Kill Kipling.

My mind has flown back down the years to London and into the large corner room on the second floor, Villiers street, Embankment Gardens. On the wall fronting the Thames hangs the most vicious looking knife I have ever seen. It is serpentine in shape, and its downward point is as sharp as a needle.

"What a villainous weapon!" I said.

"Yes," replied Kipling, and I forgot the name he gave it or the section of India from which it came. "That knife has tried to kill me several times. It's always on the watch. When I got it there was affixed to it, like a button on a foil, one joint of a man's backbone. The knife had been run into the vertebrae, given a savage twist and brought away with it a piece of human framework."

As he spoke he approached the glittering, snakelike knife.

"Don't touch it!" I cried. "You ought to keep it in a locked box."

He didn't touch it, so far as I saw, but as he raised his hand the knife dropped like a plummet and stood quivering in the floor within an inch of his boot.

"Look at that!" he said and stood there without moving a muscle until I saw how nearly the sinister blade had come to impaling his foot. — Robert Barr in London World.

A CONVERT.

He Is Now a Firm Believer in Psychic Phenomena.

"Do I believe in the occult? Sure. I do," said the suburbanite as he settled down into his seat in the smoking car and filled his pipe. "I was just as great a skeptic as you are until a week ago. I was firmly convinced that table manipulation was a fake, that mind reading was pure guesswork and that all alleged psychic phenomena could be attributed to natural causes. But now I'm willing to accept the entire propaganda. Nothing is too obscure for me to accept on blind faith. I've experienced a complete change of heart, as they used to say in the old camp meetings.

"You see, it was this way. My friend Buggins, who is really a bug on the occult, induced me to go to a seance with him the other afternoon and prevailed upon me to have a sitting. In spite of my disbelief he said I was a good subject, and I guess I was. The lady who was delivering the soul fluid told me I should have trouble with a stout, dark woman. All the way out on the train that evening the idea haunted me. I couldn't get it out of my head.

"And, say, she was right. What happened? Why, when I got home I found myself up against the proposition of firing the colored cook. Sure, I believe in the occult. Got a light?"

Stevenson's Cup of Misery.

R. L. Stevenson, writing in 1893 to George Meredith, in an epistle quoted in his "Letters," says, with heart touching pathos:

"For fourteen years I have not had a day's real health. I have wakened sick and gone to bed weary, and I have done my work unflinchingly. I have written in bed and written out of it, written in hemorrhages, written in sickness, written torn by coughing, written when my head swam for weakness, and for so long, it seems to me, I have won my wager and recovered my glove. I am better now—have been, rightly speaking, since first I came to the Pacific—and still few are the days when I am not in some physical distress. And the battle goes on—ill or well is a trifle so that it goes. I was made for a contest, and the powers have so willed that my battlefield should be this dingy, inglorious one of the bed and the physic bottle. At least I have not failed, but I would have preferred a place of trumpetings and the open air over my head."

How to Know the Twins.

The Beverly twins, Fred and Frank, were such exact counterparts of each other that none of the neighbors could tell them apart, and even their mother sometimes had her doubts. The resemblance is accentuated by the fact that they are dressed exactly alike.

"How in the world can you yourself tell which is which, Mrs. Beverly?" asked a caller one day.

"To tell the truth," she answered, "I can't always. But if I hear a noise in the pantry and I call out, 'Fred, is that you?' and he says, 'Yes, mamma,' I know it's Frank and that he's in some kind of mischief."—Exchange.

Wonderful Cactuses.

The largest cactuses in the world are those to be found in parts of Mexico. The curious bristling plants common in greenhouses and even in botanical collections give but a poor idea of the size and beauty of this variety. It is common, for example, to find a single plant growing to a height of eight or ten feet which will weigh several hundred pounds. The cactuses grow in a bewildering variety of forms and colors. Their blossoms are correspondingly large and varied.

A Cynical Citizen.

"Is your town improving?"

"Yep," answered Broncho Bob. "The figures show that the tone of Crimson Gulch is improving. The population has decreased 20 per cent in the last year, and I don't know of anybody whose absence wouldn't be a benefit."

A bond of union is soon formed between brethren in misfortune.—La Fage.

TELLTALE PICTURES.

Paintings That Have Done the Work of Detectives.

BROUGHT CRIMES TO LIGHT.

Instances of Where the Canvas of an Artist Led to a Confession of Guilt. A Woman's Portrait and a Stolen Diamond Ornament.

An artist who had suddenly become almost famous by his production of a painting exhibited at the Royal academy was one day called upon by a man whose visit was productive of the most extraordinary and undreamed of consequences.

The picture represented a lonely stretch of beach, upon which the sea was beating in long, creamy rollers. In the foreground, bending over a dead body, was a man with a wild expression on his face and with a naked knife in his hand. A ship's boat, evidently just beached, was also in the picture, and by the side of the murdered man was a bag of gold. The picture portrayed the advent of two castaways upon a friendly shore. The one had murdered the other so that the treasure might be his.

The painter's visitor was a gray haired, wild eyed man.

"In heaven's name, sir," he gasped out, "how did you learn the dreadful story that you painted? I see you know all. I murdered my mate Bill to get the money that was his. I threw his body into the sea. I don't know what impulse led me to the academy. The first thing I saw was your picture representing the scene that took place thirty years ago."

Needless to say, the picture had been the outcome of imagination. Yet murder will out, and the guilty conscience of the man who had killed his comrade for lust of gold had convinced him that the painting was no coincidence, but was indeed the actual portrayal of a dastardly and unwitnessed crime.

There is probably no picture better known in England than "The Doctor," by Luke Fildes, yet there are probably very few people aware of the fact that that selfsame masterpiece was the means of bringing to light the perpetration of a crime that would otherwise never have been known.

A certain doctor in a large town committed suicide, and among his papers was a letter which ran as follows: "I have today seen Luke Fildes' 'Doctor.' The picture represents a medical man watching by the bedside of a child. It has so haunted me that I am going to take away my own worthless life and make a confession at the same time. When Arthur's"—his brother's—"boy died I came into money that my dead brother had settled on him. He died as all the world thought of acute pneumonia. Yet his life might have been saved had I acted, as Fildes' 'Doctor' is so evidently doing, with the use of all the skill that lay in my power. I hastened the boy's end and so got the money. I can bear it no more."

A well known artist was commissioned to paint the portrait of a lady in exalted circles who boasted the possession of a most unique jewel in the form of a pendant. The lady was very anxious that this heirloom should be included in her portrait. The artist, of course, complied with her request.

Shortly after the painting had been completed a daring burglary was perpetrated, with the result that the lady lost her heirloom, and no trace of the thief or thieves was forthcoming. Years passed by, and the lady gave up all hope of ever seeing the precious heirloom again.

Now, it so happened that the artist who had painted the portrait of the lady mentioned had occasion to travel in India.

In the course of his wanderings he came to Bombay and, as every visitor to that place does, strolled through the native bazaar.

Suddenly his attention was riveted by a piece of jewelry in a jeweler's shop that seemed familiar to him. It was a diamond and ruby pendant. Where had he seen it before? He ransacked his brain, but could not remember.

He returned to his hotel and happened to take from his portfolio a sketch of the portrait he had made years ago of the lady with the pendant.

In a moment the enigma was solved. The piece of jewelry he had seen was the peculiar pendant that his fair sitter had been so anxious he should include in his portrait.

He hurried off to the chief of police and told that worthy what he suspected—namely, that the bazaar he had visited contained the long lost jewel of the English lady. Inquiries were at once set on foot with extraordinary results. The jeweler in the bazaar confessed to having given years ago a quite insignificant sum for the jewel, which he had bought from a stableman in the employ of a neighboring rajah. The stableman was sought for and turned out to be none other than a famous English cracksman who had apparently turned honest, but who, nevertheless, confessed to having been the thief of the jewel that had been so miraculously discovered.—Pearson's Weekly.

Insurance Companies Lose About $125,000.00 by the Wreck at Spanish River

Double Liability for About Twenty-five Persons

A loss of somewhere in the neighbourhood of $125,000 is what the Accident Insurance Companies estimate the wreck at Spanish River bridge means to them.

They figure that about 25 of those who met death carried Accident Insurance, and the average insurance, according to the tables, is $5,000. In case of death in a railway disaster there is a double liability, making the figure $6,000, or $5,000 to be more conservative.

Their loss may total more than that, for the commercial travellers, a number of whom were killed, usually carry very heavy insurance. In addition, some of the companies make the policies payable on the death of the wife while travelling, though the policy is taken out in the husband's name. In such cases they pay the husband the same amount as they would have paid the wife were the husband killed.

We issue the BEST Accident and Sickness policy offered to the public.

WM. HADDILL'S

VERSES FOR CRACKERS.

When we find one London firm alone turning out 20,000,000 crackers every season, representing over 600 designs, and necessitating the writing of no fewer than 25,000 verses on every subject conceivable, from aeroplanes to Dreadnoughts, from football to bridge-playing, from roller-skating to motoring, it is clear that the composing of the effusions suitable for such a miscellaneous array of crackers is no light task.

True, one rhymester is not responsible for the whole of these 25,000 verses, but it is, nevertheless, a fact that there are several persons who now make a good livelihood by writing humorous verses and mottoes for these Yuletide novelties. Some of these, too, are men who have had a university education, while others have a natural aptitude for writing poetry. It is these latter that are the most successful, and one that the writer met recently at Tom Smith's great factory in Finsbury gave a few practical hints to would-be cracker poets.

"You must be humorous," he said, "otherwise you fail to amuse. In touching upon subjects of the moment there is no other way to treat them without giving offence to a certain class." The following verse from one of the Suffragette crackers may be taken as an example:

Yes; a Suffragette am I,
Do you know the reason why?
I am anxious, all life thro',
To devote myself—to you!

"The most difficult verses to write are those dealing with a specified profession or trade. Take those in the motoring crackers. You have twelve and they are, of course, all different. It is desirable to bring in motor phrases and words in common use among motorists and work them into the lines." Here is a specimen:

O spark of love! from Heaven above
You visit this terrestrial sphere!
So what, on earth, can plug your mirth,
Cupid! when you go sparking here?

"When in the mood I can turn out fifty verses a day with ease. Sometimes, however, the subjects will hang fire and a whole afternoon will be spent with perhaps only five or six verses poorly done. In writing a set of verses the greatest difficulty is to get a good start. Once you have hit off two or three that you know will be suitable the remainder come fairly easy.

"As the subjects are so miscellaneous it means that one has to be acquainted with everything that is going on. You have, in fact, to have a superficial knowledge of all subjects. The makers now are particular and you must keep to the subject, and it is the subject that is the difficulty."

In the verses from one of the bridge-party crackers we notice how the poet has worked in card phasseology:

O, make not diamonds trumps and put
My hand to shame, I fondly pray thee!
Call "Hearts!" and I will follow suit!
You'll find "no trumps" so well repay thee!

Equally good and amusing is the following from one of the Signs of the Times crackers which deals with the subject of the Channel Tunnel:

Will England let a tunnel take
Her "splendid isolation" break?
No! Let the wild waves do their worst,
True Britons will be seasick first.

Halloa! How are you, dear?
How do you know who I am?
By your sweet breath, thro' the telephone, blow me a kiss.
Sir, you are impertinent. Ring off at once.
Till then, ta! ta!

"Fog" Fields.

A story of a "fog" advertisement is told in Sir Mountstuart Grant Duff's diary. He was staying at Hickleton Hall, Lord Halifax's place near Doncaster, and the conversation turned on curious Yorkshire words, such as "lattice" for barn and "stockbar" for hurdle. Mr. Charles Wood, the present Lord Halifax, told how a Devonshire servant, having received a Yorkshire paper from a friend, wrote: "I see Mr. —— has got ten acres of fog to sell. We could have let you have any number of acres of fog for nothing this year."

In Yorkshire, it was explained, "fog," as also "eddish," meant aftermath. A "fog" field is one in which a second crop of grass grows. Dean Ramsay gives us "fog" in the sense of moss. "A youdn' stoop gaithers nae fog," said the minister to a shoemaker who had demitted to another denomination. "Aye," said John, "that's true too; but can ye tell me what guid the fog does to the stane?"

A Worker, Not a Talker.

When it was announced a few days ago that King Edward had conferred a baronetcy upon Sir Arthur Godley, there were not a few people asking, "Who is Sir Arthur Godley?" In the words of the late Mr. Gladstone, to whom Sir Arthur acted as private secretary in the seventies, "he is a worker, not a talker," and that is why people know so little about him. After a distinguished career at Rugby and Balliol, Sir Arthur, at the age of twenty-five, came under the notice of Mr. Gladstone, who further described him as one of the "ablest public servants he had ever come into contact with." And Sir Arthur's subsequent career as Under-Secretary of State for India, a post he held for twenty-six years, has completely vindicated the late Liberal leader's high opinion of his former secretary's capacity.

ONIONS FOR SOUVENIRS.

Some Huge Specimens That Weighed Two Pounds Each.

The onions shown in the illustration are the Bermuda or Giant Gibraltar species. They were grown on Long Island, New York, and weigh two pounds each. Twenty-eight of them make a bushel. They were raised from Gibraltar seed and matured in the open. The onions are so large that one of them fills a quart basket and more, and they ran 1,035 bushels to the acre.

The cost of raising an acre of onions is something which is not an easy thing to get at and varies with every onion raiser on every acre every year and will continue to do so as long as nature sees fit to absolutely decline to run on any set schedule which shall not vary one iota from year to year, and nature has so declined since the creation of the world. Further, even the same year upon contiguous acres the cost per acre to John Smith will vary greatly from that of the cost to friend Bill Jones or Jack Robinson. This will continue until such time as human beings become exactly similar in stature, in weight, in temperament and in sensitory attributes.

While these were by no means the largest onions grown from seed, they were what would be called firsts by sorters. The largest onions were sent to Long Island's county and outside fairs at which the experimental stations have made exhibits, and many of our largest Giants have been begged by visitors who wished them for souvenirs.

It is needless to explain that this superb Gibraltar onion will not be sold at any of the prices doled out by the controllers of food supply, because such superb examples of vegetable growth are eagerly sought for and very high prices paid by noted epicurean establishments, private and public, in great cities.

Onions from these seeds grew 50 to the measured bushel; selected onions, 28 to the measured bushel; assorted onions weighed 52 pounds to bushel; selected onions weighed 55 pounds to bushel; height or thickness, average 4 inches; flattest, 3½ inches; most globular, 4¼ inches; circumference, average 16 2-3 inches; greatest, 19½ inches; least, 15¾ inches; weight, average 2 pounds; heaviest, 2¾ pounds; lightest, 1¾ pounds.

The Fool and the Auto.

If a man should put rubber tires on the wheels of a locomotive and drive the same at express speed or anywhere near it over an ordinary wagon road he would be pronounced a suicidal lunatic, says an exchange. Yet this is exactly what men presumably of sound mind are doing every day with their motorcars. An automobile is practically a locomotive, and, like the latter, it can be driven with safety at any speed faster than a jog trot only on a specially prepared track free from obstructions that might derail it, ditch it or cause it to collide with rocks, telegraph poles and other things by the roadside. An elaborate system of signals is required to prevent collisions between locomotives on the rails, but our road locomotives signag over uneven and treacherous roadbeds, turn "hairpin" curves on steep grades and take a hundred other chances that would make a railroad engineer's hair stand on end. The daily bulletin of automobile fatalities ought to bring the conviction that common roads are not built for running locomotives at even the lowest speed now authorized by law and that the regulation of automobiles needs to be made stricter and unflinchingly enforced rather than liberalized.

Onion Queen of Northwest.

Miss Alice Turner of Dayton, Wash., is being dubbed the onion queen of the Pacific northwest. Last season she planted and harvested ten acres of onions and cleared above all her expenses $8,330. The crop was an immense one, being raised on new land and watered with artesian well water. Miss Turner came into possession of a small farm by the death of her father a year ago. She was at a loss to know what to do with the old home and her mother, when she decided to become an onion grower all by herself. She engaged men to plow and plant her acreage to onion seed and throughout the summer superintended the weeding and watering of the crop. In spite of many scoffings from neighbors, who declared onions would be worthless last fall, she persevered and now is envied by all. The total crop was purchased by a New York commission man for distribution to merchants in the east. Miss Turner realized 75 cents a sack for the onions, which yielded nearly 1,000 sacks an acre.

FICKLE FASHION.

It is not easy to kill a fashion, but it may be done with authority and skill. Authority comes in with the Postmaster-General's limitation of the cardboard box to six feet (measured either way), which means, being interpreted, that the Postmaster-General, being a man, forbids you, being a woman, to achieve by parcels post a hat which is above the regulation Government official size. Whatever you are ladies, the Postmaster-General, with his tape measure, remembers what you wear.

The Postmaster-General and the lady who was hanged in a black silk dress are not alone in the setting of fashion. The size of the hat is limited by the size of the bandbox the post-office will accept, and the women of England said they would be hanged if they wore a black silk dress in which a notorious lady was strangled. But a fleeting fashion was curiously quashed in the end of the last century, the fur cape, a useful article and ornamental to the slim. A fat duchess saw herself in the glass, saw that it did not suit her stubby figure and dressed her coachman in it. And the fur cape became so unfashionable that even footmen struck.

Both black satin dresses and white lace veils went immediately out of fashion when a murderess wore them at her execution. The woman was Mrs. Manning, who, with her husband, was executed for the murder of a man named O'Connor before Horsemonger lane jail on Nov. 13, 1849.

A particular kind of black beaver hat fell in popularity when Franz Muller was in 1864 hanged for the murder of Thomas Briggs on the North London Railway. Muller's hat, found in the railway carriage, formed the connecting link in a remarkable chain of circumstantial evidence. Henceforth "mullers," as they were called, were tabooed, and anybody who wore one risked having it smashed at sight.

While in England garments have been made unfashionable by figuring at the execution of criminals, in France the public executioner at one time actually set the fashion. Sanson, the executioner, was famous for the richness of his attire and attracted such attention thereby that just before the revolution he was forbidden to wear blue, which was a nobleman's color. By way of protest he made himself even more gorgeous and despite his office made the green cloth which he adopted fashionable with the court dandies, who imitated both the cut and color of his clothes.—London Chronicle.

An Able Official.

Mr. Robert E. Young, who is acting as the representative of Canada at the conference at the Foreign Office, London, to discuss the standardization of the world's map, was for many years a Dominion land surveyor in Western Canada in the early days. He has been described as the type of man who would start on a week's strenuous work with a can of biscuits for provisions. His skill as a surveyor and geographer was such that when difficulties arose in the survey of the City of Winnipeg, involving millions of dollars' worth of property, he was chosen to make a special survey of the city, and his survey was legalized by the Manitoba legislature. The Dominion Government subsequently offered him an appointment in the Department of the Interior as superintendent of railway lands, a position which, on account of the continuous method of selection adopted by those interested, required the services of one specially skilled in geographical and survey work.

No one has been more active or influential in making known the potentialities of the far Northwest of Canada than Mr. Young. He has been indefatigable in this work. To the newspapers he is a veritable mine of information on the subject of the climate and natural conditions of the Peace River and Mackenzie districts and the Yukon Territory. He, indeed, possesses the combination of qualities somewhat rarely found among permanent Government officials—enthusiasm, courtesy, enterprise, and talent. Mr. R. E. Young and Mr. "Charley" Young, the popular proprietor of The Cornwall Freeholder are brothers.

PUPILS MAKING HEADWAY IN TWO NEW DEPARTMENTS

Reports on the Progress Being Made In Domestic Science and Manual Training, Before Board of Education

At last night's meeting of the Board of Education, two reports from Inspector Mowat were read as follows:

DOMESTIC SCIENCE REPORT.

The Chairman and Members of the Board of Education:

Gentlemen,—The study of household science was introduced into the city schools in February, 1908, at the same time as the work in manual training was begun.

The same schools and classes were represented in both branches of the study. While the boys are receiving instruction in manual training the girls are engaged in the practical work of household science.

On account of the training being limited at present to one lesson a week during the two years of the course, the work has so far been centred mainly upon the study of foods, cookery, table setting and serving. The course of study has been so mapped out, however, as to make it a real help to each pupil, no matter in what circumstances she may hereafter be placed.

Should the board find it possible to extend the course, then the scope of study can be widened to include sanitation, house furnishing, house cleaning, clothing, home culture and kindred branches.

The instructor, Miss Steimhoff, has not narrowed the course to cooking, but has made it a study of the home. The home activities have been related to those of the school, and the teaching of the mother in the home has been supplemented, not supplanted.

The vast noticeable benefits that the pupils are deriving from the study of household science are:—

1.—Habits of neatness and orderliness.

2.—Efficiency and self-reliance in the work of their hands.

3.—A deeper interest in the home surroundings.

4.—A greater regard for household service.

5.—Economy.

All the classes show deep interest and enthusiasm in the work. This is due to the excellent instruction they are receiving.

The equipment is one of the best in the province, and the greatest possible care is being exercised in keeping everything in order.

It is to be hoped that in the near future all of the Public schools in both the junior and senior fourth classes may have the opportunity of pursuing this branch of study.

MANUAL TRAINING REPORT

The inspector also submitted the following report:—

Gentlemen,—Manual training was introduced into the Public schools in February, 1909, and in the year that has elapsed a very fair start has been made in the work, the results of which are beginning to show.

The work has been confined to the boys of the senior fourth classes of the Central, South Central, Queen Alexander and Ashburnham schools and those of Formil. of the Collegiate Institute.

This limits the course to two years with but one lesson a week of one and a half to two hours in length, for each student.

On this account nothing has yet been attempted beyond mechanical drawing and wood work. Should the course in time be extended to four years, as is the case in many cities, then metal and machinery shop work could be added with but little expense to the board.

The present equipment has proved quite satisfactory, and but few repairs or additions will be necessary for this year.

The attitude of the boys towards the work is one of enthusiasm. Their work shows thought and care, and considerable skill is being developed. The students are deriving both pleasure and profit from the work, and as they give expression to their ideas in their work, it must react beneficially upon all their school studies.

In the junior classes of the Public schools a start is being made in taper and cardboard construction in accordance with the regulations of the Educational Department. This is designed as a foundation for the more advanced work of the manual training classes.

The success that has attended the introduction of the manual training course into the schools of the city, is due almost entirely to the instructor, Mr. Scarrow, who has been untiring in his efforts to make this work of real educative value.

The boys are engaged in making useful articles for the schools, such as cupboards and science equipments.

What Qubec Says

To the Editor of the Review.

Sir,—Quebec is in a ferment over any attempt to give Canada the faintest semblance of a chance to help out the Empire in case of need. La Presse, the biggest of the French Liberal dailies, held a plebiscite of its own and out of several thousand letters written and votes cast only 53 were for participating in an imperial navy on any terms. Most of them were for remaining as we are. Now L'Evenement comes along with another plebiscite demanding that the matter be referred to the people, being confident the people will reject the whole thing. There can be no doubt that the Laurier navy proposal is disloyal, useless and a sheer waste of money. It is a direct slap in the face to the great defence conference which recommended united action. But it is anything to keep away from endorsing unity of empire, for which Sir Wilfrid deliberately refused to vote. The real question now is, "Is Canada part of the British empire or is she not?" Why is it that no resolution affirming that she is can be put through? Things are in bad shape in Canada just now in more ways than one. The following news item in Monday's Toronto World will give an idea of how things are going;

Montreal, Feb. 27.—Sir Alexander Lacoste and Hon. Thos. Chase Casgrain, at the head of the strongest delegation that can be secured from this city, will leave here to-morrow evening for Ottawa, in order to have a heart to heart talk with the Conservative leaders at the capital re certain matters of mutual concern. As one man put it, "We are at the parting of the ways, and this matter must be threshed out now, for to-morrow it will be too late."

Of course, these Conservative gentlemen who go to Ottawa with a protest in their pockets will not say a great deal as to their real intentions, but it is a fact that they will put some serious questions to the leader of the party, R. L. Borden, one of which is, "Do you want to run the Conservative party without Quebec? If so we want to know it here and now."

As a matter of fact, the Quebec Conservatives claim that no great debate can be indulged in without some leading Ontario Conservative using insulting language towards this province, all of which is so much argument in the hands of the Liberal stump orators and newspaper writers in Quebec and Montreal.

It is stated that all the Conservative members, both English and French, from this province, will be pressed into the delegation, and that the Quebec men will not return before securing an assurance from Mr. Borden that a new era will soon mark the direction of the Conservative party.

Otherwise it is known that every semblance of organization will be disbanded by the opposition, both in Quebec and Montreal.

There is going to be trouble in this country yet over this question of a united empire and it is a good thing to see the Conservative party in Ontario and the west making a bold stand for the old flag.

Road Making

To the Editor of the Review.

Dear Sir,—Judging from the articles appearing in the Examiner for the past year or two on road making, either the proprietor or editor, or likely both, think they are experts, but it appears the majority of the aldermen, Chairman of the Board of Works, and engineer have not a very high opinion of the Examiner experts, as they don't appear to have handed over the management of the streets to these gentlemen. I see the new Council have made a change in the Chairman of the Board of Works, and if Mr. Hicks wants to make a record for himself, would advise him to visit this township and make a careful inspection of the Galway road, or Lambert line as usually called. A road about one and one-quarter miles long running east from the Bobcaygeon road, a little north of Silver Lake. This road was originally built by the settlers, but after that over four thousand dollars was appropriated by the Ontario Government for this road and expended under the former experts. Mr. Hicks had better invite these gentlemen to accompany him, and if they are as anxious as they profess to be for the improvement of the streets of the city of Peterborough, they will not hesitate to come and explain their system of road building and give some information as to where the four thousand dollars has been buried.

I would not advise Mr. Hicks to go over this road in an automobile, but if careful can get over it on horseback. He might also get a lesson on making out payists. A number of years ago we had a gentleman building roads in this township and on pay day all the men employed were brought to one place, the pay lists made out and the men paid in each other's presence, and as each man would know the number of days he and his neighbor had worked together on the road, there could be no errors made in the pay lists. This was considered an old fashioned way of doing business, and he was requested to adopt a new system. This gentleman was so wedded to the old fashioned way that he would not adopt the new system, and rather than do so refused to have anything more to do with the road building.

Hoping to have the pleasure of meeting Mr. Hicks, and, if possible, all the aldermen and Examiner experts on the Galway road as soon as the spring opens, I am,

Yours truly,

GALWAY.

MISS SUSIE M. KINGSWORTH.

MISS SUSIE M. KINGSWORTH, 466 Quebec St., London, Ontario, writes:

"I began using Peruna last January, when I had such a bad cold, and I could not get anything to help me.

"My nose and head were all stopped up, so that I could hardly get my breath. I thought at times that I would smother, especially at night.

"I have no trouble with that now. The noise in my head has all disappeared.

"I know Peruna will do just what you say it does. I cannot praise Peruna too highly, as it has done so much for me. I hope my letter will reach other sufferers."

Mrs. S. J. Kountz, 1015 Scovel street, Nashville, Tenn., writes:

"I have had a very bad cough nearly all my life, and I am forty-five years old. I have taken almost every kind of cough medicine that has ever been made, but none did me much good. I would have spells of coughing that I thought I would cough myself to death. I took Peruna, and last winter and this winter I have had no cough and I know that Peruna cured me."

SMITH PIONEER PASSED AWAY

Special to the Review.

Lakefield, March 2.—The death occurred on Thursday, February 24th, of one of the oldest residents of Smith, when Mr. Geo. Johnson, Sr., passed away at the ripe old age of 82 years. Mr. Johnson had been in poor health for sometime, so that his death was not wholly unexpected. The funeral took place on Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock, from the family residence, lot 26, con. 7, Smith, and was very largely attended. He is survived by his wife and eight children. The sons are: Robert and Andrew, in the west; George, of Smith, and Roland of Lakefield; and the daughters are: Mrs. Hugh Fife, Otonabee; Mrs. W. A. Boyce, Selwyn; Mrs. Jas. Sanderson, Davidson, Sask., and Mrs. N. A. Hunter, Peterborough. The deceased gentleman was highly esteemed and respected by all who knew him.

The forty-seventh anniversary of the Lakefield Presbyterian church will be observed on Sunday, March 13th. Rev. A. H. Drumm, of Belleville, will conduct the services.

Mrs. W. R. Morris, of Peterborough is visiting Mr. and Mrs. B. I. Dench at North Douro Lodge.

Miss Laurel Webster has returned to her home after a pleasant visit with friends in Port Hope.

Miss Clara Payne, of the staff of the Lakefield public school, spent Saturday and Sunday with friends in Peterborough.

Owing to the inclemency of the weather, and bad roads, Warsaw and Buckhorn failed to connect, and there were no City League matches on Wednesday evening last. The fans were again disappointed on Monday evening when the match between the West Ends of Peterborough and the juniors had to be called off, owing to the soft weather.

The oyster supper for the All Stars and Farmers was served at the Lakefield House on Wednesday evening, February 23rd, ample justice being done to the sumptuous repast of Miss Host Lawless, and a very pleasant evening was spent by both teams.

The young men of Lakefield held an informal dance in the town hall on Tuesday evening, March 1st. About sixty were present and a very enjoyable time was spent by all. Miss Alice Hunter furnished the music and refreshments were served by the ladies. Much credit must be given to Mr. Alex. Chambers, who was untiring in his efforts to make the affair a success.

LAWRENCE—ALLEN

Special to the Review.

Lakefield, March 2.—A very pretty wedding was celebrated on Wednesday, Feb. 23rd, at six o'clock in the evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Allen Smith, when their daughter, Ethel, was united in marriage to Mr. Harold Lawrence, of Douro. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Mr. Bedford, of Lakefield. The bride wearing a beautiful cream dress with satin trimmings and the customary bridal veil and carrying a bouquet of white carnations, entered the drawing room on the arm of her father to the strains of Mendelssohn's wedding march, played by Miss Clara Davis, of Lakefield. She was assisted by her sister, Lottie, dressed in a princess gown of white lawn and carrying pink carnations. The groom was supported by Mr. Braden Bell. After the ceremony and congratulations were extended the guests to the number of about fifty sat down to the usual wedding supper. The presents were numerous and costly showing the high esteem in which the young couple are held.

Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence will take up their residence in Smith.

MANY TO LEAVE CITY FOR WEST

There is every indication of a large immigration from this city to the West this spring, and the number who will leave to try their luck in the western country, it is stated by the local railway officials, will be greater than that of last spring. Excursion rates came into force yesterday and will continue on the Canadian Pacific Railway every Tuesday until the last of April and on the Grand Trunk Railway until the middle of April. Many inquiries have been made and information is being asked for daily by those who have decided to go West.

ASQUITH SAYS VETO BILL MUST WAIT FOR THE BUDGET

Premier Makes His Pronouncement in the House of Commons—After the Easter Recess the Question of Limiting the Power of the Lords Will be Dealt With.

London, March 1.—Financial business first and then the question of the House of Lords second, was the program laid down by Premier Asquith in a statement made in the House of Commons yesterday afternoon, in moving that Government business have precedence at every sitting up to March 24. The resolution was adopted without a division.

When Parliament re-assembled after the Easter recess, the Premier said, the Government would present resolutions affirming the necessity of excluding the House of Lords altogether from the domain of finance and restricting its power of veto to other legislation.

To secure this the Government, he added, would use all methods that seemed proper and adequate within the limits of the constitution, and upon its successful accomplishment the Cabinet and Liberal party would stake not only the fortunes of the Ministry, but their very existence as a party.

The exigencies of the financial situation were such, the Premier declared, that the vote on the army and navy bills, covering the borrowings and other urgent demands, must occupy the whole time of the House up to March 24, when adjournment would be taken to March 29.

Immediately Parliament was re-assembled, he said, the Government would introduce resolutions excluding the House of Lords altogether from the domain of finance, and declaring that in other legislation the Lords' power of veto would remain as at present.

"The Liberals propose to take every constitutional step," he said, "to accomplish the outlined reforms in the House of Lords. None need fear that we have weakened in the least, but there are other matters that properly should come first, for unnecessary delay will greatly hamper the Government."

The Premier's declaration met with hearty applause from the less radical members of the party.

Sir Henry Dalziel, one of the most radical Liberals, offered a resolution providing for the complete abolition of the veto power of the Lords, setting forth that the reform proposed was not drastic enough, even being favored by many of the Lords. His resolution was declared out of order.

C. A. MAGRATH ARGUES FOR CONTRIBUTION OF WARSHIPS

Western Conservative Member Contributes a Fighting Speech to the Naval Debate, in Which He Says Efforts Should be Made to Secure a Central Fleet.

Ottawa, March 1.—C. A. Magrath, the Conservative member for Medicine Hat, has been in Parliament but a year and a half, yet he is already recognized as a Cabinet certainty in any Conservative administration. His speech on the navy bill yesterday, therefore, commanded attention. He favored a direct contribution.

Mr. Magrath said he was an Imperialist because it was "best for us and best for civilization." In the upbuilding of a young country like Canada the spirit of Imperialism was necessary.

The British people were adding to their methods of raising money, and there must be an emergency or the people would not be taxed as they are. As to the Canadian navy, he said: "Canada has as much need for a navy as a resident of Hades for a buffalo overcoat."

It was a matter of common decency that the colonies go to the aid of the British people. It was a duty we owed civilization.

The sending of Dreadnoughts made the British navy a central navy for the Empire. The taxpayer of Canada was not concerned with the owning of a few fighting ships. He wanted the greatest fighting force for the least money.

British land wars in recent times had been simply colonization wars, and the national life had never been threatened. But when Britain was engaged in a naval war, her life would be hanging by a very slight thread.

Germany had the best army in Europe, and should not be allowed to have the best navy also.

He concluded by saying the present Government was showing too little desire to go down and out for a principle and too little effort to create a strong intelligent opinion.

Mr. Best (Dufferin) delivered his maiden speech. He declared that he was glad to belong to a party that was not afraid to speak its mind. If necessity should ever arise, he believed the farmers of Canada would rise to the support of Great Britain. He favored the contribution of twenty millions or two Dreadnoughts to the mother country.

Other speakers were: G. B. Devlin, L. J. Demers, D. D. Mackenzie, and Dr. Daniels. E. N. Lewis (West Huron) moved the adjournment.

Alphonso Verville, the Liberal-Labor representative from Maisonneuve, in a short speech in French declared his intention of supporting Mr. Monk's amendment calling for a plebiscite. As an opponent of militaryism of every description, he could take no other course.

As between the Government and Opposition policies, as a representative of organized labor he supported that of the Government because it would mean the employment of Canadian labor.

It is possible that the revision of the Bank Act will be delayed until the beginning of next session.

This was indicated by Hon. W. S. Fielding, when Hon. Geo. E. Foster enquired when the measure might be expected. Mr. Fielding said that if there was any curtailment of the Government program, in order to bring about an early adjournment, the act could well stand until the beginning of next session.

It is not the intention of the Government to renew the iron and steel bounties which finally expire at the end of the coming fiscal year. The bounties have now been in force fourteen years, and the Government believes that the iron and steel industries are now established on sufficiently firm basis to do without the crutch of an annual subsidy from the Federal treasury. The dividends paid and the increasing output of the large industries that have been built up since 1896 are an evidence of this. The total amount paid in bounties last year was: On pig iron, $693,423; on steel, $838,100, and on manufactured steel, $333,091. Since 1896 the total bounties on iron and steel have amounted to over fourteen million dollars.

DISASTROUS SNOWSLIDES

Avalanches Believed to Have Cost Sixty Lives in Northern Idaho.

Spokane, Wash., March 1.—Sixty lives have been lost, it is feared, in two great snowslides which have brought dismay to the mining towns of the rich Coeur d'Alene district in northern Idaho.

Sunday night a snowslide swept down the mountain, striking the little town of Mace and burying twenty-five houses and their sleeping occupants in a mass of snow and ice at the bottom of the canyon. Yesterday another slide rushed down on Burke, crushing a score of houses under thousands of tons of earth and snow.

Fourteen bodies have been recovered from the ruins of Mace, while sixteen dead have been found at Burke. How many are still buried can only be guessed at. Fifty or sixty dead is regarded as a conservative estimate. From the foot of the Anchor mine plant for about a mile the slide is thirty feet deep. One thousand rescuers are now at work.

Thirty-five Italians, sleeping in an outfit car on the Northern Pacific Railroad siding who were swept away with their car in the bottom of the canyon used the tools in their car to dig themselves out. Supt. and Mrs. I. H. Pascoe of the Standard mine, in which property a large majority of the male residents of Mace are employed, were asleep when their home was crushed like an eggshell. Mr. Pascoe, two sons and a daughter were killed. His wife was only slightly injured. The bodies were recovered.

The little mining town of Mace lies between mountain sides, a straggling line of cottages in the creek bottom, bisected by the lines of the Northern Pacific and Oregon Railroad and Navigation Companies. Its one industry is mining, and its big mine is the Standard.

With scarce a dividing line perceptible, the towns of Black Bear, Gem, Mace and Burke form a long string of houses for six miles.

Mace has a population of one hundred, all, with the exception of a few storekeepers and school teachers, in the employ of the mine.

NAVAL BILL APPEARS TO BE A HOODOO

Ottawa, March 1.—The naval bill now before Parliament is ill-fated, so far as the Ministers in charge of it are concerned.

The promoter, Hon. L. P. Brodeur, was first stricken with a serious illness from which he has only partially recovered.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier and Sir Frederick Borden then assumed responsibility for the bill. The Premier shortly after fell ill, and was absent ten days from the House, while Sir Frederick Borden slipped on Elgin street a week ago and fell, straining the muscles of his back. He had only recovered from this, when he became a victim of an acute attack of rheumatism and for several days has been confined to his home.

To be eligible, it will be necessary for an association to hold four competitions during the season, in which at least forty per cent. of the members must take part. The dates of these competitions must be fixed in advance and communicated to the district officer commanding. The ranges will be at 200, 500 and 600 yards, seven scoring shots at each range.

THREE DIE IN RAILWAY WRECK

Truro, N.S., March 1.—At 1.40 yesterday morning a special I.C.R. westbound freight left the rails at Hill's Siding and plunged over an 85-foot embankment carrying Driver Dan McLeod, Fireman John Melsaac, and Brakeman J. O. Davidson, all of Truro, to their death.

It is rumored that the wreck was caused by lumber being driven on the track by the heavy rains and thaw of Sunday. The Boston express had passed safely over the spot only a few hours before.

Davidson was the rear-end brakeman on the freight, but had just gone forward to allow the forward brakeman to go back to the van for his lunch. Four cars left the track, and it is said that the engine turned over three times before reaching the bottom of the gully.

The State Department has no doubt that all questions involved will be settled before March 31, when the maximum rates go into operation.

HANDSOME GIFT TO UNIVERSITY

Toronto Gets Three Handsome Buildings From Massey Estate.

Toronto, March 1.—The executors of the Massey estate have written to the board of governors of Toronto University offering to bear the cost of erecting, as a memorial to the late Hart A. Massey, three buildings, to be of stone and of Gothic architecture.

One is to provide quarters for the Y.M.C.A., and is to contain all that is necessary for their purposes. The second, probably of similar size and design, is to contain the rooms necessary for the Students' Union, the Athletic Association and other student activities. Between the rear part of these two, built so as to leave a lawn or court, possibly closed in front by a wall with a grille, will be a beautiful gothic hall, also for the use of the students.

Behind these buildings the university will erect the much-needed gymnasium, swimming baths, etc., the present gym. being absorbed in the group.

The site selected is the land in front of the present gymnasium and as far south as is found necessary. Suitable provision will be made for the tennis lawns, which will, of course, be blotted out by the new erections.

No estimate is given of the cost of the new buildings, but it is certain that it will run into a very large sum indeed.

The governors of the university, in acknowledging the gift, express their belief that the people of Toronto are destined to act towards their university in the large-hearted manner that the people of Montreal have shown towards McGill.

In regard to the property recently purchased at the corner of Hoskin avenue and St. George street, on which the University Y.M.C.A. had intended to erect a building, this is still held by the board of governors, who made the purchase, and may be retained for other university purposes.

YOUR BLOOD IS POISONED

If You Suffer From Headaches or Neuralgia.

Frequent attacks of Headaches or Neuralgia are Nature's warnings of Blood Poisoning. The pain is due simply to the tortured nerves, inflamed by the blood being overloaded with impurities, because of inactive bowels, kidneys or skin.

There is usually chronic Constipation and the foul matter, instead of passing from the body, is absorbed by the blood. The kidneys are not as strong as they should be and fail to filter from the the blood, the necessary amount of impure matter.

Instead of the skin throwing off one and a half pounds of waste matter every day, it becomes inactive and does only half its work, leaving three quarters of a pound of this waste to poison the body. Headache powders and pain killers simply numb the nerves and have no helpful action on the organs causing this poisoning of the blood. To cure Headaches and Neuralgia, the blood must be purified, which can be done only by making the kidneys, bowels and skin healthy and active.

"Fruit-a-tives", made from concentrated and intensified fruit juice, is the greatest blood purifying medicine.

"Fruit-a-tives", or "Fruit Liver Tablets", is a scientific cure for Headaches and Neuralgia, and never fails to cure because "Fruit-a-tives" stops the cause of these troubles.

CIVIC GOVERNMENT

Controller Spence, of Toronto, recently gave a thoughtful interview to the Globe on the subject of civic government, in which he argued against the system which has become known as government by commission and which is growing in popularity in the United States. The Controller's contribution to the discussion is a valuable one, for he has had considerable experience in the City Council and is a close observer and reasoner. Yet the pith of his whole argument is that a City Council has legislative duties to perform, and for that reason should have a larger number of members than the commission system contemplates in order that public opinion will be better represented. He admits that "administration is necessarily committed to a comparatively few persons," but argues that "it is desirable to have the function of legislation assigned to a body of representatives fairly large."

Where those who favor the commission instead of the Council differ from the Controller is principally in the view they take of the comparative importance of the two duties to be performed of legislation and administration. All great questions requiring legislative action are dealt with by Parliament and Legislature, and the legislative duties relegated to the governing body of the city are relatively of so much less importance that large representation of the people in that body is not considered necessary. Its chief work is that of administration, so much so that instead of being looked upon as a legislature the city council should be considered a business board. Parliamentary methods—the long set speeches and efforts to address the electors and impress them rather than giving business treatment to the matters to be dealt with—are out of place in the sphere of city government. If one looks over the by-laws of a municipality or scrutinizes the sessions of a council, to ascertain the nature of the business that takes up most of its time and attention, it will be seen that matters of road-making, sidewalk and sewer accommodation, water supply, street lighting, fire protection, etc., are those to which the members of the council give the most of their time. Such subjects partake so largely of the nature of business matters that they will be best dealt with by business methods, and a few men of experience and capacity will handle them with greater advantage to the community than a large number, most of whom must necessarily be to a large extent unacquainted with the details of the separated matters they are called upon to consider and decide. This has been recognized, and has led to the establishment in some of the larger cities of Boards of Control, composed of five members, and the business must first pass through the hands of these Five Controllers before the Council can deal with it. In this way it is expected that the commission—or board of control—will eliminate the difficulties that accompany the council system of doing civic business, but the results seem to be to encumber the government rather than to assist it. One drawback in the council system is that it is often difficult to have a matter dealt with promptly. It comes before the council, is referred to a committee and goes back to the council, but the members not on the committee hesitate to act when they are not familiar with the details of the matter, and it often goes to the committee again. Instead of facilitating prompt action, the board of control seems to hamper it, because its recommendations are so frequently sent back to it for further consideration.

What is required in civic government is simplicity of procedure and business methods, while the present system provides complicated procedure and unbusinesslike methods, the result being that loss of time in considering an important matter often means loss to the people of the municipality.

What department of civic government is more important to the people than the water supply, and what department in Peterborough has been managed better than the waterworks has been by the commissioner? This would seem to be an object lesson, and one that does not count against the commission form of government. Our City Council has been fortunate in having good members, but they have been hampered by the cumbersome system.

Perhaps the best system of civic government has not yet been devised, but that there is room for improvement will be admitted, and discussion will help to bring about improvement.

NATURE TELLS YOU

As Many a Peterboro Reader Knows Too Well

When the kidneys are sick,
Nature tells you all about it.
The urine is nature's calendar.
Infrequent or too frequent action;
Any urinary trouble tells of kidney ills.
Doan's Kidney Pills cure all kidney ills.
Peterborough people testify to this.

Mrs. T. DeRousia, of Mary and Bethune street, Peterborough, Ont., says:—

"I believe Doan's Kidney Pills a remedy of exceptional merit in relieving backache caused from disordered kidneys. I frequently suffered with a dull, heavy pain in the small of my back. It would extend around my sides and into my shoulders. Headaches were frequent and often accompanied by spells of dizziness. Doan's Kidney Pills were recommended by a friend, and I procured a box at Wm. Madill's Pharmacy. I soon found them to relieve me. I have had no trouble since and can credit this only to Doan's Kidney Pills."

Montreal Live Stock.

MONTREAL, Feb. 28.—(Special.)—At the Montreal Stock Yards, West End Market, the receipts last week were 2769 cattle, 600 sheep and lambs, 2556 hogs and 456 calves. The supply this morning consisted of 1100 cattle, 175 sheep and lambs, 750 hogs and 300 calves. On account of unfavorable weather, increased supply of cattle and somewhat limited demand early in the day, prices ruled fully ¼c lower than a week ago. The attendance of buyers was large, including some from Quebec and Ottawa and as they all wanted the stock, demand improved and a good clearance was made. A few straight lots of Manitoba stall-fed cattle, averaging 1150 lbs., were sold at $5.60 to $5.75 per cwt. Some small lots of choice Ontario steers brought 6¼c to 6½c, but late sellers and drovers were glad to accept 6c to 6¼c for the same class, while good cows sold at 5½c to 5¾c; fair at 5c to 5¼c, medium at 4½c to 4¾c, and common at 4c to 4½c per lb.

Altho supplies of hogs were fairly large, prices are steadily climbing and there was a further advance of 20c to 25c per cwt. since this day week, making them the highest in the history of the trade. Sales of selected stocks were made at $6.90 to $7.00 per cwt., weighed off the cars. Supplies of small meats were very small and demand good. Lambs were ½c to ¾c per lb. higher, with sales at 7c to 7¼c per lb., but sheep were unchanged at 6½c to 6c per lb. Calves were dearer at from $5 to $10.

The Man From Brodney's

By GEORGE BARR M'CUTCHEON

Copyright, 1908, by Dodd, Mead & Co.

He left her with Bobby Browne and went out upon the cool, starlit balcony. There he gently cursed himself for a fool, a dolt, an idiot.

The shouts of laughter and the clapping of hands on the inside did not draw him from his unhappy reverie. He did not know until afterward that the official announcement of the engagement of Miss Minnie Pelham and Thomas Saunders was made by Bobby Browne and the health of the couple drunk in a series of bumpers.

Chase's bitter reflections were at last disturbed by a sound that came sharply to his attention. The noise came from directly below where he stood. He peered over the stone railing. The terrace was barely ten feet below him. A mass of bushes fringed the base of the wall, dark, thick, fragrant. The next moment a dark figure shot out from the shadows and slunk off into night, followed by another and another and yet others, seven in all.

Then the truth suddenly dawned upon him:—The prisoners had escaped from the dungeon!

He dashed into the ballroom and sounded the alarm. Confusion ensued.

"There's been treachery," he exclaimed quickly. "Some one has released the prisoners. We must keep them from reaching the walls. They will overpower our guards and open the gates to the enemy. Britt, see that the searchlight is trained on the gates. We must stop those fellows before it is too late. Time enough to hunt for the traitor later on."

Two minutes later a swarm of armed men forsook the mock charity ball and sallied forth to engage in realities. Firing was soon heard at the western gate, half a mile away. Thither the eager pursuers rushed. The wide ray from the searchlight swung down upon this gate and revealed the forms of struggling men.

The prisoners had fallen suddenly upon the two Greeks who guarded the western gate, surprising them cleverly. Both fell under the clubbed guns of their adversaries.

Chase and Selim were not more than a hundred yards away when the Greeks went down. The blinding glare of the searchlight aided the pursuers, who kept outside its radius. The fugitives, bewildered, confused by the bright glare in which they found themselves, faced the light boldly, five of them kneeling with guns raised to protect their two companions who started across the narrow strip, which separated them from the massive gate. Selim gave a shout and stopped suddenly, throwing his rifle to his shoulder.

"They have the keys!" he cried. "Shoot!"

His rifle cracked a second later, and one of the two men leaped into the air and fell like a log. Chase understood the necessity for quick work and dread an instant later. The second man fell in a heap thirty feet from the gate. His companions returned the fire at random in the direction from which the well aimed shots had come.

"Under cover!" shouted Chase. He and Selim dropped into the shrubbery in time to escape a withering fire from outside the gates. The searchlight revealed a compact mass of men beyond the walls. It was then that the islanders realized how near they had come to being surprised and destroyed. A minute more, and the gates would have been opened to this merciless horde.

The prisoners, finding themselves trapped, threw themselves upon the ground and shrieked for mercy. Lord Deppingham and the others came up and, scattering well, began to fire at the mass outside the wall. The islanders were at a disadvantage. They could not locate the opposing marksmen on account of the blinding light in their faces. It was but a moment before they were scampering off into the dark wood, shrieking with rage.

The five fugitives were compelled to carry their fallen comrades and the two Greeks from the open space in front of the gates to a point where it was safe for the defenders to approach them without coming in line with a possible volley from the forest.

Immediately upon the return to the chateau an inspection of the dungeons was made, prior to an examination of the servants in the effort to apprehend the traitor.

The three men who went down into the damp, chill regions below ground soon returned with set, pale faces. There had been no traitor!

The man whose duty it was to guard the prisoners was found lying inside the big cell, his throat cut from ear to ear, stone dead! He had been seized from within as he came to the grating in response to a call. While certain fingers choked him into silence, others held his hands, and still others wrenched the keys from his sash. After that it was easy. Deppingham, Chase and Selim looked at each other in horror, and, strange as it may seem, relief.

Death was there; but, after all, death is no traitor.

CHAPTER XXI.

THE JOY OF TEMPTATION.

THERE was but little sleep in the chateau that night. The charity ball was forgotten or, if recalled at all, only in connection with the thought of what it came so near to costing its promoters.

No further disturbances occurred. A strict watch was preserved: the picturesque drawbridge was lifted, and there were lights on the terrace and galleries; men slept within easy reach of their weapons. The siege had begun in earnest. Men had been slain, and their blood was crying out for vengeance; the voice of justice was lost in the clamorings of rage.

The princess was quite serene. She lightly announced that the present state of affairs was no worse than that which she was accustomed to at home. The court of Rapp-Thorberg was ever in a state of unrest, despite its outward suggestion of security. Outbreaks were common among the masses. Somehow they were suppressed before they grew large enough to be noticed by the wide world.

"We invariably come out on top," she philosophized, "and so shall we here. At home we always eat, drink and make merry, for tomorrow never comes."

Soon after breakfast was over Chase announced his intention to visit each of the gates in turn. The princess strolled with him as far as the bridge at the foot of the terrace. They stopped in the shade of a clump of trees that hung upon the edge of the stream. As they were gravely discussing the events of the night Neenah came up to them from beyond the bridge. She salaamed gracefully to the "sahib." She had no eyes for royalty.

"Excellency," she began breathlessly, "it is Selim who would have private speech with the most gracious sahib. It is to be quick, excellency. Selim is under the ground, excellency."

"In the cellars?"

"Yes, excellency. It is so dark there that one cannot see, but Neenah will lead you. Selim has sent me. But come now!"

Chase felt his ears burn when he turned to find a delicate, significant smile on Genevra's lips. "Don't let me detain you," she said, ever so politely.

"Wait, please!" he exclaimed. "Is Selim hurt?" he demanded of Neenah, who shook her head vigorously.

"Then there is no reason why you should not accompany us, princess."

"I am not at all necessary to the undertaking," she said coldly, turning to leave him.

"Selim has found fuses and gunpowder laid in the cellars, excellency—in the secret vaults," began Neenah eagerly, divining the cause of the white lady's hesitation.

This astounding piece of news swept away the feeble barrier Genevra would have erected in her pique. She consented to accompany Chase into the cellars, a spirit of adventure overcoming certain scruples which might have restrained her under other conditions.

Neenah led them through the wine cellars and down into the vaults beyond the dungeons. The princess clutched Chase's hand tightly as they stole through the bleak, chill corridor. She found herself wondering if the girl was to be trusted. What if she were leading them into a trap? She would have whispered her fears into Chase's ear had not a sharp "Sh!" come from the girl who was leading. Genevra felt a queer little throb of hatred for the girl—she could not explain it.

The dungeon was off to the right. They could hear the insistent murmur of voices, with now and then a laugh from the distant cells. The guard could be heard scolding at his charges. With a caution that seemed wholly absurd to the two white people, Neenah guided them through the maze of narrow passages, dark as Erebus and chill as the grave. Chase checked a hysterical impulse to laugh aloud at the proceedings. It was like playing at a children's game.

He was walking between the two women, Neenah ahead, Genevra behind. Each clasped one of his hands. Suddenly he found himself experiencing an overpowering desire to exert the strength of his arm to draw the princess close—close to his insistent body. The touch of her flesh, the clutch of her cold little hand, filled him with the most exquisite sense of possession. The magnetism of Her charged from one to the other, stirring fire to the blood. He was forgetting Neenah, forgetting himself, thinking only of the opportunity and its fascination. In another instant he would have drawn her hand to his lips. Neenah came to a standstill and uttered a warning whisper. Chase recovered himself with a mighty start, a chill as of one avoiding an unseen peril sweeping over him. Genevra heard the sharp, painful intake of his breath and felt the sudden relaxation of his fingers. She was not puzzled. She, too, had felt the magic of the touch, and her blood was surging red. She knew then that she had been clasping his hand with a fervor that was as unmistakable as it was shameless.

Neenah may have felt the magnetic current that coursed through these surcharged creatures. She was smiling mysteriously to herself.

"Wait here," she whispered to Chase, ever so softly. She released his hand and moved off in the blackness of the passage. "I will bring Selim," came back to them.

"Oh!" fell faintly, tremulously, from Genevra's lips. It was a trap, after all! But it was not the trap laid by a traitor. She fell all aquiver. Her heart fluttered violently; her breath came quickly. Alone with him, and their blood leaping to the touch that thrilled!

Chase could no more have restrained the hand that went out suddenly in quest of hers than he could have checked his own heart throbs. A wave of exquisite joy swept over him—the joy of a temptation that knew no fear, no conscience. He found her cold little hand and clasped it in tense fingers—fingers that throbbed with the call to passion. He drew her close; their bodies touched and sweetly trembled.

"Are you afraid?" he whispered in tones he had never heard before.

"Yes," she murmured convulsively—"of you! Please, please, don't!" At the same time she tightened her clutch upon his hand and crept closer to him, governed by an unconquerable craving. Chase had the sensation of smothering. He could not believe the senses which told him that she was responding to his appeal.

"Genevra!" he murmured, almost gasped, in his delirium. His arms went about her slender figure suddenly, and she was strained to his breast, locked to him with bonds that seemed unbreakable. Her face was lifted to his. The blackness of the passage was impenetrable, but love was the guide. He found her lips in one wild, glorious kiss.

A door creaked sharply. He released her. Their quivering arms fell away. They drew ever so slightly apart, still under the control of the influence which had held them for that brief moment. She was trembling violently. A soft, wailing sigh as of pain came from her lips.

Then the glimmer of a light came to them through the half open door at the end of the passage. They gazed at it without comprehension, dumb in their sudden weakness. A shadowy figure came out through the door, and Selim's voice, low and tense, called to them.

"Forgive me," he murmured.

"It is too late," she replied. Then his hand sought hers again, and, dizzy with emotion, he led her up to the open door. As they passed into the huge, dimly lighted chamber he turned to look into her face. She met his gaze, and there were tears in her eyes. Selim was ahead of them. She shook her head sadly, and he understood.

"Can we ever forget?" she murmured plaintively.

"Never!" he whispered.

"Then we shall always regret—always regret!" she said, withdrawing her hand. "It was the beginning and the end."

"Not the end, dearest one—if we are always to regret," he interposed eagerly. "But why the end? You do love me! I know it! And I worship you—oh, you don't know how I worship you, Genevra! I"—

Man Arrested in Winnipeg Appears to Have Extensive Criminal Record

Winnipeg, Feb. 28.—C. A. Osborne, an alleged English swindler, widely known over North America by a dozen aliases, is in a cell here charged with passing bogus drafts. He represented himself as a specialist on tuberculosis, sent to Canada by the British association for the advancement of science to study consumption in Canada. Though a man of no medical education he has succeeded in fooling many learned physicians in the west. He was caught after getting a $400 draft cashed on a London bank. He passed as a specialist in diseases, stopped at the best hotels, and spent money lavishly. He passed as a personal friend of Lord Lister. Osborne is known in Toronto, Hamilton, St. Catharines, St. Thomas, Peterborough, Port Arthur, Brandon and St. John, N.B.

C. G. E. GETS A CONTRACT FROM LONDON

London, Ont., Feb. 28.—Tenders for the equipment; totalling $47,636, were awarded to the Canadian General Electric Company by the Power and Water Commission this morning. During the discussion a sensation was caused by the resignation of Engineer Edgar Sifton, who opposed letting the contract to the Canadian General Electric Company, was not as disinterested as he might be in tenders for hydro-electric equipment. Sifton's reply was the announcement of his resignation.

"To take effect when?" asked Mayor Beattie.

PRODUCTION OF "BEN-HUR"

When the curtain is drawn at the Princess Theatre, Toronto, on Monday evening, March 14th, the most elaborate, magnificent and historically correct production will be disclosed that has ever charmed and enthralled a theatre audience. It will be the premiere in Toronto of the new and greater production of "Ben-Hur," as re-arranged by Klaw & Erlanger.

"Ben Hur," with its lustrous "Star of Bethlehem," its camels, Arabian steeds, Oriental trappery and mimic splendor of the gorgeous East, is beyond doubt the most elaborate spectacle ever staged in the history of the world. Its series of scenes present to the eye a feast of multitudinous beauty and variety all set to a symphonic accompaniment of graceful music. The exciting episodes such as the galley scene, with its herd of chained slaves, the sea fight, the rescue in mid-sea, the thrilling race with its quadruple teams of galloping horses combined with the picturesque scenes representing the appearance of the Star to the Wise Men in the Desert, the moonlit Lake in the Orchard of Palms where Ben-Hur and Iras make love while drifting in the barge of the fair Egyptian, the palm-waving worshippers on the Mount of Olives and the Grove of Daphne, with its nymphs dancing in the skins of beasts to the music of the kissing cymbals, simply captivate the great audiences that are nightly in attendance wherever it is being enacted.

As now arranged and staged by Klaw & Erlanger, the public sees a great spectacle which appeals not merely on the strength of its dramatic Values but as a colossal and picturesque pageant. And in the chariot race, the scene which, coupled with the popularity of General Wallace's book, gave the play its enormous vogue, eight horses, aided by the most intricate mechanisms, will produce the stupendous illusion of the struggle for victory in the arena of the Circus of Antioch. Edgar Stillman Kelley's brilliant musical score, which so heightens the dignity and solemnity of the Biblical narrative, and was one of the most potent factors in its success, is made a dominant feature of the present production, being interpreted by a special orchestra and chorus carried by the company for that purpose.

"DAVID HOLCOMB"

If you want a breath of fresh country air go to the "Grand" next Saturday, March 5th, and see William Lawrence as David Holcombe. As the name suggests, it is a rural play, but, unlike most efforts of its kind. The play is a most original one, and appeals to all who have seen it. It is conceded to be the cleverest bit of playwriting done in this line for years, and the cleverness lies in the fact that each of the twelve characters have been taken from real life. It is a story of the rock-bound hills of northern Vermont, and the plot is woven about the Holcomb family. Uncle Dave has mortgaged his farm for fifteen hundred dollars that his son might have a college education. His son returns from college to confess his love for an actress. Like most men of his station in life, Uncle Dave abhors the word "theatrical," and refuses to listen to his son's wishes and drives him from home. When Squire Jackson, the mortgagee, comes for his money it is discovered that the savings to pay the mortgage have been stolen. The son, who has been driven from home, is suspected of the crime. Afterwards Uncle Dave's daughter meets a wealthy city chap, and elopes to the city with him, offering to sell her honor that the homestead may be saved for the old folks. Many surprising situations are unfolded, one after another, until it is discovered who stole the money; the son and daughter return home, and a temperance rally, interspersed with sweet cider and doughnuts, bring the play to a happy termination; and as the curtain descends on the last act Uncle Dave declares that "life is just one darn thing after another."

The Gay Musician

The comic opera connoisseur will find much more to please him in "The Gay Musician" than the general run of musical plays of the present time. It is modelled on the best lines of comic opera and the music is original and pleasing. Added to that a company of excellent singing and acting ability, and a chorus that is captivating and well trained. Manager Sheehan's production of "The Gay Musician" is an unusually attractive offering.

This interesting and tuneful comic opera was given for the second time this season at the Grand last night, and was again given a most appreciative reception. The music of the piece is of such a superior quality that it was rendered more pleasurable rather than monotonous by reason of its repetition.

To a large extent the same cast appeared in "The Gay Musician" last night that was with the opera when it was here before, although the work of Miss Texas Guinan, the new soprano, in the role of Maud Granville, the new soprano, made the presentation of the opera decidedly more entertaining. Roger Gray as Samuel Lyons, the manager of the Novelty Theatre, New York, was with the company again, and made just as pronounced a hit as ever in his singing of "A Bad, Bad Man." A new number, "Such a Good Disposition," has been interpolated and was given with excellent effect by Mr. Gray, the two songs winning the most generous applause of the evening.

The staging was elaborate and in good taste, the chorus was handsomely gowned for the different numbers and ensembles.

Two Preston boys, Winterhalt and McDonald, narrowly escaped death when an electric locomotive struck their waggon.

BRUTAL MURDER

Special to the Review.

Parry Sound, Ont., March 1. — Michael J. Davis, of Loring, about 70 years old, and for thirty years a resident of the Parry Sound district, was the victim of a brutal murder here last night, the alleged murderer being a stranger giving the name of Young, who arrived in town only yesterday. Davis, who had come to town to raise a loan, his house having been burned down recently, retired to his room at the Montgomery Hotel last night, about 11 o'clock. About half an hour later Young came down stairs and after washing his hands in the lavatory, went hurriedly out. His actions excited suspicion and an investigation being made, Davis was found dead in his bed, with his head beaten in. Young was at once pursued and captured a short distance away. His clothes are said to be bloodstained. Only a few coins were found on the man.

AN INTERESTING PROGRAMME

Given at Meeting of the Philomathean Society

The regular meeting of the Collegiate Philomathean Society was held in the Assembly Hall of the Institute last night.

After the minutes were read by Miss Maysie Armstrong, some general business in connection with the society was transacted, which was followed by a very interesting programme, the items ranging as follows:—

Piano Solo—Miss Daisy Conroy.
Recitation—Miss Verna Merrill.
Violin Solo—Mr. Vincent McCabe.
Oratorical Contest. The first four forms were the contestants. Representatives:—
1A—Miss Letty Shearer.
1B—Miss Maud Rountree.
1C—Miss Kathleen O'Brien.
1D—Mr. Lester Pearson.

The judges of the contest were as follows:—Mr. Hodgson, Mr. Stubbs and Mr. Merritt.

The judges found it somewhat hard to come to a decision, as each representative dealt with his or her subject in a very capable manner. They finally decided, however, to give Mr. Lester Pearson the first prize, and Miss O'Brien the second.

This very interesting number was followed by a recitation by Miss Margaret Edwards. This recitation was exceedingly well given and greatly applauded.

The next number was an instrumental duet by Miss Grace Naylor and Miss Hazel Gillespie.

The programme was criticized by Mr. Ferguson. This was Mr. Ferguson's first opportunity of addressing the students along this line, and he mastered the situation in a very capable manner.

After the criticism the meeting was brought to a close in the usual way by singing the National Anthem.

CAMERON—VIVIAN

Special to the Review.

Keene, Feb. 26.—A very pretty wedding was celebrated at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William Moore Wednesday afternoon at four o'clock, when Miss Bessie Vivian and Mr. William H. Cameron were united in marriage.

The bride, who was unattended, entered the room on the arm of her affiance, to the strains of the wedding march, played by one of her girl friends, Miss Bella Miller.

The bride was dressed in a taupe cloth gown made princess, and trimmed with silk and embroidered chiffon.

Rev. D. D. McDonald tied the nuptial knot, after which the guests, to the number of about fifty, partook of a charming wedding dejeuner.

The gifts to the bride were numerous and costly, attesting to the popularity of the bride and groom. The groom's favors were to the bride a costly monogram brooch, and to the organist a beautiful gold neck pin.

FORESTERS CELEBRATED THEIR 31st ANNIVERSARY

Mr. J. A. Stewart, High Chief Ranger, the Visiting Speaker of the Evening — A Large Attendance and a Most Enjoyable Time.

The 31st annual banquet of Court Peterborough, Canadian Order of Foresters, was held in the society's hall last night. Over a hundred guests were present, including visitors from Lindsay, Bridgenorth, Mount Pleasant, and other adjoining districts. The proceedings were graced by the presence of Mayor Morrow, and Mr. J. A. Stewart, High Chief Ranger. The good things for the inner man were served by Mrs. Thomas Hooper in her customary acceptable manner. Mr. Wm. Kemp, Chief Ranger of the lodge, made a very capable chairman. The function, as a whole, was one which reflects considerable credit on the society in general, and especially the committee in charge of the banquet, of which Mr. Wm. Kemp was chairman, and Mr. Wm. Whitecroft secretary. To say the least, a very happy evening was spent, the programme consisting of addresses, agreeably interspersed with vocal and instrumental selections.

The chairman, Chief Ranger Kemp, was the first speaker, and in fitting terms heartily welcomed, on behalf of his lodge, Mayor Morrow and the Society's High Chief Ranger.

Mayor Morrow expressed his pleasure in joining with the brethren in giving a hearty reception to their High Chief Ranger. His Worship, not being a Forester, could not speak on the aims and objects of the society, but in graceful terms he acknowledged the honor conferred upon him by the lodge inviting his presence on so auspicious an occasion as that of last night.

J. A. STEWART, H.C.R.

Is not only a capable executive of whom Canadian Foresters may well feel proud, but he is also an orator of no mean order of merit. His utterances last night stamped him as a born leader of men, and a Canadian first, and last and always. His eloquent address teemed with instruction and valuable information on Forestry and national sentiments that elicited round after round of applause. He said that since he had the privilege of speaking in Peterborough eight or nine years ago Canadian Forestry had made such substantial progress as to encourage every individual member and engender the utmost confidence in the order's future. It was in this city in 1885 that Canadian Forestry was placed on a sound basis, and its present rate and scheme of assessment adopted.

In evidence of the substantial progress made by the Canadian Order of Foresters, Mr. Stewart gave figures showing that in 1909 there were paid out $163,979.66 on 403 death claims as against $88,000 on 291 claims in 1908. There were added to the fund in 1909 $274,367.55, which left the death claims fund at over the three million mark. In 1909 this order paid out in sick and funeral benefits $144,321—$10,000 in excess of 1908. Last year there were added to this fund $27,967, making a total of $170,773 on hand, December 31st, for sick and funeral benefits. The total membership in 1909 was 73,985, a net increase for one year of 3,228 members. In conclusion the speaker was very optimistic as to the future of Canadian Forestry, which he characterised as being inseparably bound up with the future and phenomenal development of Canada, which is universally admitted to be assured.

HUSBAND REFUSED TO LIVE WITH WIFE AND MAGISTRATE ORDERED MONTHLY PAYMENT

A complicated case of domestic infelicity was heard in Havelock yesterday by County Magistrate Edmison. Mrs. Mary Joyner had her husband, Wm. Joyner, charged with assault, and in response to the charge he stated that it was his wife's fault and that he had done everything to make their home life as harmonious as possible. Mrs. Joyner's version of the matter was directly opposed to this, and in their evidence generally they contradicted the testimony of each other.

The assault was alleged to have been committed on the first day of January, and the complainant charged her husband with striking her in the face as she was getting tea that evening while carrying her six months' old infant in her arms. She stated in her evidence yesterday that she had a headache for three days as a result of the blow she received, but her husband denied that he did anything more than to shove her away from him after she had slapped him. The latter, who has been married twice, has four children by his first wife, and the little infant referred to by his second. The first wife's children seem to have been the cause of some trouble between man and wife. Harold, the 12-year-old son of the defendant, testified that the particulars of the altercation were such as his father told them to be and that his wife had been the aggressor.

Mr. E. L. Goodwill, of Peterborough, was counsel for Mrs. Joyner, and Mr. G. A. Ghent of Havelock, appeared for Mr. Joyner.

Mrs. Joyner, who was the first witness, told a story of alleged neglect and persecution by her husband, and said he was perpetually quarrelling with her. She said, however, that she was willing to forgive him everything and to go back and live with him. Her husband, who gave evidence next, said he had come to the conclusion that it was absolutely impossible for the two to get along together. To Mr. Goodwill he admitted that he had accused his wife of insanity, but insisted that her actions warranted the accusation. He also stated that he had refused her admittance to his house unless she would sign paper stating that she had libelled him by telling lies about him. This was after she had temporarily left him as the result of their inharmonious relations. In spite of his wife's willingness to go back with him, he stated he would not think of it, and said he had given her every opportunity, but that it was impossible for them to live amicably.

The magistrate did not give any decision in the assault case and desired to effect a reconciliation between the two. Finding this impossible on account of the husband's attitude, he ruled that the husband pay the wife $18 a month toward the support of herself and the infant, and after the expiration of the six months the sum of $15 as long as the wife lived. The husband, who is in the employ of the C.P.R., makes $60 a month on the average.

FOUR WITNESSES HEARD AT McPHERSON INQUEST

At Norwood Yesterday — The Chase and the Arrest Related—Jury Names Henderson as the One Responsible for the Old Lady's Death.

Special to the Review.

Norwood, Feb. 28.—"We, the jury appointed to look into the cause of the death of the late Margaret McPherson on Feb. 20th, township of Asphodel, county of Peterborough, believe that death was caused by a blow from an axe in the hands of the prisoner, one Henderson, whom we believe to be now in custody in the county gaol in Peterborough."

Signed:—

John Fitzgerald, foreman; J. R. McKelvie, John McNaughton, Hugh Robb, Wm. H. Cuthbertson, Wm. H. Montgomery, H. J. Fife, Hugh Drain, Michael O'Keefe, Cyrus Johnston, Thomas Bushell, G. Arthur Brethen.

The above verdict was brought in after deliberating fifteen minutes by the jury empanelled to enquire into the cause of the death of the late Margaret McPherson, who passed away on Feb. 20th, after lingering from January 28th, the day of the assault committed by Robert Henderson. Dr. H. C. Kendrick, of Havelock, presided as coroner, and Mr. R. E. Wood, of Peterborough, represented the Crown. The evidence adduced was largely corroborative of that which had been received at the adjourned meeting of the jury a week ago, the result of the post mortem examination conducted by Dr. A. M. McOlelland, of Peterborough, and Dr. A. H. Crawford, of Havelock, being most material.

The town hall where the jury met was almost filled by a large number of Norwood people and farmers from the countryside, who were eager to see Henderson. The report had gone around that the prisoner was to give evidence, and some disappointment was felt when it was learned that he was not present. Henderson will appear for his preliminary hearing on Thursday of this week.

THE EVIDENCE.

Richard Leefer, the first witness, was one of the posse of Asphodel farmers who, with the assistance of Constable Bennett, of Havelock, ran Henderson to earth a few hours after he had committed the assault on January 28th.

CONSTABLE BENNETT

Constable Fred Bennett, of Havelock, in his evidence, gave an account of the last stages of the pursuit and the final act which culminated the fugitive's arrest. After being chased several miles by the farmers from the neighborhood of the McPherson residence through several swamps, underbrush, over ploughed fields, finally to make his way back to the railway track, where he continued his route for a short distance until the posse, joined by Constable Bennett, overtook him. Henderson stood up to his knees in snow in the ditch with a revolver loaded in every chamber drawn and ready for use. The constable had drawn his revolver and was closing in on the stranger. Henderson did not point the gun at the constable, although he appeared to be prepared to fire. Instead he shouted: "Don't shoot; I give in." The rest was easy. He was handcuffed and disarmed. On the way back from the scene of his arrest he asked his captor for a match, explaining that he wanted to light a cigarette. Further on the way he enquired if the two old women were dead, although no one had mentioned the McPherson sisters to him.

CORROBORATION.

John Rorabeck said he lived about a rod south of the McPherson home. "We had just started dinner," he continued, "when Mrs. Hague, a niece of the old ladies, came to our house and told me her aunts had been struck by a man and that Martha was probably dead." Witness told of having seen the tracks leading from the McPherson home across the field to the railway track. He first sent his hired man over to Norwood to give the alarm there and the other to a neighbour, Mr. Fennell, for assistance. The party that gave chase to Henderson was composed of Mr. Rorabeck, Jas. Miller, Mr. Leefer, Thos. Stark and Arthur Leefer. Witness corroborated Mr. Leefer's testimony, giving details of the pursuit. Henderson had pulled the revolver when the party were close at his heels in a field. Witness had told him he had done enough shooting and might as well give himself up. Whenever the fugitive became tired he would turn and threaten to shoot.

DOCTORS' EVIDENCE.

The jury seemed to be well satisfied that Henderson had committed the crime. It remained for the doctors who performed the post mortem examination to state their finding as to the cause of death. Dr. A. H. Crawford, of Havelock, who with Dr. McClelland, of Peterborough, performed the examination, read their report, which was to the effect that death had been directly due to the result of the injury received by the blow on the head. Both the inner and outer bones of the skull had been crushed and put had formed between the linings of the brain. Dr. Crawford said the wound from its appearance may have been caused by the back of the axe. Constable Bennett produced the axe with which the crime had been committed and pointed to brown spots on one side which were apparently blood stains. The wound itself was fully described. It extended diagonally from a part of the crown down over one eye. Dr. McClelland corroborated the evidence of Dr. Crawford.

The coroner then addressed the jury, who were out about ten minutes.

GOLD LOCKETS FOR PLAYERS OF CHAMPION STRATHCONAS

A pleasing event took place last evening, at Hooper's Palm Gardens, when each of the players of the champion Strathcona team was presented with a gold locket, suitably engraved, by the officers of the club, in recognition of their services during the season, and by which the championship of the City Hockey League was won for the third time. The players and officers have worked most harmoniously together, and last night's gathering made a fitting finale to a season that has been the most successful in the history of the club. The lockets were presented after all present had partaken of an enjoyable repast, and the recipients were Messrs. Leo Derocher, Fred Denison, Allan Campbell, Chas. Ray, Hugh Burritt, Pete Weatherston, Herb McMillan, Ira Moore and Sam Thomas, the latter having acted in a creditable manner as trainer. Mr. Sam Ray, of the Peterborough Hockey Club, acted as chairman during the evening. Each of the players made a fitting response after the presentation.

T. ANDREW'S AND GEORGE ST. TEAMS

Will Play off Tie Game Game at Auditorium Rink on Thursday Night

It has been decided that George St. and St. Andrew's will play off their tie game at the Auditorium rink on Thursday night, and the game will be called at eight o'clock. A win for the Methodists will place the team on even terms with the present champions, but a loss means that the Burnham cup goes to St. Andrew's for a second term. With hard ice, fast play will be played, as both sevens are in good shape and able to go the pace.

SPORTING NOTES

Matt. Doherty took his team off the ice at Waterloo last night. With the score 3—2 against Galt, Waterloo protested. The goal was disputed and resulted in the Galt team quitting.

Parkdale won from Argonauts last night 3—2 in the first of the home and home games. The teams will meet again to-morrow night.

The injunction against Pitre, of the Montreal Nationals, which was taken out early in the season, has been dissolved.

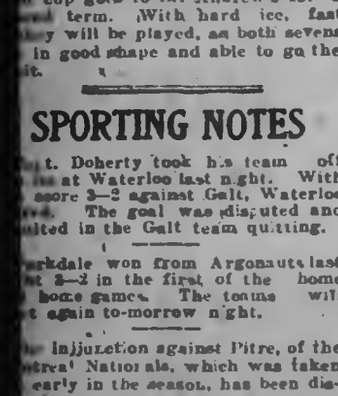
The Renfrew Club will, notwithstanding other reports, finish the season in the N.H.A.

The T.A.S. team did not go to Lakefield last night.

CURLING

There may be a bonspiel at the Lansdowne rink and there may not, the big event of which the curlers have been eagerly looking, has been postponed indefinitely on account of the prevailing soft weather, and if it is up the bonspiel may not be held even in the event of a spell of cold weather later on.

It was expected that the games would commence to-morrow and rinks from clubs as far distant as Carleton and Napanee have been re-



FREE FIGHT AT BRANTFORD

And Ben Dusty and Con. Corbeau are Arrested as a Result of Trouble at Hockey Match

Brantford defeated Berlin at Brantford last night 8—0, the only feature of the game being the arrest of Ben Dusty and C. Corbeau. Describing the trouble a despatch says:—

The Berlin players refusedd to travel past centre ice, and contented themselves merely with long lifts towards the Brantford goalkeeper. This sort of play incensed the spectators, who packed the rink, and it required but little to cause an outbreak. With fifteen minuted more to play, Dusty rushed in on Lehman, and by quick work, batted the eighth goal in from Lehman's stick. In another minute he again tried the performance, Lehman this time resenting his check within the goal crease. The pair dropped sticks and commenced scrapping, in which the players of both teams jumped in. The police rushed in and arrested Dusty and Corbeau, taking them both to the station, where they were bailed out.

INDOOR BASEBALL

Three teams from the 24th Field Battery will be entered in the Bowling League at the armories. This was decided on at a meeting held last night.

Prisoner's Dock From Instinct.

The relation of stories in which a judge figured recalled an occasion a good many years ago when Justice MacMahon held the Assize Court in the old court house on Adelaide street, Toronto. The room was so arranged that when the clerk of the court called the name of each juryman selected to take his place in the jury box, he had to walk the length of the room from behind the rail, back of which spectators sat, to reach his own enclosure. In doing so he passed the prisoner's dock.

On this occasion the clerk called out the name of a juror, and the latter left his seat, but apparently did not know where to sit.

"Get into the box," called out one of the constables after him. The juror walked half the length of the room till he reached the prisoner's dock, when he stopped, opened the gate and walked in and seated himself. There was a laugh at the expense of the juryman, but Judge MacMahon whispered to one of the officials to scrutinize the identity of the man. It was soon discovered that he was an old hand in court, having been three times convicted of offences. He followed his natural instinct in bustling into the box when spoken to sharply.

AN ALPINE CLIMBER.

How a Girl Distinguished Herself on New Year's Day.

By CLARA A. BURTON.

[Copyright, 1909, by American Press Association.]

"An odd New Year's, but a grand one," thought Marcia Wells as she paused for a moment on a spur of the Alps and gazed down upon what seemed the world outspread before her.

Five years she had been traveling now into many remote parts of the world—studying, investigating, exploring—a strong, self confident and courageous girl from the first, and gaining experience and new ambitions with her progress until now, at the end of only five years, she was gaining a reputation as a mountain climber, a student explorer, a writer of travels.

But there was no exultation in her eyes as they looked out across the world, dwarfed by height and distance.

With the conquering of obstacles was coming a broader, more earnest purpose in life that was above personality, and, moreover, over this day was a shadow that made even the conquering of the great heights of ambition seem trivial and small.

Even as they started up the mountain they had passed a white faced guide with a story of his party being caught by a snowslide and carried over a precipice. He was the only one saved and had been swept many rods down the mountain side and saved himself only at the very brink of the precipice by cutting the connecting rope.

The severed bit of cord still dangled from his waist, overlooked and forgotten in the horror of the catastrophe.

And among the party were friends and acquaintances of Marcia Wells met with on her travels. They had started to climb the very mountain she was going up, and by rapid progress she had hoped to meet them somewhere near the top.

And now all that was left was the guide, stumbling and slipping down the mountain, white faced, hatless and dishevelled.

They had listened to his story, their own faces whitening, but nothing could be done, so Marcia Wells had said she would go on and climb the mountain as planned.

They were now more than two-thirds of the way up, and Marcia Wells was standing upon a narrow shelf of the spur, so narrow that only her heels held, with her toes projecting over, but her face was calm and her nerves steady.

Many times had she been in such places before. On either side were the guides, grasping the rope which secured them together and holding it taut to assist her in rounding the almost sheer wall of the spur.

But for a long time she stood there gazing, then slowly, inch by inch, for that was the only way, she continued to edge her way across.

"The signorina would better have taken the other route," the advance guide said anxiously, "and even now it will be easier to go back. This way is shunned even by the more reckless of the guides."

"It is the way the other party went," Marcia answered briefly. "Maybe it was a mistake on their part, but it is too late to change that now. They started this way and were intending to scale the sheer wall beyond, the guide told us. It must have been near here that the slide struck them. Doubtless, from his story, they all perished, but until we have absolute proof to the contrary there is a chance they did not. It is for us to find out. Ah!"

The exclamation was a startled one, and she raised a curved palm above her eyes in quick inquiry and gazed long and earnestly into the depths below.

"Henri," she called quickly, "you and Fritz tighten the rope and hold it firmly against the wall of the rock. I am going to lean out far enough to see over that bulge yonder, and the rope must sustain me."

Both of the guides whitened.

"It may be death," gasped Henri in remonstrance. "It is dangerous as you are now, and if you lean out your heels may slip, and then—and then you will go down and drag us with you. It may be death."

"It may be life for the ten persons the snow carried over. I do not know, but there is the edge of something dark just over the bulge of rock, and I thought I saw it stir. You may hold your knives ready, and if I fall you can cut the rope quickly and save yourselves. Now!"

They pressed the rope sharply against the rock wall behind and braced themselves as firmly as possible to hold it from slipping or swaying. Marcia, without even looking at them again, leaned out, and out, and out, until only the rope sustained her weight, her heels resting against the narrow shelf keeping her in position. Then, after what seemed an endless suspense to the men at the end of the rope, her hand motioned for them to draw her back to her footing.

"Yes, it is the party," she said as she regained her balance, "and some of them are alive. We must go down to them."

"But the rope is not long enough," both guides protested in a breath, "and we cannot"—

"Yes, I think we can," Marcia said, "or at least we can try. There are several fissures large enough for our heels to grasp. One of us will stay here, another be let down to a fissure as far as the rope will reach, and so on. There are three of you guides and myself. Four lengths of the rope will reach down to the party, I think. You have plenty of strong twine, and that can be used to draw the rope up from shelf to shelf as the party are rescued."

"A girl could never draw a heavy body up this wall," fearfully, "and—and if the rope should slip away and be lost"—

"We will take that risk. And I shall be strong enough to draw them up. I have done such things before. Now, Henri," as she worked her way along the shelf to his side and motioned for the other guides to follow, "you will stay here and lower the rest of us to the next fissure, then fasten the twine to the rope and let it down for Fritz to lower Gaspard and myself to the next fissure; then Gaspard will lower me, and I will fasten the rope to some rock projection, or if I cannot find one I will drill a hole in the rock and drive in a spike.

"Then I will go down hand over hand and see if any of the party are able to help themselves.

"If they are, I will climb back to my fissure and draw them up, or perhaps some of them will be able to help me. If not, I will have to go down to fasten each one separately, then climb back and draw him up.

"And, now, mind, all of you," her voice ringing sharp, "there must not be a hand to tremble or an eye to waver. On each of us the lives of all will depend."

"No; I will go myself. I can do the work better, I think, and my muscles have been trained for and by such work. It may be the entire party are alive and we can save them all."

They started to follow the plan the girl had laid down. Marcia, having assumed the leadership, naturally took it upon herself to be the first one lowered.

The rope having been fastened about her waist, she was lowered to the fissure below. The distance was not great, but only a steady pair of eyes, swinging, as she did, over a giddy height, could have enabled her to maintain her equanimity.

Having reached the fissure, she unbound the rope. It was drawn up, and Fritz was next lowered, then Gaspard.

When the three were ready to go a step lower Marcia, still taking the lead, was lowered to the next fissure, and Gaspard followed.

It was now Marcia's part to do the rest alone.

But this step was more dangerous than the others, for there was but one pair of arms to bear her weight, and the distance was greater than either of the two former descents.

The brave girl made a loop at the end of the rope, and, instead of having it placed about her waist, took it in her hands that she might drop whatever distance the rope would not reach.

And so, swinging by her two hands, she was lowered to the rope's full length.

There still remained six feet between her and a rocky projection on which there was a surface as many feet square. She called to Gaspard to move three feet to the left. He did so, and she called again to him to move two feet farther in the same direction. Then she told him to swing her gently to and fro from the cliff. When directly over the proper place she let go and safely landed on the rock.

It was only after a day and night and another day of such hardihood and daring as was told at the inns and chalets for many a long year that the work was finished.

Even the guides, fired by the example of Marcia and perhaps also by solicitude for the other guides of their party, seemed to be unconscious of fear and hunger and weariness.

When at the end of the second day they reached the foot of the mountain the rescuers were almost as exhausted as the party they had saved, and from the palms of Marcia Wells' hands nearly all the skin had been worn by the rope.

But three days later, although her hands were still bandaged, she said goodby to the rest of the party and started off to begin the new year in quest of another mountain to climb.

Insurance Companies Lose About $125,000.00 by the Wreck at Spanish River

Double Liability for About Twenty-five Persons

A loss of somewhere in the neighbourhood of $125,000 is what the Accident Insurance Companies estimate the wreck at Spanish River bridge means to them.

They figure that about 25 of those who met death carried Accident Insurance, and the average insurance, according to the tables, is $5,000. In case of death in a railway disaster there is a double liability, making the figure $6,000, or $5,000 to be more conservative.

Their loss may total more than that, for the commercial travellers, a number of whom were killed, usually carry very heavy insurance. In addition, some of the companies make the policies payable on the death of the wife while travelling, though the policy is taken out in the husband's name. In such cases they pay the husband the same amount as they would have paid the wife were the husband killed.

We issue the BEST Accident and Sickness policy offered to the public.

JUDGMENT ON THURSDAY

Two Charges of Violation of Liquor License Law

At the police court this morning, Magistrate Dumble reserved judgment till Thursday, in the charge against George Thompson and also in the charge against the manager of the liquor store, where Thompson swore he secured the liquor, with which he became intoxicated. The defendant in the second charge, claims that he did not know Thompson and the latter swears that he was not served with the blacklist notice, although admitting that it was left at his home.

After the notice was served at the store by Inspector Stewart, the license was transferred to another party and this makes room for an argument which has been taken up by the counsel for the defence, Mr. G. N. Gordon.

A Protest

To the Editor of the Review.

Sir,—The heathen have more reverence for their idol temples than many professed Christians have for the house of God.

If the Christ were here to-day in bodily form He would whip out of many of our churches, those who seem to forget that His house was to be called of "all nations a house of prayer," with the same holy indignation that He showed towards the same class of persons in the olden time.

Yours, etc.,
JOHN CARLISLE.

Peterborough, March 1st, 1910.

LADY HESTER STANHOPE.

Among the eccentric personages of history Lady Stanhope, who was born in London in 1766, is remarkable. She was the daughter of the Earl of Stanhope and niece of the great William Pitt.

The death of her mother when she was an infant deprived her of the care a young girl should have, and even her education was sadly neglected. When she was about twenty she went to act as a sort of secretary for her uncle, who was then Prime Minister. She remained with him till his death in 1806.

In the next few years she displayed such singular qualities of bad temper, selfishness and lack of feeling that all her friends were estranged, and the English Government withdrew a pension she had been drawing. In 1810 she shook the dust of England from her feet and started for the east.

She arrived in Syria in 1812 and settled on Mount Lebanon, where she remained the rest of her life, entirely cut off from the companionship of friends or countrymen.

Surrounded by native servants, whom she ruled with capricious impulse, and with indifferent means at her disposal, she had a strange experience.

Occasionally some traveler who knew her would make a stop and call upon her. These persons told curious tales of her household. When tea was served one day the servant brought the teapot to the table holding it by the spout, as the handle was gone. The ceiling of her salon was upheld by beams of wood, and her bed was a mattress laid on planks that were placed on trestles.

Lady Stanhope was a hard mistress and demanded unheard of hours of service. At one time all the free women in her employ left in a body, and her slaves were constantly running away. A strict daily account was kept by a secretary of how every hour of the day of each servant and slave was employed, and Lady Hester kept it for study and reference.

Her time was fully occupied, divided as it was into curious detail. She remained in bed until about 2 o'clock in the afternoon and retired at about the same hour the next morning. She began her daily duties at about 8 p.m.

Her first work was to assign to all in the household the routine of their labors for the next day, for no such eccentric hours were allowed servants. This accomplished, she spent the rest of her time till she retired in looking for trouble in the household, scolding and sometimes swearing, writing letters and talking for hours on any subject upon which she got started.

For a long time after she had gone to bed she kept most of the household awake and busy, her bell calling them for various services. It might be for a lemonade or a bowl of broth or a cup of camomile tea, for which the gardener was called to gather the herb, or she had forgotten some detail of an order for the next day, and whoever was to execute it had to be awakened to hear what she had to say.

She kept in good accord with the pasha, to whom she made presents and rendered services of various sorts, and often sent gifts to his harem. In this way she had a certain protection.

She died as she lived in Syria, with no friend or companion to comfort her last hours.

Cocoanut Cream Candy.

Melt two tablespoonfuls of butter in a saucepan, add one-half cup of milk and a cup and a half of sugar. Heat to the boiling point and cook twelve minutes, taking care that it does not burn. Push back on the stove, add one-third cup of shredded cocoanut and half a teaspoonful of vanilla. Beat until the mixture is creamy, pour into a buttered pan, cool and mark into squares.

Bank clearings in Hamilton last week totalled $1,977,050.

TEAS MOST POPULAR.

British Parliamentarians Have Established an Eating Record.

Wagers are being made that the Parliamentary session just closed, remarkable in many respects, will be found to have established a record in so far as its culinary section is concerned. The full tale of the demands on the House of Commons kitchen are not available but a partial report just issued shows that from Feb. 16 to Aug. 28, a total of 129,749 meals were served. The score follows:

Teas	61,561
Dinners	37,610
Luncheons	24,078
Meals at bar	4,240
Suppers	1,953
Breakfasts	307

Teas, it will be observed, are far ahead of the more serious table exercises, a circumstance largely accounted for by the social attractions and duties of the terrace, as well as in part by the more frugal tastes of modern legislators. From statements of accounts it appears that the amount realized from sales totaled £15,244 ($76,720), of which $45,980 came for provisions, $25,265 for liquors and $3,980 for cigars. Profits up the sum of $15,190 were swallowed up by wages and expenses, and but for the subsidy which the House votes this department every year the kitchen committee probably would come out at the small end of the horn.

The member of Parliament who conscientiously reckon up his expenses at the end of each section can picture the days when these disbursements were refunded by a grateful constituency. For in the old days the constituency gave each of its members a horse to carry him to Westminster and also paid his expenses on the road. These outlays, together with an allowance for each day spent on duty in the House generally approximating about eighty-three cents a day—were refunded in one lump sum when the member returned home at the close of the Parliamentary year.

One Mr. Slater, who conducts a barber shop in the House of Commons, has been playing a verbal "anvil chorus" on the existing Government because it reduced the charge of a shave from sixpence to threepence.

SCOTT'S PREPARATIONS.

Antarctic Explorer Hard at Work Getting Equipment.

Good progress is being made with the preparations for Capt. Scott's Antarctic expedition—officially designated "British Antarctic Expedition of 1910"—and one member of the staff has left for Siberia to obtain the necessary dogs and ponies.

Capt. Scott has himself only recently been relieved of his appointment at the Admiralty, in order that he may devote the whole of his time to the work of his expedition. Work has already commenced on the ship Terra Nova, and the removal of oil tanks, with other minor work, is in progress. The selection of all the members of the scientific staff has not yet been definitely made, but it is gradually getting into shape.

Dr. Wilson, chief of the scientific staff, will also be zoologist and artist, but it is expected that three zoologists will be taken with the expedition. Two, and possibly three, biologists will be included in Capt. Scott's personnel, and steps are being taken to induce a man having special knowledge of marine biology to join the expedition.

The services of C. R. Meares, a well-known traveler, who lately completed a most interesting journey on the Chino-Tibetan border, has been secured for the expedition, and is leaving England almost immediately for Siberia to get suitable ponies and dogs. Mr. Meares will collect his animals at Vladivostok, whence they will be sent to Kobe and transhipped for Australia and New Zealand. He will join the Terra Nova in New Zealand. The landing parties probably will consist of 30 men in all, 25 of whom will be at the first station and five at the second station. The position of these stations will be alternately east of west of the barrier, according as circumstances may dictate.

An improved motor sledge of a type tried successfully last year in Norway is being constructed, and Capt. Scott is going to Norway early in the year to superintend the trials.

Father of the Lords.

On Boxing Day the Earl of Leicester was eighty-seven years old. His lordship has sat in the House of Lords longer than any other peer, and is thus the "father" of that assembly. In point of age Lord Wemyss holds the record.

Outspokenness and unconventionality are two of Lord Leicester's most dominant characteristics. His favorite dish is Norfolk dumplings; and he has frequently been mistaken for one of his own farm laborers when he has been regaling himself with bread and cheese and raw onions, cut with a laborer's knife, and washed down with draughts of beer, whilst siting under country hedges.

The noble earl, who was born when his father was sixty-nine, stands behind the gunners when there is a "beat" on his vast estates, and, should the shooting not be up to the mark, his lordship's criticisms are distinctly chilling.

Basuto Sayings.

The Basutos are addicted to metaphor, and their metaphorical sayings are numerous and interesting. The following are a few in common use and are given as specimens:

"Men may meet, but mountains never"; "Do not prick an enemy with a two pointed needle, as that hurts yourself quite as much as it does him"; "A mother is like the cow which sustains the family in time of drought"; "One hand washes another"; "A sitting hen never gets fat"; an answer to our "rolling stone" aphorism. When all is quiet in the land they say, "We are sitting down building houses." Another saying is, "A man who is patient eats fatted beasts, but an impatient man has to content himself with the flesh of a lean goat."—Chambers' Journal.

A Case of Cases to Give Away

It is surprising the number of Eye-Glass and Spectacle Cases which are given away at The Optical Institute. A new supply arrived this week. These new makes are so far superior to the old styles—neater, more convenient, more durable. Samples may be seen in our window. We give one free with each pair of Eye-Glasses or Spectacles.

Eels' Long Journeys.

Old Maoris dwelling on the west coast of the North Island of New Zealand state that when the eels go toward the sea in a large body they are led by two individuals of an enormous size. A resident at Levin told Mr. Bruce that he once saw one of these migrations, with two large eels in the van. Overland journeys at night, which are characteristic of some eels, have been noted in New Zealand. Mr. Bruce has been told by some very old Maori friends that they have known eels to undertake fairly long journeys by night. On one occasion the Maoris had camped for the night on a spur that is the watershed between the Wanganui and Manguwhero rivers. About midnight their attention was arrested by their dog, which was much excited and was barking furiously. When they went out to ascertain the cause of the disturbance they found that the dog was following up an enormous eel, which was on one of its land journeys.

Robin and Wren.

The Christmas traditions associated with the wren and robin are recalled by the greeting card issued this season by the Royal Society for the Protection of Birds. As the mythical mate of the robin, "Jenny Wren" has been invested with some sanctity attaching to the red breast—"Robin Red and Jenny Wren, God Almighty's cock and hen," as the old rhyme goes. On the other hand, it has been the custom on some obscure pretext, to hunt the wren on St. Stephen's day, so that Blake's malediction on all who harm this useful little bird is seasonably quoted.

APSLEY

Apsley, Feb. 28.—We have been having some very severe weather for the past week together with the season's share of snow and wind.

A number of the lumber camps have already discontinued business until the drives open in spring.

A little surprise party was held at the home of Mr. Wm. James, of Apsley, on Tuesday evening last, and a very pleasant time was spent.

Mr. Gordon Gilroy, of Coe Hill, spent a few days with his aunt, Mrs. Albert Hall, of Apsley, this week.

Mr. Jared Dingman, of Lastwade, is visiting his neice, Mrs. D. Grifton.

Mrs. Harry Wilson is quite ill with the measles.

As yet S. S. No. 2, Chandos, is without a teacher.

Mrs. D. Hall is very sick with a relapse of la grippe. We hope she will improve in health soon.

Chandos is about to loose one of their young men in the person of Mr. Paul Nesbett, who has secured a position with Mr. Jno. Snelgrove, of Dalkeith, and will start for that part of the country about March 8th. We wish them success.

COL. HUGHES SAYS CANADA IS UNFAIRLY TREATED AT BISLEY

Refusal of N.A.A. to Recognize Ross Rifle as the Official Arm of Canada is a Slight That Should be Resented — Premier Applauds Suggestion That Official Weapon of Country Should be Enough.

Ottawa, March 3.—The proceedings at the opening of the House yesterday were unusually interesting.

Col. Sam Hughes took a fling at a recent rule passed by the National Rifle Association (Great Britain) which seems to be aimed at the Ross rifle, and suggested that until the rule was removed Canada should refuse to send a team to Bisley. But the colonel thinks conspirators in Canada are at the bottom of the trouble, and he had a little duel with Col. Worthington.

Up till now, said Col. Hughes, the rifle which Canadian marksmen used at Bisley had been unquestioned, because the service arm of Canada was also the service arm of the Mother Country, but last year an attempt was made to prevent the use of the Ross rifle at Bisley. The N.R.A. this year had passed a new rule barring rifles other than the service rifle of Great Britain, unless one of the pattern had been deposited with the N.R.A. three months before the opening of the Bisley meet, and had been "approved for use." This left it uncertain whether the Ross rifle would be used, the effect being that riflemen were afraid to purchase the Ross arm.

No self-respecting association or Government, he declared, would tolerate such treatment of its official rifle. The objections to it had been engineered by conspirators in Canada in the pay of the small arms companies of England, in order to discredit the Canadian rifle. So far as he was concerned not a Canadian rifleman should go to Bisley.

Dr. Reid: "How would you make them change the rule?"

"Let the Canadian boys stay at home," replied Col. Hughes, "until these gentlemen are brought to time. The British Government should be notified that the Ross rifle was the official arm, and that the production of a certificate by a Canadian marksman that the rifle he proposed to use was the official arm of the Dominion should be sufficient.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier:—"Hear, hear."

Col. Worthington described the question introduced by Col. Hughes as a tempest in a teapot. The real question at issue was whether or not the Ross rifle mark II., double star, was the standard arm of the Canadian militia. He declared it was not. Only five hundred of these rifles had been ordered, and they were issued only for competition purposes.

Col. Hughes declared that letters had been written to the N.R.A. by Col. Worthington, not for the purpose of helping rifle shooting, but to prevent the use of the Ross rifle at Bisley.

Col. Worthington said any remarks upon, or stand against, the Ross rifle which he had made, had been for the purpose of placing at the service of the militia the best weapon possible.

Col. Hughes challenged him to get up and say that he had not inspired the N.R.A. Col. Worthington remained silent.

In reply to a question in the House by Richard Blain, of Peel, Hon. Sydney Fisher said that the outbreak of rabies in Western Ontario, had seemed to call for some action by the Dominion authorities.

The veterinary director-general had communicated with the Ontario authorities and, as a result of negotiations, it was decided that the Dominion Department of Agriculture should issue an order to put certain parts of Ontario under a dog muzzling order. The provincial authorities issued an order at the same time that the municipalities should issue a similar order. He was not in a position to note any condition which would justify the cancellation of the order.

Major Currie asked if there was any possibility of compensating farmers whose stock had been destroyed by mad dogs. Mr. Fisher replied that they would have recourse against the owners of such dogs.

Major Currie remarked that that would be difficult, as a mad dog would run fifty miles, and the owner would be hard to locate.

Mr. Conmee's bill to incorporate the International Waterways Canal and Construction Co., didn't get much farther ahead at yesterday's session of the railway committee.

J. F. Whitson, chief surveyor of lands for the Ontario Government, attacked the project from an engineering standpoint. He said that between Lake Superior and the height of land there was an elevation of 1,100 feet to overcome. At certain points there was not enough water to float a canoe.

Hon. Geo. P. Graham remarked that he presumed that the promoters had satisfied themselves as to the water supply.

Mr. Whitson contended that along the highest stretches of the proposed canal there was no continuous stream.

The lockage, he said, would be three times as heavy as on the Erie Canal, and the cuttings would be through solid rock.

Mr. Conmee contended that it was an engineering question which the committee could not settle. He maintained that the water supply was better than that available for the Georgian Bay Canal.

The elevations to be overcome, he said, were not as great as on the Erie or Georgian Bay canals.

Because of the fear that the company plans to ultilize the Winnipeg River, and so would imperil the source of Winnipeg's power, Alex. Haggart, M.P. for that city, suggested an adjournment until the City Council and Manitoba Legislature could be heard from.

Geo. Bradbury, M.P. for Selkirk supported him, remarking that there were millions of horse-power awaiting development on the Winnipeg River, and it was important that this should not be allowed to pass to the control of the company.

On a strictly party vote, the Haggart amendment was defeated, while the preamble to the bill was carried. Hon. Mr. Pugsley then renewed his suggestion of reference to a sub-committee, adding Mr. Haggart to the committee.

Adjournment for a week was ordered, and in the meantime the westerners will be notified.

FORTY MET DEATH IN THE AVALANCHE

Two Trains Were Swept Down Into Canyon Near Wellington, Wash., and Twenty-Three Persons Are Known to be Dead—Twelve Bodies Taken Out of the Snow.

Everett, Wash., March 3.—Latest estimates last night place at 40 the number of persons killed by the avalanche that crushed two Great Northern passenger trains at Wellington.

While only 23 persons are known to be dead, nearly a score are thought to be buried in the wreckage.

Communication with Wellington is maintained only by men on snowshoes.

Twelve bodies has been removed from the 150-foot gorge, into which the snowslide swept the train.

These Canadians are dead: Frances Starrett, Lillian Starrett, both children of Chemainus, B. C.; and the missing are A. Beles Moberley, Ontario; H. D. Chantrell, Vancouver, and R. G. Thompson, Vancouver.

Superintendent O'Neill of the Great Northern made his way to the wreck late yesterday at the head of a party of doctors and nurses. The treacherous trip down the precipice was made on snowshoes.

The nearest telegraph station, Scenic, Hot Springs, is three miles below Wellington, down a precipitous grade that is covered with a deep blanket of snow that may slide down the mountain at any moment.

The railroad company is making strenuous efforts to reach Wellington from both sides of the mountain range. Relief trains have been despatched from Everett with supplies and a wrecking crew.

The road is blocked in several places by smaller slides and the high temperature leads to the fear that more may occur to impede the relief work.

The avalanche rolled down the mountain at 4.20 a.m. The two trains with three locomotives, four powerful electric motors, the depot and water tank, were swept off the ledge and deposited in a twisted mass of wreckage at the foot of the mountain.

The noise from the snowslide, which was a mile long, could be heard throughout the valley.

The first news of the disaster was brought by John Wentzell of Wellington. He steggered into Skyhomish, 18 miles from Wellington.

"All wiped out," he cried, "nothing but smooth snow where the tracks stood and the trains were dumped into the canyon."

He was so exhausted that it was several hours before he could give a coherent story.

CITIES SHOULD HELP MAINTAIN ROADS THAT BRING THEM TRADE

Toronto, March 3.—That the provincial appropriation towards the construction and maintenance of county roads should be increased; that the City of Toronto should be subjected to a levy in aid of the up-keep of roads leading into the city, and that the system of taxing railway property should be changed, were sentiments which were strongly voiced at the opening session of the Ontario Good Roads Convention in the county buildings yesterday.

Delegates are in attendance from all sections of the province, and instructive speeches were delivered on the subject of road construction and supervision.

A lengthy program has been drawn up, which will not be concluded before Friday afternoon.

The president of the association, W. H. Pugsley, Richmond Hill, in an opening speech cast considerable light on the present situation as regards the good roads campaign. He said that of the 35 counties of Ontario, only 16 had taken advantage of the provincial act whereby the province contributes to the county roads funds. Thus far $700,000 had been contributed by the province towards country roads. He pointed out that York County had not adopted the good roads system because of adverse conditions, such as the scarcity of good material, but the county was now evolving a scheme whereby the city would co-operate with the county in the maintaining of better roads contiguous to the city.

The meeting derived considerable enlightenment from Geo. Diehl, engineer of Erie County, New York, who spoke of road construction in that state. It had been demonstrated that 25 cents would go farther than a day of road work as applied under the old statute labor regulations.

The statute labor system, he thought, should certainly be abolished in Ontario, as it had been in many of the States.

In New York State, Mr. Diehl continued, there were three classes of roads, state, county and township. The state roads represented about 4 per cent. of the milage and were constructed entirely at the expense of the state. County roads were constructed and maintained at the joint expense of the state, counties and towns, and represented about six per cent. of the mileage. Township roads made up about 90 per cent. of the mileage and were constructed at the expense of the municipality and the state, the state paying two-thirds of the cost.

SIR JAMES DOES NOT BELIEVE IN THE TUBERCULOSIS BILL

Toronto, March 3.—Quite a medical air prevailed in the Legislature yesterday, when the House spent a good part of the afternoon in discussing Mr. Downey's bill for better dealing with the prevention and cure of tuberculosis.

Last year, said Mr. Downey, about 2,650 died in the province from the dread scourge. His bill provided for compulsory notification by the attending physician and the sending of printed instructions from the Provincial Board of Health as the best method of treatment. The notification was quite confidential. There would be no placarding. There was no provision in the present stage of the law for removal of indigent patients by boards of health.

Several of the medical members of the House spoke on the bill, expressing approval of its main idea, while differing on details.

R. R. Gamey (Manitoulin) declared that from the experience he had had in his own family, he didn't believe that the people of the country would object to compulsory notification, or any other means which would tend to ameliorate conditions. It was unfortunate that the province did not go even further than the bill provided.

Dr. Godfrey (West York) said that in view of the line taken by every deputation that had waited on the Government during the recess, what was wanted was a careful investigation.

Sir James Whitney landed on the bill with both feet. "Why should the patient be taken from the doctor who made the discovery, and given over to a bunch of printed matter?" he enquired.

Sir James: "I'd just as soon trust the ordinary physician as any specialist I know of. I don't propose to [illegible] it possible for any poor man's home to be broken into under the pretext of benefit to the 'commune,' for that's what it means."

Allan Studholme (East Hamilton) spoke strongly in favor of the bill.

Hon. A. G. MacKay declared that it was up to the Government to take the matter up and deal with it in a provincial way. In answer to a question by Hon. W. J. Hanna, Mr. MacKay said that he meant taking it up in the way of investigation rather than the Government undertaking to treat the disease.

"We hear a great deal of race suicide," said Dr. Godfrey (West York) in moving the second reading of his bill to prevent procreation of confirmed criminals, idiots, imbeciles and rapist. "I tell you, we want to hear more about race culture." Last year the province paid nearly $1,000,000 to care for the unfit in jails and asylums. The way to train a child was to begin with his grandfather. The measure he advocated had been found eminently satisfactory in Indiana in 1,000 cases during 10 years.

Allan Studholme (East Hamilton) spoke in support of the bill, which seemed to meet with the approval of quite a number of the members.

Sir James Whitney said he hoped the bill would be withdrawn. If it were not, he hoped every other member would vote against it. He hoped such a bill would never again be introduced in the House.

Dr. Godfrey withdrew the bill under protest, alleging his intention of re-introducing it at some future period.

H. P. Innes (North Norfolk) introduced bills to allow township councils to appoint truant officers, and to have the selection of public and separate school sites determined by a majority vote of ratepayers' meetings.

LATE TICKS FROM WIRES

An epidemic of diphtheria has become so widespread in Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., that one school has been closed and others depleted of pupils.

The highest prices ever recorded for hogs in the Cleveland market was reached yesterday, when they were quoted at $10.10. The civil war record was $10.

Archbishop Bruchesi has placed his ban on the production of the Passion Play at the Academy in Montreal by a local French company, but the management declare the play will go on notwithstanding.

The members of the Royal Canadian Regiment who have been stationed in the colliery districts of Cape Breton for the past six months, in connection with the maintenance of order during the strike, have received orders to return to Halifax.

FOUR VESSELS IN COLLISION

New York, March 3.—Four vessels, three of them steamships, crashed together in two collisions in the dense fog which prevailed outside Sandy Hook yesterday.

None of the vessels was damaged to the sinking point, and no lives were lost.

The fruit steamer Minnesota, of the Cunso Importing Co., which sailed on Tuesday for Kingston, Jamaica, limped back into the harbor yesterday with her bow plates badly started from the shock of contact with the freight steamer Sidra. The latter, inbound from Cuba with a cargo of sugar, was harder hit by the shock, her bow being stove in from the deck to the water line as far back as the forecastle.

Wireless messages told of the running down, forty miles southeast of Barnegat, off the New Jersey coast, of the schooner Republic of Thomaston, Maine, by the Royal Mail Steam Packet Co.'s steamer Tagus, bound here from Kingston. The extent of the damage to the Republic is not stated.

CONFESSION OF WIFE SAVED HIM

Watertown, N.Y., March 3.—Jas. D. Farmer, whose wife Mary was put to death in the electric chair at Auburn on March 29 last, for the murder of their neighbor, Sarah Brennan, near Brownville, N.Y., in April, 1908, was acquitted after a second trial in the case. He had previously been convicted of murder in the first degree, but Mrs. Farmer, before her death in the electric chair, left a statement exonerating him, and the court of appeals granted a new trial.

TRAIN BACKED INTO STREET CAR

Hamilton, March 3.—A T., H. & B. train backed into a street car at James and Hunter streets yesterday evening about 8.30, but no one was seriously injured. There were seven or eight women in the car, but they escaped with nothing worse than a bad fright.

The crossing is guarded by gates, which had been lifted after an engine passed over the crossing. Just as soon as the engine crossed, a train on the other track started to back into the station, and it caught the street car squarely in the middle.

The car was thrown off the track, and considerably damaged. Conductor Misner was in charge of the car, with Motorman James Hennie.

WILL GIVE CASH AWAY

John D. Rockefeller Has His Philanthropic Department Incorporated.

Washington, D.C., March 3.—Steps were taken to-day to incorporate the Rockefeller Foundation in the District of Columbia. The bill for this purpose was introduced by Senator Gallinger and was referred to the committee on judiciary.

The scope of the foundation is very broad, although embraced in a very short section of the bill. This section reads:

"That the object of the said corporation shall be to promote the well-being and to advance the civilization of the peoples of the United States, its territories and possessions, and of foreign lands, in the acquisition and dissemination of knowledge; in the prevention and relief of suffering and in the promotion of any and all of the elements of human progress."

While drawn generally along the lines of the act, incorporating the Carnegie Foundation. It goes much farther, since the Carnegie Foundation is designed chiefly to provide for a scientific retirement and pensioning of superannuated teachers.

When asked regarding the bill Senator Gallinger said, "I am not authorized to speak for Mr. Rockefeller. But there is no doubt that Mr. Rockefeller intends to give away his money on a scale greater than any other living man.

"I am not acquainted with all the details of Mr. Rockefeller's plan, but it is expected that Washington will be made the headquarters."

The incorporators named in the bill are: John D. Rockefeller, John D. Rockefeller jr., Fred T. Gates, Starr J. Murphy and Charles O. Heydt. These incorporators are authorized to select associates.

CUSHING OUTLINES POSITION

Edmonton, Alta., March 3.—Cushing, ex-Minister of Public Works, opened the debate yesterday afternoon in the Legislature. Whatever doubts he had had regarding resigning, had been dispelled by the discussion to date, he said. He had never seen a copy of the specifications until after the Cabinet had passed the specifications. He did not believe a dozen members would say the contract was a good one. The Government were guilty of not protecting the rights of the province.

The promoters, he declared, neither had money nor financial standing. Early in the year, the waterways engineers had discussed the route with him, but they had never come back.

"They were told to stay away from my Department," said Cushing. "Now the Attorney-General has read me out of the Liberal party. I've been a Liberal all my life, and when the Attorney-General was in knickerbockers. I have been accused of making a bluff, but I am ready to put up a guarantee of half a million that I can build a road at the figures I have stated—$12,000 a mile."

Premier Rutherford, in replying, reviewed the situation on the lines of his speech delivered several days ago, introducing little new argument. He said he courted criticism of the bill. Last year the opposition was weak, and this year not much stronger. The Government had a first-class engineer, who would see that the specifications were lived up to.

DALAI LAMA IS IN INDIA

Darjiling, British India, March 3.—The Dalai Lama, the religious head of the Buddhists, who fled from Lhassa two weeks ago, and more recently was deposed as head of the Tibetan Government, when he arrived here was the object of a great display of religious fervor on the part of the Buddhists.

The Dalai Lama's progress was frequently halted by hysterical women craving permission to touch the high priest's garments, or thrusting up babes to be blessed.

The Dalai Lama and his suite were installed in the Druid Hotel, the Lama himself occupying the top floor, has no one is permitted to sleep on a higher level than he.

There is an altar in the corner of the room, and incense lamps burn incessantly before images of Buddha.

HAVE LIVING TIME TABLE

Boston, Mass., March 3.—Every saloon in Chelsea must employ a car announcer, to remind its patrons of the running time of cars which pass the door, when liquor licenses become operative in that city on May 1.

The new regulations issued yesterday by the Chelsea licensing commission are believed to be the strictest in New England.

Besides the announcer feature, they provide that only one line of men is to be allowed to stand at a bar, and no drinks are to be passed to any but those ones back of the line.

Ready to Build Radial Line.

Guelph, March 3.—That he will promote a radial railway line from Guelph to Hamilton, if the John Patterson scheme falls through was a statement made yesterday by W. A. Bugg of the People's Railway Co.

Quebec Utilities Board.

Montreal, March 3.—It is stated that the Quebec Government's utility board will be composed of Sir George Garneau, George Smith, ex-M.P.P. for Megantic, and a Montreal man whose name has not yet leaked out.

LONDON MAN WAS MURDERED IN ARIZONA

London, Ont., March 3.—Sinclair Anderson, who until a few years ago was a resident of this city, was murdered in Arizona on Feb. 4 and left a mining claim valued at half a million dollars.

He had two brothers, C. E. Anderson of 659 Queen's avenue, this city, and John of Cleveland. The last letter from him was written just a few days before he met his death, and in it he described in a homely way, the hardships he had gone through for years to gain the success which has come to him within a few weeks of the end.

In his letter he said that he hoped to come back to Ontario this year, and "visit some of the fall country fairs."

DIED "POOR" WITH HIDDEN TREASURE

Darlington, N.J., March 3.—Tucked away in odd corners of cupboards and between leaves of old books, currency and coins amounting to many thousands of dollars were discovered in the home of Miss Elizabeth Hayes, a supposedly poor spinster, who died Tuesday.

Miss Hayes, who was 86 years old, had denied herself a servant for years, enjoying only the bare necessities of life.

BLOOD STAINS ON HIS CLOTHES

Parry Sound, March 3.—An important clue as to motive for the murder of Michael J. Davis has been found on an examination of the clothing of the murdered man.

Davis was fully dressed when killed, and blood has been found on the lower edge of his vest and in his trouser pockets, showing that after killing Davis, the murderer put his blood-stained hands in the murdered man's pockets.

PATTEN TALKS ABOUT THE WHEAT MARKET

He said he had bought some cash cotton yesterday and predicted unless next summer's cotton reached 14 millions, which he considers unlikely, the price of cotton would reach a surprising level.

The next wheat crop, in his opinion, will be as large as last year's, and in Texas the largest ever.

"I regard myself very much as an accident," said he. "I should not advise a boy to enter such a field unless I knew he was especially adapted for it.

"The majority of men have no judgment. The professor, if you remember, told the bankers who were entertaining him at a recent banquet of the American Bankers' Association, that they were narrow-minded, saw nothing but New York and discriminated against the small man in business.

"Now, where he lacked judgment, in my opinion, was in saying such things to men who had invited him to address them at a banquet. But apparently he was talking about things with which he was not wholly conversant and that is 'a lack of judgment.' There is no truth in his statement that the banks of New York or anywhere else, discriminate against the little men."

CHANGE IN THE NAME OPPOSED

London, March 3.—At a meeting of the Royal Colonial Institute it was suggested that the name be changed to Royal United Empire Institute.

Murray Clarke of Toronto thought the change inadvisable, as there was now no thought of allowing the colonies to go.

Big Storm In Manitoba.

Winnipeg, March 3.—A terrible storm, which, fortunately, is accompanied by high temperature, is raging over northwestern Manitoba since Tuesday afternoon. From all points along Lake Winnipeg come reports of paralyzed traffic, the roads being completely blocked.

HOMICIDE CHARGE AGAINST A PRIEST

New York, March 3.—Rev. Innocense Montcerri, of the Church of Mary, Help of Christians, in East 12th street, was paroled in the custody of the coroner yesterday for further examination on a technical charge of homicide.

Mrs. Maria Mata Iogudice, a young Italian woman, died on Feb. 24, and Father Montcerri admitted to the coroner's jury that he had applied a heated aluminum button to her body when he called upon her to render spiritual comfort.

He burned her body, he said, to relieve pain of which the woman complained, having been convinced of the efficacy of such treatment by trying it on himself.

INSURGENTS IN BAD WAY

San Juan Del Sur, Nicaragua, March 3.—Deserters from Gen. Menas' forces, who have surrendered to the Government division at Acoyapa, state that Gen. Chamorro arrived at San Vincente Tuesday with 60 horsemen, the remnant of the army of 1,500 with which he reached Tisma.

Seine Is High Again.

Paris, March 3.—The continued rainfall has raised the level of the River Seine to 21 feet 5 inches, almost equalling the flood maximum of 1883.

The water is again pouring into the mouths of the sewers. The weather, however, is gradually improving.

Taft For Good Roads.

Washington, March 3.—President Taft yesterday expressed his deep interest for uniform highway improvements throughout the country and for co-operation between the states in establishing good roads.

Another Added

Another Peterborough man had his name placed on the "blacklist" today and hereafter will have to confine himself to pop and cold tea.

ADVERTISE IN THE REVIEW

22 CHILDREN IN 27 YEARS

Showhegan, Maine.—Mr. and Mrs. Charles Dickey, of Canaan, announce the birth of a daughter, their twenty second child in twenty-seven years.

Mrs. Dickey was married when fourteen years of age and Mr. Dickey was only a few years her senior.

Of the twenty-two children, not one has ever suffered from a serious illness.

Here is health and strength and bodily vigor personified. The parents are well—therefore there have been no weak, puny, peevish children.

The health of the child depends much on the health of the parents. Thus, there is the necessity of expectant mothers especially paying great attention to their general health.

THE PRICE INCREASED

It was apparently not without cause that the Globe warned its readers not to expect a reduction in the price of German goods equal to the reduction in the amount of the customs duties. Mr. William Croft, the head of a Toronto firm that imports largely from Germany, has written to the press that on the day the removal of the surtax was announced he placed an order for goods with a firm in Germany. With the removal of the tax one who has listened to the teachings of the advocates of free trade would expect that the cost of the goods laid down in Toronto would be lowered, but Mr. Croft, if he entertained that opinion, got a surprise, for he received notice from the German firm that it would not furnish the goods except at an advance of ten per cent. on the prices previously named. The reason given for this is that the German Government paid a bonus of ten per cent. on goods exported to Canada, and that this bonus ceased when the surtax was removed. The increased price means a higher invoice rate on which duty at the present tariff must be paid, and although the surtax is removed the increased price of ten per cent. and the present duty on that increased price makes the goods cost more than they did before. The Dominion treasury collects at a lower rate, and the people pay more for the goods.

The question of who pays the duty has often been discussed, and the statement of this transaction throws light upon it.

INFANT MORTALITY

The Provincial Milk Commission has published a report giving statistics of infant mortality in the different cities of Ontario for the year 1909. Woodstock makes the best showing with 79.6 deaths per thousand births; St. Catharines last at the rate of 117.86 per thousand; Stratford, 119.6; Brantford, 124.15; Windsor, 130.21; Peterborough, 143.01; Kingston, 144.74; Chatham, 144.74; St. Thomas, 147.09; Hamilton, 151.82; Toronto, 155.67; Belleville, 169.42; London, 171.83; Niagara Falls, 177.54; Port Arthur, 186.99; Fort William, 202.76, Ottawa 216.94. Thus there are five cities in the province making a better showing than Peterborough, and twelve which make a worse showing. Of course all the deaths of infants are not attributable to impure milk but no doubt many of them are. It is of the utmost importance that cows should be thoroughly cleaned before being milked, and that great care should be taken to keep the milk clean after the milking is done.

Two extraordinary facts are brought out in this report: First, that there are more deaths in Ontario during the first year of life than in the succeeding forty years; second, that out of every thousand children born alive forty-four more die in Ontario during the first year of life than in London, England. Why should Ontario with its pure, clear, air have a higher infant mortality than London, with its dirty, foggy atmosphere and its slums? This is something for mothers to think about. No pains should be spared to keep the milk supply pure. Any farmer who sells dirty milk should take note that he may be responsible for the deaths of many infants.

HOW THE TWO LEADERS

On one point Sir Wilfrid Laurier and Mr. Robert L. Borden agree. Both leaders believe that as a permanent policy it would not be wise for Canada to send money to the British Government for naval purposes. Both agree that the only practical policy for Canada is to have a Canadian navy, built in Canada and manned by Canadians. But on two points they differ on opinion:

1. Mr. Borden says it will take time to build a Canadian navy, that it cannot be ready for service in time to be of use in case war should come. Therefore he favors a money contribution sufficient to have two warships quickly built in England. These Dreadnoughts would form the nucleus of the Canadian navy and the auxiliary ships which would complete the Canadian naval unit could be built in Canada. Sir Wilfrid also favors buying two ships in England, but instead of getting Dreadnoughts he proposes to get the Niobe and the Rainbow, two British warships that were out of date many years ago, and which would probably soon go to the scrap heap if Canada did not buy them. They could not participate in a war against modern battleships.

2. The Liberal leader believes in a separatist navy, which might help in a war in which Britain is involved or might stay at home. He says that in such a war as the Crimean war, for example, Canada should not help England. The Conservative leader, on the other hand, believes that the Canadian navy should be a unit of the Imperial navy, always at the services of the Empire and ever ready to help the Mother Country.

EDITORIAL NOTES

It is stated that a storage battery that can be operated cheaply has been perfected by Mr. Edison. The disappearance of the trolley poles will be hoped for.

Mr. Theodore Roosevelt and his party are returning from Africa. They are reported to have killed seventeen lions, eleven elephants, nine giraffes and other game. What harm had these animals done them?

A commission in Prince Edward Island has recommended the adoption the new Ontario school readers in that province. The Whitney Government has given this province better as well as cheaper school books.

Mr. E. B. Osler, M.P., has given $25,000 for the purchase of a playground in Toronto. It is a generous gift for a good purpose. Smaller cities, which expect to be greater, and Peterborough expects to be greater, should provide playgrounds as they expand.

The Halifax Chronicle feels insulted because it has been suggested that advocates of the Government navy scheme are influenced by considerations of patronage. Yet the manner in which the Government has conducted much of the business it now controls has not been such as to make people anxious to place more of it in their hands. When it takes $5,000 to secure a $700 wharf for the country it is enough to frighten a taxpayer to calculate how much it will cost to have $15,000,000 worth of vessels and yards and other naval equipment procured for the Dominion.

HE SETTLED IN EMILY LONG AGO

Death of Stewart McCague at Age of Eighty Four

Special to The Review.

Bethel, Emily, March 1.—The death occurred on Thursday morning of Mr. David Stewart McCague, at his home on the 3rd line of Emily, two miles south of Bethel. Deceased was eighty-four years of age and was one of the first inhabitants of this place. He was born in Welland, and when a boy came to Emily with his father and settled on the farm, where he resided until his death.

In 1855 he was married to Helen Kennedy, who predeceased him 27 years ago. He leaves to mourn his loss five sons and four daughters. The daughters are Agnes and Laura of Detroit, Mich., and Annie and Emma, of Toronto. Mrs. J. R. Boate, who died suddenly six years ago, was a daughter of the deceased. Also one sister, Mrs. Wm. Dawson, Otonabee, survives him. The sons are Wm. John, of Manitoba; David S., James and Charles, of British Columbia, and George, who resides on the homestead. The aged gentleman was well-known and highly respected. He was a supporter of the Methodist church, and his cheerful disposition and kind hospitality made for him many friends who attended the funeral on Saturday, Feb. 26th. The service at the home was conducted by Rev. Mr. Griffith, pastor of Bethel church, who delivered a beautiful discourse from the words in Isaiah 64, 6, "And we all do fade as the leaf." The funeral procession left the home at two o'clock p.m. and proceeded to Emily cemetery where the remains were interred. The pall-bearers were:—Messrs. Gabriel and J. T. Switzer, Mr. Henry Jackson, Mr. Gustavus Howden, Mr. F. McFee, Mr. Robert Bailey.

Mayor Gaynor ended his second month in the City Hall, New York, by reorganizing the municipal party system and the legal free system and condemnation in the Catskills,

Montreal Live Stock.

MONTREAL, March 2.—(Special.)—At the Canadian Pacific live stock market, receipts of live stock were 850 cattle, 75 sheep and lambs, 600 hogs and 450 calves.

There was no change in the conditions of the market for cattle since Monday. Supplies were small, and as the weather was more favorable than in the early part of the week the gathering of buyers was larger, and, as they all wanted a few to see them over until next week, the demand was much better, and an active trade was done at firm prices.

Choice steers sold at 6c to 6¼c; good at 5½c to 5¾c; fair at 5c to 5¼c; medium at 4½c to 4¾c, and common at 4c to 4½c per lb. There were some very good cows offered, which met with a ready sale at 4¾c to 5¼c, and common at 3½c to 4c per lb. A few choice, heavy bulls brought 4½c to 5c, and the lower grades went at 3½c to 4¼c per lb.

A feature of the market continues to be the strong feeling in hogs, and prices are steadily working towards the $10 mark, due to comparatively small receipts for this season of the year, because of scarcity of stock thruout the country. The demand from packers was good this morning, and sales of selected lots were made at $9.75 per 100 lbs., weighed off cars.

The market for small meats was quiet, on account of the continued small supplies coming forwards, and in consequence the feeling is very firm, and higher prices are looked for in the near future, unless receipts increase materially. The demand for lambs is good, and sales were made at 7c, with sheep at 4½c per lb.

The quality of calves offered was not very good, consequently prices ruled low at from $3 to $8 each.

The Man From Brodney's

By GEORGE BARR M'CUTCHEON

Copyright, 1908, by Dodd, Mead & Co.

"Sir John says in der letter to Mister Chase dere is a movements on foot in London to settle der contest out of court," volunteered Joost.

"Sure, but he also say dat ve all may die mit old age before it is over yet."

"Don't forget der plague!" said Jan.

They groaned mightily as they lifted the heavy chests to their shoulders and started for the door.

"Close der door, Jan," commanded Von Blitz from the passage. "Ve vill tight der fuse ven ve haf got beyond der first bend. Vat? Look! By tam, von of you swine has broke der fuse. Vait! Ve vill fix him now."

The door was closed behind them, but the listeners could hear them repairing the damage that Selim had done to the fuse.

Led by Selim, the four made a rush for the door leading into the chateau. They threw it open and passed through, flying as if for their lives. No one could tell how soon an explosion might bring disaster to the region; they put distance between them and the powder keg. Selim paused long enough to drop the bolts and turn the great key with the lever. At the second turn in the narrow corridor he overtook Chase and the scurrying women.

"Is there nothing to be done?" cried the princess. "Can we not prevent the explosion? They will cut off our means of escape in that"—

"I know too much about gunpowder, princess," said Chase dryly, "to fool with it. It's like a mule. It kicks hard. Gad, it was hard to stand there and hear those brutes planning it all and not be able to stop them!"

The princess was once more at his side. He had clasped her arm to lead her securely in the wake of Neenah's electric lantern. She came to a sudden stop.

"And pray, Mr. Chase," she said sharply, as if the thought occurred to her for the first time, "why didn't you stop them? You had the advantage. You and Selim could have surprised them—you could have taken them without a struggle."

He laughed softly, deprecatingly, not a little impressed by the justice of her criticism.

"No doubt you consider me a coward," he said ruefully.

"You know that I do not," she protested. "I—I can't understand your motive; that is all."

"You forget that I am the representative of these very men. I am the trusted agent of Sir John Brodney, who has refused to supplant me with another. I can't very well represent Sir John and at the same time make prisoners or corpses of his clients, even though I am being shielded by their legal foes. I'll not have Von Blitz saying, even to himself, that I have not only stolen his wives, but have also cast him into the hands of his Philistines. It may sound quixotic to you, but I think that Lord Deppingham and Mr. Browne will understand my attitude."

"But Von Blitz has sworn to kill you," she expostulated, with some heat. "You are wasting your integrity, I must say, Mr. Chase."

"Would you have me shoot him from ambush?" he demanded.

"Not at all. You could have taken him captive and held him safe until the time comes for you to leave the island."

"He would not have been my captive in any event. I could do no more than deliver him into the hands of his enemies. Would that be fair?"

"But he is a thief!"

"No more so than Taswell Skaggs and John Wyckholme, who unquestionably cheated the natives out of the very treasure we have seen carried away. I am not a constable nor a thief catcher. I am a soldier of the defense, not an officer of the crown, at this stage of the game. Today I shall contrive to send word to Rasula that Von Blitz has stolen the treasure chests. Mr. Von Blitz will have a sad time explaining this little defection to his friends. We must not overlook the fact that Lady Deppingham and Robert Browne are quite willing to take everything from the islanders. Everything that Taswell Skaggs and John Wyckholme possessed in this island belongs to them under the terms of the will."

They were at the top of the second flight of stairs by this time and quite a distance from the treasure chamber. His coolness, the absence of any sign of returning sentiment, was puzzling her sorely. Half an hour before she had been carried away, rendered helpless, by the passion that swayed him. Now he spoke and looked as if he had forgotten the result of his storming strangely enough, she was piqued.

When they came into the well lighted upper corridor he proceeded ruthlessly to upset all of her harsh calculations. He stopped suddenly, stepping directly in front of her. As she drew up in surprise he reached down and took both of her hands in his. For the moment she was too amazed to oppose this sudden action. She looked up into his face, many emotions in her own—reproof, wonder, dismay, hauteur, joy.

"Wait," he said gently. They were quite alone. She saw the most wonderful light in his gray eyes. Her lips parted in quick, timorous confusion. "I love you. I am sorry for what I did down there, I couldn't help it—nor could you. Yet I took a cruel advantage of you. I know what you've been thinking too. You have been saying to yourself that I wanted to see how far I could go. Don't speak. I know! You are wrong. I've absolutely worshiped you since those first days in Thorberg, wildly, hopelessly, day and night. I was afraid of you—yes, afraid of you because you are a princess. But I've got over all that, Genevra. You are a woman, a living, real woman, with the blood and the heart and the lips that were made for men to crave. I want to tell you this here in the light of day, not in the darkness that hid all the truth in me except that which you might have felt in my kiss."

"Please—please don't," she said once more, her lip trembling, her eyes fall of the softness that the woman who loves cannot hide. "You shall not go on! It is wrong!"

"It is not wrong!" he cried hotly. "My love is not wrong. I want you to understand and to believe. I can't hope that you will be my wife. It's too wildly improbable. You are not for such as I. You are pledged to a man of your own world, your own exalted world. But listen, Genevra. See, my eyes call you darling even though my lips dare not. Genevra, I'd give my soul to hear you say that you will be my wife. You do understand how it is with me?"

The delicious sense of possession thrilled her. She glowed with the return of her self esteem, in the restoration of that quality which proclaimed her a princess of the blood. She was sure of him now. She was sure of herself. She had her emotions well in hand. And so, despite the delicious warmth that swept through her being, she chose to reveal no sign of it to him.

"I do understand," she said quietly, meeting his gaze with a directness that hurt him sorely. "And you, too, understand. I could not be your wife. I am glad, yet sorry, that you love me, and I am proud to have heard you say that you want me. But I am a sensible creature, Mr. Chase, and, being sensible, am therefore selfish. I have seen women of my unhappy station venture outside of their narrow confines in the search for lifelong joy with men who might have been kings had they not been born under happier stars—men of the great wide world instead of the soulless, heartless patch which such as I call a realm. Not one in a hundred of those women found the happiness they were so sure of grasping just outside their prison walls. It was not in the blood. We must marry and live and die in the sphere to which we were born. We must go through life unloved and unadorned, bringing princes into the world, seeing happiness and love just beyond our reach all the time. We are bound by chains no force can break—the chains of prejudice."

She had withdrawn her hands from his. He was standing before her as calm and unmoved as a statue.

"Just the same," he went on gently, "you love me as I love you. You kissed me. I could feel love in you then. I can see it in you now. You will marry Prince Karl in June, and all the rest of your life will be bleak December. You will never forget this month of March—our month." He paused for a moment to look deeply into her incredulous eyes. His face writhed in sudden pain. Then he burst forth with a vehemence that startled her. "My God, I pity you with all my soul! All your life!"

"Don't pity me!" she cried fiercely. "I cannot endure that!"

"Forgive me! I shouldn't say such things to you. It's as if I were bullying you."

"You must not think of me as unhappy—ever. Go on your own way, Hollingsworth Chase, and forget that you have known me. You will find happiness with some one else. You have loved before; you can and will love again. I—I have never loved before, but perhaps, like you, I shall love again. You will love again?" she demanded, her lip trembling with an irresolution she could not control.

"Yes," he said calmly; "I'll love the wife of Karl Brabeck."

She started violently. Her cheek went red and white and her eyes widened as her thoughts went back to the naive prophecy in the treasure chamber.

She followed him slowly to the terrace. He stopped in the doorway and leisurely drew forth his cigarette case.

"Shall we wait for the explosion?" he asked without a sign of the emotion that had gone before. She gravely selected a cigarette from the case which he extended. As he lighted his own he watched her draw from her little gold bag a diamond studded case half filled. Without a word of apology she calmly deposited the cigarette in the case and restored it to the bottom of the bag.

Then she looked up brightly. "I am not smoking, you see," she said, with a smile. "I am saving all of these for you when the famine comes."

"By Jove!" he exclaimed, something like incredulity in the smile that transfigured his face.

"I could be a thrifty housewife, couldn't I?" she asked naively.

At that moment a dull, heavy report as of distant thunder came to their ears. The windows rattled sharply, and the earth beneath them seemed to quiver. Involuntarily she drew nearer to him.

"You could if you had half a chance," he said dryly and then casually remarked the explosion.

CHAPTER XXIII.

THE DISQUIETING END OF FOMO.

LATER on he and Deppingham visited the underground chamber, accompanied by Mr. Britt. They found that the door to the passage had been blown away by the terrific concussion. The subterranean passage at this place was completely filled with earth and stone.

Deppingham stared at the closed mouth of the passage. "They've cut off our exit, but they've also secured us from invasion from this source. I wonder if the beggars were clever enough to carry the plunder above the flood line. If not they've had their work for nothing."

"Selim says there is a cave near the mouth of the passage," said Chase. "The tunnel comes out halfway up the side of the mountain overlooking the sea, and the hole is very carefully screened by the thick shrubbery. Trust Von Blitz to do the safe thing."

"I don't mind Von Blitz escaping so much, Chase," said his lordship earnestly, "as I do the unfortunate closing of what may have been our way to leave the chateau in the end."

"You must think me an ungrateful fool," said Chase bitterly. He had already stated his position clearly.

"Not at all, old chap. Don't get that into your head. I only meant that a hole in the ground is worth two warships that won't come when we need 'em."

Chase looked up quickly. "You don't believe that I can call the cruisers?"

"Oh, come now, Chase; I'm not a demmed native, you know."

The other grinned amiably. "Well, you just wait, as the boy says."

After satisfying themselves that there was no possibility of the enemy ever being able to enter the chateau through the collapsed passage the trio returned to the upper world.

Robert Browne and Lady Agnes were seated on the edge of the fountain in Apollo's grotto, conversing earnestly, even eagerly, with Mr. Bowles, who stood before them in an unmistakable attitude of indecision and perturbation. Deppingham gave Chase a look which plainly revealed his uneasiness.

"You don't mean to say, Lord Deppingham, that you're afraid the heirs will follow the advice of that rattle headed Saunders," said Chase, with a laugh. "Why, it wouldn't hold in court for a second. Ask Britt."

Britt cleared his throat. "Not for half a second," he said. "I'm only wondering if Bowles has authority to grant divorces."

"I dare say he has," said Deppingham, tugging at his mustache. "He's—he's a magistrate."

"It doesn't follow," said Chase, "that he has unlimited legal powers."

"But what are they ragging him about down here, Chase?" blurted out the unhappy Deppingham.

"Come in and have a drink," said Chase suddenly. Deppingham was shivering. "You've got a chill in that damp cellar. I can assure you positively as representative of the opposition that the grandchildren of Skaggs and Wyckholme are not going to divorce or marry anybody while I'm here. Britt and Saunders and Bowles to the contrary. And Lady Deppingham is no fool. Come on and have something to warm the cockles."

"All right, old chap," Deppingham said, with a laugh. "I am chilled to the bone. I'll join you in a few minutes." To their surprise, he started off across the terrace in the direction of the consulting trio.

"Just the same, Chase," said Britt after a long silence, "he's worried, and not about marriage or divorce either. He's jealous. I didn't believe it was in him."

"See here, Britt; you've no right to stir him up with those confounded remarks about divorce. You know that it's rot. Don't do it."

"My dear Chase," said Britt, waving his hand serenely, "I can't help laughing at the position you're in at present. It doesn't matter what you get on to in connection with our side of the case, you're where you can't take advantage of it without getting killed by your own clients. Horrible paradox, eh?"

When Deppingham rejoined them he was pale and very nervous. His wife, who had been weeping, came up with him, while Browne went off toward the stables with the ex-banker.

"What do you think has happened?" demanded his lordship, addressing the two men, who stood by irresolutely. "Somebody's trying to poison us! Lady Deppingham's dog is dead—poisoned, gentlemen!" He was wiping the moisture from his brow.

"I'm sorry, Lady Deppingham," said Chase earnestly. "He was a nice dog. But I hardly think he could have eaten what was intended for any of us. If he was poisoned, the poison was meant for him and for no one else. He bit one of the stable boys yesterday. It"—

WILL STAND TRIAL ON MURDER CHARGE

Robert Henderson Accused Slayer of Margaret McPherson Committed for Trial in Norwood To-day—Apparently Attempted to Shoot Pursuers—Trial at Spring Assizes of High Court.

Special from Norwood.

Norwood, March 3.—Ever since the arrest of Robert Henderson on the charge of the assault on the Misses McPherson the liveliest interest has been shown in the case and when the prisoner was given his hearing this afternoon on the charge of murder which grew out of the death of Margaret, the elder of the two old ladies, the town hall was crowded with over 200 persons.

The evidence was practically the same as that given at the inquest and the prisoner was committed for trial by County Magistrate Edmison. He did not plead or elect. He will be given his trial before Mr. Justice Riddell at the spring assizes of the High Court before Mr. Justice Riddell on the 29th of this month. Mr. F. D. Kerr was at the hearing on behalf of the prisoner and County Crown Attorney Wood represented the Crown.

Henderson, who was in charge of High County Constable Cochrane displayed the same indifferent attitude that he has ever since his arrest—and gave no expression to his feelings except once, when he smiled broadly when witness Horabeck related the details of the chase of the prisoner on the railroad track after the assault.

Interesting evidence was given to the effect that Henderson's revolver was clicked twice during his pursuit by the posse of farmers and sectionmen. When the revolver was examined in court to-day it was found loaded with rim fire cartridges being placed in the magazine. As it was a central fire revolver these would not dislodge and it looks as though Henderson made a deliberate attempt to shoot his pursuers but could not do so owing to the wrong cartridges.

YOUNG ENGLISH LAD LEFT HIS UNHAPPY HOME

Was Given Night's Lodging at the Police Station—Ha Been Working for Farmer in Otonabee—Remanded for One Week.

Harry Wall, a bright and healthy looking young English lad, of sixteen years, applied at the police station last night for lodging, and he was taken in hand. This morning he sobbed bitterly as he stood up in the prisoner's box to answer to the charge that "he had no means of supporting himself." His explanation was to the effect that he came from England two years ago and was taken in charge by the Barnardo Home, at Ottawa. Later he was placed in the care of a farmer in Otonabee, and since then he had not been happy. He secured no wages and had to work hard. The young lad, in answer to the magistrate, said that he did not want to go back to the farmer, but his countenance brightened up to a noticeable degree when mention was made of a better position in the west, and he expressed a willingness to go to that country if he could be placed.

His Worship ordered a remand of one week, and in the meantime the youth will be looked after in the gaol and inquiries made, which may eventually result in the bettering of his circumstances.

As stated above, the lad is bright, and, to all appearances, well able and willing to give a good account of himself if given a chance, and should there be any who contemplate removing to the west and need any assistance, such as the youth might give, they should communicate with the police authorities.

The play is in four acts and the story of the drama, which is widely known, is a highly interesting one.

PECULIAR FEATURES OF CASE BEFORE BOARD OF WORKS

Water Backed up in House When Sewer Connection Was Blown and Owner of Terrace Wants City to Pay Part of Damage—High Sidewalks to be Protected—The Benson Street Curb.

There may be nothing new beneath the sun, but the Board of Works had a question before them last night that was a new one on the members. It grew out of some trouble in connection with the sewer on London street between George and Water streets, and as a result of a peculiar string of circumstances, Mr. S. Edwards, who owns a terrace on London street, is of the opinion that he has a claim against the city.

One day towards the end of February the sewage system would not work in one of the houses in Mr. Edwards' terrace. He sent for T. D. MacGregor, of MacGregor & Reid, and after making an examination Mr. MacGregor concluded that the main sewer was blocked. He telephoned Street Commissioner Evans and Mr. Evans with a number of the city's men, made an investigation. According to the report of Mr. Evans they found the sewer not running freely. After some time they got it working all right and found that the stoppage was in the connection leading to the house, and apparently near where the connecting pipe entered the sewer. The water was turned on to blow out the connection and the water backed up into one of the houses in the terrace attached to the same connection, and there were fifty-seven different kinds of trouble.

Mr. S. Edwards waited on the Board of Works last night and explained how it had happened and how much he was out of pocket.

Mr. MacGregor's bill was $27.45, and Mr. Edwards had to pay a woman $5.00 for cleaning the house. Mr. Edwards said more cleaning was necessary as the cellars would have to be cleaned, and he lost a good tenant as a result of the trouble.

Mr. MacGregor's version of the trouble differs from that of Mr. Edwards, and Mr. Edwards agreed with that of Mr. MacGregor.

Mr. Edwards claimed that the city was responsible for any damage resulting from a blocked sewer. The members of the Board of Works were not so sure about it and as the case was a new one, it was moved by Ald. Duffus and seconded by Ald. Gillespie that the city solicitor look into the matter.—Carried.

Take two Board of Works

A letter was read from Mr. Samuel Angelley stating that he had been a ratepayer of the city for several years no improvements had been made in the vicinity of his properties on Murray and Reid streets. He asked that the banks of the creek known as "Hamilton's creek," be cribbed and repaired and that a sewer connection be put in on Reid street. The question was referred to the City Engineer.

BENSON AVE. CURB.

The City Engineer reported on the proposed curb outside the tree line on Benson avenue. The total length would be 764 feet and the cost would be;

Plain curb, $267.40.

Curb and gutter $382.00.

It was pointed out that Mrs. Kidd and Dr. Pentland claimed that their property could not be assessed for the sidewalk built inside the tree line. If the curb were built they would be willing to pay the assessment.

The opinion was expressed that it would establish a bad precedent to build a curb on a street. In the past the custom had been for those wanting it to pay for it themselves. It was decided to take no action on the matter for the present.

HIGH SIDEWALKS.

In connection with protection of high sidewalks a report was received from the City Engineer giving a list of sidewalks that were dangerous and what it would cost to have railings put on. The total cost would be $201.40.

Ald. Phelan moved, seconded by the Mayor, that the work outlined by the City Engineer be gone on with.—Carried.

A request was received from N. T. Laplante asking for connection with the outfall sewer outside the city limits.

The chairman and City Engineer were authorized to go into this application and report to the committee.

An account was received from W. T. Carruthers for $6.15 for sewer connection. Mr. Carruthers was told there was a connection where one did not exist.

The Engineer recommended that Mr. Carruthers be paid $4.50.

On motion of Ald. Phelan and Ald. Gillespie, it was decided to pay Mr. Carruthers $6.15.

Ald. Metheral moved, seconded by Ald. Gillespie, that a pipe drain be laid on the north side of Charlotte from Park to Bethune streets.—Carried.

The question of building stands for the fire engine along the river came up again. It is one of the matters left over from last year. Ald. Hicks was of the opinion that while the Board of Works should do the work the cost should be borne by the Fire, Water and Light Committee.

Ald. Phelan agreed with this view.

On motion of Ald. Duffus and Ald. Phelan it was decided to build such stands as the Fire, Water and Light Committee may designate, the latter committee to provide the money.

No action was taken on Ald. Morgan's proposition to have a water fountain on Hunter street east to run all the year. The Engineer did not recommend it.

In connection with a letter from Robert Elliott it was decided to put some gravel on Wolfe street at Stewart.

Weir & O'Brien asked for a remission of street watering taxes, but it was not granted.

Several minor matters were also dealt with at the meeting. Those present were Ald. Hicks, chairman; Mayor Morrow and Ald. Phelan, Gillespie, Metheral and Duffus.

Entertained Employees

MacGregor & Reid gave their annual dinner to their staff at Coleman's last evening, when a very enjoyable time was spent. After a well served full course dinner was partaken of, Mr. MacGregor took the opportunity of thanking his staff for the very handsome carving set they had presented him with, and also spoke of his appreciation of their good work after the recent fire.

Phonograph selections were rendered, also music by different members of the staff, and a very happy evening was brought to a close by the singing of the National Anthem.

SECURED SETTING FOR PRODUCTION

Mr. R. J. Devey Was in Toronto in Connection With Earl Grey Competition

Mr. R. J. Devey went yesterday in Toronto arranging with the officials of the Royal Alexandra Theatre for the performance of the musical play at the Earl Grey Shield Competition early next month. Up to the present about sixteen settings for plays are expected to be called for, and the Peterborough amateurs were first in the field to take full advantage of the splendid equipment of the Alexandra. A piece of courtesy very much appreciated was lending a stage front to a tea house for the production here, which Mr. Devey brought back last night.

The locals are working hard, fully aware that not only has their own play a most difficult one to perform, but that in this competition they are up against entries from every musical centre in Canada, some of which have been organized for years. A specially selected cast is sparing no trouble in preparing the work, and the citizens of Peterborough will shortly have an opportunity of seeing and hearing the members in a comic opera, which has only been given once by amateurs in the Dominion of Canada.

Want Mr. Salton

At a special meeting of the Quarterly Official Board of the Methodist church held last evening, a practically unanimous invitation was extended to the Rev. G. F. Salton, of Strawford, to become the pastor of the church, at a salary of $1,700, duties to commence in June of 1911.—Port Hope Guide.

A SERIOUS PROBLEM

The Board of Education is face to face with a serious problem—that of keeping competent teachers in the schools of the city without increasing the salaries.

Peterborough has an excellent staff of teachers at the present time, but other towns and cities are now paying higher salaries than Peterborough is, and a serious problem arises as a result. Teachers are not as plentiful now as they once were, and the stage is being reached where the supply is not equal to the demand.

The rapid development of the west has caused a strong demand for teachers from that quarter, and with its characteristic spirit of progress, the west wants the best that is to be had. Money is freer there than in what the western newspapers call the "east," and high salaries are being paid teachers in that part of the Dominion. The result is that many of Ontario's best teachers are accepting positions in the newer provinces.

The Peterborough Board of Education wants a junior science teacher for the Collegiate Institute to fill the position which will be made vacant by the departure for the west of a gentleman who will receive a much higher salary there than the local Board could pay under the present schedule. The initial salary offered was $1,100 per year. Only five applications were received, and the Committee on Appointments would not recommend any one of the applicants for the position. Only one of the five who applied had a university degree. The average citizen may think that the salaries of teachers here are high enough, but when it is considered that higher salaries are being paid in the public schools of Toronto than in the local Collegiate Institute, the seriousness of the situation becomes apparent.

After all, the teachers are the big factor in the education of our youth. We may have fine schools and fine equipment, but if we have not good teachers, what does it all amount to? If Peterborough is not going to pay as much money to teachers as other towns and cities are doing, we will have the teachers that are left after other places have picked up the best. Are the ratepayers in favor of such a condition existing?

MOST HANDSOMELY DRESSED MUSICAL COMEDY STAR

GRACE LA RUE

Miss Grace La Rue will next Tuesday night, March 8th, appear at the Grand Opera House, in a new comic opera, "Molly May," which is the joint work of Walter Browne and Julian Edwards. The musical numbers are the best in melodious quality that have come from the pen of Julian Edwards, and he has supplied undoubtedly more tuneful music to stage successes of the last decade than any other composer. 'Dolly Varden,' 'Love's Lottery,' 'The Gay Musician,' and 'Brian Boru,' are among these popular successes. Walter Browne, an active newspaper man, is the author of the book the story and text of which sparkle with the keen and irresistible fun of the late W. S. Gilbert. A new waltz song, said to be of exceptional charm, is used as a finale for the three acts, and becomes a spirited feature of the last act, when the two principals dance delightfully to its graceful and sensuous movement.

Miss La Rue has long been known as the most beautifully dressed actress on the stage, and art critics have showered her with compliments because of her tasteful and sartorial displays. Her gowns are her own creations and are marvelous exhibitions of exceeding cost and exquisite taste. While her costumes have aroused exceptional interest, and are dreams of color and style, her present position of preferred favor with the general public is directly due to her unusual talents as a comedienne and charming singing and dancing ability. Miss La Rue is supported by a notable cast, as may be seen by the following names:—Sidney Grant, James E. Sullivan, Eva Fallon, Kate Rolla, George Odell, Frances Keenan, J. H. Goldsworthy. The chorus is big and unusually well chosen, and the production in its entirety is magnificent.

WERE ARRESTED ON THE STREET

Young Man and Woman Taken Into Custody, and Case Was Enlarged Till Monday

A young man and woman were arrested on the street last night, and at the police court this morning both were charged with vagrancy. Each pleaded not guilty, and an enlargement till Monday was made, the defendants being allowed out on their own recognizance.

The young woman appeared in the court some time ago, but as there was no evidence against her, she was discharged. Since that time, she has had no permanent abode, and receiving information from Toronto that she in company with the young man, was coming to this city, for purposes other than for which the law provides, Chief Rezel gave orders for the apprehension of both.

NEW STYLES IN CARRIAGES

That the styles in carriages and run-abouts, is as variable as those found in the millinery parlors is evident to a visitor to the carriage warerooms of Mr. John Succee, 370 Water street. Every vehicle is a distinct and catchy style, and a choice should be easily made from the splendid assortment shown.

GEORGE STREET CHAMPIONS OF CITY BASKET BALL LEAGUE

The City Basketball League closed last night when George street church won the championship by defeating the Y.M.C.A. team by a score of 38 to 9.

The game was a good exhibition of basketball and the losers had more of the play than the score would indicate. The notable features of the game were the team work of the winners, Creasman's shooting and the poor shooting of the "Y" players.

The lineup was as follows:

Y.M.C.A.—Martin, M. Miller, McCarrell, Bartlett 2, McLaughlin 7.

Referee Laing. Timekeeper Nichols. Scorer Hastie.

AN EXPLANATION OF THE MIX-UP

Between Dusty and Lehman, During Brantford-Berlin Game

The Brantford Expositor has the following to say in explaining the mixup between Dusty and Lehman:—

The row was precipitated, even as it was, by Lehman, the Berlin goalkeeper. Ben Dusty, by a quick piece of work, jumped through the statuelike defence of the visitors, and banged the puck in for Brantford's eighth goal, right off Lehman's stick, himself falling into the Berlin nets. This was enough to arouse the Dutch goalkeeper, but it was a clean, pretty piece of work. A minute later Dusty started a similar play and again getting in close to Lehman, the latter chopped severely at the Brantford player. In a jiffy the pair were at it, having cast aside their sticks, and Dusty put Lehman down. At that, it was a mere hugging match, an affair witnessed in almost every kind of game played at one time or another, but the players came up and made it worse. In a jiffy Jim Jeffries' punches and Johnsonian sidestepping featured the play, while the crowd looked on, breathless with excitement, wondering where it would all end. During this interval, there was a ponderous hammering at the gate to the ice and there finally emerged Chief Slemin and Sergeant Wallace. Both officers jumped into the fray as if it were milk for them at breakfast, and while the crowd found its voice and commenced to yell, the next piece to the play was the exit. Chief Slemin had Corbeau and Wallace had Dusty, and they had them so they couldn't get away. Both players were arrested on the spot and taken to the police station, where they were bailed out. It only took another minute for Manager Williams to call quits.)

The Expositor adds:—Great team that Berlin bunch to send to Ottawa, better by far send them right to the Senate than for the Stanley Cup.

Ben Dusty can hold his own some at the manly art.

Courier:—Dusty must be a soft ice player. The condition of the ice did not bother him and he was the star of the team.

SPORTING NOTES

For the Ottawa-Wanderer game on Saturday $1 will be asked for standing room and 50c. for the rush end.

Fred Whatcrett is still under the care of a physician.

While Small may play league games with Ottawa, he will not be permitted to take part in Stanley Cup games.

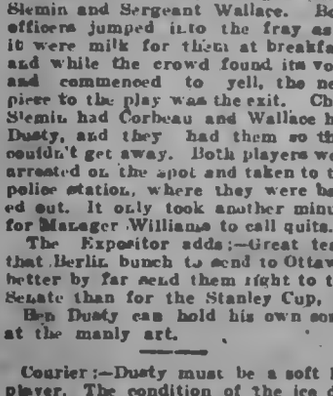
Mike Donlan, formerly of the New York Giants, appears at the Royal Alexandra in Toronto next week.



GOTCH WINS THIS ONE TOO

Chicago, March 2.—World's Champion Wrestler Frank Gotch made short work of Jimmy Eason, of Aberdeen, Scotland, in their match at the Coliseum, scoring his victory in two straight falls. The foreigner was no match, and had little to offer in the way of offence. Gotch was in great form and his deadly and famous toe hold soon gained him the first fall. It took him just 13.23 to win the second fall and match with a crotch and chancery.

Gotch started after the Scot as if he intended to make short work of him. He rushed Eason through the ropes twice in the opening minutes, and forced the foreigner to do his prettiest on defence. The champion made numerous efforts to put on his famous toe lock, and when he did Eason was forced over so he was back for the first fall, his face showing only too plainly the pain that he suffered from the grip. The time of the fall was 11.25.

WINNIPEG TEAM TIED TRENTON

Trenton, March 2.—An exhibition game of hockey was played here tonight between the Northern Crown Bank players of Winnipeg, and the intermediates. At half time the score stood 2—1 in favor of Trenton. Full time 3 to 3. (The line up:—

CHURCH LEAGUE GAME TO-NIGHT

St. Andrew's and George St. Meet at 8.30 O'Clock at the Auditorium

St. Andrew's and George street Church League teams will meet at the Auditorium rink to-night at 8.30 o'clock. A win for the Presbyterians will give them the championship, but in case George street takes the game both teams will be tied, and another game will be necessary to decide which team takes the Burnham Cup. The ice is in fair condition today and should be much better by the time the contest is called.

Printers' Errors.

A certain great authority on Jerusalem was in the habit of contracting the name of the city in his manuscripts to "Jerus." In one of his books upon the subject he described the sensations which attended his approach to the famous city. After reaching the summit of a hill "the glorious panorama of Jerusalem," he wrote, "was spread before us." Owing to the usual contrariety, the genial compositor rendered this "the glorious panorama of Jones was spread before us." A misprint which will always bear repetition is that concerned with the sailor's wife who wished it to be announced, "A sailor going to sea, his wife desires the prayers of the congregation." This got itself rendered into "A sailor going to see his wife desires the prayers of the congregation." Before we condemn the compositor who perpetrated this, however, we must bear in mind the possible nature of his own domestic relations. Another excellent one is that of the editor who wrote, "When Mrs. Jones lectured on 'Dress' she wore nothing that was remarkable." How the compositor came to the conclusion that this should read "When Mrs. Jones lectured on 'Dress' she wore nothing—that was remarkable!" is a mystery.—P. T.'s London Weekly.

BETWEEN THE LEAVES

The Will That Was Left by Eccentric Old John Leyden.

By JENNIE E. SARGENT.

The good people of Leydenville were wrought up to a fine pitch of righteous indignation, but if old Henry Leyden, three days in his grave, could have heard the comments which followed the reading of his will he would probably have chuckled just as he had done in bygone days when his neighbors had discussed his domestic or business affairs.

The will was a marvel of simplicity, and Judge Barrow declared that no court on earth would set it aside. Nevertheless the women who loved Lucy Leyden for her gentle disposition and kindly heart openly grieved. The men who had admired John Willoughby's brave struggle against heavy odds swore at the deceased roundly for a stubborn meddler with fate. Even Miss Polly Fowler, who had taught them both at the little red schoolhouse, had been heard to remark in a tone not wholly devoid of fear at her own "brashness," that, while she didn't wish anybody bad luck, she shouldn't shed tears if she heard Henry Leyden had met his "come-uppance" in the next world.

But the fact remained that the dead man had bequeathed his stock in the Decatur and Leydenville road to his nephew, Ben Morris; his stock in the Leydenville bank to a distant home for cripples (Henry Leyden had been afflicted from birth with a clubfoot), and, after a few scattered bequests to distant relatives, to Lucy he had left only the old homestead and all personal property found thereon at the time of his death.

This at least assured Lucy and her mother the same refuge that had been open to them ten years before, when George Leyden went the way of prodigal sons, leaving the two women to the mercies of his crochety but wealthy brother. But the income that had supported the homestead died with its owner, and the question of how it was to be kept up agitated all Leydenville.

Lucy and John Willoughby had been engaged for four years, but the girl's uncle had stood firmly against the marriage. John had a mother and two sisters dependent upon him. He could not add to this burden, and the shrewd banker proposed to adopt no nephew-in-law, however worthy the young man might be.

The two young people did not attempt to veil their disappointment, but they had more serious matters on hand. The handsome house, tucked in the rapidly growing business section of the town, yielded not a cent of income. Mrs. Leyden was one of the clinging, dependent sort of women, and Lucy knew that she must face the problem alone.

John suggested that they sell the place and, taking a small cottage, live off the income of a safe, conservative investment of the balance. But Lucy protested against the sacrilege. She knew that it was her uncle's wish that she should continue to occupy the old house.

Lucy thought they might take roomers and boarders, but John pictured the pert young clerks from the freight offices or the dapper youths from the "Boston store" waited upon by his Lucy, and the plan died a violent death. It was Mrs. Leyden—limp, phlegmatic Mrs. Leyden—who finally solved the problem.

"You ain't thought of the library, Lucy. You remember how your Uncle Henry always talked about it. He had been years collecting those old books. Lots of them go as far back as the Revolution, and some of the oldest were printed in England before there was any America. Don't you remember how he used to walk up and down this room and shake his head at the books, saying, 'Emmy, there's thousands in this room—thousands?' I know he paid ridiculous prices for some of them. Maybe there's others as daffy about old books as he was."

John's face brightened, and he took both of Lucy's hands in his.

"That's it, Lucy. We'll have a buyer come up from the city and look them over. There may be a fortune in them, and you need money more than those musty old things."

Lucy did not answer at once. There was a strong strain of sentiment in her nature, and she loved especially this old library where her uncle had spent his last days.

Nevertheless that night she indited a letter to a noted collector in Boston and two days later received a note stating that Mr. Henry Leyden's library was famous enough to warrant his sending a representative to Leydenville. His buyer would arrive the following morning.

And that night came the deluge. Lucy was "sitting up" with Mrs. Henderson's little boy, who had typhoid fever. John was to call for her at 12, when another neighbor would take up the task.

At 10 the fire bell rang. Something told Lucy it was her home, and she sprang to her feet. It was a half mile run, and when she reached there, breathless, the bucket brigade, enforced by the one engine the town could boast, had done its worst. The parlor was blackened and water soaked, the dining room was charred, and the—library? Lucy pushed past sympathetic neighbors and stared wildly into the room. The shelves were bare!

"Better come over to Dobson's, Lucy. Your mother's just come out of a faint."

Mechanically she walked with him down the narrow path, away from the ruin that had wrung her heart. Finally she could stand it no longer. She burst into sobs.

"John, John, the books are gone too!"

John put his arm about her.

"No, they're not, little girl. They're in Dobson's hearse."

Lucy broke off in the midst of a sob and stared at him in the moonlight.

"It's a fact, dear. When the fire got beyond your mother and me the books were the first thing we thought of saving. Dobson's hearse was standing in his barn, and we ran it right through the fence, up against the library window, and your mother shoved the books into the hearse as fast as I piled them out to her. Jimmy Dobson helped too."

Lucy burst into laughter. The absurdity of the situation roused her from her misery. The Dobson undertaking establishment was next door to their home, and the hearse, the only one in town, was the glory of its owner.

"I hope you didn't hurt it," she murmured.

"That's not what's worrying me. It's how much insurance your uncle carried on the house and whether we spoiled the chances of selling the books. Some of them got wet."

Lucy and her mother remained that night with the hospitable Dobsons and the next morning, with John, went out to look at the books and ascertain the damage before the buyer appeared on the scene. They made an odd picture, the anxious group pulling the old volumes through the end doors of the gloomy hearse. Suddenly Jimmy Dobson, who by reason of his brave conduct the night before was privileged to join the party, gave a long, low whistle.

"Gee, look at the money!"

In one hand he held a worn leather bound volume, in the other a hundred dollar bill.

Mrs. Leyden clutched her daughter's arm and stared at the wonderful greenback.

"'Emmy, there's thousands in it—thousands!' Those were his very words. And he didn't mean books. He meant money, real money. It was one of his queer ideas to hide it there."

When the book buyer arrived he was graciously received by Lucy in the Dobson parlor. There was a suspicion of happy tears in her eyes when she told him the offer was withdrawn. She would reimburse him for his railroad fare and asked him to accept any volume he might choose in return for the trouble she had caused him, whereupon that gentleman selected one of the rarest books in the collection and departed with the mental comment that women were certainly most changeable creatures.

For how could he know that between the leaves of that collection four excited people had found that old Henry Leyden was no false prophet? There were thousands in it. Neither did the good people of Leydenville know just how many bills had been discovered on that eventful morning, but this did not prevent their rejoicing greatly over the turn in events or their attending in a body the wedding of John and Lucy, which six months later was duly solemnized in the First church, the largest edifice in Leydenville.

RHEUMATISM WEATHER THIS

But Dodd's Kidney Pills Always Cure Rheumatism

What They Did for W. H. Craine, and Why They Always Cure Rheumatism—They Remove the Cause.

Toronto, Ont., March 2.—(Special.)—In these days of sudden changes of temperature known to so many suffering people as Rheumatism weather, the experience of W. H. Craine, of 103 Gladstone Ave., this city, is of widespread interest. Mr. Craine suffered from Rheumatism. He is cured and he knows the cure, for it was Dodd's Kidney Pills.

"Yes, I know Dodd's Kidney Pills cured my Rheumatism," Mr. Craine states. "For after I started taking them I used no other medicine. I never cease recommending Dodd's Kidney Pills to my friends."

Dodd's Kidney Pills cure Rheumatism by putting the Kidneys in condition to strain the uric acid out of the blood. It is uric acid in the blood that causes Rheumatism. Cold or damp causes it to crystalize at the muscles and joints and then comes those tortures every rheumatic knows only too well. Dodd's Kidney Pills cure Rheumatism by curing the Kidneys. The cured Kidneys remove the cause of the Rheumatism.

Insurance Companies Lose About $125,000.00 by the Wreck at Spanish River

Double Liability for About Twenty-five Persons

A loss somewhere in the neighbourhood of $125,000 is what the Accident Insurance Companies estimate the wreck at Spanish River bridge means to them.

They figure that about 25 of those who met death carried Accident Insurance, and the average insurance, according to the tables, is $5,000. In case of death in a railway disaster there is a double liability, making the figure $6,000, or $5,000 to be more conservative.

Their loss may total more than that, for the commercial travellers, a number of whom were killed, usually carry very heavy insurance. In addition, some of the companies make the policies payable on the death of the wife while travelling, though the policy is taken out in the husband's name. In such cases they pay the husband the same amount as they would have paid the wife were the husband killed.

We issue the BEST Accident and Sickness policy offered to the public.

RHEUMATISM CURED

Zam-Buk Rubbed Well in is a Sure Remedy.

As soon as you feel any deep-seated pain in the joints, back, wrists, or elsewhere, place a liberal supply of Zam-Buk on the fingers or on the the palm of the hand and rub it well in. The penetrating power of this "embrocation-balm" is exceedingly great, and, once having reached the seat of the pain, it removes it speedily. It also ends the stiffness, which is so unpleasant.

Frequent rubbings of the afflicted parts with Zam-Buk will not only drive out all pain, reduce swelling, etc., but will strengthen the skin and tissues, and enable them to resist cold and damp.

Mrs Frances Wyatt, of 25 Guy avenue, Montreal, says: "I have found Zam-Buk most soothing and valuable in a very bad case of rheumatism, and also for stiffness of joints and muscles. I suffered long and acutely with rheumatism, and tried one liniment after another in vain. I also took medicines internally, but it remained for Zam-Buk to effect a cure. I began applying this balm whenever I felt the aches and pains of rheumatism coming on, or felt the stiffness. The result was truly wonderful. Zam-Buk seemed to penetrate to the very seat of the pains, driving them out completely, and I am now quite cured."

This case, and scores of similar cases reported to us, is proof that Zam-Buk's penetrating and healing power is very great. In addition to its use as an embrocation, it is a sure cure for skin diseases such as eczema, ringworm, ulcers, blood-poisoning, scalp sores, etc., and is the finest known "first aid." For piles it is a specific. Gives certain ease. All druggists and stores, at 50 cents a box, or post free from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, for price.

Senator Root, in a letter read in both houses of the Legislature at Albany, urged the adoption of the income tax amendment.

CONEY ISLAND.

The Millions It Takes in Mostly in Nickels and Dimes.

During the season last summer seven to eight million people made 20,000,000 trips to Coney Island. They spent there $45,000,000, mostly in nickels and dimes, and the total sum was three times what this nation paid to Napoleon for Louisiana or six times what we paid Russia for Alaska.

There are in Coney Island peanut stands the size of a broad top desk which rent for $1,500 a season. The men who sell frankfurters pay enormous sums for the right to stand where they do and get their money back in the nickels of the twenty millions.

On week days the attendance is large, but on Sundays and holidays it rises to a point where each visitor has room only to be happy standing still. On the Fourth of July 400,000 people crowded into the little island, bathed, took the chutes, were photographed and ate "redhots." It was believed then that Coney would not hold a single additional visitor, but on Aug. 15 a new hundred thousand came, making half a million in one day.

It is a wonderful business, this Coney Island, but a very risky one. The 900,000,000 nickels depend upon the weather. When the mercury drops, profits fall to nothing. If a plague should break out and the island be quarantined, boats would stop running and the people would stay in their city homes. The Coney Island farmer must harvest his crop of nickels while the sun shines.—Success Magazine.

Mr. Hewlett and America.

Maurice Hewlett has never been in America. "I have never been and I do not know that I shall ever go," is the way Mr. Hewlett puts it recently. "It seems to me that it would be a terribly upsetting journey, and I hate to be upset. I know that I should loathe New York just as I loathe London, which I hate so much that I always write there, because there is nothing pleasant to distract me." When Mr. Hewlett is writing he lives in the exclusive Northwick terrace, hard by St. John's wood, in a house of white stucco, brass trimmed and bordered with flowers. He has, however, a favorite country place near Salisbury, where, as he puts it, "the life is so adorable that I have not strength of mind sufficient to give it up and tie myself to my desk." The dislike of travel may be at the root of Mr. Hewlett's disinclination to come to America, or something else may be. "You raging Americans," he said to a companion recently—"you raging Americans do not conceal your feelings well. There is no reason why you should."—Argonaut.

Pacific's First Concrete Pier.

The first concrete pier on the Pacific coast, and a big one it is, has been completed recently. Extending in a straight line 1,800 feet out into the Pacific ocean, this latest example in wharf construction is at Santa Monica, where the longest wharf in the world—the Southern Pacific railroad's pier at Port Los Angeles—is already located. So far—and the piles of the landward end of the new pier have been in position for several months—the sea has not made the slightest impression on the concrete posts. Teredos, those sea worms which make the life of the wharf builder a continuous nightmare, are powerless to penetrate the new piles. Barnacles cling to them in small numbers, but can do no damage, while the strongest waves of the sea break aimlessly against the smooth concrete and without deleterious results to the wharf which they support.—Cassier's Magazine.

The Oasis.

Opening of a railroad from a point near Luxor into the Libyan desert has rendered easy the approach to the oasis of Kharga, which is regarded as a typical example of these isolated centers of life. The Libyan oases are deep depressions in a lofty plateau which has a maximum elevation of nearly 2,000 feet, but the bottom of the oases are only from 100 to 300 feet above sea level. They are underlain by beds of sandstone, which are the sources of the water supply. Artesian wells 400 feet deep form practically inexhaustible means of irrigation, and such deep wells have been used from ancient times. The depressions were once the bed of lakes, and the water in the sandstone probably has its sources in the Abyssinian highlands.

A Cheap Bit of Real Estate.

Out in the shallows of Jamaica bay and within the city limits a man of the name of Meacham owns a bit of property which is valued on the tax books of New York city at 50 cents, and every year the tax assessors have to "view" it officially. This is probably the smallest parcel on the assessment books in New York if not in the world. It is a small cherry tree standing about fifteen feet above the water. According to the law in these matters, the tax assessors must view the property to be assessed "on the spot," and every year they row out to the tree and while there declare the tax of 50 cents.—New York Tribune.

Will Halley's Comet Touch Earth?

Whether Halley's comet will strike the earth, as the recent computations of Father Searle suggest, is still an indeterminable problem. This astronomer's calculations indicate that the famous comet will cross the face of the sun on May 18. If so, its great nebulous mass will doubtless pass near us but that it will actually graze our planet can be positively ascertained only by later observations of the diameter of the comet's head and its exact path during May relatively to the earth's orbit.—New York Herald.

A BACHELOR'S NEW YEAR.

How He Spends the Day Before Swearing Off Matrimony Again.

"How do you intend to spend New Year's day?" was asked of a confirmed old bachelor who has luxurious rooms in a big city hotel.

"Oh, about as usual. I will visit several of my married friends, take notes of their little worries and watch the antics of their irrepressible children. I will probably have ice cream poured into my hat and sticky candies hid in my coat pockets. I will see frowns on the faces of the husbands and added wrinkles in the eyes of the pretty wives of a few years ago.

"Then I will come back to my cozy bachelor quarters, and over a quiet glass of wine and a good cigar I will swear off matrimony for another year. Have done it for twenty years now and never regretted it, and I guess I'll keep right along in the same old way."

The Same Age.

Colonel Ed Butler, the veteran St. Louis politician, has been in failing health the past few years. On his last visit to Kansas City he was talking to an old friend, a physician.

"Doc," said the colonel, "I wish you would tell me what is the matter with my right leg. The left one is in good shape, but this right one has been growing gradually weaker for two years, and at times it pains me a great deal."

Questioning developed that he had not had a fall or strain or hurt the suffering member in any way. "It can be caused by only one thing," said the physician, "and that is old age. You must remember, colonel, you are no longer a young man."

"Old age nothing!" exclaimed Butler. "Isn't the other leg the same age?"—Kansas City Post.

Sounded Queer.

"Young man," he said severely, "we don't mind a few exaggerations, but you have been going a little too strong."

"In what way, sir?" asked the surprised pen pusher.

"Why, in your article on Colonel Roosevelt in the jungle you state that immediately after dispatching the ferocious lion he called for a taxi. Now, any greenborn would know that there are no taxicabs in Africa."

"I didn't allude to a taxicab, sir."

"You didn't?"

"No; I meant a taxidermist."—Chicago News.

Just a Trifle.

"How is your courtship coming along?"

"Oh, fairly well."

"Are you getting any nearer her father?"

"A trifle since fall began. We've moved in from the front veranda to the parlor, and he's moved in from the back porch to the kitchen."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Didn't Look Far Enough.

Smithkins—I thought you were going to see the old year out at Clubberly's last night. I was there at 12, but didn't see anything of you.

Jagby—You didn't go far enough, old man. You should have looked under the table.

Rough on Pop.

"Mamma, I don't understand some of these words. What's the difference between a dialogue and a monologue?"

"No difference at all, Johnny, if your father is taking any part in the conversation."—Chicago Tribune.

Soaked.

Haskins—I suppose you have put your summer duds up with camphor balls to keep the moths away.

De Broke—No; I have put them up with gilded balls to keep the wolf away.—Boston Transcript.

Those Pursed Up Lips.

"Why do you pout, girl?"

"He went away without kissing me."

"Better pout while the young man is around. He might take the hint."—Washington Herald.

His New Year Gift.

Wife—On Christmas day you came around with a nice gown, and now you come around on New Year's with nothing but a measly little pincushion!

Husband—And tomorrow I shall probably come around with a sheriff.

Not Necessary.

Edith—Did he kiss you for your mother?

Edna—I didn't ask any irrelevant questions.—Chicago News.

Warning For New Year Swearers.

There's one thing we desire to say
Without prejudice or bias—
If you swear off on New Year's day,
Please remember Ananias.

A plot to wreck a railroad train was unearthed through the arrest of a band of boys in Greenwich, Conn.

A NEW YEAR'S JINGLE.

Here again! And here's a greeting
To the many I am meeting
Who have manners it would certainly be well to readjust—
The financial scare creator
And the coal manipulator
And the very often mentioned "bold and overbearing trust."

And the folk who fill the papers
With strange stories of their capers,
From paying wild election bets to running off with cash.
And the bore who comes and gayly
Leaves the door wide open daily—
May they formulate resolves too strong for anything to smash!

Happy New Year to the charmer
(May no chance occur to harm her)
Who jilted the admirers she had captured by the score
And the girl who wakes creation
With her weird vocalization!
Let us hope they'll both endeavor not to do so any more.

There's an old unique offender
(One is tempted to be tender;
But, alas, more than the others does he need to mend his way)—
He whose perennial stamina
Warms with sad enthusiasm
And who'll gayly break tomorrow every vow he made today.

—Washington Star.

Well Equipped.

"Are you ready to meet that solemn event in every man's existence, the New Year?" asked the meditative man.

"You bet I am," replied his flippant friend. "I have more material for swearing off than I ever had before in my life."

Fable of the Ape and the Goat.

Said the Ape to himself, "I ought to let old Whiskers in on these good things and I will!"

Acting upon this generous impulse, he leaned over and let drop an armful of cocoanuts, which, landing in quick succession, like shots from a rapid firing gun, right in the middle of the Goat's bump of knowledge, broke his neck.

New Year's Reminder.

Fred—What under the sun do you suppose my tailor means by sending me a copy of Pollock's "Course of Time?"

Jack—Mean, old boy? Why, it must be a reminder for you to settle then. He can't expect us fellows to pay before.

Cingalese English.

The menu is an indispensable adjunct to a respectable luncheon or dinner table in Ceylon. As a rule, the head servant writes it out, and from his elementary knowledge of English springs a host of quaint blunders. At the same time, his fertile Oriental brain is ever apt to add foot-notes, which are, perhaps, his happiest achievement.

At one lunch there figured, among the dishes, "roast beef," but it caused the hostess some consternation when she discovered the additional legend in very small letters, "roast beef, smelling a little," the parenthetical note being meant to intimate that the dish was accompanied by a sauce of savory odors.

On another occasion there appeared this following acknowledgment of deficiency, "steak and kidney pie, no kidney."

It was altogether delightful to find at one dinner our old friend, welsh rabbit, appearing as "welsch rubbish." The same genius translated haricot mutton into "hurrygod mutton."—The Epicure.

HINTS RESPECTING RABIES IN DOGS

Adanted From Seventy-Ninth Annual Report of Royal Society for Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, London, Eng

SYMPTOMS OF RABIES.

The eccentric habits of some dogs are often mistaken for symptoms of rabies; therefore it is necessary to remember any peculiar actions of a dog when inquiring into its condition of health.

Moreover, dogs are subject to maladies which are often mistaken for rabies. Epileptic fits, for instance, have been taken as signs of the madness. In an epileptic convulsion the dog falls on its side and emits a frothy saliva from its mouth; the attack lasts only a few minutes and the dog entirely recovers in half an hour.

It is not possible to make a statement on paper of the symptoms of rabies which cannot be understood; therefore an owner should obtain the advice of a skilled person as soon as he becomes alarmed by his dog's manner and illness.

A dog will lap water, for it does not dread fluids when rabid; it never suffers from hydrophobia. (Note—Rabies is the disease in the animal; hydrophobia is the disease in the human being.) Foaming at the mouth, raging madness and fits are the last form of rabies. The first signs are seen in the habits—the dog's behaviour is entirely changed, and its countenance is altered. An affected animal becomes dull, gloomy, and taciturn, and tries to hide itself in out-of-the way places, or, when spoken to by its master, it looks up apparently with an effort to the cheerful, its countenance dropping the moment afterwards into an expression of wretchedness, and its eyes staring with a sad void in them; sometimes it collects dirty pieces of rope, which it hides; or it is restless the moment it lies down, finding no place comfortable, seeking rest, but finding none; or it seems to be under fitful delusions and fancies at seeing things or hears sounds, and starts at them, and subsides the moment afterwards into sullenness. Its temper generally changes from natural sociability to disagreeableness. In many instances it vomits, the ejected matter being streaked with blood. Though surly, it is not vicious at this stage of the malady, but, on the contrary, it is unusually affectionate; and yet its expressions of love seem tinged with a melancholy which impresses a careful observer with the unhappy thought that the poor creature is conscious of its serious condition, and of a danger to its friends that it may be the agent of. Sometimes it shows distrust, preferring solitude to the company of those it has loved; at others an imploring, despairing appeal is made to its master to save it from impending disaster. The master's voice always has a semi-magical influence on it. In more decided cases, it snaps at the air, apparently seeking for something it cannot find, and scrapes incessantly. These are bad signs, especially if, at the same time the poor creature becomes fastidious in feeding, or refuses food which it formerly was partial to, and, instead, shows a morbid disposition to eat carpet, wool, wood, earth, stones, excrement, etc. When the above signs are present, or any of them are sufficiently present to alarm its owner, the animal should be isolated, and a veterinary surgeon should be called in, and no child should be permitted to go near it. When the peculiar noise is heard, which is neither a snarl, nor a growl, nor a bark, nor a howl, but all of these, in which the howl predominates, then no doubt can be felt. Generally a rabid dog tries to escape from its master, probably fearing to injure him and others whom it loves; and then it wanders—moving along with no visible object or aim but still going on and on, frequently at a quick pace until its strength fails.

DO NOT KILL A DOG THAT HAS BITTEN ANYONE.

It is needless in this paper to refer to the succeeding stages of the malady; but the reader is cautioned against the superstition that an occult relation exists between a rabid dog and a person bitten by it. This notion often leads to the immediate sacrifice of a dog, (whether it is rabid or not indeed of) to the isolation of the animal, and allowing an interval to elapse in order to test its real condition. How frequently would this course, if adopted, relieve an injured person from terror and even uncertainty and save a valuable animal! (Note—A dog suspected of having rabies, especially one that has bitten other dogs, or people, should be captured and placed in confinement, and its condition carefully studied for, at least, ten days.)

A DEFENCE OF THE FARMER

To the Editor of the Review.

Dear Sir,—Now that every newspaper is full of expressions re the cost of living and the reason for and solution of the evil, it seems an opportune time to give publicity to a few facts that are plain, and ideas that have occurred to the writer.

The tendency for all things is to move along the lines of least resistance, and so with the farmer, since the city has become more attractive for his boys than his home, in ways that are many, the brave sons of the soil are ever migrating to the cities.

This will continue and labor for the farmer will be scarce and prices for produce will mount even higher until the country home is made more attractive, both for the native sons and the emigrant, who has labor to sell.

Experience has taught the writer that a man raised on the farm is by far the most reliable, and if we are to get results from the fields it is to this class that we must turn our hopes. Therefore, the thing to be desired is—keep the young men on the farms. But how are we to do it?

To-day the farmer is the most painstaking and hardest worker in the whole army of men. Why, if he were paid for the brain-work and overtime of hard toil, he would receive a greater salary than any city worker. But what does he get? Often and often bitter disappointment and a life of care and economy must be exercised to eke out a bare existence.

To my mind the farmer has never had a fair chance with the rest of humanity, and still, in spite of this, the sons of the soil have mounted to the highest positions in the land. To attain these exalted positions, the farm has had to be deserted and left far behind. But it was on the farm where true economy and the worth of things were learned—lessons which usually stay with these men through life because the teacher was stern necessity.

If it were not that some or many poor are feeling the pinch of poverty through the high price of food, it would seem ridiculous to kick because the farmer happens to get a few cents more for his eggs or butter than of yore, when we hesitate not to pay any old price to see a show that happens to come to town.

The real difference is that in the former case the money stops in the country and returns to the spender again, but in the latter it goes into the pockets in most instances of some stock or show concern that has no home, or even country.

It is not that our farmer gets so much above what he did years ago, when it is compared with the extra expense he is put to in the production, but it is the middle men who are getting the benefit. Under the present condition of affairs the farmer is practically at the mercy of the merchant and the middle man and this condition has been brought about by the disgraceful estate of the highways. At the seasons the farmer wishes to market his crops the roads are in such a condition that he cannot come to town with a load, and he therefore must sell to a dealer who uses the railway, and who sets the price to the consumer. Here, at least, are two profits tacked onto the price the farmer originally got for his produce. Besides, this system is not satisfactory. People who buy would be better pleased if they knew where the stuff came from, and how long it had been hauled out before coming to them.

If someone is to get the extra price that city folks are kicking about, why should it not go where it belongs—to the farmer who worked for and produced the necessary things we must have? Has he not a right to the full of what he has earned and produced? The farmer has been the slave for the rest of the world, and when it comes to giving him a fair deal we all put up a royal kick. Until the mass of the people learn that it is to the interest of all to give the farmer facilities for trading direct with the townspeople by giving his decent highways upon which to come to town, high prices will continue and the profit will not go into the pocket of the farmer either; and until the people as a whole demand that adequate highways shall be constructed and maintained throughout the country, so long will the young farmer desert his home for the more attractive life in the city, and so long will there be neglected farms and high prices.

When a city's streets get vile and dangerous who raises the row, is it the patient worker? No, it is the business man and the man of pleasure. If one says, "My business suffers from bad streets," and the man of pleasure says, "The streets are positively dangerous."

Who loves the country more than the city man? Yet he cannot live there because he cannot conveniently get about. There are no good roads so he also is forced to live where life be easy—in the city—and, consequently there being only farmers and workers in the country, we have no champion to take up the burden of highways.

The essential thing necessary to turn the faces of the people back to the soil and make farming and country life a pleasure is good highways.

It will work wonders in Old Ontario, which, for productive wealth, is the gem of America.

The burden of good road maintenance should not fall wholly on the farmer, but on the community at large and the main trunk roads should be under the care of a permanent commission.

Thanking you for this space in your valuable paper, I am,

Yours truly,

W. E. TRETHEWEY.

WILL PROVINCE OR THE C.N.R. BUILD LINES INTO CLAY BELT?

J. W. Johnston of West Hastings, Proposes That Ontario Should Build Her Own Colonization Road Into the Hinterland.

Toronto, March 4.—"Why not continue the good work of the T. & N.O. Railway, and give us a colonization road under the control of the people of the province, to bring in the settlers, and fill up the hinterland of Ontario?" said J. W. Johnson (W. Hastings) in the Legislature yesterday afternoon when speaking of his motion for a return of the House showing what steps, if any, the C.N.R. had taken to build the road into the clay belt for which the subsidy of 4,000 acres a mile was granted last session.

It was now within five or six weeks, he pointed out, of the time within which work had to be begun by the C.N.R. His eyes had been opened by last year's legislative trip. He had expected to see only muskeg and a good deal of rock. He saw the Cobalt mines and magnificent timber country.

If the C.N.R. agreement was not carried out in the near future, he offered Government ownership as an alternative. He thought, however, that there should be a partnership between the Government and Mackenzie and Mann for the colonization of the north country. There was no use looking to the C.P.R. or the G. T.P. All their colonization efforts were being directed to the west.

Mr. Gamey declared emphatically that the Government should spend money on a bigger scale in Northern Ontario. It didn't matter to him who built the road, but it should be built for colonization purposes. He favored the partnership idea, however. It would pay the province to give Mackenzie and Mann $1,000,000 or $2,000,000 on condition that they placed 100,000 people on the land inside two, three or four years. They could do it better than the Government. The railways were in the colonization business.

"The settlers should be put on the land in a way that they will be able to live when they get there," he continued. "You will never colonize the north country in the present way, by putting one settler on each section. Find somebody in the colonization business who is able to put in 100,000 or 200,000 people and build up the country. It is the biggest question in Ontario to-day."

Hon. J. J. Foy carried the second reading of a bill to increase the number of high court judges for the City of Toronto, the number added being left blank in the bill, though three had been recommended by the benchers. In answer to a question of Hon. A. G. MacKay, Mr. Foy said that no communications had passed yet with the Dominion Government, who have to pay the judges' salaries, with the exception of $1,000 which is paid by the province.

The Ottawa authorities would be notified as soon as the number of judges to be added was decided by the Government.

Sir James Whitney introduced a bill to make clear the membership of the executive council. There was some vagueness in the act as at present constituted, but there was no doubt whatever that the intention was that every Minister of the crown was to be a member of the executive council. The holding of a portfolio was only incidental, and was due to the exigencies to be represented on the floor of the House.

In the discussion on the bill of Hon. Frank Cochrane, respecting townsites whereby the Government retains one quarter of the land, D. J. McDougal (E. Ottawa) asked if it was meant to be restricted in its application to lands newly taken up. "How about a town that grows up naturally?" he queried.

"I never knew one to grow up naturally," retorted Mr. Cochrane. "It has to have a plan before it is a townsite. The bill provides that it does not become applicable until the plan is filed."

R. R. Gamey (Manitoulin), said that this was a new principle that was being introduced. He was not prepared to say that it was wrong, but it was an extraordinary principle to start out by taking a quarter of a man's land.

In answer to a question by Mr. Gamey, Mr. Cochrane stated that British Columbia had had a similar law for some time. He was not aware whether the Dominion had ever had such a law or not.

Hon. J. J. Foy pointed out that the railways got half of the lands through which they passed, and the people were glad to accede to the arrangement.

The Premier announced that the Government intended to appoint a commission to acquire first-hand information in regard to desirable changes in the "Workmen's Compensation Act."

Just before adjournment Sir James Whitney alluded to the probable retirement of an appeal court judge (Justice Osler), and said that it might be necessary, in consequence to have the Lieutenant-Governor attend on Tuesday next to give his assent to a number of bills.

ALBERTA PREMIER DEFEATS INSURGENTS BY 23 TO 15

Fight Over Alberta and Great Waterways Railway Has Resulted in a Victory for the Cabinet and Ex-Minister Cushing's First Attack Fails.

Edmonton, Alta., March 4.—The Rutherford Government was sustained late last night, when J. R. Boyle's resolution re the Alberta and Great Waterways Railway was defeated, 23 for and 15 against. Cornwall's vote was challenged, as being a member of the company.

The resolution declares that the contract does not protect the interests of the people, and calls upon the Government to expropriate the rights and privileges of the company, and to build it under the supervision of a commission of three.

Boyle is leader of the so-called insurgent Liberals, who have been opposing the contract.

In the afternoon Attorney-General Cross read an affidavit from one Hopkins denying that he had stated that Cross had authorized the sale of automatic 'phones on a condition of paying $12,000 to a campaign fund.

Cross dared a repetition of the charge outside the House. He offered to authorize the prosecution of Hopkins for perjury if the charge were sworn to by Mr. Bennett. The Opposition leader stated that he merely reported the statement made to the Minister of Public Works. He accepted the commission to prosecute.

Just what the effect will be on the Government is uncertain. Wednesday night R. D. Bennett, leader of the Conservative opposition, said he was not acting for private gains, but was willing, should the Government be defeated, to stand aside and let McDougall (Edmonton) or Cushing (Calgary) take the Premiership. It is more than likely that it will end in Cushing's elevation. It was his resignation from the office of Minister of Public Works, because of his objections to the Government's course that strengthened the insurgents.

A five hours' speech by R. B. Bennett, Conservative, and junior member for Calgary, culminated at midnight in charges that President Clarke, head of the Alberta and Great Waterways Co., had split up $300,000 with his colleagues on the sale of bonds, and that he himself had been approached by financial interests seeking to influencee his vote on this question.

Mr. Bennett said that the bonds actually sold at 110 and that the difference between that and par, at which price they were represented to have been sold, was the amount which went into the pockets of the Morgan house and the Clarke railway promoters. The Margans got more than $250,000.

Mr. Bennett also mentioned the report that Attorney-General Cross had demanded $12,000 for the campaign fund from the Automatic Telephone Co., as the price of the contract for an automatic system in Calgary.

"I shall ask the senior member for Calgary if this is not true," said Mr. Bennett.

"Substantially true," replied Mr. Cushing, who as Minister of Public Works was in charge of the telephone negotiations carried on by the Government.

GOOD ROADS DELEGATES AGREE THAT SUPERVISION HAS BECOME ESSENTIAL

W. H. Hoyle, M.P.P., in Address Befors the Convention in Toronto Explains His Bill—Massachusetts Commissioner Speaks.

Toronto, March 4.—Chairman Harold Parker of the Massachusetts Highway Commission told the Ontario Good Roads Association yesterday afternoon of the methods adopted by his state to secure a workable system of road construction and maintenance. A permanent state highway commission was appointed in 1893. About 800 miles of state roads, at a cost of $15,000,000, had been constructed, as well as hundreds of miles of municipal roads. The aim at the outset was to connect the main centres of population.

Automobiles were also controlled and licensed by the commission. The fees were expended entirely on highway improvement. Autos increased the cost of road maintenance about 50 per cent.

In building macadam roads the practice was to lay broken rock six inches deep where the soil is firm and the drainage good, but in poor soil it was necessary to concave the bed and fill to about 18 inches with field stones before laying on the broken rock.

About $600,000 a year was spent on roads. The state paid 75 per cent. of the cost of township roads.

W. G. Trethewey, representing the Motor League, read a paper setting forth the willingness of motorists to share the roads with horse vehicles and also to share in the cost of maintenance.

Oliver Hezzelwood put in a plea for wide tires.

C. R. Wheelock, C.E., of Orangeville, believed it was time to establish a provincial system connecting up the county roads.

W. H. Hoyle, M.P.P. for North Ontario, appeared before the convention during the afternoon and explained his bill to amend the system of bridge construction and supervision in the province. The meeting seemed in thorough sympathy with the proposed changes.

Views of up-to-date sections of macadam roads and concrete bridges of Ontario were thrown on the canvas at the evening session.

Addresses were delivered by G. W. Farrington of Prince Edward County; A. McG. Rankin of Collins Bay; H. J. Bowman, C.E., Berlin and others.

W. J. Gage, president of the Toronto Board of Trade, occupied the chair, and delivered a short address, expressing personal sympathy with the proposal for joint city and rural support of trunk roads.

Mr. Bowman gave an interesting talk on the subject of Ontario highways, past, present and future.

The serviceability of concrete bridges in the building of country roads was ably set forth by James A. Bell, C.E., city and county engineer of St. Thomas, at the morning's session of the good roads convention. They could be constructed much cheaper than steel bridges and were on the whole more durable and reliable. He advised that straight beams be used instead of arches up to the limit of 40 feet, but above that length arches should be used.

H. G. Bleeker of Belleville, superintendent of Hastings County roads, read a paper on "Road Management in Hastings." They were spending about $40,000 a year. About 600 miles had already been constructed.

Mr. Bleeker extended an invitation to the convention to meet in Belleville next year.

C. F. Foy, K.C., of Perth, dealt with the economic benefits of good roads. He knew of land that had increased in value from $1,000 to $2,500 per 100 acres through good roads.

Macadam roads could be constructed for $1,000 per mile, but a $2,500 road was cheaper in the end.

DONNELLY IS AGAINST NAVY

Conservative Member Ridicules Sir Wilfrid's "Stay-at-Home Fleet."

Ottawa, March 4.—The speech of J. J. Donnelly, Conservative member for South Bruce, was the feature of yesterday's debate on the bill. He caustically referred to the "Stay-at-Home Navy," which Sir Wilfrid Laurier wished to establish.

One point made by Mr. Donnelly, which caused Conservative laughter and cheers, was his graphic description of the speedy Bristols. "Able to escape pursuit," so soon as the Dreadnoughts of the enemy entered the range of firing.

Mr. Donnelly warmly supported Mr. Borden's proposition, as it would show we were British citizens in fact, as well as in name.

He made a plea for shorter speeches, claiming that a third chamber might be necessary—"a hot air chamber"—in order that verbose members might talk away to their heart's content, without interrupting the business of the country. He himself was brief.

Mr. Donnelly quoted the opinion of The Pall Mall Gazette to the effect that the Niobe, which had been purchased by Canada as a training ship, is a non-effective warship, and said it was clear we were to have at the head of the navy a vessel of an unseaworthy and obsolete type.

E. Guss Porter (West Hastings) also contributed an address in favor of Mr. Borden's amendment. The whole thing in a nutshell in his opinion amounted to this: "Shall we be the soldiers of the king or shall we be the soldiers of Sir Wilfrid Laurier?" The ambition of the Premier was to reach the goal of independence.

The other speakers yesterday were French-Canadians, Messrs. Roy, Turcotte (Nicolet), and Paquet. Mr. Turcotte came out for independence as Canada's logical future. As a lesser of two evils in the naval policy, he chose a Canadian fleet.

FRIDAY, MARCH 4, 1910.

NOT MERELY A SCARE.

Different opinions have been expressed as to whether the excitement in Western Ontario was merely a mad dog "scare" or was the natural outcome of a real danger. Dogs and cattle have died from what has been pronounced to be rabies, without convincing many that the people were in such danger as to call for stringent measures for their protection. Perhaps the death of the boy in Hamilton hospital with all the symptoms of hydrophobia, after having been bitten by a dog, will carry conviction to many who were sceptical, and it shows that the measures that have been taken were none too drastic. The Ontario Government has shown commendable promptness in dealing with the matter from the beginning, and has made arrangements by which the Pasteur treatment may be received in the Toronto hospital, a provision that will be received with approval.

A LARGE GIFT

The philanthropic work established by Dr. Barnardo, and which is continued by Dr. Barnardo's Homes Association, of rescuing children from the streets and from undesirable surroundings and sending them to foster homes in Canada, is maintained by voluntary contributions. Its funds will be augmented by a munificent gift from Lord Mount Stephen, who has placed securities amounting to $300,000 in value, with a yearly earning power of $14,000, in the hands of a trust to foster desirable British emigration to Canada. Dr. Barnardo's Homes have been selected as the medium through which this idea will be carried out, and the best class of homeless boys will be sent to this country. Many hundreds of children have been rescued and cared for by these homes who would otherwise have grown up vicious and criminal and the benefit this work has been to the children, to the country, and to the world cannot be estimated. The Homes are deserving of aid, and this munificent provision for further work make by this eminent Canadian, will enable them to do still more for a class of children whose condition calls for the strongest pity and for efforts to lift them out of their present and prospective misery.

THE LAW AND BONUSES

If the understanding is correct that the Government intends to consider and deal with the law regarding the granting of aid to manufacturers, there is a reason for not passing this year, Mr. Bradburn's bill, which proposed that such aid could be given on a favorable vote of two-thirds of the electors who voted. The present system is not good. With a law which purports to permit bonuses to be granted, but which is so drastic that many municipalities find it impossible to work with it, the Legislature every year is asked to pass private bills—bills applying only to the municipalities applying for them—confirming by-laws which have not received the sanction of the electors in accordance with the law as it stands, and every year since the law was placed on the statute book the Legislature has passed bills of this kind. It has gone further, and given to the Council of one city authority to grant aid by way of exemptions without a vote of the people at all, and further assistance with the assent of a majority only of the electors voting. No fixed principle has guided the Private Bills Committee in this matter from year to year and what one municipality is granted one year another is denied the next. Experience has shown that to leave the law as it is, and to throw upon the Legislature or the Private Bills Committee the duty of passing upon the large number of by-laws and agreements that are brought before them for authorization is most unsatisfactory. Why should the Council of Windsor be allowed to give exemptions from taxes, and other cities have to comply with an impossible law or suffer a delay until the Legislature meets and passes a private bill, at the citizens' expense, before they can do the same? The Legislature or its committee should not be made a municipal council for the urban communities of the province. The general law should be amended so that it will be reasonable and workable, and the municipalities should then work under it. The proposition to require the municipalities should then work under it. The proposition to require the assent of three-fifths or two-thirds of the electors voting before a bonus by-law can be passed is not asking to have the bars let down very low, and would provide a safeguard against a by-law being passed unless there was a preponderating opinion among the ratepayers in favor of it. And it would provide a fixed principle, which is now lacking and which is needed.

EDITORIAL NOTES

Politics did not make Mr. Foster rich, and he was in office for many years.

A McGill professor has been criticized on account of a theological article he wrote for the University Magazine, and hits back by saying he did not write for the people "who go to church regularly on Sunday and take their dose of opium." He must have seen someone sleeping in church, but it is not kind to make it public in that way.

In a summary of the case against the race tracks, Mr. Haney, counsel for the Anti-gambling Bill before Parliament, gives a calculation that the Toronto Woodbine has had profits of nearly seven hundred per cent., and that the Hamilton Jockey Club has been earning more than 1,700 per cent. on its investment. Those interested in these tracks feel a deep interest—700 to 1,700 per cent.—in maintaining the breed of horses.

Another gift to Toronto University is announced, the executors of the Massey estate having decided to erect three buildings, for the Young Men's Christian Association, the Students' Union, and a hall for the students. The University is a provincial institution, but if it were a purely Toronto one the people of Ontario would be none the less pleased to learn of this great gift. Toronto's wealthy men are showing a most commendable generosity and recognition of the duties of those who are privileged to control large fortunes.

PAST WINTER WAS FAVORABLE FOR THE LUMBERMEN

Lindsay, March 3—The weather this year has been very favorable for the hewing of the monsters of the forest, and although timber is not as plentiful as it was some years ago, there is still plenty to fill the great demand, and the lumber companies report very successful weather. Owing to the inclement weather the camps will soon be broken up if it continues to be mild, and in fact a number of the camps have already disbanded.

This year the Baker Lumber Co., which does a very extensive lumber trade here, formed three lumber camps, the first in the township of Laxton, the second in the township of Monmouth, and the third in Emily township. The camp in Laxton employed 23 men, and the season's cut was 22,000 logs, cut and hauled.

The camp in Monmouth comprised 17 men, and these cut and hauled for the season the splendid number of 20,000 logs, and the camp in Emily cut about 17,000 logs, making in all the magnificent total of 55,000 pieces. Taking the number of logs cut and hauled by the lumber jacks and the pieces left over from last year, amounts to over 100,000, and with the amount the jobbers did, they are well supplied, and have enough to keep the mill going for the year 1911. As there is a variety of timber cut, certain wood is not classified as the chief wood cut, but it is all called mixed timber, and is for various kinds of things.

That the claims of the Indians must be adjusted first is the latest objection to extending Manitoba's boundaries.

E. F. MASON & CO.
GROCERS GEORGE STREET

The Man From Brodney's

By GEORGE BARR M'CUTCHEON

Copyright, 1908, by Dodd, Mead & Co.

"That may all be very true, Chase," protested his lordship, "but don't you see it goes to show that some one has a stock of poison on hand, and we may be the next to get it. He died half an hour after eating—after eating a biscuit that was intended for me! It's—it's demmed uncomfortable, to say the least."

"I'm sure you need the brandy after all this. Come along. Will you join us, Lady Deppingham?" said Chase.

"No. I'm going to bed!" She started away, then stopped and looked at her husband, her eyes wide with sudden comprehension. "Oh, Deppy, I should have died! I should have died!"

"My dear!"

"I couldn't have lived if"—

"But, my dear, I didn't eat it—and here we are. God bless you!" He turned abruptly and walked off beside her, ignoring the two distressed Americans. As they passed through the French window Deppingham put his arm about his wife's waist. Chase turned to Britt.

"I don't know what you're thinking, Britt, but it isn't so, whatever it is."

"Good Lord, man, I wasn't thinking that!"

There was not the slightest doubt in the minds of those conversant with the situation that the poison had been intended for either Lord or Lady Deppingham. The drug had been subtly, skillfully placed in one of the sandwiches which came up to their rooms at 11 o'clock, the hour at which they invariably drank off a cup of bouillon.

Drusilla Browne was jesting, no doubt, but it is doubtful if any one grasped the delicacy of her humor when she observed, in mock concern, addressing the assembled mourners, that she believed the heirs were trying to get rid of their incumbrances after the good old Borgia fashion and that she would never again have the courage to eat a mouthful of food so long as she stood between her husband and a hymeneal fortune.

"You know, my dear," she concluded, turning to her husband, "that I might have had Lord Deppingham's biscuit. His wife asked me to take it. Goodness, you're a dreadful Borgia person, Agnes," she went on, smiling brightly at her ladyship. Deppingham was fumbling nervously at his monocle. "I should think you would be nervous, Lord Deppingham."

The most rigid questioning elicited no information from the servants. Bailio's sudden, involuntary look of suspicion, directed toward Lady Agnes and Robert Browne, did not escape the keen eye of Hollingsworth Chase.

"Impossible!" he said, half aloud. He looked up and saw that the princess was staring at him questioningly. He shook his head without thinking.

Despair settled upon the white people. They were confronted by a new and serious peril—poison. At no time could they feel safe.

One of the stable boys volunteered to carry a note from Chase to Rasula, asking the opportunity to lay a question of grave importance before him. Chase suggested to Rasula that he should meet him that evening at the west gate, under a flag of truce. The tone of the letter was more or less peremptory.

Rasula came, sullen but curious. At first he would not believe, but Chase was firm in his denunciation of Jacob von Blits. Then he was pleased to accuse Chase of duplicity and double dealing, going so far as to charge the deposed American with plotting against Von Blits to further his own ends in more ways than one. At last, however, he agreed to follow the advice of the American—grudgingly, to be sure, but none the less determined.

"You will find everything as I have stated it, Rasula," said Chase. "I'm sorry you are against me, for I would be your friend. I've told you how to reach the secret cave. The chests are there. The passage is closed. You can trap him in the attempt to rob the bank. I could have taken him red handed and given him over to Lord Deppingham, but you would never have known the truth. Now I ask you to judge for yourselves. Give him a fair trial, Rasula—as you would any man accused of crime—and be just. If you need a witness—an eyewitness—call on me. I will come, and I will appear against him. I've been honest with you. I am willing to trust you to be honest with me."

CHAPTER XXIV.

DEPPINGHAM FALLS ILL.

THAT evening Lord Deppingham took to his bed with violent chills. He shivered and burned by turns and spent a most distressing night. Bobby Browne came in twice to see him before retiring. For some reason unknown to any one but himself, Deppingham refused to be treated by the young man, notwithstanding the fact that Browne laid claim to a physician's certificate and professed to be especially successful in breaking up "the ague." Lady Agnes entreated her liege lord to submit to the doses, but Deppingham was resolute to irascibility.

"A Dover's powder, Deppy, or a few grains of quinine. Please be sensible. You're just like a child."

"What's in a Dover's powder?" demanded the patient, who had never been ill in his life.

"Ipecac and opium, sugar of milk or sulphate of potash. It's an anodyne diaphoretic," said Browne.

"Opium, eh?" came sharply from the couch. "Good Lord, an overdose of it would"— He checked the words abruptly and gave vent to a nervous fit of laughter.

"Don't be a fool, George," commanded his wife. "No one is trying to poison you."

"Who's saying that he's going to poison me?" demanded Deppingham shortly. "I'm objecting because I don't like the idea of taking medicine from a man just out of college."

"I've just given my wife a powder, old man. She's got a nervous headache," urged Browne tolerantly.

"Your wife!" exclaimed Deppingham, sitting up. "The devil!" He looked hard at Browne for a moment. "Oh, I say, now, old chap, don't you think it's rather too much of a coincidence?"

Browne arose quickly, a flash of resentment in his eyes. "See here, Deppingham"—

"I apologize, Browne," said Deppingham hastily. "I'm not afraid of your medicine. I'm only thinking of my wife. If I should happen to die, don't you know, there would be people who might say that you could have cured me. See what I mean?"

"You dear old goose!" cried his wife. "I fancy Selim or Bailio or even Bowles knows what a fellow doses himself with when he's bowled over by one of these beastly island ailments. Oblige me, Agnes, and send for Bowles."

He immediately recommended an old fashioned Dover's powder and ventured the opinion that a "good sweat" would soon put his lordship on his feet, "better than ever." Deppingham kept Bowles beside him while Browne generously prepared and administered the medicine.

Later in the night the princess came to see how the patient was getting on. He was in a dripping perspiration.

Genevra drew a chair up beside his couch and sat down. Lady Agnes was yawning sleepily over a book.

"Do you know, I believe I'd feel better if I could have another chill," he said. "I'm so beastly hot now that I can't stand it. Aggy, why don't you turn out on the balcony for a bit of fresh air? I'm a brute to have kept you moping in here all evening."

Lady Agnes sighed prettily and stepped out into the murky night.

"I say, Genevra, what's the news?" demanded his lordship. "Where is Chase?"

Now, the princess, it is most distressing to state, had willfully avoided Mr. Chase since early that morning.

"I'm sure I don't know. I had dinner with Mrs. Browne in her room. I fancy he's off attending to the guard. I haven't seen him."

"Nice chap," remarked Deppingham. "Isn't that he now speaking to Agnes out there?"

Genevra looked up quickly. A man's voice came in to them from the balcony, following Lady Deppingham's soft laugh.

"No," she said, settling back calmly. "It's Mr. Browne."

"Oh," said Deppingham, a slight shadow coming into his eyes. "Nice chap, too," he added a moment later.

"I don't like him," said she, lowering her voice.

"I've no doubt Agnes is as much to blame as he," said his lordship at last.

"Why don't you marry him?"

"She's made a fool of more than one man, my dear. She rather likes it."

"He's behaving like a brute. They've been married less than a year."

"It really doesn't amount to anything, Genevra," he argued. "It will blow over in a fortnight. Aggy's always doing this sort of thing, you know."

"I know, Deppy," she said sharply. "But this man is different. He's not a gentleman. Mr. Skaggs wasn't a gentleman. Blood tells. He will boast of this flirtation until the end of his days."

"Aggy's had dozens of men in love with her—really in love," he protested feebly. "She's not"—

"They've come and gone, and she's still the same old Agnes, and you're the same old Deppy. I'm not thinking of you or Aggy. It's Drusilla Browne."

"I see. Thanks for the confidence you have in Aggy. I dare say I know how Drusilla feels. I've—I've had a bad turn or two myself lately, and—but never mind. By the way, what does Chase say about it?" he asked suddenly.

She started and caught her breath. "Mr. Chase? He—he hasn't said anything about it," she responded lamely. "He's—he's not that sort."

"Ah," reflected Deppingham, "he is a gentleman?"

Genevra flushed. "Yes, I'm sure he is."

"I say, Genevra," he said, looking straight into her rebellious eyes, "you're in love with Chase. Why don't you marry him?"

"You—you are really delirious, Deppy," she cried. "The fever has"—

"He's good enough for any one—even you," went on his lordship coolly.

"He may have a wife," said she, collecting her wits with rare swiftness. "Who knows? Don't be silly, Deppy."

"Rubbish! Haven't you stuffed Aggy and me full of the things you found out concerning him before he left Thorberg, and afterward—the letters from the ambassador's wife and the glowing things your St. Petersburg friends have to say of him, eh? Besides, he'd give his head to marry you—having already lost it."

"You are very amusing, Deppy, when you try to be clever. Is there a clause in that silly old will compelling me to marry any one?"

"Of course not, my dear princess, but I fancy you've got a will of your own. Where there's a will there's a way. You'd marry him tomorrow if—if"—

"If I were not amply prepared to contest my own will?" she supplied airily.

"No; if your will was not wrapped in convention three centuries old. You won't marry Chase because you are a princess. I'm awfully sorry for you, Genevra."

"Sorry for me? Dear me!"

"You're tremendously gone on him."

"Nonsense! Why, I couldn't marry Mr. Chase," she exclaimed, irritable at last. "Don't put such things into my head—I mean don't get such things into that ridiculous old head of yours. Are you forgetting that I am to become Karl's wife in June? You are babbling, Deppy."

"Well, let's say no more about it," he said, lying back resignedly. "It's too bad, that's all. Chase is a man. Karl isn't. You loathe him. I don't wonder that you turn pale and look frightened. Take my advice—take Chase."

"Don't!" she cried, a break in her voice. She arose and went swiftly toward the window. Then she stopped and turned upon him, her lips parted as if to give utterance to the thing that was stirring her heart so violently. The words would not come. She smiled plaintively and said instead: "Good night! Get a good sleep."

"The same to you," he called feverishly.

"Deppy," she said firmly, a red spot in each cheek, her voice tense and strained to a high pitch of suppressed decision, "I shall marry Karl Brabetz. That will be the end of your Mr. Chase."

"I hope so," he said. "But I'm not so sure of it if you continue to love him as you do now."

She went out with her cheeks burning and a frightened stir in her heart. Her thoughts raced back to Neenah's airy prophecy.

How could she face the charge, "I'm not so sure of it," unless she killed the indictment, "If you love him as you do now."

Lady Agnes and Browne passed by without seeing her and entered the window. She heard him say something to his companion, softly, tenderly—she knew not what it was. And Lady Agnes laughed—yes, nervously. Ah, but Agnes was playing! She was not in love with this man. It was different. It was not what Neenah meant—nor Deppingham, honest friend that he was.

Down below she heard voices. She wondered—inconsistently alert—whether he was one of the speakers. Thomas Saunders and Miss Pelham were coming in from the terrace. They were in love with each other! They could be in love with each other. There was no law, no convention that said them nay! They could marry—and still love! "If you continue to love him as you do now" battered at the doors of her conscience.

Her maid came in, and she prepared for bed. Left alone, she perched herself in the window seat to cool her heated face with the breezes that swept on ahead of the storm which was coming up from the sea. Her heart was hot; no breeze could cool it; nothing but the ice of decision could drive out the fever that possessed it.

"It is impossible—incredible!" she was saying to herself. "I could not love him like that. I should hate him. God above me, am I not different from those women whom I have known and pitied and despised? Am I not different from Gusima von Herrick? Am I not different from Prince Henri's wife? Ah, and they loved too! And is he not different from those other men—those weak, unmanly men who came into the lives of those women? Ah, yes, yes! He is different."

HANDICAPPED

This is the Case With Many Peterborough People

Too many Peterborough citizens are handicapped with a bad back. The unceasing pain causes constant misery, making work a burden and stooping or lifting an impossibility. The back aches at night, preventing refreshing rest, and in the morning is stiff and lame. Plasters and liniments may give relief, but cannot reach the cause. To eliminate the pains and aches you must cure the kidneys.

Doan's Kidney Pills cure sick kidneys and cure them permanently. Can you doubt Peterborough evidence?

W. Worsington, of 121 Brock street, Peterborough, Ont., says:—"I had suffered with rheumatism for over three years. I found little or no relief in any of the remedies I tried. I became so stiff, and sure that I could scarcely turn in bed, and had to lay off from my work. The urine was highly colored and filled with a heavy sand-like sediment which plainly told the disordered state of the kidneys. I tried Doan's Kidney Pills through an advertisement at Wm. Medill's drug store, and was surprised to see how quickly the urine cleared. The kidneys were soon active and the uric acid went from my system. The rheumatism gradually became less severe and finally left me. I am better than in years previous and could not hesitate to recommend Doan's Kidney Pills."

Horseshoes and Nails.

Centuries ago there lived a farrier, Walter Le Brun by name, whose dexterity at the anvil on the occasion of a great tilting meeting on the banks of the Thames was noticed by the then reigning monarch, Edward III., who rewarded the blacksmith by granting him sufficient land adjoining the tilting green for the erection thereon of a forge. As quit rent he had to present annually to the King six horseshoes and sixty-one horseshoe nails.

To the modern mind the number of nails would appear to be superfluous, but when it is remembered that the horseshoes of that period required ten nails apiece it will be seen that the calculations of Edward III. merely allowed one "over" in case of accident. Furthermore, the shoes were all to be for the horse's forefeet, from which fact some historians draw the inference that the animals ridden in the knights' tournaments were encouraged to injure each other with their front hoofs.—Daily News.

They Liked the Dark.

Complaints have been pouring in upon the gas committee of Strabaine, Ireland, because of the fact that the street lamps have been turned out in the evenings. It was discovered that children often turned out the lamps of the town, and this was stopped, but those in the roads around the town continued to be extinguished. At last the clerk to the gas works has solved the matter. It is the work of courting couples, who find the darkness more romantic than gaslight.

PASSED AWAY IN TORONTO

Death of Mr. John Lillie Who Who Was for Some Time a Resident of This City

To-day's Toronto Globe says:—Mr. John Lillie, a well-known manufacturers' agent in Toronto, passed away yesterday at his home, 40 Nanton avenue, after an illness of about nine weeks. The late Mr. Lillie, who was 68 years of age, was a native of Ireland, and after coming to Canada resided at Peterborough for some time. For the past thirty-five years he had been a resident of Toronto, and prior to going into business for himself some fifteen years ago, represented well-known Toronto wholesale houses. During his residence in Toronto the late Mr. Lillie was an officer and member of the Jarvis street Baptist church. The funeral takes place tomorrow at 2.30 p.m. to Mount Pleasant cemetery.

CONSERVATIVES MEET AT NORWOOD TO-DAY

The annual meeting of the Conservatives of East Peterborough is being held at Norwood to-day. It is expected that there will be a large attendance, as the Conservatives of the East Riding are most enthusiastic.

A POPULAR FEATURE IS COMPETITION FOR PRIZES

Last night, the Peterborough Poultry Association, held the first monthly meeting of the year, and immediately after the transaction of the regular business, the judging of two classes, of birds, Barred Rocks and White Wyandottes, was proceeded with. Mr. Harry Lush acted as judge to the satisfaction of all parties, and the different points were well and enthusiastically discussed. Those meetings are a great source of pleasure to the Association and are at the same time a school of instruction, as from time to time, all classes will come up for competition. The quality of the birds offered for competition last night was of a very fine type and deserved special mention. The prize winners follow:

Barred rock cock, 1st F. Head.
Barred rock hen, 1st and 2nd, F. Head, 3rd J. Kelly.
Barred rock cockrel, 1st J. Kelly; 2nd S. Bickel, 3rd J. Kelly.
Barred rock pullet, 1st and 2nd F. Head.
White wyandotte cock, 1st W. Grose.
Hen, 1st W. Grose, 2nd A. Kingdon.
Cockrel, 1st G. Paxman, 2nd W. Grose.

DOURO MAN MET DEATH BY DROWNING AT TEKOA, WASH.

Mr. Michael O'Brien, 520 Gilmour street, received word to-day of the drowning in Tekoa, Wash., on Tuesday, of Maurice O'Brien, a cousin of his, and who was born and resided for a number of years in Douro. No particulars as to how the drowning occurred were received, but it is surmised that the unfortunate man lost his life in the big floods which have taken place in that part of the country recently. He was in the neighborhood of 30 years of age, and when he left Douro a number of years ago was unmarried.

His parents are dead, but other members of the family reside in Douro One telegram received to-day stated that it would be impossible for the body to be brought over the rails on account of the floods, but fuller particulars are expected within a short time.

AN 'ARROWING EXPERIENCE

I shot a poem in the air;
It was reprinted everywhere,
From Bangor to the Rocky Range—
And always credited to "Exchange."
—New York Mail.

And long, long afterward it chanced,
As a book of verses I gazed upon,
I found the poem published there,
And it was amply signed "Anon"
—Denver Republican.

But now that bit of vagrant verse
Has gone much farther and fared worse;
In the Podunk Times last week I read it,
And Lodon Tit-Bits had the credit.
—Chicago Tribune.

Perhaps I yet may live to see
My own, my stolen minstrelsy,
In some ill-printed corner hid,
And signed—though all alone—"Ibid"
—Toronto Star.

And this is what we find sometimes:
When we think up some first-class rhymes,
Some other fellow has the neck
To print them first, and get the cheque.

"Window Leaves."

In South Africa Dr. R. Marloth discovered six species of plants possessing what are styled "window leaves." They are all stemless succulents, and the egg shaped leaves are imbedded in the ground, only the apexes remaining visible. This visible part of the leaves is flat or convex on the surface and colorless, so that the light can penetrate it and reach the interior of the leaf below, which is green on the inside. With the exception of the blunt apex, no part of the leaf is permeable to the light, being surrounded by the soil in which it is buried. The first of these plants discovered is a species of bulbine.—London Graphic.

The Manly Man.

"After you've been two weeks in the house with one of these terrible handy men that ask their wives to be sure to wipe between the tines of the forks and that know just how much raising bread ought to have and how to hang out a wash so each piece will get the best sun it's a real joy to get back to the ordinary kind of man. Yes, 'tis so!" Mrs. Gregg finished with much emphasis. "I want a man who should have sense about the things he's meant to have sense about, but when it comes to keeping house I like him real helpless, the way the Lord planned to have him!"—Youth's Companion.

Both Rather Flippant.

There is a curious parallelism between two stories told respectively of the late Mr. Spurgeon and of Dean Swift.

Mr. Spurgeon on hearing of the devastation wrought by an earthquake in Essex merely remarked, "I am glad to hear that my county is moving at last."

The dean of St. Patrick's, Dublin, was watching with a friend the roof of a building on which several men were at work fixing slates. Suddenly one of the men vanished. Thereupon the dean turned to his companion and said, "I like to see a man go quickly through his work."

Egotism of Genius.

When Wordsworth, Southey and Coleridge were walking together, and Coleridge remarked that the day was so fine "it might have been ordered for three poets," the gentle Wordsworth promptly exclaimed: "Three poets! Who are the other two?"

Disraeli, when a mere youth, wrote to his sister that he had heard Macauley, Shell and Grant speak, "but between ourselves I could floor them all." And again he said, "When I want to read a good book I write one."

A Costly Funeral.

The most costly state funeral which has ever taken place was perhaps that of Alexander the Great. A round million was spent in laying Alexander to his rest. The body was placed in a coffin of gold filled with costly aromatics, and a diadem was placed on the head. The funeral car was embellished with ornaments of pure gold, and its weight was so great that it took eighty-four mules more than a year to convey it from Babylon to Syria.

BARRIE AND THE TRENT CANAL

Gazette Says Barrie Route Should be Selected for Northern Outlet

Barrie Gazette: The Trent Canal is on its way north, and will strike Lake Simcoe somewhere in the south, but where it is to go after is the problem. Orillia favors the Severn River route, but the difficulties to be encountered in constructing it through the rocks of that neighborhood, places it beyond the bounds of feasibility. The only other feasible solution is the Nottawasaga River route. The residents of that section have long suffered from the annual flooding of the waters at certain points on the river. The canal by making a navigable course through Simcoe, with Kempenfeldt Bay as its base and Nottawasaga Bay as its outlet, would be of immense value to the people living along its course, both from a commercial and educational standpoint. The advantage to Barrie would, of course, be incalculable.

The Barrie route may be slightly the longest of the two, but the difficulties of construction would be greatly lessened, as the soil is almost entirely sandy loam, and as there is a natural fall, the expenditure involved would be considerably less.

SONG THAT YOU CAN'T FORGET

"Molly May" as Melodious and Lingering as the "The Merry Widow" Waltz

From every source comes word that Miss Grace La Rue has scored a big hit in "Molly May," the new comic opera written for her by Walter Browne and Julian Edwards, which will have its first local presentation at the Grand Opera House on next Tuesday night, March 8th. The production is magnificently staged, as might be inferred with her millionaire husband Byron Chandler as the sponsor, and the music is in the light and graceful mood so characteristic of Julian Edwards when at his best. Like so many of the musical pieces now current, it has for its theme a waltz song—a charming little affair—more popular than any other number, which is sure to be whistled into fame. It is called "Molly May," and is used as a finale for all three acts, and it also serves in the last act for a rapturous dance between the principals. The opera sparkles with pretty airs, among which are: "Love Comes to Stay," "The Butterfly and the Rose," "I Only Drink for Friendship Sake," "Clap Hands," "My Turkish Maid," and "Photography."

The plot of the opera concerns a sportively inclined father and a son-in-law, who get bouncing too high, exchange overcoats when over-enthusiastic, come home by daylight, get caught by their wives, and then try to lie their way through various complications arising from an encounter with "Molly May," an artist's model. The dressing of the opera is lavish in the extreme; and the music is a refreshing change from the current drift of musical offerings.

Prominent in the big company supporting Miss La Rue are such well-known players as James E. Sullivan, George Odell, Kate Rolla, Frances Keenan, Eva Fallon and Sydney Grant. There are over twenty musical numbers in "Molly May," and all of the lilting, swinging sort that have made Julian Edwards' compositions equally as popular as those of any other current composer.

Madame Nazimova Playful

Madame Nazimova, the young Russian actress, who appeared here last night in "A Doll's House," is as playful as a kitten. An hour before the play she was on the stage of the Grand Opera House, romping about with the two children who take part in the play. She allowed them to roll her all over the floor. Nazimova keeps young and childish by playfulness. At Smith's Falls yesterday afternoon she came out of her special car and danced around the station platform. Spying a big dog near at hand, she ran to it and sat down and began to maul the animal.—Kingston Whig.

C. P. R. IS URGED TO MOVE QUICKLY

It is said that the hesitancy of the C.P.R in proceeding with the completion of their line from Victoria Harbor to Peterborough is due to uncertainty as to the effect that the deepening of the Welland canal would have on the grain trade. The company is, however, probably too far committed to turn back now. One of their elevators at Maple Island will be ready to receive grain during the coming summer, and it will not pay the company to run its trains round by Toronto, even for a short time. It will take some years to build a new Welland canal, and longer still to deepen the St. Lawrence canals, if it should be decided to do this. Meantime, the rail route is sure to get the bulk of the trade, and it is possible that low grades, heavy trains and a short haul may enable the railways to hold it, even against water competition. The sooner the C.P.R. is in the field, the larger will be its share of the harvest.—Orillia Packet.

Rebuilding of Bridge

A joint meeting of the committee of Peterborough and Victoria counties met at Bobcaygeon last week regarding the rebuilding of Little Bob bridge. The committee consisted of: For Victoria county—Warden E. Tiers, J. R. McNeillie, county clerk and treasurer; Charles Cornell, of Emily; and George C. Byng, of Bobcaygeon. For Peterborough—Warden F. Moher, of Douro, and Messrs. Coban, of Galway; Shaw, of Harvey; Young, of Ennismore; Garbutt, of Smith, and Barling, of Dummer. Besides these there were County Engineer Smith, of Victoria, and J. E. Belcher, of Peterborough; also superintendent of county bridges W. M. Kennedy.

It was agreed to narrow the span, rebuild with steel superstructure and concrete piers, and to have the steel span fourteen feet in width. It is understood that Engineer Smith is to take soundings for bottom in the near future, and until this is done, it will not be definitely known just how wide the span will be.

CHAMPIONSHIP OF CHURCH LEAGUE GOES TO ST. ANDREW'S

Score Was Tied at End of First Half But St. Andrew's Won Out by 4-2 Score

It will not be necessary to play another game to decide the church hockey league championship. St. Andrew's took the honors for the second time last night by defeating the George street Methodist church seven by 4—2, in a game in which several of the players of both teams had miraculous escapes from drowning. The water was fine, particularly at the north goal, and the Presbyterians won a clean victory. It was impossible to play any classy hockey and as a result long shots and lifts were resorted to for the greater part of the time, but nevertheless, the contest was interesting to watch and the memorable water struggle will not soon be forgotten by the members of the two teams.

George street opened the scoring in the first half in seven minutes, Wade finding the nets after a face-off in front of Patterson, and it was not until towards the close of the half that the champions evened up, on a shot by Rae. St. Andrew's had more chances to tally than their opponents, but owing to the splendid work of Wilson between the nets, they were prevented.

For the first few minutes of the second half, the ice was in better condition, and an improvement in the class of hockey was noticeable. St. Andrew's took three in a row, while the best the Methodists could do was to beat Patterson for one.

Both teams got away with considerable loafing, and some rough work was indulged in.

There were no stars on either team, but all the players worked hard, and the weight of the winners gave them a little advantage.

M. Quigley, as referee, had one of the biggest contracts that ever fell to the lot of any official, but he did good work, and the losers are satisfied with the manner in which he handled the game.

The teams were:

WOLGAST'S FOUR YEAR RECORD

Wolgast, the new lightweight champion, started his fighting career in 1906. His first fight was with Kid Moore, and Wolgast won in six rounds.

Wolgast's first knockout was in 1906 when he administered the sleeping powder to Young Nelson in three rounds. The same year Young Nelson came back at Wolgast and trimmed him in four rounds. This fight is the only battle Wolgast lost, and it was in his first year's fighting.

In 1907 Wolgast was determined to show the public that he was made for the fighting game.

Wolgast had no fights in January of 1907, but he started right in early to fight on February 1st, and he kept it up at an average of a fight every 12 days. Wolgast fought every month except January and July.

In 1907 some of Wolgast's principal fights were with Buddy Glover, winning on a foul in a six-round encounter. Wolgast again met Glover on May 21st, at Ford du Lac, Winnipeg, by the K. O. route.

In 1908 Wolgast started as early as possible, knocking out Buck Plotell on New Year's Day, in St. Joe., Mo.; the battle went five rounds. The new champion kept on fighting twice every month.

In April of 1908 Wolgast thought he would like to take a whack at the top-notchers. On April 6th, Owen Moran and Wolgast fought six rounds in New York, and no decision was arrived at. Moran had the best of this little mill.

On September 29th, 1907, Danny Webster took the count from Wolgast in eighteen rounds at Los Angeles.

Wolgast and Rob Robinson hooked up in Los Angeles, and no decision was the order of this battle of ten rounds.

Wolgast's last and more important fight in the year of 1908 was with Abe Attell. Again no decision was handed out: and Attell is no slouch.

As usual, Wolgast started early last year. Wolgast's first fight in 1909 was Danny Webster at Los Angeles, and he could not put his man away. Again no decision was rendered. This fight was on February 23rd.

In 1908 Wolgast put the kibosh on Danny by the K.O. route.

Wolgast had eighteen fights last year, and of these twelve battles were no decision affairs.

HAD A PRETTY WARM YEAR IN 1909.

The principal fight of all his career was with the man Wolgast conquered Battling Nelson. This was on the 13th of July in Los Angeles. Nelson and Wolgast fought ten rounds to no decision. In this battle Wolgast clearly out-classed the Dane, and gave Wolgast's manager an idea that Nelson had met his superior in the ring, consequently a match was made at forty-five rounds, which was the fight that took place in Richmond.

Wolgast won his last fight in 1909 by beating Lew Powell in twenty rounds at San Francisco on Nov. 29.

PLAYERS WERE DISCHARGED

Pro. Hockeyists at Brantford Get Off — Charge Was Disorderly Conduct

Brantford, Ont., March 3. — The sequel to the local wind-up of the Ontario Pro. Hockey League transpired in the Police Court here this afternoon, when four players, Lehman and Corbeau, of the Berlin team, and Sandford and Dusty, of the Brantfords, were discharged. Dusty and Corbeau were arrested while scuffling on the ice, the latter, however, being taken in mistake for Lehman. The charge against all four was disorderly conduct by fighting at the Waterloo st. rink. Several reputable citizens who were spectators, were called as witnesses, and described the incident, which occurred when Dusty went in on Lehman's goal crease, having just previously scored a goal in that way. The two collided, and merely engaged in a hugging affair, all the other players rushing up, either to separate the pair or make it a general scrap, which was not shown. No blows were struck and the crowd followed the police on the ice.

Sergeant Wallace, who arrested Dusty, would not say that the conduct was even disorderly, and intimated that he had acted under instructions. Citizens swore, as well as Referee Kelly, that had there been no interference from the police the game would have continued, but the Berlin officials, with one of their players arrested, decided to withdraw. This incensed the crowd, and was largely responsible for the riot at the depot afterwards, the view being held that Berlin's withdrawal was the reason for the crowd not getting its moneys worth.

All the witnesses affirmed that the game was free from rough play, and that no blows were struck either by Lehman or Dusty. This settled the affair, and the magistrate in dismissing the cases said the police were justified in acting only because of what might have happened.

HOCKEY

DEFEATED AT OMEMEE.

Omemee Mirror: On Saturday night a hockey match was played at the rink. The Auditoriums of Peterborough came up on the 6 p.m. train and returned on the 9.45, after a defeat at the hands of our own local homebrews. The line-up—

Omemee.		Peterborough
	Goal.
Banks		Rew
	Point.
Sherin		Denare
	Cover.
Mulligan		Coughlin
	Rover
Murray		McMartin
	Centre
Cunningham		Rose
	Right Wing.
Mitchell		Anderson
	Left wing
Johnston		Mahoney

The game was fast and furious and decidedly free from rough tactics. At half time the score stood 4—0 in favor of our team, and Peterborough could not understand how it was, blaming the poor record on our eagle-eyed goal-keeper. In the second spasm, Peterborough resolved to do or die, and accomplished two goals while Omemee duplicated the proceeding, the final score being Omemee 6, Auditoriums 2.

The game was enjoyable from a spectator's point of view, because of the few off-sides, the clean play of each member and the mild conditions of the weather. Dr. Sutton was the official referee and had every department under control at all times. A return game will be played in Peterborough next Saturday afternoon, and a number of our fans will accompany the boys to cheer them on to victory.

BASKET BALL

The Employed Boys extended a challenge to the Senior School Boys for the championship of the Senior School Boys' League and the game was played off and was a game worth seeing. Full time ended with the score tied, and they decided to play the game off and then the school boys won by the close margin of 14—12.

Young Hack Still Alive

Not Ashamed of Him.

An Englishman named Crowe was a fine classical scholar and a distinguished orator. He made his own position in life, even at a time when classes were far more seriously regarded in England than they are at present.

His father was a carpenter working in the town of Winchester and on the most loving terms with his son. One day the son, then an eminent man, was standing near the cathedral door talking to the dean and warden when his father passed by.

The old man was in his working dress, with his rule sticking from his pocket, and was evidently willing to spare the son a salutation, but the young Crowe called out in good Hampshire dialect:

"Hoy, fayther! If thee baint ashamed of I, I baint ashamed of thee!"

Absentminded Mr. Balfour.

Mr. Balfour, like many great men, is absentminded.

Once in a speech he referred to the late Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman as Sir Henry Bannerman, Sir Charles Bannerman, and Mr. Bannerman. Then he proceeded to speak of Lord Northampton as Sir Henry Fowler—who, of course, is Lord Wolverhampton and Sir William Fowler; and at an Albert Hall Primrose League demonstration Mr. Balfour blandly inquired of an official where he was to sit, having seemingly quite forgotten that he was to preside.

Yet little things irritate Mr. Balfour. Playing in a foursome at golf in North Berwick, the ex-Premier was about to attempt a difficult "putt," when a man in the crowd, who had a most irritating cough, was about to begin again.

The caddie held up his hand, and stopped the game. Then he turned to the onlookers, and, with an exaggerated politeness, asked:

"Can ony o' ye obleege yon man wi' a jujube?"

Strictly Neutral.

A British officer in the Kurrum valley who interrogated an Afridi with regard to what was then considered a probable conflict.

"Now tell me," said the officer, "if there were to be war—which God forbid—between Russia and England, what part would you and your people take? Whom would you side with?"

"Do you wish me to tell you what would please you or to tell you the real truth?" was the naive reply.

"I adjure you to tell me what is the 'white word'."

"Then," said the old grey beard, "we would just sit up here on our mountain tops watching you both fight, until we saw one or the other defeated. Then we would come down and loot the vanquished till the last mule! God is great! What a time that would be for us!"

A Disgusted Lover.

When James IV. of Scotland went to London to propose for the hand of Margaret, the daughter of Henry VII., he was somewhat disgusted to find her at their first meeting so busily engaged in a game of cards that she was scarcely able to give him any attention.

Insurance Companies Lose About $125,000.00 by the Wreck at Spanish River

Double Liability for About Twenty-five Persons

A loss of somewhere in the neighbourhood of $125,000 is what the Accident Insurance Companies estimate the wreck at Spanish River bridge means to them.

They figure that about 25 of those who met death carried Accident Insurance, and the average insurance, according to the tables, is $5,000. In case of death in a railway disaster there is a double liability, making the figure $6,000, or $5,000 to be more conservative.

Their loss may total more than that, for the commercial travellers, a number of whom were killed, usually carry very heavy insurance. In addition, some of the companies make the policies payable on the death of the wife while travelling, though the policy is taken out in the husband's name. In such cases they pay the husband the same amount as they would have paid the wife were the husband killed.

We issue the BEST Accident and Sickness policy offered to the public.

TOO BUSY

Too busy to talk with the friend who calls,
Too busy to hear what he has to say,
Too busy, still, when the night time falls
To spend a while with his boy in play.
Too busy to eat in a decent place,
Too busy to sleep a nighttime through.
Never a pause in the driving race,
Work is all he has time to do.

Too busy to read or to see a show,
Too busy to love! What a dreadful thing
Is to put in a lifetime so!
Too busy to stroll down a shady lane
Too busy a cheerful word to say
Holding that all but work is vain.

Too busy to share in the joys of earth
What is the sense of it, anyhow?
Putting off everything here of worth
Instead of living a full life now.
What is a dollar more or less
A step behind or a step ahead.
Live as you go, for the thing success
Means nothing the moment that you are dead.

TRIP THROUGH THOUSAND ISLANDS

Interesting Paper Read at Ladies' Literary of St. Peters T.A.S.

At the usual fortnightly meeting of the Ladies' Literary of St. Peter's T.A.S. the following interesting paper on the above subject was read by Mrs. F. McGrath:—

All dark and silent, each shadowy island
Like a silhouette, lies on the silvery ground.
While just above us a rocky highland
Towers, green and dark, with its pine trees crowned.

Never a sound but the waves' soft splashing,
As the boat drifts idly, the shores along,
And the darting fire-flies, silently flashing,
Gleam, living diamonds, the woods among.

Passing down the quiet waters of the Quinte, shut in from the great lake outside by the long low-lying shore of Amherst Island, the grey mass of the city of Kingston is seen crowning the slope of the curving shore. From the western extremity of the curve the rising sun gilds the wide expanse of Lake Ontario. Eastward the channel of the St. Lawrence begins to be defined by a line of islands.

Let us step on the steamer at Kingston in the early dawn of a summer morning as the sun rises golden over the line of high land on the opposite shore of the harbor, the wide lake stretching calm and glassy in the blue distance to the west. The opposite islands stand out clear in their relative positions. Garden Island, behind it Simcoe Island. To the west, with a narrow channel between it and Wolfe Island, Kingston rises on the gentle slope, the cool, grey buildings and slender spires catching the warm glow of the level sunbeams.

Just outside the harbor you see the gateway to the St. Lawrence, and a little fear mingles with your admiration, for you sail through a narrow stream which seems impassible to the eye. Look to the right, and there is pretty little Cedar Island in its new dress of delicate green, and the soft, golden-brown of new life; to the left is historic old Fort Henry and the Military College.

Like a bird the boat glides through and sweeps into the river channel, and for an hour you enjoy the sweet cool breezes and refreshing scenery. The rich and varied colorings of granite rocks, with overhanging foliage of every shade of living green are reflected in the glassy river, which the steamer's swell raises into a song, heavy undulations and makes the scene like fairyland. All along, the islands are dotted with white tent homes, like snowdrops in the woodlands. Groups of little laughing children wave frantically from the shore and you wave back again.

Just above Gananoque the islands increase in number and beauty, to your great delight, for you are now eager with anticipation of what is in store. A little further on and you grow bewildered as to which if the more beautiful—that one with the great jutting granite rocks fortifying its sides, picturesquely massed cedar and pine trees growing to the water's edge—or, this, so smooth and round, with slanting grey slabs, running out to meet the shining river, and the tender foliage of baby vine's creeping out of every moss-filled crevice. You cannot choose.

Round a bend and Fiddler's Elbow fascinates the vision, so narrow is the channel through which you are gazing that you can almost touch the willow branches as the sway caressingly towards you. You pass close to rich masses of foliage mirrored in the still waters, bold rocks, flecked with the exquisite pale greys or greens of encrusting lichens, and shadowy bays, kissed by overhanging birch and cedar boughs, or bristling weather-beaten crags, tufted with solemn pines. Suddenly you notice that it is very still. There is a hush in the air that can be felt. Emerald banks on each side seem to silently close in upon you. The water is so clear, the blue of Heaven's sky seems to sweep a veil of azure over it. Every leaf of tree or shrub is magically mirrored in this strangely quiet stream. The birds fly to and fro with softened whirr; they forget to sing, for you are passing through the Lost Channel, unequalled in mysterious beauty the world over.

A few minutes' run and you have left nature unmolested, and are in the midst of nature which man has striven by every cunning device to improve. This is the land of the Stars and Stripes, where wealth and luxury abound. Stately castles, beautiful homes, magnificent yachts and houseboats like floating palaces pass by in a brilliant pantomime. Alexandra Bay with its magnificent hotels and abodes of fashionable beauty and smart society, where you find the nations of the world represented by parties who have travelled many thousands of miles to see the world-famed Thousand Islands. At night the hotels are ablaze with electric lights; hundreds of red, yellow and blue eyes twinkle and gleam like illusive sprites.

With a very long winding cut across you come to Thousand Island Park, an ideal spot for the hundreds of families who there spend the summer. It is a place essentially for women and children. The large hotel has broad living verandahs, where the less energetic watch the tennis and croquet players who daily enjoy the little out-door exercise. There is a constant landing of hundreds of excursionists from every part of the Islands the the nearest towns and cities. A large pavilion is erected where you can spend the warmest days on the river's edge and be fanned by refreshing breezes.

The islands now begin to darken into the rosy sunset glow which makes the placid river reflect their beauty from a sea of glass mingled with fire, ere it merges into the purple gloaming through which the fire-fly darts its living light, and the plaintive refrain of the whip-poor-will adds pathos to the beauty of the summer evening.

The dusk is falling as you come to another fairy palace, Frontenac Hotel at Round Island Park, the most charming and exclusive resort. Now you touch Clayton with the slang of the New York Central, and the bustling activity of a United States town, but it soon fades in the distance.

Night has fallen and a great moon rises behind one of the dark islands, throwing its mysterious light over the scene, making a broad, quivering pathway of fretted silver, on which the islands show like silhouettes—their wavy outlines of foliage marked out in shadow on the silver sea below. On and on, while you are wondering if it has all been a beautiful dream—a trip to fairland through the land of Nod. The steamer's prolonged whistle assures you of the realistic, you can see the glittering of many electric lights, and you collect the wits that have been wool-gathering, for you are now entering the harbor of the old Limestone City.

The other numbers on the programme were:—
Instrumental—Mr. R. Foster.
Selection by the Mandolin Club.
Recitation—Miss E. Bartley.
Vocal Duet—Misses E. Flood and E. Kearns.

The next meeting of the literary will be a very important one, being in the form of a "Scotch Evening," at which Rev. Father McCall will deliver a lecture.

Are Your Children Properly Fed?

LET us talk about the right feeding of children.

You want your children of course, to grow up strong and healthy; you want to equip them for the battle of life with rugged constitutions and good red blood.

Now, the first step is to see that they are properly fed. And these words "properly fed" mean much in the diet of youngsters. For it isn't quantity that counts, but quality. Overfeeding is just as bad as underfeeding. And wrong feeding is worse. Persistent feeding of wrong food results in gases and acids, stomach troubles, impoverished blood.

There is no better food under Heaven for growing children than plenty of first class bread and butter. They thrive on it, grow strong and fat and rugged. Their systems crave it because it is a complete, well-balanced food. But the bread must be good—the very best, and the best is made from flour which contains the full nutriment of Manitoba Red Fyfe wheat—for only wheat of this character contains enough of the right quality gluten to balance the starch. Gluten makes bone and muscle, starch makes fat. It takes the right combination of both to make properly balanced bread.

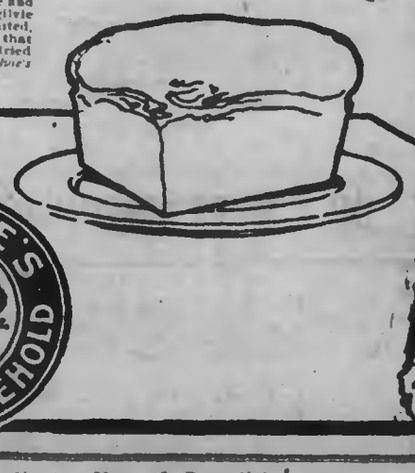
Bread made from OGILVIE'S ROYAL HOUSEHOLD FLOUR is richest in blood building, muscle building, health building gluten. Children like it better and thrive better on it.

With "Royal Household" you need never have anything but the very best results for it is always the same, absolutely uniform, year in and year out and is just as good for pastry as it is for bread.

If parents knew this important difference between ROYAL HOUSEHOLD FLOUR and other flours they would never use any but "ROYAL HOUSEHOLD".



Send in your name and address to The Ogilvie Flour Mills Co. Limited, Montreal, and get that splendid book of tried Recipes called "Ogilvie's Book for a Cook".

EXHIBITION WAS A BIG SUCCESS

Capacity Attendance at Y.M.C.A —A Clever Programme

Last night the Y.M.C.A. gymnasium gallery was filled to the doors and could hold no more.

The first on the programme was a clever exhibition of tumbling by the Mack Bros. They did some good hand balancing and some clever somersaults, and the whole thing was very much appreciated by the audience.

Mr. Lilley, of the P.A.C., gave a very clever exhibition of rope skipping, and did it with ease. He deserves great credit.

The junior school boys went through a wand drill in excellent form, and did it in the good, old-fashioned way.

A very praiseworthy exhibition of club swinging was also given by Mr. Lilley.

The junior school boys thought that they could make a better showing in the line of aparatus work, and were given a chance, and they certainly did do their work as good as the big fellows.

Well, the elephant was the next thing to be run on the floor, and the employed boys did the high diving in great old circus style.

The P.A.C. boys gave an exhibition of class work on the parallel bars, and they did most wonderfully, and deserve all the credit that was given them by way of applause.

The employed boys gave the audience a good idea of how a good muscular development might be obtained in working on the mats.

Again we have the P.A.C. boys, who give us another exhibition. This time they teach the art of body-building with the dumb bells.

The Leaders' Corps of the local association treated us with some advanced gymnastics that opened the eyes of the audience, and made them give out the applause in the way they should.

But we must not forget the little jiggers they had running around and getting into all sorts of scrapes. First they were upstairs and then they were down; then they were trying to play tricks on the girls in the gallery. Then they were down in the wand drill, then in the dumb bell drill; next they were doing everything that could be imagined. The names of these two little fun producers are Lorin Conway and Kyle Harstone. Perhaps you are acquainted with them, if not you ought to be, for they are the smartest and brightest of all the originators of comical gyrations on the face of the globe. If you failed to see them you missed a large portion of their life.—Com.

Resign or Veto.

London, March 4.—(C.A.P.)—Speaking in the House of Commons yesterday, Premier Asquith said it was intended to ask the House to pass the budget immediately after the resolutions dealing with the Lords were dealt with.

If the Government were not in a position to secure that the proposals as to the Lords should pass into law, they would not continue in office.

London's Freedom for Roosevelt.

London, March 4. The court of common council unanimously adopted a resolution conferring the honorary freedom of the city on Theodore Roosevelt, who will visit London in the middle of May.

Eaten by Wolves.

Springfield, Mo., March 4. James Smith, a woodman, was eaten by wolves in the woods near Ally after fighting a desperate battle for his life.

Violated the Rules.

There is a park policeman in the service of a certain zoo who is quite a joker in his way, as is evidenced by an occurrence in the vicinity of a large bears' den in the zoo, which lies at a lower level than the grounds about it and which is surrounded by a railing. One day a visitor while leaning over this rail lost his balance and fell into the pit. He fell at the side of a bear, which at once seized the intruder's leg in its mouth and would have proceeded to crunch the same at his leisure had not help immediately been summoned. When the keepers had got the visitor out of the bears' den he was not much injured, but, naturally enough, pretty well frightened. His fright was increased by the action of the policeman, who stepped up to him, saying:

"You are under arrest."

"Arrest!" gasped the unlucky one. "What for?"

"For violating the rules of the park," said the policeman, pointing to the sign over the railing, "It is Positively Forbidden to Feed the Animals."—Harper's Magazine.

The Highest Viaduct.

The great iron viaduct of Fades is said to be the highest in the world. It is 122 meters in height, or nearly 440 feet. Over it will pass trains from St. Elvy to Volvic, passing over the valley of Sioule. The work has been completed and the strength of the structure tested. The test consisted of sending across the bridge, drawn by two American locomotives, a train 205 meters in length, consisting of thirty great wagons laden with ashes. The total weight of the train was 1,102,000 kilograms, a kilogram being 2.2 pounds.—London Globe.

GIRLS WITH BAD COMPLEXIONS

The skin should really be so soft and transparent that the blood in the vessels beneath can impart to it the pale, rosy tint which is the ideal "bloom of health." Often, however, the skin becomes course and rough, and its cells filled with various impurities, which should be thrown off. This results in those "muddy," sallow complexions, spots, blackheads, etc.

Girls who are troubled in this way will find Zam-buk a perfect skin food. Smear it lightly over the spots, the eruptions, the sallow patches, at night, and notice how quickly your appearance improves. As the rich, refined, herbal essences sink deep into the tissue, the hard, scurfy-like patches are removed. The cuticle is softened. The cells beneath are stimulated to healthy operation. The pores resume their work properly, and a good complexion results. Isn't this better than attempting the impossible task of improving your complexion from the outside?

LAW IN THE WILDERNESS.

What an Officer of Canada's Mounted Police Stands For.

An officer of the mounted police is not an exponent of the law. He is the law itself. When he rides his cayuse to foothill camp or threads on snowshoes the worn north trails of the trapper he goes clad with the authority of courts. He preserves order, but he also makes arrests. He tries offenders in his own courts and then escorts the man upon whom sentence has fallen to a prison of his own making, where the lawbreaker may be incarcerated for ten days or thirty years. Back of that slight, silent, steel nerved rider are the strong arm of England and the whole of Canadian jurisprudence, and when he speaks it is as one with authority. In extreme cases, when the death penalty has to be enforced, one mounted policeman may have to act as clergyman, executioner and coroner.

"All this I swear without any mental evasion, equivocation or secret reservation. So help me God." With these impressive words do raw recruits and grizzled soldiers enter the service of the mounted police and swear fidelity to his majesty Edward VII. It is not prospective wealth that tempts a man to become an empire builder in this mounted force of Greater Canada, "for hard is her service, poor her payment."

The newly recruited constable gets 00 cents a day, his term of engagement is five years, and he may look forward to re-engagement on a second term, with a staff sergeant's pay of from $1 to $1.50 a day to work up to. Recruits must be between the ages of twenty-two and forty, active men of thoroughly sound constitution and possessed of certificates of exemplary character. They must be able to read and write in either English or French, understand horses, ride well, measure up to the minimum height of five feet eight inches, have a chest measurement of thirty-five inches, weigh not over 175 pounds and be unincumbered with a wife.—Agnes Dean Cameron in Century.

The Suction Pump.

As all schoolboys know, a suction pump can theoretically elevate water only about thirty-three and one-third feet, a column of water of that height balancing the atmospheric pressure. Recently, however, a means has been found of causing a suction pump to raise water to a height of even sixty feet. The invention was made by a workman in the French marine. M. Eyserie, the chief engineer of the marine, remarked that one particular pump showed extraordinary qualities in drawing water from ships' holds. Inquiry developed the fact that a workman named Aixial had thought of the plan of introducing air into the water at the point where the suction was applied, thus producing an emulsion of air and water, which because of its diminished density was capable of being elevated to considerably greater heights than pure water. The air is introduced through a small brass tube.—Youth's Companion.

A One Legged Soldier.

A soldier with only one leg would seem to be an anomaly, but the French town of Hanbaix can boast of one in the person of Alexander Murth, a reservist of the One Hundred and Sixty-first regiment. Murth broke his leg some months ago owing to an accident while digging a well. The limb was amputated and replaced by a wooden substitute.

Recently Murth was called upon to undergo the usual seventeen days of training at St. Mihiel. He duly presented himself, expecting to be discharged, but to his surprise was detained at the barracks and set to mending shoes despite his ignorance of the craft. The colonel even threatened him once with eight days "cells" because he was not prompt enough in rising to the salute.—London Standard.

Uncle Sam's Blue Book.

During Washington's administration the secretaries of state, treasury and war, Thomas Jefferson, Alexander Hamilton and Henry Knox, transmitted the names of their clerks to congress, and in 1798 Secretary Hamilton forwarded to congress a general list of clerks, agents and employees on the government rolls. This latter, being printed, was the first blue book, or register. In 1817 it was decided to print the book biennially, but it was then a simple list of appointees. The United States official register, or "blue book," was of over 4,000 pages, in two large volumes, in 1905, so much had the list been lengthened.—Argonaut.

CONSERVATIVES RESIGN FROM LUMSDEN INQUIRY BOARD

As Result of Refusal of Majority, Conservatives on Committee Quit in Protest—Waste of Time to Stay on the Commission, Says Mr. Lennox.

Ottawa, March 5.—Yesterday afternoon Messrs. Lennox, Barker and Crothers, the Conservative minority on the special committee appointed to investigate the charges of H. D. Lumsden, resigned as a protest against the refusal of the majority to permit them to name counsel to represent the people in the pending enquiry.

It has been arranged that Messrs. E. M. MacDonald and Sam Barker, for the respective sides, should try to agree on a counsel to represent the committee, but they failed, and yesterday Mr. Barker moved that the minority appoint the counsel. This was voted down, 4 to 3.

"Speaking for myself," said Mr. Lennox, "I cannot help feeling it would be a waste of time to stay here, under the circumstances."

Mr. Macdonald then moved that Wallace Nesbitt, K.C., be retained as public counsel. This was seconded by A. H. Clark, but Mr. Barker did not believe that a counsel appointed by the Government supporters on the committee would be likely to afford satisfaction to the Opposition. Counsel would do the utmost for the people who retained him, in this case the Government.

Mr. Macdonald remarked that this was a most peculiar situation. The Opposition had not moved for a committee to investigate the charges of Mr. Lumsden, neither had they made any charges against the Government.

Mr. Clark observed that he did not think party feeling should enter into the case at all, and a moment later charged the minority with seeking to make political capital and with having no desire to get at the real facts.

Victor Geoffrion, the chairman, observed that he did not think a lawyer of Mr. Nesbitt's standing would risk his reputation by being a partisan in the conduct of the case.

"We have nothing whatever to say against Mr. Nesbitt. It is a principal we are fighting for," said Mr. Barker.

The four Liberal members then carried a motion appointing Mr. Nesbitt.

There is a rule, that must be obsolete by this time, that if a member appointed by the House of Commons to a special committee refuses the mandate of the Commons, he can be incarcerated in the tower and kept in durance vile.

In the House yesterday, C. L. Owen (East Northumberland) said that while the Canadian surtax against Germany had been wholly removed in the recent adjustment, the German discrimination against Canada has only been removed in part. He asked Mr. Fielding if the German arrangement precluded Canada making any arrangements she pleased with the United States.

Mr. Fielding thought Canada was not bound in anyway. He also said Mr. Owen was wrong in saying Germany had a surtax against Canada.

E. N. Lewis (W. Huron) referred to recent delays in the tariff negotiations with the United States, as emphasizing his previous demand for a Canadian embassy at Washington. Sir Wilfrid intimated that the matter might be discussed.

Richard Blain (Peel) said last night in the Commons, it was becoming too easy for speculators to get a valuable railway charter for the object of disposing of it for a large sum of money. He suggested that, before any charters in the future were sold, the original promoters should be compelled to get the authority of the Governor-in-council.

Presenting petitions asking that the Welland Canal be deepened, a deputation of fifteen workingmen from Montreal and Toronto saw Sir Wilfrid Laurier yesterday afternoon. They urged that the work go ahead, particularly on account of the employment which it would give and also by reason of its benefits to navigation. In the delegation were J. F. Stratton, Daniel McKay, J. M. Embleau, T. Beland and A. Pelletier, of Montreal; Daniel Ryan and Timothy Kelly, of Toronto.

The Premier said the Government was fully alive to the importance of this work, as well as the Georgian Bay Canal. He gave no definite assurance.

PHILADELPHIA UNION MEN GO OUT TO-DAY IN SYMPATHY

Two Men Were Shot in Riots Yesterday—Rioting Begins and Serious Trouble is Expected—Outside Labor Men Will Help.

Philadelphia, March 5.—Encouraged by messages of sympathy and offers of assistance from labor organizations in all parts of the country, the union workers of many trades ceased work at midnight and began what promises to be one of the greatest sympathetic strikes ever witnessed in the history of organized labor.

The committee of ten says at least 75,000 organized workers, as well as many unorganized sympathizers of the street car men, have already ceased work.

Promptly at midnight union orchestras playing in the leading hotels and cafes picked up their instruments and started for their homes.

Union cab drivers and chauffeurs also abandoned their posts and the hotel and railroad cab and automobile service was badly crippled. The drivers of both taxicab services in the city are members of a union and refused to take out their machines after the strike had gone into effect.

The committee of ten remained in session at its headquarters all night receiving reports from the various local unions.

The various labor leaders refused to comment on the report that the police officials would prevent the demonstration planned for this afternoon in Independence Square.

Rioting, which began last night in several sections of the city and was particularly severe in the northeastern district, is thought to be a forerunner of more serious trouble today, when thousands of idle men will throng the streets.

While the labor leaders are receiving support from their fellow workmen in all parts of the country, many associations of employers have sent letters and telegrams to the officials of the Philadelphia Rapid Transit Co., and the city officials, commending the stand taken, and urged them to remain firm in their determination not to submit to the strikers demand for union recognition.

All policemen, firemen and specials who have been on duty since the strike began, received orders last night to remain at their posts.

The emergency automobiles in the City Hall courtyard were increased in number and measures were taken to send a force of men to any section of the city at a moment's notice.

Many of these machines were driven by their owners, wealthy men who have volunteered for police duty and have been sworn in by Director Clay.

The final word making effective the general strike already ordered for midnight last night was sent to union workers all over the city last night, when the committee of ten received word from the secretary of the carmen's union that the last effort to secure arbitration had failed.

A proclamation was also made to unorganized labor. Another proclamation calls for public demonstration by the working people of Philadelphia in Independence Square this afternoon at 3 p. m.

All this followed the rejection of an offer by the company to submit to arbitration by a committee of nine, three from those who refused to strike, and three to be chosen by the other six from all the employes. As to arbitration with the strikers under the act of 1903, the company said that that cannot be done as the relationship between the employes and employer has been severed.

Two Men Shot.

Wm. Brexler, aged 42 years, was probably fatally wounded last night by a policeman, who shot at a crowd on Frankford avenue, in the northeast section of the city.

Several cars had been stone by the crowd along this street, and the police guarding them fired a volley in the air. One of the bullets struck Brexler in the stomach.

Crowds also attacked cars in the downtown and northwestern sections of the city.

While assisting a young woman across Howard street in the northeastern section last night, Robert Modell, aged 19 years, was shot in the back by a policeman who was endeavoring to disperse a crowd that had been stoning a trolley car. His condition is serious.

B.C. MEMBER MAKES BITTER ONSLAUGHT ON JUDICIARY

A. H. B. MacGowan, of Vancouver, Says Supreme Bench is Made up of Two Lunatics, One Fool an a Fugitive From Justice.

Victoria, B.C., March 5.—A remarkable attack on the Supreme Court bench of British Columbia was made in the Legislature yesterday by A. H. B. MacGowan, member for Vancouver. In referring to a bill to amend the Supreme Court act of the province, MacGowan moved that a new section be added reading: "Provided, however, that no person shall be eligible for the position of judge of the said court, or sit in judgment on any case, who had been tried and convicted of crime, or who has been charged, and not absolutely exonerated, of such charge, or against whom the slightest suspicion of wrong doing remains."

MacGowan said he had never had a case before the Supreme Court, and he hoped to God he never would. The judiciary was bad. The judges were appointed through political influences. The highest legal authorities in the province had characterized the Supreme Court bench as comprised of two lunatics, one fool and one scoundrel and fugitive from justice. The three former he would leave to their desserts from the Almighty.

Of the latter, he had something to say the perquisite of a judge was to protect those unable to protect themselves. The man of whom he spoke was better fitted for the penitentiary than to hold any positions in the courts of the land. He was worse than a beachcomber, awaiting the incoming tide to rob its human jetsam, worse than the ghouls prowling around the morgue to wrest the rings from the fingers of the dead.

What was the history of this man? Years ago, a miner had died in the Yukon. His widow came forward and claimed her inheritance of gold, only to find it had been taken by another man. There were delays, unintentional or otherwise, before the wheels of justice commenced to revolve. The culprit escaped, for a couple of years he rusticated, then turned up again in this province. He was promoted to the courts.

A good political tool, his promotion was rapid. He reached the Supreme Court bench. The methods of the Yukon had followed this man to British Columbia. Justice was being bought and sold. Here, it was only necessary to make it right with the "powers that be," and justice was meted out accordingly.

In the course of the debate, Attorney-General Bowser pointed out that the province had no power to deal with the constitution of the Supreme Court bench in British Columbia, and pressure of MacGowan's motion was withdrawn.

EIGHT MEN FEAR RABIES

London, Ont., March 5.—Donald Campbell of Coldstream and seven of his neighbors, who helped him try to manage a mad horse on his farm yesterday, are en route to the Pasteur Institute in New York, where they will be treated.

The animal was bitten by a mad dog some days ago, and died yesterday in horrible agony. Campbell and his neighbors tried to attend it, and received many scratches and bruises, and were covered with the froth from its mouth.

GOOD ROADS CONVENTION CONCLUDED

W. H. Pugsley of Richmond Hill is New President—Several Interesting Papers Were Read

Toronto, March 5.—At the closing session of the Ontario Good Roads Convention yesterday afternoon, a resolution was passed authorising the executive of the association to investigate and report at the next convention on the advisability of pressing the Provincial Government for a system of provincial roads.

During the three days' convention, speakers repeatedly emphasized the benefits that would accrue by the joining up of the good county roads already in existence with others to be constructed by the province. While speakers from the American side helped to popularise the idea by explaining the system on which state roads are managed south of the line.

A resolution was also adopted, recommending an appeal to the Provincial Government for an increased grant for highway improvement, but it was decided to take no further action in that direction until the Government has had time to consider the representations regarding amendments to the Highways Improvement Act, which were made by county deputations a few days ago.

After having heard from Chief A. G. Smith in regard to the position of the Six Nation Indians of the County of Brant, the convention endorsed the Indian deputation's request that subsidies granted by the province for highway improvement should be available for expenditures on roads through Indian reserves as well.

During the day papers on subjects pertaining to road building were read by James L. Taylor of Hamilton, A. W. Connor, C.E., Toronto, and J. W. Gage of Hamilton. J. M. Young of Harriston, W. B. Rittenhouse of Beamsville, R. H. Jupp of Orillia, while L. A. Hamilton of Lorne Park, discussed the need of better roads through the fruit district of Ontario. He said that last year he had been able to get 4 cents a basket more for grapes at Hamilton than in Toronto, owing to the damage done to the fruit by the transportation companies. Mr. Hamilton expressed the opinion that if the Federal Government has used the $1,500,000 which was put into the Newmarket Canal, for the improvement of the roads leading into Toronto, it would have acted more wisely.

A grant of $50 was voted to Col. Farewell for his services and expenses as secretary.

County Councillor Egan, of Peel County asked the convention to support an appeal to the Legislature for legislation authorizing the county councils to pass bylaws regulating the speed and operations of automobiles. No action was taken.

Officers for the ensuing term were elected as follows:

President, W. H. Pugsley, Richmond Hill; re-elected; vice-president, Thomas A. Kennedy, Cooksville; secretary-treasurer, Col. Farewell, Whitby, re-elected; assistant secretary, W. A. McLean, Toronto; executive, Warden Hall, Prescott; K. W. McKay, St. Thomas; R. H. Jupp, Orillia; L. A. Hamilton, Lorne Park.

It was decided that the next convention should be held in Toronto, commencing on the first Tuesday in March.

THE QUEBEC UTILITIES COMMISSION

Quebec, March 5.—The official announcement of the appointment of the members composing the Public Utilities Commission was made yesterday. The members are Col. Hibbard of Montreal, chairman; Sir J. George Garneau, and M. Charles Laberge, professor in the Polytechnical School, Montreal. The secretary has not been named yet. The commission has been named for a period of ten years.

The chairman will receive $4,000 a year and the other commissioners $3,000.

WHEN ROOSEVELT GETS BACK HOME

New York, March 5.—One hundred and fifty prominent New Yorkers were named yesterday to comprise the committee which will give Col. Roosevelt a welcome home from his hunting expedition in Africa.

The first step was taken by Mayor Gaynor, following recent consultations with William Loeb, jr., former secretary to President Roosevelt, and now collector of the port of New York. Cornelius Vanderbilt heads the welcoming committee as chairman.

London, March 5.—The Royal Geographical Society is endeavoring to arrange for a lecture to be delivered by ex-President Roosevelt at Albert Hall, the subject being his African tour.

TWO MORE VICTIMS OF VICIOUS DOGS

St. Thomas, March 5.—A collie dog belonging to Fenton Bros., of Highgate, went mad. The dog was locked up in the barn. When the hired man opened the door to see what the dog was growling about, it ran at him and fought its way out. In trying to recapture the dog, Anderson Fenton was bitten on the wrist.

The animal ran across country, biting every animal it came in contact with, and was finally shot in Howard Township. John Fenton was bitten by the same dog a few days ago, and the two brothers left for Toronto yesterday to take the Pasteur treatment.

IMMENSE RUBBER CARGO ARRIVES

New York, March 5.—A cargo consisting of 1,433 tons of crude rubber, worth between six and seven million dollars, was brought into this port yesterday on the steamship Clement of the Booth Steamship Co. after a long cruise from South American ports.

The cargo is the most valuable of its kind that has ever before been brought to this country, and is all due to the remarkable increase in the automobile industry during the past year.

PROVINCE WILL RULE

Ontario Must Control Car Lines in its Jurisdictions

Toronto, March 5.—Ontario will in the future take absolute control of all electric railways in the province operating under provincial charters. Under the comprehensive measure brought down by Sir James Whitney in the Legislature yesterday, the long-drawn-out and hitter struggle of the Toronto Street Railway Co. for the right to dictate its line routes must come to nought. The final word will be spoken by the Ontario Railway and Municipal Board.

The Premier frankly bespoke his purpose. The act, while a general one, aims specifically at local conditions. The Toronto Railway Co., he explained, had gone to the Privy Council for a declaration of its rights. The decision of that body was still pending, and it was to protect the city in the event of the decision favoring the company that he had introduced the bill. The Premier, in introducing the measure and asking the Legislature to make it law, characterized as "intolerable" the situation that would be created in the event of the company winning its appeal. The Premier also introduced an amendment to the Ontario Railway Act. The principal clause of the second act is one giving to a municipality the right, in the event of the company refusing to construct lines asked for, to grant to another corporation that privilege or to construct the lines itself.

The measure, which is described as an act to amend the Ontario Railway and Municipal Board Act, provides that whenever the board is of opinion after hearing upon its own motion or after complaint that the "regulations, practices, equipment, appliances or service of any railway company in respect to transportation of persons, freight or property are unjust, unreasonable, unsafe, improper or inadequate," the board shall have full power to remedy all defects. It is empowered to "fix and prescribe," and it is made to be "the duty of the railway company to observe and obey every requirement of every order, and to do everything necessary or proper in order to secure absolute compliance with, and observance of, every order of the board.

MINISTER CLEVER AT DISAPPEARING

Windsor, March 5.—No word has yet been received from Rev. David Hicks, Methodist minister, who disappeared from Gesto, Ont., near here, and then reappeared in the pulpit of the Methodist Church in Corunna, Mich. Hicks left Michigan Village three days ago to come to Essex to stand trial before the church tribunal, but has not arrived here. Rev. Joseph Philp of Essex said yesterday afternoon: "We want him to appear before our board and justify himself, if he can. If we expel him from the ministry, it will probably be the basis for serious charges by the board of Home and Foreign Mission Society of the Canadian Methodist Church."

THE PASTEUR TREATMENT IN TORONTO

Toronto, March 5.—The Pasteur treatment is being carried on by the medical staff of the Provincial Board of Health in a special clinic of the Toronto General Hospital, kindly placed at the disposal of the board of the governors.

To insure as early treatment as possible, in every instance, notice must be sent to Dr. C. A. Hodgetts, secretary of the Provincial Board of Health, otherwise embarrassing delays may occur in the commencement of the treatment. This notice may be sent by long distance telephone or by telegraph.

The public are also informed that it will not be necessary that the patient should be kept in the hospital during treatment. Patients who choose may arrange to board outside the hospital.

GIRL'S HEROISM AT NEW YORK FIRE

New York, March 5.—While gas, paints and oils were exploding in her burning home on the ground floor of an east side tenement yesterday, Fannie Goldman, 12 years old, groped her way through the flames and heroically rescued her father, who had fallen senseless in a blazing room, and her two-year-old sister. Firemen said it was as heroic work as they had ever seen.

A gas stove set fire to a curtain and the flames quickly reached a storeroom of paints and oils. Goldman ran towards a rear bedroom to save the two-year-old daughter and a four-year-old son, when he was knocked unconscious by an explosion. Then Fannie rushed in.

ORANGEVILLE LOCAL OPTION DEFEATED

Orangeville, March 5.—Judge McCarthy gave judgmenet yesterday on the local option bylaw, declaring it defeated. His honor finds the petitioner was justified in removing ten voters who were not entitled to vote. The majority for local option was four.

The case for the petitioner was presented by Mr. Haverson and W. J. L. McKay, and for the respondent by H. E. Irwin and C. R. McKeown.

HERE'S A CASE OF COMPLICATED SMUGGLING

Windsor, March 5.—A smuggling case which has dragged along for the past six years is now finally settled in the United States District Court, Detroit, where Alonzo Burrows was fined $300 for smuggling six bales of tobacco across the Detroit River from Sandwich.

Burrows testified that he received $20 per bale for making arrangements to get the tobacco across the river. The bales were shipped from New York in bond, and then smuggled into the States again, after they had been taken out of bond in Canada to defraud the Government of the tobacco tax. The tobacco was taken across from Sandwich in a row boat.

WILL FIGHT THE AMERICAN FEDERATION

Washington, March 5.—The National Labor Alliance, organized in a secret meeting here Thursday night, will oppose the influence of the American Federation of Labor in national and congressional elections. The meeting was attended by several members of Congress, who have been opposed by the American Federation of Labor, and by members of the Knights of Labor and others.

The plans of the new organization include the raising of a fund to be subscribed by manufacturers and others who have been in conflict with the A. F. of L.

SWITCHMAN'S NARROW ESCAPE FROM DEATH

Windsor, March 5.—Harry Hadden, 30 years old, a switchman, yesterday had a narrow escape in the Grand Trunk yards at Walkerville. While cutting a freight train in two, where the switch branches out from the main line, his foot was caught between two rails and as the train passed, it was tightly wedged in and crushed by the pressure. He leaned as far out as possible and signalled to the engineer to stop, at the same time calling for help. The engineer halted the train which, had it moved an inch farther, would have severed the foot.

THE RAILWAY TO THE NORTH

Railways are not always or usually built where there is traffic sufficient to sustain them. They open the districts through which they pass, and the traffic develops. This has been the experience in the Northwest. It was argued when the first Canadian transcontinental railway was projected that it would not pay, but it is a financial success, and three such railways instead of one are now looked for. The same experience has followed the construction of railways in Northern Ontario. So long as the opportunities are present the opening up of the natural resources by providing the means for communication and traffic will lead to their development, and provide business for the railway.

To the north of Peterborough there is a district that is without railway facilities, and that is rich in mineral resources. Many elements would combine to furnish traffic. The summer resorts, the hunting grounds and the fishing would furnish a quota in their seasons, and the mineral and timber wealth would provide a steady and growing business. There is population now in the district, and the people feel the need of a railway. The population would grow rapidly with the construction of a railway.

Peterborough should feel a deep interest in this matter. We have seen part of the trade diverted from this city with apparent equinamity, but the ground lost should be regained. If no effort is made, and we quietly let things take their course, more of this district may be cut off at any time. Once a railway passes through from some other point it will be much more difficult to have one built from here. It is not merely the present trade that should be considered, although it is not inconsiderable, but the trade that will be developed when a railway is built. When the minerals and timber are accessible factories will be established to manufacture them into commodities, and these factories will be located at the point where the conditions are favorable, that can be reached most directly by rail. With a railway from Peterborough to the north, this city would be on the line of export of the raw material, and with the cheap power it has for factories, and the facilities for shipping manufactured products to all markets, there would be no doubt that the factories would be established here. If we have not this railway connection, and a railway is built leading in another direction, our opportunity would be lost. As to part of the territory there is such railway connection leading away from Peterborough. This loss should be retrieved and the balance made certain.

This is not a new idea. Many years ago a railway was projected from Peterborough to Haliburton, and Peterborough was at that time willing to give assistance. Later, some twenty years ago, the project was revived, and a company formed, and the route was surveyed. The results of these surveys are probably available yet.

The Board of Trade might do worse than give attention to this matter. Conditions have greatly changed in twenty years, and even if the railway would not have been available then it might be now, and it is certainly worth thoroughly enquiring into.

DELAYED TOO LONG

Sir Wilfrid Laurier has told a deputation that he is an enthusiast in regard to the construction of the Georgian Bay Canal and that the Government hope to begin its construction at an early date. In this district there will be no disposition to object to the construction of useful means of transportation or other needed public works, in any part of the Dominion, but until the Government makes provision for completing important works that are now unfinished it should be cautious in undertaking new ones. What is needed is to have every remaining foot of the Trent Valley Canal put under contract at once, and with sufficient appropriations behind the contracts to push them forward with all possible despatch. Here is a stretch of 160 miles of navigation, upon which large sums have been spent, without an outlet at either end, and the country and this district in particular suffering because the work is not completed. The portion of the waterway that has been opened is of local benefit, as the amount of traffic through it shows, but this benefit from local traffic is a small matter compared with the beneficial results that will follow when navigation is opened to Lake Ontario at the south and to Georgian Bay at the north. The value of every bushel of wheat and other produce will be enhanced, manufacturers will be benefitted, new industries will spring up with the water-powers to drive their machines, and trade will be given an impetus. If the waterways were only to benefit the large district through which it passes—a district as important as some provinces—it should be completed quickly, but along with that it will give another important outlet for produce from the Canadian west to the seaboard and a cheap highway through which manufactures from the east will be carried to the west. This public work is of first importance, and no effort should be spared to have the short remaining sections put under contract and completed as rapidly as the work can be done.

EDITORIAL NOTES

In Germany legislation to regulate aerial navigation is talked of. This will soon be another public convenience for the Railway Commission to control.

It is said that probably $3,000,000 worth of automobiles will be sold in Toronto as a result of the show held in that city. The horses will soon have a poor show on the roads.

For saying what you mean when you want what you say understood there is nothing like good, terse English. For instance, the sign at the cemetery gate, which reads, "Automobiles, keep out."

Being president of the United States is a trying occupation and if President Taft is not more careful it will wear him away. He has lost seven pounds in weight in the year and now weighs only 319 pounds.

Some hot words were used in the Public Accounts Committee of the Legislature the other day. Surely Ottawa manners are not going to be introduced at Toronto. The "blockers" at Ottawa have frequently made the Public Accounts Committee at Ottawa a farce, but the Ontario Government has nothing to keep back.

An alleged interview with Mr. R. Forget, M.P., was published in La Patrie in which he was reported as expressing want of confidence in Mr. Borden as leader of the Conservative party. Mr. Forget promptly repudiated the interview and pronounced it bogus throughout. It is well to be on guard against insinuations of divisions among Conservatives, for they will not always be made in such a direct way or with names given so that their falsity can be shown so promptly and clearly.

ISLAND COMES AND GOES.

Rises in August and Disappears Regularly in February.

One of Michigan's unsolved mysteries is the island that every summer comes to the surface of Lake Orion and every winter goes back again to the depths from whence it arose.

Its periods of appearance and disappearance are nearly regular. It comes to the surface about the middle of August and goes down again about Feb. 15. What causes it to act thus strangely is a conundrum that none has been able to solve, but to keep it above water or compel it to remain in the depths have been alike without results.

On one occasion a number of farmers and teamsters resolved to put the island out of moving business. In their efforts to do so they hauled many loads of stone and deposited them on it during the early part of winter, believing that when it went down in February it would go down for good, weighted as it was with the stones. But the following August saw it bob up serenely from below—minus its load of stones.

At another time an effort was made to keep it on the surface, and it was chained to the surrounding country with heavy log chains. When its time for departure came it departed, and the log chains departed with it. The log chains were never recovered.

The island is composed of soft mud and rushes, and there are some skeptical souls who attribute its formation and appearance and disappearance to the gathering of vegetation in one spot by the currents of the lake and its subsequent decay.

Actors' Recreations.

Mr. George Alexander has been a golfer for several years, and finds in the game his chief recreation. Another actor devotee of the game is Mr. Forbes-Robertson. Mr. Kendal shoots, fishes, and rides; so does Mr. Cyril Maude. Sir Herbert Beerbohm Tree rides, and generally has a turn round the park in the morning. Mr. Edward Terry is known as a traveler, having been in most parts of the world. Mr. Martin Harvey devotes his spare time to painting and drawing.

The Man From Brodney's

By GEORGE BARR M'CUTCHEON

Copyright, 1908, by Dodd, Mead & Co.

She sat and stared out over the black sea, lighted fitfully by the distant lightning. There she pronounced sentence upon him—and herself. There was no place for him in her world. He should feel her disdain; he should suffer for his presumption. Presumption? In what way had he offended? She put her hands to her eyes, but her lips smiled—smiled with the memory of the kiss she had returned.

"What a fool! What a fool I am," she cried aloud, springing up resolutely. "I must forget. I told him I couldn't, but I can—I can." Halfway across the room she stopped, her hands clinched fiercely. "If—if Karl were only such as he!" she moaned.

She went to her dressing table and resolutely unlocked one of the drawers, as one would open a case in which the most precious of treasures was kept.

"It was so silly of me!" she muttered. "I shall not keep them for him." The drawer was partly filled with cigarettes. She took one from among the rest and placed its tip in her red lips, a reckless light in her eyes. A match was struck, and then her hand seemed to be in the clutch of some invisible force. The light flickered and died in her fingers. A blush suffused her face, her eyes, her neck. Then, with a guilty, shamed, tender smile, she dropped the cigarette into the drawer. She turned the key.

"No," she said to herself; "I told him that I was keeping them for him."

CHAPTER XXV.

THE TRIAL OF VON BLITZ.

THE next morning found the weather unsettled. There had been a fierce storm during the night, and a nasty mist was blowing up from the sea. Deppingham kept to his room, although his cold was dissipated.

Chase had been up nearly all of the night, fearful lest the islanders should seize the opportunity to scale the walls under cover of the tempest. All through the night he had been possessed of a spirit of wild bravado, a glorious exaltation. He was keeping watch over her, standing between her and peril, guarding her while she slept. His thoughts, however, did not contemplate the princess fair in a state of wretched insomnia, with himself as the disturbing element.

He looked for her at breakfast time. They usually had their rolls and coffee together. When she did not appear he made more than one pretext to lengthen his own stay in the breakfast room. "She's trying to forget yesterday," he reflected.

Selim came to him in the midst of his reflections, bearing a thick, rain soaked envelope.

"It was found, excellency, inside the southern gate, and it is meant for you," said Selim. Chase gingerly slashed open the envelope with his fruit knife. He laughed ruefully as he read the simple but laborious message from Jacob von Blitz:

"Where are your warships all this time? They are not coming to you ever. Goodby. You got to die yet too. Your friend, Jacob von Blitz. And my wives too."

Chase stuffed the blurred, sticky letter into his pocket and arose to stretch himself.

"There's something coming to you, Jacob," he said, much to the wonder of Selim. "Selim, unless I miss my guess pretty badly, we'll be having a message, not from Garcia, but from Rasula before long. How are my cigarettes holding out?"

"They run low, sahib. Neenah has given all of hers to me for you, excellency, and I have demanded those of the wives of Von Blitz."

"Selim, you must not forget that you are a gentleman. That was most ungallant. But I suppose you got them?"

"No, sahib. They refused to give them up. They are saving them for Mr. Britt," said Selim dejectedly.

"Ah, the fickleness of women!" he sighed. "There's a new word for you, Selim—fickleness."

It was far past midday when he heard from Rasula. He had seen the princess but once, and then she was walking briskly, wrapped in a rain coat, followed by her shivering dogs and her two Rapp-Thorberg soldiers. Somehow she failed to see Chase as he sauntered hungrily, almost imploringly, across the upper terrace, in plain view. Perhaps, after all, it was not the weather.

Rasula's messenger came to the gates and announced that he had a letter for Mr. Chase. Rasula had this to say:

We have reason to suspect that you were right in your suspicions. The golden plate has been found this day in the cave below the chateau, just as you have said. This much of what you have charged against Jacob von Blitz seems to be borne out by the evidence secured. Last night there was an attempt to rob the vaults in the company's bank. Again I followed your advice and laid a trap for the men engaged. They were slain in the struggle which followed. I have to inform you, sir, that your charge against Jacob von Blitz does not hold good in the case of the bank robbery. Therefore I am impelled to believe that you may have unjustly accused him of being implicated in the robbery of the treasure chests. He was not among the bank thieves. There were but three of them—the Boer foremen. Jacob von Blitz came up himself and joined us in the fight against the traitors. He was merciless in his anger against them. You have said that you will testify against him. Sir, I have taken it upon myself to place him under restraint notwithstanding his actions against the Boers. He shall have a fair trial. If it is proved that he is guilty, he shall pay the penalty. We are just people.

Sir, we, the people of Japat, will take you at your word. We ask you to appear against the prisoner and give evidence in support of your charge. He shall be placed on trial tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock. On my honor as a man and a believer I assure safety to you while you are among us on that occasion. I, Rasula, will meet you at the gates and will conduct you back to them in safety. If you are a true man, you will not evade the call. RASULA.

"Well, it looks as though Von Blitz has spiked your guns," said Deppingham. "The dog turns against his confederates and saves his own skin by killing them."

"In any event," said Browne, "you spoiled his little game. He loses the treasure, and he didn't get into the vaults. Rasula should take those points into consideration."

"He won't forget them, rest assured. That's why I'm sure that he'll take my word at the trial as against that of Von Blitz," said Chase.

"You—you don't mean to say, Mr. Chase, that you are going into the town?" cried Lady Agnes, wide eyed.

"Certainly, Lady Deppingham. They are expecting me."

"Don't be foolhardy, Chase. They will kill you like a rat!" exclaimed Deppingham.

"Oh, no, they won't," said the other confidently. "They've given their promise through Rasula. Whatever else they may be, they hold a promise sacred. They know I'll come. If I don't they'll know that I am a coward. You wouldn't have them think I am a coward, would you, Lady Deppingham?"

The next morning he coolly set forth for the gates, scarcely thinking enough of the adventure to warrant the matter of fact goodbye that he bestowed upon those who were congregated to see him off. His heart was sore as he strode rapidly down the drive. Genevra had not come down to say farewell.

"By heaven," he muttered, strangely vexed with her, "I fancy she means it. She's bent on showing me my place. But she might have come down and wished me good luck. That was little enough for her to do. Ah, well!" he sighed, putting it away from him.

As he turned into the tree lined avenue near the gate a slender young woman in a green and white gown arose from a seat in the shade and stepped a pace forward, opening her parasol quite leisurely as he quickened his steps. Her eyes gleamed brightly, and she was breathing as one who has run swiftly.

"You are determined to go down there among those men?" she demanded, the smile suddenly giving way to a look of disapproval. She ignored his hand.

"Certainly," he said after the moment of bewilderment. "Why not? I—I thought you had made up your mind to let me go without a—a word for good luck." She found great difficulty in meeting the wistful look in his eyes. "You are good to come down here to say goodby. We're almost strangers again."

"I did not come down to say goodby," she said, her lips trembling ever so slightly.

"I don't understand," he said.

"I am going with you into the town—as a witness," she said, and her face went pale at the thought of it.

"Genevra," he cried, "you—you would do that?"

"Why not, Mr. Chase?" She tried to speak calmly, but she was trembling. After all, she was a slender, helpless girl—not an amazon! "I saw and heard everything. They won't believe you unsupported. They won't harm me. If I swear to them that what you say is true they"—

Her hand was on his arm now, trembling, eager, yet charged with fear at the prospect ahead of her. He clasped the little hand in his and quickly lifted it to his lips.

"I'm happy again!" he cried. "It's all right with me now." She withdrew her hand on the instant.

"No, no! It isn't that," she said, her eyes narrowing. "Don't misinterpret my coming here to say that I will go. It isn't because—no, it isn't that!"

"I was unhappy because you had forsaken me," he said gently. "You are brave—you are wonderful! But I can't take you down there. I know what will happen if they find him guilty. Goodby, dear one. I'll come back—surely I'll come back. Thank you for sending me away happy."

"Won't you let me go with you?" she asked after a long, penetrating look into his eyes.

"I would not take you among them for all the world. You forget. Neither of us would come back."

"Neither of us?" she said slowly.

"I wouldn't come back without you," he said quietly, earnestly. She understood. "Goodby! Don't worry about me. I am in no danger."

"Goodby," she said, the princess once more. "I shall pray for you with all my soul." She gave him her hand. It was cold and lifeless. He pressed it warmly and went quickly away, leaving her standing there in the still shade of the satinwoods, looking after him with eyes that grew wider and wider with the tears that welled up from behind.

Hours went by—slow, tortuous hours in which the souls of those who watched and waited for his return were tried to the utmost.

Once there came to the ears of the watchers on the mountain side the sound of distant shouts, later the brief rattle of firearms. The blood of every one turned cold with apprehension. Every voice was stilled, every eye wide with dread. Neenah screamed as she fled across the terrace toward the drawbridge, where Selim stood as motionless as a statue.

Luncheon time passed, and again, as if drawn by a magnet, the entire household made its way to the front of the chateau.

At last Selim uttered a shout of joy. He forgot the deference due his betters and unceremoniously dashed off toward the gates, followed by Neenah, who seemed possessed of wings.

Chase was returning!

They saw him coming up the drive, his hat in his hand, his white umbrella raised above his head. The eager, joyous watchers saw him greet Selim and his fluttering wife. They saw Selim fall upon his knees, and they felt the tears rushing to their own eyes.

"Hurray!" shouted little Mr. Saunders in his excitement. Bowles and the three clerks joined him in the exhibition. The princess was conscious of the fact that at least five or six pairs of eyes were watching her face. She closed her lips and compelled her eyelids to obey the dictates of a resentful heart. She lowered them until they gave one the impression of indolent curiosity, even indifference. All the while her incomprehensible heart was thumping with a rapture that knew no allegiance to royal conventions.

Cingalese English.

The menu is an indispensable adjunct to a respectable luncheon or dinner table in Ceylon. As a rule, the head servant writes it out, and from his elementary knowledge of English springs a host of quaint blunders. At the same time, his fertile Oriental brain is ever apt to add foot-notes, which are, perhaps, his happiest achievement.

At one lunch there figured, among the dishes, "roast beef," but it caused the hostess some consternation when she discovered the additional legend in very small letters, "roast beef, smelling a little," the parenthetical note being meant to intimate that the dish was accompanied by a sauce of savory odors.

On another occasion there appeared this following acknowledgment of deficiency, "steak and kidney pie, no kidney."

It was altogether delightful to find at one dinner our old friend, welsh rabbit, appearing as "welsch rubbish." The same genius translated haricot mutton into "hurrygod mutton."—The Epicure.

New Health and Strength for Weak and Ailing Girls

Can be Had Through the Rich, Red Blood Made by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People.

There comes a time in the life of almost every girl when sickness attacks her. The strain upon her blood supply is too great, and there comes headaches and backaches, loss of appetite, attacks of dizziness and heart palpitation, and a general tendency to a decline. The only thing that can promptly and speedily cure these troubles is Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. This is the only medicine that actually makes new, rich, red blood and a plentiful supply of rich blood is the one thing needed to maintain the health of growing girls and women of mature years. The truth of this statement is proved in the case of Miss Esther E. Sproule, Trouenville, N.S., who says: "At the age of thirteen years I left my country home to attend high school. The close confinement and long hours of study nearly broke me down. My blood supply seemed to be deficient and I grew pale and depressed. I was dizzy nearly all the time, and pimples broke out on my face. I was altogether in a miserable condition and it seemed impossible for me to continue my studies unless I found a speedy cure. I tried several tonics prescribed by doctors, but they proved useless. My mother urged me to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and I finally consented to do so. I had hardly finished the second box before a change for the better took place, and the use of a few boxes more fully restored my health, and I have since been well and strong. I feel that I cannot say too much in favor of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and I strongly recommend them to other ailing girls."

You can get these Pills from any medicine dealer or by mail at 50c. box or six boxes for $2.50 from the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

A BANNER DAY FOR EAST PETERBORO' CONSERVATIVES

Splendid Attendance at Annual Convention at Norwood--Stirring Addresses at Big Mass Meeting in Town Hall—Officers Elected at Afternoon Session--Praise for East Peterborough's Representatives.

Yesterday was a red letter day for Conservatives of East Peterborough, when the Conservative Association of the East Riding held its annual convention at Norwood. In the afternoon a representative and enthusiastic annual meeting was held and in the evening eloquent and logical addresses were given by interesting and well informed speakers. They were given a most appreciative hearing by an attendance which nearly filled the commodious town hall and the evident feeling of the meeting showed that the electors present had every confidence in Messrs. Thompson and Sexsmith, the representatives for the Provincial and Dominion houses respectively and seemed a confirmation of the generally expressed prediction that they would be again returned on the occasion of their next candidatures.

Both made brief and heartily applauded addresses at the mass meeting at night and a feature of the gathering was the ringing addresses of Mr. Alfred Grigg, M.P.P., for Algoma and of Major Currie, of North Simcoe. Mr. James Andrews, of Norwood, the newly elected president of the Conservative Association of East Peterborough, presided at the meeting.

AFTERNOON MEETING.

There was an excellent attendance of representative and influential electors at the afternoon business meeting of the association when the business of the annual session was transacted. This included the election of officers and the adoption of important measures. Great satisfaction was indicated by those in attendance over the fact that the electors of East Peterborough had seen fit to use their franchise in returning the Conservative candidates as representatives to both the Provincial Legislature and the House of Commons. Absolute confidence was also expressed in the Whitney administration and its leader and in the honest and able leadership of Mr. Borden for the Conservative forces at Ottawa.

Dr. Fraser, of Lakefield, was appointed chairman of the meeting.

The secretary read a letter from Mr. J. G. Sherry, in which the latter tendered his resignation as president of the association. He eulogized the work at their respective houses of the members for East Peterborough and spoke of their faithful service in the interests of their constituencies. It was also a matter of congratulation that the Conservative candidates had been chosen to represent the people both at Ottawa and Toronto. Mr. Sherry's resignation was the cause of much regret and he was assured that his well directed services had been fully appreciated.

The nominations for officers were then called for and resulted in five being nominated for the office of president. They were Messrs. H. G. Fitzgerald, Lakefield; James Andrews, Asphodel; Dr. Fraser, Lakefield; Major Birdsall, Asphodel, and C. E. Pakenham, Norwood.

A ballot was taken in the election of the president and the other officers were elected by open voting.

The officers elected were;

President—Jas. Andrews, Asphodel.

First Vice-President—Dr. Fraser, Lakefield.

Secretary—E. C. Squire, Norwood.

Treasurer—C. A. Ghent, Havelock.

A vice-president and representative from each municipality was chosen. In each case of the names of those selected given below, the vice-president is mentioned first;—

Belmont, J. B. Peoples and Matthew Petherick; Norwood, C. E. Pakenham and Thomas Loughbridge; Lakefield, H. G. Fitzgerald and O. A. Langley; Otonabee (two divisions), J. A. Reid and Morley Sexsmith and J. Shaughnessy and R. J. McManus; Asphodel, H. N. Dran and Adam Humphries; Havelock, Jos. Knox and S. S. Joyce; Douro, F. Moher, T. Miller and A. Whibbs; Dummer, H. A. Moore and W. R. Parker; Burleigh, Israel Church, Ben Coones and Geo. Matthews; Chandos, John Hales and Andrew Dent; Anstruther, John Lane and Thomas Stevens; Methuen, Sofra Whitney and W. Dulmage.

There are ten municipalities in the riding and two delegates will represent each municipality in connection with this it was moved by J. F. Lillicrap, and seconded by R. C. Strickland, that the gentlemen selected from each municipality as vice-president and representative be the regular delegates, and that they have the power to nominate alternatives. This was carried.

A suggestion of Mr. O. A. Langley was adopted to have the secretary elected notified of their appointments and to request them to name a third or alternative delegate within ten days, so that he might notify the provincial organizer, Mr. J. Stewart Carstairs.

Mr. Andrews, the new president, was called to the platform and briefly bespoke his appreciation of his election to the president's chair.

Mr. Sexsmith next spoke, and in referring to a statement at the East Peterborough Liberal Convention at Norwood, to the effect that he won the riding by secret organization, said the remark was without foundation and that he never resorted to anything but open work as election procedure, and everything at the last election was done on Grand Conservative lines.

Mr. James Thompson, M.P.P., followed and referred to the necessity of action and wide interest on the part of the electors. He spoke in complimentary terms of Mr. Sherry, the late president. He was glad of the appointment of Mr. Sherry to the position of county registrar, and yet was sorry that he had to leave East Peterborough. Mr. Sherry was a hard, persistent and optimistic worker.

Mr. Grigg, M.P.P. for East Algoma, assured the meeting that the interests of East Peterborough were in good hands in their two representatives.

Dr. Fraser spoke briefly. He referred principally to the difficulties formerly existing in Lakefield when there was one riding for the province and one for the Dominion. They hardly knew then which leg they stood upon, but Mr. Carstairs had been consulted, and as a result Lakefield was standing upon both feet.

It was moved by Jas. Knox, seconded by O. A. Mangley, and carried, "That this convention of the Conservative Association of East Peterborough do express their entire confidence in the government of the province and in its able leader, Sir James Pliney Whitney, and also its complete confidence in the leadership of Mr. R. L. Borden in the Dominion House, and its accord with his views as expressed in the House of Parliament. And this meeting also expresses the confidence in our local members, Mr. Sexsmith and Mr. Thompson, and endorses their actions in the respective Houses."

A very successful meeting closed with cheers for the King.

EVENING MEETING

Mr. James Thompson, M.P.P., welcomed the audience very courteously, and was pleased to note the attendance of the ladies. He said he was sure that as long as the affairs of the riding were in the hands of such representative men as were present at the annual meeting in the afternoon everything would be all right.

Mr. Thompson was in favor of more public meetings being held, in order that the electors might know what was being done by the members chosen to represent the different ridings.

On this, the first opportunity since his election, he thanked the electors of Norwood and vicinity for their support of him in the provincial election, and expressed his gratitude most cordially. The speaker said that he had been aggressive in getting the agricultural school at Norwood for East Peterborough. The electors of this section of the country were, to a large extent, agriculturalists, and for that reason he showed a particular interest in the farmer.

There were three most important stepping stones in the progress of Ontario. These were education, agricultural expansion and industrial expansion and prosperity. Ontario today was producing almost two-fifths of the farm products of Canada, and was growing greatly every year from an agricultural standpoint. In the great Niagara Falls Providence had made provision for Ontario becoming the great industrial centre of Canada. The hydro-electric power scheme, which the Government had undertaken, was going to bring great prosperity to the municipalities of the province, and a great deal less in cost than the people were at present paying for coal. And hand in hand with the industrial prosperity, agricultural prosperity was bound to come. Industrial prosperity directly affected the farm and there seemed no doubt that power would be used in the work on the farm and would eventually propel all the machinery of the farm. Mr. Thompson was enthusiastically applauded for his interesting address.

MR. SEXSMITH.

Mr. Jno. A. Sexsmith, M.P. for East Peterborough, said we had to-day before the Parliament of Canada, one of the greatest questions that had ever concerned the people of the Dominion—the defance of the Empire.

The speaker had listened for the past month to the debates and speeches on the navy bill. He had first heard the speech of the Premier, and then of his followers. And the only discussion by the supporters of the bill proved a criticism of the Opposition and continual harping on the autonomy, the autonomy, the autonomy.

Mr. Sexsmith warmly criticized Sir Wilfrid Laurier's statement of the expense in connection with the building of the C.P.R., and questioned if confidence could be placed in presentation of the figures in connection with the proposed navy.

We were British subjects, and the question we all had to ask ourselves was whether we wanted to stay in the Empire. To that question he was sure everybody would say yes.

Mr. Sexsmith reviewed the history of Canada, and quoted figures to show that Great Britain had been most generous in support of the Dominion. In the last century England had contributed $1,500,000,000 toward the support of Canada.

He took exception to Sir Wilfrid Laurier's attitude on imperial defence, and ridiculed the idea of a Canadian navy, which would, in ten years, cost Canada $10,000,000 a year, and would be absolutely valueless in case of a war on the high seas.

The speaker believed there was cause for a German war scare. Germany was building Dreadnoughts and had the greatest land army in the world. Germany was apparently looking forward to the day when she would be mistress of the seas and ruler of all she surveyed. All true Canadians would be in favor of doing something for the Mother Country's defence, but the people of Canada should have something to say in the matter of the navy—whether it was to be a Canadian navy or an Imperial navy. In unity there was strength. We should draw closer to the British Empire and build up the Imperial navy.

Mr. Sexsmith read sworn evidence to show that great grafting had been done in connection with the excavation in the building of the Transcontinental, and prophesied further graft in the construction of the road, and also in connection with the Canadian navy, should it be decided to build one.

The meeting gave Mr. Sexsmith a most encouraging reception.

MR. GRIGG.

Mr. Albert Grigg, M.P.P. for Algoma, said in commencing his address that he supposed he wouldn't be orthodox if he didn't express his pleasure at meeting the good Conservatives of East Peterborough. He made some very humorous references which put the audience in receptive mood.

He congratulated Mr. Thompson on his strenuous advocacy in the interests of his riding, and also eulogized Mr. Sexsmith for his able representation in the House of Commons.

We were passing through a very critical stage in the history of Canada. Never since the Dominion of Canada had been founded had the country been passing through such a critical period.

It has been said that England must keep supreme on the seas and it was because that the British Empire and we as an integral part of the empire had always stood for the highest in national life. This was necessary in order that England might keep in the balance the integrity and peace of the world.

If he understood the question, the proposed Canadian navy would be as effective as a little boy with a toy boat. He contended that the Canadian people, irrespective of their politics, would protest against a policy that was laying the foundation of the disintegration of the British Empire.

But he had not come to discuss the navy, but to discuss the northern part of the province. The most important thing the Provincial Government had to attend to was the development of our great northern heritage. The men of older Ontario had been very slow to recognize the possibilities of the wonderful Northern Ontario. Mr. Grigg vividly described the history and growth of New Ontario. He also told of its very shabby treatment at the hands of the Government of Ontario that was six years ago ousted by the electors of the province.

He would not say that the Liberals were all debauched and the Conservatives all virtuous, but he did emphatically say that the men who held the reins of government in Toronto for many years did not have any conception of their duties to New Ontario.

The speaker stated that New Ontario had wonderful resources and was one of the richest agricultural sections in the world.

In almost every way the late Provincial Government had neglected the people of northern Ontario. But the condition under the present administration were radically changed, and the man that was settling on a farm in New Ontario knew that he was getting a farm that was fertile and one that he could make a good living on if he worked it properly. Under the old administration, however, a man could settle on any farm regardless of its possibilities.

The policy of the Government in connection with disposal of the timber came in for strong approbation. Under the old policy large timber areas were held, and development of important sections of the northern districts were retarded until the license holders of timber saw fit to dispose of the properties at their own sweet will. The present method is that no timber lands are disposed of in the northern country to-day except by competition, and there was no patronage, and the man of small means was just as competent to buy the timber as the millionaire. A greater immigration to New Ontario

Harry Wall Will be Again Taken in Charge by St. George's Home of That Place

Chief Rosael has had many callers making inquiries about Harry Wall, the young English lad who appeared in police court on Thursday morning. These include farmers and residents of the city, but the boy will be sent back to the Boys' Home in Ottawa, a ticket and a letter of explanation having been received by the chief.

The letter states that Wall is but thirteen years of age, and that information at hand disproves the statements made by the lad to the effect that he had received harsh treatment from the farmer with whom he had been placed.

AN ISOLATION HOSPITAL TO COST NOT MORE THAN $12,000

Property Committee Decides to Have Plans Prepared and Institution Will Likely Become a Reality This Year—57th Band Will Likely Go Back to Old Band Hall.

After being on the shelf for several months, the Isolation Hospital question has again popped up and there are prospects that work on the building may be commenced before Halley's comet envelopes the earth in its poisonous tail and blots out all earthly existence. It will be remembered that the ratepayers voted down a by-law at the municipal elections to provide for an isolation hospital building, to cost $19,000, and since that nothing has been done about the matter. The question came up again at the meeting of the Property Committee last night, and it was decided to make arrangements to go ahead with the building of the hospital, the total cost of building and complete equipment not to exceed $12,000.

On motion of Ald. Batten and Morgan, the chairman was authorized to secure plans for a building, which, when equipped, will not cost more than $12,000.

It is possible that a new set of plans will not have to be secured. The city clerk stated that he thought there were plans already prepared for a building to cost about $8,000. They were prepared at the request of a former council.

In connection with the request of the 57th regiment officers that the regiment be given control of the instruments of the 57th regiment band, Ald. Duncan stated that Col. Stevenson had told him that after the fire in the band hall in the city buildings Bandmaster Gliddon had asked him (Col. Stevenson) if the instruments could be placed in the band room at the armories. The request was granted. In view of the fact that the band did not wish to give the regiment control of the instruments, Col. Stevenson was willing that they should again be placed in the band hall in the city buildings.

On motion of Ald. Batten and Morgan, the chairman was authorized to settle the matter, and as a result it is likely that the old band hall will again be used.

J. J. Turner & Sons were given permission to erect a sign on the city property on the bank of the Otonabee river, provided it is a V shaped sign with an advertisement for the city on one half of it.

In the specifications for the new public library there is a clause that before the building is taken over by the city the contractor for the electric wiring must furnish a certificate from the insurance underwriters that the wiring has been properly done. Ald. Duncan stated that the wiring was now being done and that the certificate had not yet been given. On account of the above clause in the specifications the contract for the wiring will not be considered completed till the certificate has been given.

Mayor Morrow moved that the chairman and city solicitor be a committee to draw up a schedule of the duties of the medical health officer and submit it to the committee.

The Mayor's name was added to the committee and it was seconded by Ald. Batten and carried.

Those present at the meeting were Ald. Duncan, chairman; Mayor Morrow and Ald. Morgan and Batten

MARKET WILL AGAIN BE LET BY TENDER IF COUNCIL SUPPORTS REPORT

If the action of the Property Committee is endorsed by the City Council, the Peterborough market will again be let by tender, after being under municipal management for two years with a market clerk paid a salary by the city. The matter was dealt with at the meeting of the committee last night and the members were of the opinion that more revenue would be derived from the market if the city disposed of the privilege of having control of it by tender. Two years ago it was decided to try municipal management of the market and it has been found that the corporation did not derive as much money from it as when the other system was in vogue. Ald. Batten stated that last year the city had only cleared three hundred dollars from the market.

On motion of Ald. Morgan and Batten it was decided to advertise for tenders for the control of the market for the year commencing April 1st, and that Mr. Hall, the present clerk, be notified to this effect. This was carried.

PROPOSITION TO DEVELOP POWER AT WATERWORKS DAM

On Monday night, the City Council will prepare a by-law to authorize the borrowing of $70,000 to be used in developing electric power at the waterworks dam. A committee of the whole Council have conferred with the Water Commissioners, reports having been received from Mr. Wm. Kennedy, engineer, of Montreal, and all agreed that the surplus supply of water should not be allowed to go to waste, and it is the intention to submit the by-law to the electors. Further information will be forthcoming in the near future, and the Review will publish it as soon as it is put together and obtainable.

On behalf of the hockey team Mr. Len Dobson read an address and Mr. Cyril Giroux presented "Bill" with a pipe, and on behalf of the club President Joseph Sharpe read the address and Mr. T. The genial "Wullie" made a neat acknowledgement, and assured the club that the gifts would ever remind him of his pleasant associations with the team and members of the club.

Mr. Millburn left this morning for Detroit, where he has secured a position.

SPLENDIDLY ENTERTAINED AT CHEMONG

The Chemong Athletic Club held its first annual tea and concert in the Chemong town hall on Thursday, March 3rd. The dining hall was was crowded from 5 to 7.30 p.m.

The programme was given by the Alderville brass band and rifle club. The entertainment was a splendid one and everyone was greatly pleased with it. It consisted of music by the brass band, and string band, and songs, duets and dialogues by the members of the Rifle Club. The Hiawatha choir gave some excellent numbers and solos, and everything in connection with the programme was most enjoyable.

There were about three hundred at the entertainment, of which 100 were friends from Alderville, Hiawatha and Scugog Island. On the following day, Friday, there was a rifle shooting match between the Alderville Rifle Club and the Chemong Athletic Club. The score was 14—9 in favor of Chemong. It will be remembered that a couple of weeks ago Chemong was defeated by Alderville, so now the clubs have decided to meet and break the tie before the first day of July.

The style of shooting of the match was off handed and the event is to be an annual affair. The competitors will shoot in different positions next year. The defeated club had to pay for the supper for all the shooters, the repast having been prepared in advance in the town hall. A splendid light programme was again given by the Alderville club, which kept the audience for roars of laughter for a couple of hours. Mr. S. Conego, captain of the Alderville Rifle Club, was chairman.

At the conclusion of the Chemong-Alderville shooting match a rifle shoot was held between the ladies of Chemong and Alderville, the Chemong ladies winning by four points.

This morning the visiting party left for home and the centre of the village, where the toleighs were lined up ready for the guests to start, was the scene of much hearty handshaking, the visitors parting the best of friends with the hosts, and both look forward to another such happy and successful social reunion.

The proceeds wer eabout $75.00.

SOME NEW SONGS

New songs are constantly being turned out by the song-writers, some good and some bad. There are a large number of song successes in "Molly May" which appears here on Tuesday night, in fact it has been remarked that it was strange that so many good songs should be contained in one production. Among these which are spoken of very highly are:

Molly May.

Love Comes to Stay.
The Way to See Him Home.

Many Pitch Holes

A well known farmer stated to the Review to-day that the roads in the country were in a particularly bad shape, there being many pitch holes. The snow is not disappearing in the country with the rapidity it is in the city, but a good heavy rain, he remarked, would make a big change.

BANNER DAY FOR EAST PETERBORO' CONSERVATIVES

was enthusiastically advocated by the speaker.

He said that Dr. McDonald, editor of the Globe, did not know what he was talking of when he decried in his narrow way the development of New Ontario.

In speaking of the mineral wealth of New Ontario Mr. Grigg said that New Ontario was the greatest mining country on earth, and in conclusion eloquently urged a recognition of New Ontario by the citizens of the older province.

MAJOR CURRIE.

Major Currie, M.P. for North Simcoe, endorsed what the preceding speaker had said, and stated that he could do so conscientiously, because he had travelled Northern Ontario very thoroughly. One could go for miles and tread on the finest clay.

The speaker said he was a farmer's son, and everything pertaining to the farm interested him. He spoke in the highest terms of Mr. Sexsmith, whom he characterized as a very hard and consistent worker; and his and Mr Sexsmith's interests in the government of the country were largely of a similar character. They were both interested in the welfare of the farming population and in everything that pertained to the advancement of the agricultural interests. There was no harder working or more useful representative in the House of Commons than the representative for East Peterborough, John Sexsmith. Major Currie spoke in the highest terms of the able administration of the Whitney Government and of the admirable stand on public questions taken by the leader for Ontario, Sir James Whitney. On the splendid record of the Whitney Government the speaker was sure that the people would be justified in voting on the Conservative ticket in the Dominion elections.

Major Currie next commented at length on the Lumsden contract of the Grand Trunk Pacific. He explained in detail the extent of the road and the preliminary steps in its survey and construction. He severely arraigned the Dominion Government for their loose estimates in connection with the excavation work on the road. That the cost of the road had been doubled by excavation graft was shown by the returns for the actual work.

The burning issue of to-day was the Canadian navy. The speaker lucidly sketched the birth and progress of the present Imperial defence question in Canada, and of the origin and superior qualities of the celebrated Dreadnought type of battleship.

Germany had followed England's example in Dreadnought building, and the ultimate result would undoubtedly be war. When this threat of war came, and it looked as though Britain would be embroiled in war in 1812, the colonies came to the assistance of the Mother Country and Australia and New Zealand each contributed a Dreadnought to the Imperial navy. This had given rise to the Canadian navy discussion in the House at Ottawa.

The speaker showed by intelligent reasoning and comparison, that the idea of the Canadian navy as proposed by the Government at Ottawa, was an absurd and unjustified one.

Major Currie's address concluded a most instructive and successful meeting, and the chairman thanked the audience for their attendance, and close attention. Three ringing cheers were given for the King.

WINS A KISS SAVING A MISS FROM WET FEET

Handsome Dan, Sailor Man, Does it Neat; Busses Twice, Oh. so Nice! on the Street

New York, March 3.—To-day at Forty-second street and broad Fifth Avenoo," the rain came down in torrents and 'twas vrey slippery, too. And standing on the corner was a maid of high degree, who didn't want to wet her feet, 'twas very plain to see. The gutters gushed with water and the maid was at a loss to find a means of passage for to safely get across. She couldn't see a dry spot in the midst of all the flood. We quite forgot to mention that her name was Miss Blueblood. Her address was some swell hotel, her father's in the Street; yet, even all his money could not save her tiny feet from getting drenched. There hove in sight a stalwart sailor lad, who had a wife in every port, which isn't very bad, as long as they don't find it out. A handsome lad was he, and quickly hit upon a plan to help the maid, Miss B.

The sailor winked his widespread eye, and while the traffic man held up the cars our hero brave, whose name was Handsome Dan, tacked over to Miss Blueblood, and, a-doffing of his hat, he said, "Permit me, madame," and before she could say "scat" he took her in his rusty arms, and, holding her on high, he bore her safe across the street. The maiden heaved a sigh and, opening up her jewelled purse, she tendered him a bill. But Danny, with a stifled curse, bowed with consummate skill.

"Pardonnez moi, madame," he said: "a kiss is all I ask as a reward from your fair lips for such a pleasant walk."

Miss Blueberd blushed and looked around, then, raising up her head, "Take two; I've more at home, you see," was what the maiden said.

The sailor did as he was bid, and, bowing once again, they parted on the corner. The time was just 10.10.

But if you think the story's just a bit of paper talk, why, ask Miss Blueblood 'bout it when next she takes a walk.

CURE MEN AND WOMEN ALIKE

What Dodd's Kidney Pills Did for One Family

Cured Chas. Bell of Rheumatism and His Wife of Inflammation of the Kidneys—Mrs. Bell's Statement.

North Range, Digby Co., N.S. March 4.—(Special.)—That Dodd's Kidney Pills cure the Kidney ills of men and women alike is shown in the cases of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Bell, of this place. A short time ago Dodd's Kidney Pills cured Mr. Bell of Rheumatism from which he had suffered for ten years. This led Mrs. Bell to try them for inflammation of the Kidneys and she makes the following statement:—

"I was troubled with Inflammation of the Kidneys for twenty-four years. Some few years ago I got worse and was laid up for a long time. When I was able to be up again the doctor told me I must on no account do any work. I suffered from Dropsy and my feet would swell so I could not wear my shoes.

"My husband benefitted so much from taking Dodd's Kidney Pills I decided to give them a trial, and though I have taken only three boxes I am well and can wear my shoes and do nearly all my own housework. I cannot say too much for Dodd's Kidney Pills."

Dodd's Kidney Pills make weak Kidneys strong and sick Kidneys well.

SUFFERING DOG WAS CAUSE OF SOME EXCITEMENT

A dog did the Fritz Mobl act on Hunter street, near George street yesterday afternoon. In other words, he lay down and fanned the air with his legs. A big crowd gathered as a good many people were under the impression that the canine might be preparing for an attack of rabies. As a result the spectators did not get too close. One woman woman made a fast getaway when she noticed the dog writhing in the slush. The animal apparently had consumed a small quantity of poison, for he soon recovered and trotted away with an air of offended dignity.

Insurance Companies Lose About $125,000.00 by the Wreck at Spanish River

Double Liability for About Twenty-five Persons

A loss of somewhere in the neighbourhood of $125,000 is what the Accident Insurance Companies estimate the wreck at Spanish River bridge means to them.

They figure that about 25 of those who met death carried Accident Insurance, and the average insurance, according to the tables, is $5,000. In case of death in a railway disaster there is a double liability, making the figure $6,000, or $5,000 to be more conservative.

Their loss may total more than that, for the commercial travellers, a number of whom were killed, usually carry very heavy insurance. In addition, some of the companies make the policies payable on the death of the wife while travelling, though the policy is taken out in the husband's name. In such cases they pay the husband the same amount as they would have paid the wife were the husband killed.

We issue the BEST Accident and Sickness policy offered to the public.

THE LAST RESORT

When all else failed, the Doctors said, "try Fruit-a-tives"

And "Fruit-a-tives" cured Mrs. Cadieux

PLANTAGENET, ONT., JANUARY 31ST, 1910.

"About March 1st 1909, I was taken deathly sick with Stomach Trouble, Backache and General Breakdown. I failed from 125 pounds down to 80 pounds, was confined to bed for eight weeks, and was unable to eat or keep anything on my stomach, vomiting nearly all the time. I expected to die, and took many remedies as well as employing different physicians. The doctors said they could do nothing for me and, as a last resort, one of the doctors told me "to try Fruit-a-tives—if they would not cure me, nothing would".

Mde LAURENT CADIEUX

My husband bought "Fruit-a-tives" from Mr. Arthur Koleau, merchant of Plantagenet, and I started taking them at once, and inside of ten days, I was able to leave my bed. My stomach got strong and I could eat and retain my food. I gained rapidly and soon had my usual good health back again, and today I weigh as much as ever, 125 pounds."

MDE. LAURENT CADIEUX.

Even the doctors are recommending "Fruit-a-tives". They realize now that these wonderful fruit juice tablets will positively cure all Stomach Troubles, Indigestion and Dyspepsia—and they are using "Fruit-a-tives" in their practice.

Few people realize the vital importance of keeping their blood pure. Impure blood is the chief cause of Stomach Trouble, because it is from the blood that the stomach obtains the fluid which digests food. When the blood is laden with impurities, the disolving fluid (or Gastric Juice) will be impure. These impurities may come from a congested liver, from Constipation, from weak kidneys, from an inactive skin, or from all four. Naturally, the ordinary "digestive powders" and "pepsin tablets" will not cure the trouble, because they only help to dissolve the food—they do not go to the seat of the trouble. "Fruit-a-tives" is the greatest remedy ever discovered for all forms of Indigestion, Dyspepsia and other Stomach Disorders, because "Fruit-a-tives" is unequalled as a blood-purifying medicine. "Fruit-a-tives" acts directly on the liver, regulates the bowels, strengthens the kidneys, stimulates the skin, and thus rids the whole system of all impurities. "Fruit-a-tives" will positively cure you of any kind of Indigestion. "Fruit-a-tives" is sold by all dealers at 50c a box, 6 for $2.50 or trial size, 25c. If you are unable to obtain "Fruit-a-tives" conveniently, do not accept substitutes but send to "Fruit-a-tives" Limited, Ottawa and the regular size packages will be mailed you, postpaid, on receipt of price.

AT QUEEN'S UNIVERSITY

Special Correspondence of Peterborough Review

Kingston, March 2.—The interest in the hockey circle has been running very high for the past couple of weeks. This interest was intensified on Friday evening, for then it was to be proven whether the calculations were to be realised or not. When the playing hours in Montreal and Kingston closed the looked for result had come. The two last teams of Toronto University and McGill met in Montreal and, to the satisfaction of all around, Queen's. McGill proved themselves the victors. Although there was not much doubt around the halls what the final result would be between Laval and Queen's in Kingston, yet there was a little misgiving since Queen's has been acting strangely this year, winning her games away from home and losing her home ones. Friday night saw this turned and Queen's won by a good margin. The result is a three cornered tie, Varsity, McGill and Queen's. Since Queen's holds the cup from last year she has been given the bye, while the other two play off in Ottawa on Friday evening. The winner is to meet Queen's in Ottawa the week following to decide who shall hold the silverware for the next few months.

On Saturday evening the Annual Assault-at-Arms took place in the gymnasium. The past week or more has been occupied in working off the preliminary series, so that on Saturday evening it was the final events that took place, except in the fencing where the whole series was carried through. For three hours the gallery of spectators were held at a high tension as the following men struggled through for honors: In boxing—A. Meikle won the feather-weight; W. P. Alderson, the light-weight; J. A. McNichol, the welter-weight; H. C. Wallace, the middle-weight; H. Dickson, the heavy-weight. In wrestling—R. Smith won the featherweight; O. Alyea, the lightweight; F. Piric, the welter-weight; D. E. Foster, the middle-weight; J. A. McDonald the heavy-weight. In fencing—the preliminary was opened with eight men in the running. This necessitated a semi-final and a final (which was finally won by A. D. Carmichael.

During the week some of the professors and students of the Science Faculty are to be entertained to a treat in Toronto, where the Mining Institute meets. This branch of work has always been very favorably received among the Science men, since a good deal of attention has been and is given to the Mining Department. In this branch they treat ores from all parts of Canada. This branch is under the government and serves a double purpose. It is on the one hand an experimental school for the government in so far as it receives large quantities of these ores and submits them to various treatments with the object of finding out which method is the most profitable in the saving of time in assaying (the cost of assaying and the saving of the greatest amount of the best ore. On the other hand, it affords a splendid field for practical experience for our men who are later to take charge of this important part of our national development. They not only try to follow the methods prescribed, but try to devise new methods, and we believe some good results have come along this line, due in large part to the energy of Prof. Stafford Kirkpatrick.

Since the visit of Mr. Scath last autumn there has been a movement on foot to make the Ontario Specialist courses more uniform in the different universities. On Thursday evening the German Dramatic Club presented their annual concert. It consisted of two great and high-class little—comedies interspersed with some German songs. All those who were fortunate enough to be present enjoyed a rare treat.

On Monday before the Philosophical Society Professor Ferguson made his first appearance in public since he came to Queen's, Professor Ferguson though he has devoted most of his time to the abstract science of psheyology proved last Monday that his interests are of a wide range. His subject for this popular lecture was "Philosophy and Politics."

On Thursday before the Y. M. C. A. Professor Dyde presented a very living subject in his usual bright and lucid fashion. The subject of his address was "Canada of the Past and its Outlook." Dr. Dyde dealt with it from three points of view as a Canadian problem, as an Imperial problem and then the part Canada is to play in the great theatre of humanity. Immediately after Dr. Dyde's lecture Mr. R. Shimizu continued his discussion of the great problem of Buddhism and its progress and enlargement through the help of modern criticism. This was a sequel to the hour he gave to it a week ago.

Sunday afternoon saw the close of the convocation services until April 24th, when Dr. Symonds, of Montreal, preaches the Baccalaureate sermon. Last Sunday we had the pleasure of listening to one of our own professors and one whom we are always glad to hear, Professor Jordan. Those who heard Dr. Jordan on Sunday afternoon will have a clearer and higher view of the Book of Job than ever before.

HYPNOTIZED OVER 'PHONE

Young Man in a Trance at Saginaw—His Master Ordered Him to Sleep a Week; Citizens Interfered

Detroit, March 3.—A sensation was created in Saginaw yesterday, when, on the complaint of several prominent citizens and the Humane Society, the police at midnight removed from the show window of a prominent local musical house the rigid body of David Anderson, a young man who had been in a hypnotic trance for the last 36 hours. The youth was placed in hypnosis in a remarkable way.

As the subject of Prof. Powers, a professional hypnotist, Anderson became very susceptible even to the tones of his master's voice. As an experiment, it was announced that Anderson would be put in a trance which would last for one week, by Prof. Powers, who was one hundred miles away at the time.

The professor, speaking in his usual voice to his subject while the latter held a telephone ear-piece in place, commanded him to "Sleep, sleep, sleep! You will now go to sleep and wake up in the place where you are now, one week from to-day."

Almost at once Anderson's eyes glazed and he sank to the floor, apparently sound asleep. The efforts of doctors and others to bring him back to a normal condition have so far been unavailing. Prof. Powers declares he will not come to Saginaw until the expiration of a week, and an order has been issued for his arrest.

At the hotel where Anderson has been taken, he lies as though calmly sleeping, and so far no one has been able to restore him to consciousness.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

The Review does not hold itself responsible for opinions expressed byits correspondents

No Distinction

To the Editor of the Review:

SIR,—A few (not many) talk as if a man could be honest in one way and not in another, as if he could be honest in business (private) and as crooked as a dog's hind leg in business (public.) This idea is hardly worth wasting words over. Honesty is like chastity. It either is or it isn't. The man who will lie will lie, and if he cheats at any time he will cheat at any other time—if it suits him. Another thing, Mr. Editor, is that if this sort of conduct is really permissible, let us know about it at once, so that we can all start fair. Gee! What a time there would be if people could choose just when they would cheat and when they wouldn't. The trouble is the law does not look at it that way, and that is why so many are doing time for helping themselves to the use of funds that were given into their custody for another purpose. How would you like to put your funds in such men's hands? The fact is that such men have got to be cut out of both parties and out of all business, and everything else. Isn't it a pleasure to be able to rely implicitly on men like Sir James Whitney? The people will wake up some of these days and assert their manhood. Meanwhile, here's to a square deal for everybody all the time. Do you want your son to be a scamp, Mr. Editor? Or are you telling him that a manly man is worth a corps of sneaks and sharpers?

Yours,
JELLYBY.

Montreal, March 5. Justice Weir yesterday dismissed the action for $25,000 damages taken by the Montreal Light, Heat & Power Co. against ex-Ald. Clerihue, who was alleged to have charged the company with having tried to bribe him to vote for a lighting regulation before the City Council in 1906.

ARRESTED PRIEST OFFERS TO TEST CURE ON HIMSELF

Willing to Scorch His Body to Show Treatment Couldn't Have Killed—Doctors in Conflict

New York, March 3.—Father Innocenzo Montanari, of the Church of Mary Help of Christians, No. 439 East Twelfth street, has volunteered to undergo, on his own person, the treatment he gave to Mrs. Maria Lo Guidici, of No. 401 East Eleventh street. The woman died after the treatment.

Father Montanari, who insisted that the treatment was quite harmless, was arrested because of statements made to the police by Agent Isadoro Constanzo of the United States Secret Service, after hearing gossip of the dead woman's neighbors. The priest was arraigned before Magistrate Herrman on a charge of homicide, and was later paroled by Coroner Feinberg in the custody of Lieutenant Arthur Gloster of the Italian Detective Squad.

INSISTS ON PERSONAL TEST.

Father Montanari told Coroner Feinberg to-day that he had treated Mrs. Lo Guidici with a medicine which he had learned to use in Venezuela, and which produced a counter irritation over the seat of pain by slightly burning the skin. The coroner, who is a physician, said that he was familiar with the treatment and had used a similar medicine.

The priest insisted upon being allowed to use the medicine on himself as he said, he had frequently done before, and then submitting himself to the coroner every day for several days thereafter, in order to show that the treatment was tonic and not injurious.

Onfrion Le Guidici, husband of the dead woman, signed an affidavit in the coroner's office to-day, in which he swore that several doctors were called after the birth of a baby seven months ago, and that different opinions were given by the doctors as to the after-ailments of Mrs. Le Guidici. One doctor said tuberculous, and other pneumonia, and a third heart trouble. Then, the affidavit says, Dr. Danvi, of No. 10 Spring street was called in and he diagnosed the affliction of Mrs. Le Guidici as Bright's disease, and signed a death certificate February 24, giving that as the cause of death.

A few days before Dr. Danvi was called, says the affidavit, Father Montanari called and showed the husband the machine. The husband says he objected to its use, but his wife insisted that the priest try the treatment on her and he did.

When Mr. Danvi made his examination he asked the husband who inflicted the burns.

"I told him a doctor did," swears Le Guidici. "The reason for telling him this was because Father Montanari had told me if anyone asked who inflicted the burns not to say Father Montanari, but that a doctor had caused them.

"Dr. Danvi remarked that the burns had not done any good or any harm, and that my wife was suffering from nephritis."

You Are Invited to Visit This Place.

This is a view of the laboratory in Lynn, Mass., in which Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is made.

There is a sign 5 feet long and 2½ feet wide attached, permanently, to the front of the main building which reads as follows:

Public inspection invited—from 8 A.M. to 4 P.M. —Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co.

What does this sign mean?

It means that public inspection of the laboratory and methods of doing business is honestly desired. It means that there is nothing about the Pinkham business which is not "open and above-board."

It means that a permanent invitation is extended to anyone to come and verify the statements made in the advertisements of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Is Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound made exclusively from roots and herbs?

Come and See for Yourself.

Do the women of America continually use as much of it as we are told?

Come and See for Yourself.

Was there ever such a person as Lydia E. Pinkham, and is there any Mrs. Pinkham now to whom sick women are asked to write?

Come and See for Yourself.

Is the vast private correspondence with sick women conducted by women only, and are the letters kept strictly confidential?

Come and See for Yourself.

Have they really got letters from more than a million women?

Come and See for Yourself.

Have they proof that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has cured thousands of these women?

Come and See for Yourself.

This advertisement is only for doubters. The great army of women who know from their own personal experience that no medicine in the world equals Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for female ills will still go on using and being benefited by it; but the poor doubting, suffering woman must, for her own sake, be taught confidence, for she also might just as well regain her health.

CHARLIE GRAPEWIN IN A NEW PLAY

An old Peterborough favorite, Charley Grapewin, in a new play, entitled "Above the Limit," will be the attraction at the Grand Opera House, next Thursday, March 10th. This famous comedian will be seen for the first time in Peterborough, following his most successful tour of seven seasons in the "Awakening of Mr. Pipp." The star is surrounded by a company of capable artists, including Miss Anna Chance. The production is elaborated with splendid scenic effects, and particularly striking is the opening of the third act in which shows a beautiful home overlooking the Hudson River, with the palisades in the background. The clouds can be seen drifting by, and the moon peeps out, throwing its rays, forming a brilliant reflection on the water. One of the Hudson river passenger steamers looms up on the river, the boat almost realistic and illuminated, and the search light from the steamer is thrown on the characters on the stage.

The character of Jimmy Hicks, in which Mr. Grapewin will be seen, affords him ample opportunity to prove himself to be one of the cleverest comedians on the American stage. Mr. Grapewin assumes the character of an illiterate, big-hearted boy, who hands out slang at such a rate that he keeps his audience in happy, side-splitting laughter from start to finish. He makes his appearance in the home of a wealthy manufacturer as the guest of his son, who introduces him to the different members of the family, among them his cousin Marjory, with whom he falls desperately in love and, realising that his ignorance is the one barrier which would prevent his marriage to the girl he loves, he determines to make the fight of his life, and he leaves America and goes to Australia, where he secures a position as manager of a stable of race horses. While there he devotes all his spare time to books, and when he returns five years later he comes as a highly polished gentleman as well as a Scotchman. He immediately renews his suit and proposes to his sweetheart, using excellent English. She asks him to make the proposal in the same language he would have used five years before and when the curtain goes down he is in the midst of a proposal which is the slangiest of slang. It is seldom that the theatre-going public have an opportunity to witness a show that is so cleverly constructed, so full of laughs and also contains an underlying strain of pathos.

IN TIGER SKIN FURS

Referring to Grace La Rue, now playing in "Molly May" at His Majesty's Theatre, the Montreal Star says: "Lightsome and gay, as a musical comedy should be, is "Molly May," presented at His Majesty's this week by Tyron Chandler. There is little to distinguish it from the average musical comedy. Senator Sparks, in his second childhood, and his son-in-law, Jack Willoughby, spend a night out, and complications and misunderstanding follow with the respective wives on the one hand and a number of chorus girls on the other.

The piece was written in order to give Miss Grace La Rue an opportunity to display her varied talents. She attains equal success as a vocalist, a dancer, and a dressmaker's model. Of these three she appears to attach most importance to her methods of displaying costumes and millinery.

The programme announces that the costumes in which she appears were designed by herself. They do credit to her for they are distinctly original and astonishingly effective. The costumes are bewilderingly numerous. Almost every time she disappears from the stage for a few moments, she reappears in a new creation, each more striking than the last, the climax being reached when she comes on in tiger skin furs, with the head of the beast hanging over her shoulders.

Miss La Rue is more than commonly successful in her rendering of catchy songs, and her dancing, full of grace and restraint, earns her the most flattering approbation."

THE DOG GOT HIS AND HE WASN'T MAD, EITHER

Mr. W. Stalker, of Huntsville, owns a spirited team of horses, and he is also the possessor of a dog. Yesterday afternoon, about three o'clock, he was engaged in unloading a car of household effects at the west siding of the Grand Trunk freight sheds, and the animals became frightened and a young son holding the reins found it impossible to control them. They bolted, and a street car running west on Charlotte street crashed into the sleigh, the horses, instead of turning, having made for across the track. One horse slipped and fell on the pavement, and there was plenty of excitement. The fender of the car was broken and several panes of glass in the vestibule smashed, but very little damage was done the sleigh or its contents. The dog, however, did not fare so well. It was tied to the rack of the sleigh, and in the collision it became mixed up with the fender and was dragged under the car, but beyond receiving an elaborate coat of mud, was not injured. No blame can be attached to the motorman on the car, for he was just stopping up for the derail.

85C FOR A 'CHICKEN!

28c and 29c for Butter and 26c for Eggs, Cabbages 20c per Dozen

Eighty-five cents for a chicken! That's the price one farmer asked up in the market hall this morning. He had two of them when he took up his place at the north end of the building, shortly after ten o'clock, and both remained in his possession as the noon hour approached. He also had a supply of butter for which he asked 29 cents per pound. A customer protested, and the answer he received was that the stores were paying that amount. There were other chickens at 50 cents each, but one would need a telescope to determine the good points about them. You could get better ones at 65 cents. Butter sold at 28c and 29c, and eggs at 26c.

Out on the market square one farmer offered one dozen cabbages, each about the size of an ordinary orange, for 20c. per dozen. Potatoes went at 50c. per bag, and other prices were stationary.

SECOND ANNUAL NORMAL AT HOME

Large Attendance at an Enjoyable Affair of the Normal School

The second annual "At Home" of the Peterborough Normal School held last night, was as on the first occasion, a particularly pleasant and successful affair. The attendance was large and the attractive decorations, together with the tastefully attired ladies, made a very pretty scene. The principal of the school, Mr. Duncan Walker, acted as chairman. An enjoyable programme was given of instrumental and vocal selections and readings. The Halpany orchestra was in attendance, and afterwards promenading was carried out, and refreshments served. The handsome institution was thrown open to the gathering, which numbered many guests from outside points and the committees in charge of the "At Home" left undone nothing which would tend to make the evening enjoyable for all.

100 ARE KILLED BY SNOWSLIDE

At Rogers Pass B. C.—Disaster Early This Morning

Special to the Review.

Revelstoke, B.C., March 5.—One hundred men were killed by gigantic snow slide in Rogers Pass, just east of Glacier, early this morning. The avalanche buried crews of two rotary snow ploughs. The gangs were working to remove the snow of Wednesday's slide. This pass is most northerly of the C.P.R. line, and the snow is terrific there this year. There is slight hope that the men are merely hemmed in.

ITALIAN ROW IN TORONTO ENDS IN DEATH OF MAN

Pasquale Ventricine, a Laborer, After a Drinking Bout Kills a Fellow-Countryman in a Quarrel—Police Resort to Ruse to Avoid Conflict With Hostile Italians.

Toronto, March 7.—Pasquale Ventricine, an Italian laborer, living at 265 Claremont street, stabbed Raffaele Fabbio, a fellow-countryman to death near the boarding-house of Mrs. Tony Butcher, 290 Manning avenue, at 8.30 Sunday night.

Tony Bush, brother of Mrs. Butcher, who was present at the time of the stabbing, declares that Ventricine had been drinking and stabbed the other without provocation other than the advice of his victim, who urged him to go home as it was late.

The prisoner declares that Tony Bush, the dead man, and three others set upon him and that the stabbing took place in the melee. The story told by Tony Bush is borne out by that of another Italian lad.

Word of the murder was 'phoned to the Farley avenue police station at 8.43. Sergeant Umbach left immediately and met Detective Mitchell on the way. They hurried to the scene and were told that Ventricine had done the stabbing and would likely be found at his home. There they found him trying to crawl under the bed. He was taken to the house on Manning avenue. His appearance was the signal for a hostile demonstration on the part of the Italians there, and it was with the greatest difficulty that the police got the prisoner from the house to the patrol wagon, which had been summoned. To do this they employed a ruse. Knowing that the Italians would stand respectfully away from the body as it was carried out, they took Ventricine out on a stretcher. He is a small man and was easily hidden by the constables.

When the police arrived at the scene Fabbio was found sitting in a chair in the house on Manning avenue. He was bleeding terribly from six knife wounds, and although medical aid was summoned, he died at 9.05, having been in a state of stupor throughout.

At the police station, Tony Bush and another lad, held by the police as material witnesses, told the same tale over again. They declared that Fabbio had called to see Bush yesterday afternoon. The prisoner had come later and Tony went to the door and went out with him. Fabbio and the other followed. Tony left the prisoner, and Fabbio tried to persuade him to go home. A moment later Ventricine drew his knife and stabbed him. These two were held lest they might come to harm at the hands of the Italians who live with Ventricine.

Vancouver, B. C., March 7.—Snowslides in the Rocky Mountains have caused the death of 62 more men. The latest victims were workmen engaged in clearing the Canadian Pacific track in Rogers' Pass at the summit of the Selkirk Range. They were entombed by an avalanche soon after midnight Saturday morning.

The men were attempting to clear away the debris of a smaller slide in the Arrow Valley of Bear Creek, flanked on either side of precipitous mountains covered with a depth of snow varying from 20 to 50 feet. While the men were trapping in this valley the second avalanche descended at 12.30 a.m. It started on the side of the canyon opposite the point where the first slide occurred. Thousands of feet above, a few rolling masses of snow, growing in volume and momentum, started on a pathway of destruction.

In a few seconds, with a noise like a thousand thunderbolts, the avalanche leaped from shelf to shelf, uprooting and carrying with it a tangled mass of ice, trees and boulders. There was no escape for the unfortunate workers.

The avalanche piled on top of the first slide, burying the tracks for a distance of a quarter of a mile around to a depth of fifty feet. Hundreds of thousands of tons of other debris in the wake of the avalanche bounded off the huge heap and half filled the valley of Bear Creek, hundreds of feet below.

As soon as the news reached Revelstoke a relief train conveying physicians and nurses and over 200 railway men and other citizens, was speeding east to Rogers' Pass.

Calgary made an equally prompt response. It also sent a special relief train with 125 workmen, as well as nurses and doctors. The special arrived at Rogers' Pass at 10 o'clock.

The bodies of many of the victims were probably swept into the canyon and may not be recovered until summer melts the snow. Six hundred men are now digging out the track.

Montreal, March 7.—The following facts are culled from despatches received from the Rogers' Pass accident by the president of the C.P.R., who is most anxious that the papers be supplied with all possible information.

From forty to fifty persons were killed, twelve being white men.

There were three distinct avalanches in Rogers' Pass, at the summit of the Selkirks. The first snowslide was a comparatively small one, and occurred at noon on Friday. The track was hurried for some distance, and a repair train, consisting of an engine, rotary plow, and a gang of a hundred navvies, mostly Japanese, was sent out from Revelstoke on Saturday morning.

The fatality was greatest in the middle of the avalanche where the train stood. Those who were farther away were able to escape without injury. The horror of the situation was aggravated by the fact that the avalanche had torn away the telegraph line, so that little could be done during the night, the more so as a fierce mountain blizzard was raging.

Early on Saturday morning, however, a party of the survivors telegraphed to Revelstoke for help, when a wrecking train was at once despatched, with two hundred men and a corps of physicians, nurses, etc. This train got through all right, but shortly after it had passed Glenogle, a few miles west of the scene of disaster, a third avalanche slid down mountains from the south, cutting off communications with Revelstoke, as well as again breaking telegraphic connection.

All day Saturday the rescue party, aided by the survivors of the wreck, labored in a blinding snow storm in the hope that some of the victims might still be alive.

It was at first feared that the tracks would be blocked for two or three days yet, but a despatch from Mr. Whyte to Sir Thomas Shaughnessy yesterday said that it was hoped to clear the line for traffic by to-day.

Vesuvius Active.

Naples, March 7.—Vesuvius has suddenly become active again.

There has been a continuous eruption for the past 24 hours of red hot stones and ashes, accompanied by internal detonations.

Several fissures have opened, from which gas and lava are emerging in great quantities.

Falls Dead While Singing.

Vienna, March 7.—Herr de Muth, a famous singer of the Vienna Imperial Opera House, died suddenly of apoplexy, while singing at a concert at Czernowitz, Bukowina. After a storm of applause he began to sing an encore and fell dead.

CITY OF BROTHERLY LOVE SCENE OF MORE BIG RIOTS

Philadelphia, Pa., March 7.—Until the disorders which came with darkness last night the strike developments of the day had been neither many nor important.

Conflicting claims still continued as to the number of men who have responded to the general strike call, and there seems to be no present way to obtain accurate figures. The committee of ten, in charge of the strike, claims that 125,000 persons are out. Figures gathered by the police department, however, are cited by Director of Public Safety Clay to support his previous claim that not more than 20,000 men struck.

The labor leaders say 100,000 men will be out by to-night. The police declare that things are working the other way, and assert that to-night will find even fewer men not working than on Saturday.

The traction company, which operated some 800 cars during the day, left 200 or more of them in operation last night—the first Sunday night during the strike on which it has taken this step.

This probably had much to do with the disturbances of the evening. These began early after dark at Eighty and Christian street, an Italian settlement, where a mob stoned passing trolley cars.

When the reserves from four stations were unable to quell the disturbance, a riot call was sent out and four automobiles loaded with officers were sent from the city hall.

After a sharp attack, in which clubs were freely used and a number of heads broken, the disturbers were dispersed and more than half a dozen prisoners taken.

The most serious affair of the night occurred a little further down Christian street, at Fourth street. During a disturbance there, a fireman doing police duty, fired on the crowd and a bullet struck Bessie Weiner, a woman of 23, fatally wounding her. The fireman was guarding a car which the crowd attacked.

A shot was fired during another disturbance at 26th street and Lehigh avenue, one man being slightly injured, when a bullet struck him in the arm. A demonstration at Sixth and Johnson streets was threatening for a time, and reserves had to be called out at this and other points to quell incipient rioting.

The Kensington, or factory, section, where so much trouble has occurred since the strike started, was held well in check. There was one rather threatening outbreak, however, in which women participated. In breaking it up the officers made several arrests and four of their prisoners were women, charged with inciting to riot.

George Costello, aged 52 years, was shot in the back, but not dangerously injured, at 26th street and Lehigh avenue, during a disturbance.

RIOTING IN BERLIN

Many are Wounded—Socialists Clash With the Police.

Berlin, March 7.—Serious conflicts between the police and Socialists, involving a lengthy list of wounded, were the outcome of most impressive open-air demonstrations against the suffrage bill carried out in Berlin and the other cities of Prussia yesterday. It is estimated that in Berlin alone 120,000 persons took part in what was called a "demonstrative stroll" in various parts of the city.

The Chief of Police of Berlin, fearing danger from the assembly of so many thousands in the popular park of Treptow, the place chosen by the Socialists, forbade a demonstration of any kind there. But the Socialists' newspaper, Vorwaerts, announced that the manifestation would be held in spite of the order of prohibition.

This caused the concentration of a powerful force of armed police and gendarmerie in Treptow Park, which left the rest of the city virtually unguarded.

The Socialist leaders yesterday morning, observing that their plan had been frustrated, quietly and quickly passed the word to their followers to proceed to the other end of the city. These instructions were obeyed by 30,000 manifestants, who succeeded in accomplishing the "stroll" almost undisturbed, while the others who had remained around Treptow Park came into severe collision with the gendarmerie and police, with serious consequences. The police, however, in the majority of cases, acted with the utmost moderation, and obeyed the orders to avoid, as far as possible, using their arms, which were issued by Chief Von Jagow.

Suffrage Sympathizers Sentenced.

Breslau, Germany, March 7.—Several manifestants, who simply shouted "Hurrah for Suffragettes" at recent demonstrations, were Saturday sentenced to terms of imprisonment ranging from eight days to one month.

GERMANY NOW IN SOUTH POLE RACE

Berlin, Germany, March 7.—A German south polar expedition has virtually been arranged by Lieut. Filchner of the general staff of the army, under the auspices of the Geographical Society. Lieut. Filchner announced at a meeting of the society last evening that the expedition would start next October if the necessary funds were forthcoming. He said that it would take $500,000 if two vessels were used, and $250,000 if they confined themselves to one vessel.

HERE'S A BABY TO TALK ABOUT

Ottawa, March 7.—Four months old to-day, and he can walk and talk! He is little George Cadieux of 288 Champlain avenue, Hull.

The child, though only four months old, can walk around the room with the aid of chairs, and can say easy work words, such as papa and mamma, very distinctly.

At fifteen days the child could stand by holding on to a chair. This peculiar trait seems to run in the family. Another child, now two years old, was born with four teeth, and now has a full set. George, the baby, weighs 22 pounds.

ADVERTISE IN THE REVIEW.

LONDON, ENG., FOR PROGRESS

London, March 7.—The ratepayers Saturday elected county councillors, who control and manage the affairs of the metropolis.

The Municipal Reform Party, or Moderates, as they used to be called, who have governed London well and economically for the last three years, failed to maintain the advantage they gained over the Progressives three years ago, after having been out for 18 years.

The new London County Council now consists of 54 Municipal Reformers, 56 Progressives and three Laborites, the Progressives having a net gain of 21.

The Municipal Reformers have to thank their own apathy for this falling away. With a general election just over and another one looked for by midsummer the man in the street is sated with politics.

It is always difficult for some Londoners to interest themselves in municipal politics, and it is the Reform party that suffers most from this.

With the newly-elected council so even balanced it should be possible to keep a check on Progressive socialism and extravagance of various sorts.

MILLIONS FOR AGED WORKMEN

Paris, France, March 7.—The old-age workingman's pension bill, which insures to every laborer in town or country a pension at the age of 65, and will cost France an additional $100,000,000 yearly, may now be considered as voted. The Senate has agreed to make only very slight amendments, and the Chamber, on the eve of the general elections, will undoubtedly pass the bill when it comes back to it from the Senate. This measure, together with the increased financial demands of the army and navy, and the uncertainty of the results of the new methods of taxation, places the official financial situation of the French Government on a critical basis.

AN ATTEMPT TO POISON MINISTER

Trenton, N.S., March 7.—Dr. Raymond B. FitzRandolph, director of the State Laboratory, has reported to the Arlington Board of Health that he has found enough arsenic on rolls delivered to Rev. A. J. Voeglin, of this place, to kill forty-eight persons.

The unusual powder on the rolls had excited the clergyman's suspicion and he called on the health authorities for an analysis.

It is declared that a former parishioner of Dr. Voeglin had threatened his life because the parishioner's wife had left him.

COUNT ZEPPELIN'S BOLD ENTERPRISE

Hamburg, Germany, March 8.—The Zeppelin north polar exploration committee met here Saturday under the presidency of Prince Henry of Prussia. Count Zeppelin, Prof. Hergesel and Prof. Ewald were among those present. The committee discussed the program of the summer's work, which will be devoted to a preliminary expedition to study ice conditions. The Government will be asked for the use of the exploring vessel Poseidond for about two months.

The expedition will start for Spitzbergen July 1 on an excursion steamer, and there will transfer to the Poseidond. A Norwegian ice steamer will be used to force an entrance into the polar ice, and the expedition will return at the end of August.

Apparently no airship will be taken for summer use.

FEARS ABOUT OWNERSHIP OF THE AIR

Berlin, Germany, March 7.—The Kaiser is greatly worried lest airships of foreign nations—France, particularly—soar over Germany's mightiest forts, and study the armament.

The Emperor summoned Councillor Koettzen, of the Ministry of Justice, before him, and had him elucidate on a man's right to the air over his own property.

Councillor Koettzen, the greatest specialist on the international aspect of aeronautics, dealt, too, with the question as to what international arrangements can be made to prevent airships from cruising over the fortresses of other nations.

Councillor Koettzen said that dirigible balloons and aeroplanes have reached such a stage of development that an international law governing their flight is absolutely imperative.

WILL REVISE THE GREEK CONSTITUTION

Athens, Greece, March 7. Mons. Dragoumis, the Premier, had a long audience with the King Saturday, during which the monarch expressed himself thoroughly pleased with the vote authorizing the Government to proceed with the revision of the constitution.

As a result, although not officially announced, it may be taken as certain that His Majesty will himself read the royal edict in the chamber, which meets the last day of the session—about March 20—in solemn sitting.

CONGRESS WANTS SOME INFORMATION

Washington, D.C., March 7.—Congress wants to know just how John D. Rockefeller intends to spend his money for the benefit of humanity.

The Senate committee on District of Columbia affairs took up on Saturday the bill to incorporate the Rockefeller foundation, introduced a few days ago by Senator Gallinger.

After a brief discussion it was decided to invite Starr J. Murphy, one of the men named as incorporators of the foundation, to appear before the committee next Friday.

LATE TICKS FROM WIRES

A new R.C. diocese has been created at Regina, and an apostolic vicariate at Keewatin.

The new Canadian Canneries' Association is negotiating for two factories at Tecumseh and Story Point, Ont.

One thousand express packages on N.Y.C. train No. 27, were looted during Friday night. The discovery was made at Rochester.

A Lehigh Valley express train, Buffalo to New York, jumped the rails at Redington, Pa., when it hit a landslide. Several were slightly hurt.

Horace Greeley Robinson, held in Toronto jail since Feb. 21 for the San Jose, Cal., authorities, on charges of fraud, was released Saturday, because the United States authorities declined to send for him.

BROOKLYN TO HAVE THREE-CENT FARES

New York, March 7.—Real competition with the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Co., which has had a monopoly in many sections, is to be brought about by the Board of Estimate, if the action of that body Saturday indicates its future attitude. The board adopted the report of the transit committee, which recommended the granting of a franchise to a new traction company, the Manhattan Bridge Three-Cent Fare Line, provided terms acceptable to the city are arranged.

THE MISTAKE OF COUNCILLOR

Windsor, March 7.—Israel Soulierre, a member of Sandwich East council may have his election invalidated as the result of a liquor case decision, to be rendered by Magistrate Leggatt on Wednesday.

Albert Hebert, proprietor of the Island View Hotel, is charged with selling liquor on last election day. Soulierre admits being in the hotel on election day, and if it is proven that he bought liquor, it may result in his being unseated.

PINCHOT LEAVES THE STAND

Washington, D.C., March 7.—Gifford Pinchot concluded his part in the Ballinger-Pinchot enquiry Saturday and James R. Garfield, former Secretary of the Interior, another prominent member of the Roosevelt tennis cabinet, took the stand. Mr Garfield had barely started his testimony when adjournment was taken until Thursday.

Pinchot's story ended with a reiteration of the statement that he had little personal knowledge of the facts to which he had called attention during the four days he was on the stand, and with a general defence of the forest service. Mr. Pinchot summed up the various "inferences" he desired the committee to draw from the documents that had been introduced in evidence, and from statements of witnesses yet to come.

TRINIDAD WANTS RECIPROCITY

Port of Spain, Trinidad, March 7.—The royal commission which is enquiring into the trade relations between Canada and the West Indies, have concluded the taking of statements on this subject.

The opinion here in general is favorable to Canadian reciprocity. The cocoa planters, however, are entirely opposed to it, fearing reprisals by the United States, which would affect nearly fifty per cent. of their product now sold in that country. Suggestions were made with reference to improvement in steamship service, and the lowering of rates on travel, as a means of developing trade.

The members of the commission visited the oil fields near Asphalt Lake on Saturday, and will proceed to England on Monday.

VACCINATION UNPOPULAR IN ENGLAND

London, March 7.—The rapid growth of the objection to vaccination in Great Britain is shown by the latest statistics. In the year 1908, 935,338 births were registered and the certificates of declarations of conscientious objections to vaccination numbered 52,391, or 5.6 per cent.

In 1907 the certificates of objection amounted to 6.2 per cent. of the births, and in 1908 to 17.2 per cent. In the first six months of last year, 1909, they reached 18 per cent.

The percentage of unvaccinated children yearly is even greater than these figures show, as the statistics quoted refer only to those who have not been vaccinated because of conscientious objections on the part of their parents.

MAD DOG SHOT AT PORT HOPE

Port Hope, March 7.—A mad dog was killed yesterday on the outskirts of the town, near the cemetery.

The collie was seen running wild Saturday, and a party with firearms immediately gave chase. The canine ran across the west side of the town, but bit no one so far as can be learned. The head was sent to Toronto.

McGill Students on a Tear.

Montreal, March 7.—After painting the town red Friday night, a crowd of McGill students burst into the Colonial Lunch on St. Catharine street west, at 2 o'clock Saturday morning, and in the course of their jollifications did $150 damage. One was arrested.

SOME BIRDS WERE MAIMED

Hamilton, March 7.—There is an odd development in connection with the raid on the cock fight last Sunday morning at Waterdown, and an attempt is being made to have the agents of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, who laid the information in the case, as well as the police, prosecuted on a charge of cruelty to animals. The fifteen birds seized were offered for sale by auction Saturday, and it was then discovered that nearly all of them were badly maimed, although taken from the cock-pit in good condition. The police say that the birds injured themselves by fighting when they were being fed.

The Grand Priory of the Order of the Hospital of St. John of Jerusalem in England was incorporated May 14, 1888. The sovereign head is King Edward VII., and the grand prior, H.R.H. the Prince of Wales. The objects are ambulance and hospital work.

Dr. Hodgetts is secretary of the Ontario Board of Health.

KING TO PLAY BRIDGE MORE

London, March 7.—The King left London last night. The tedium of his long journey to the south of France will be relieved by rubbers at bridge, as he has just had a special card table installed in his private car, which is so perfectly balanced that no vibration is felt. It has been noticed lately that the King's interest in the game is waning. He no longer sits at a card table for the whole evening. During the journey to Biarritz he intends to revive his interest in bridge.

THE ELECTIONS IN COLOMBIA

Bogota, Colombia, March 7.—President Gonzales-Valencia has issued a decree fixing the first Sunday in April for the holding of the elections for the constituent assembly to reform the constitution.

The assembly will meet at Bogota on May 15, superseding congress.

There is great political excitement here, but a revolutionary movement is not looked for.

Sixty-Sixth Anniversary.

Niagara Falls, March 7.—Large congregations attended the 66th anniversary services in Drummond Hill Presbyterian Church yesterday. The sermons were preached by Rev. Dr. Robertson, of Knox College.

AUTONOMY NOT IN DANGER

It is because Canadians are a freedom loving people that the effort is made to have them believe that by Canada aiding Britain by a contribution of Dreadnoughts our power of self-government would be affected Surely they cannot hope to impress anyone with that idea. If the Dominion Parliament makes a grant for that purpose, it will do so of its own free will and as an evidence of its desire to join with the other colonies in aiding in the defence of the Empire. There is no coercion, and no compulsion to make such a contribution ,but something substantial should be done to give effective assistance else if the trial that is feared should come Canada will not be represented in the struggle ,while other colonies will be ranged alongside each other and the Motherland in defence of the Empire. To make a contribution freely in this emergency would no more affect the autonomy of the Dominion than did the grant made to the sufferers from the earthquake disaster in San Francisco. Peterborough sent a contribution of that occasion, as well as other cities, and the Parliament, and no one felt any injurious result to the self-government of this city or of the Dominion. And it is just as absurd to argue that a contribution of vessels to the British navy, to be used for our own protection and that of the Empire as a whole, would disturb our present position as a self-governing colony. This bugaboo has been raised to hide the fact that the Government, while proposing to incur large expense and and expense that will have to be met year after year, is not proposing a plan that will give effective assistance should the emergency that is feared arise Sir James Whitney is right in saying that the people want something real done, and not to have a pretence made, but the Government stubbornly holds to its scheme for building a few auxiliary vessels without having the larger vessels to which they could be auxiliary. Small vessels have their place and Britain is building them ,but their place is to assist large vessels that will have to bear the brunt of attack, for they cannot alone be of service as a naval protection. This is clearly evident, and it is hard to understand why the Government holds to its policy of a small fleet of small vessels that would not afford protection to our coasts or trade or be of any effective assistance to the Imperial navy.

AN OLD PROBLEM

That domestic service is not popular has frequently been pointed out, although in some respects it has advantages over other forms of service such as in factories or offices. The Toronto Star published figures to show that there is considerable financial advantage in domestic service at three dollars a week as compared with office work at six dollars a week, and raises the old question of why in view of this domestic service is unpopular. In a factory or shop a girl has the society of many companions and fixed hours of work, and this is believed to furnish some explanation of the preference shown that kind of labor. Yet in a factory there is very little opportunity to enjoy the society of others, and in many homes a servant is given more time to herself than she obtains by working at other employment. Perhaps the chief reason for the unpopularity of domestic service, despite the fact that it offers a more comfortable living than many other occupations that are given the preference, is that girls feel that they cannot give personal service to others, in the way it is required and retain their respect without considering the respect of others. She has to take an inferior place to all others in the home in which she is engaged, and even the familiar manner in which she is usually addressed does not denote friendship, but a relegation to a position of inferiority, as do many other accompaniments of domestic service. Genuine kindness on the part of mistresses in many instances alleviates these accompaniments, but so long as they remain girls of spirit will be found preferring less remunerative occupations. A manufacturer who employs female labor may have a similar feeling regarding his employees, but he does not show it to them day after day and every hour of the day, and their self-respect is not wounded, while an employee in a store or office is addressed with the respect that a girl looks for and appreciates. The "servant question" has been a vexed one in America for many years, and enough has been written upon it to fill many books, and so long as social conditions remain as they are it will probably continue to be a vexing question for housekeepers.

CHANGES IN NEW CANADIAN SILVER PIECES

Those who handle silver in large quantities have been puzzled of late by a variation in some of the 25 cent pieces in circumation. In the old standard Canadian silver piece the crowns on the reverse and obverse sides were at opposite ends of the coin. Thus you may lay a quarter down right side up, and if you turn it over perpendicularly it does not matter how many times you do so, it will always appear right side up. The same applies if you lay it upside down, whether back or front is exposed if turned in an upward or downward direction.

In the new coins, which were exposed ,however, the crowns are back to back, so that when you turn the coin over on a flat surface the reverse is upside down. By some cashiers it has been thought that the new quarterism though pure silver ,were to make money out of the difference between the value of the coined silver wwwith a gold basis and bullion silver; that is to say, that they were pure metal counterfeits. It transpires, however, that the difference arises from the fact that the new coins are minted in Ottawa ,instead of England, and the dies in the presses have been differently placed.

The Man From Brodney's

By GEORGE BARR M'CUTCHEON

A few minutes later he was among them, listening, with his cool, half satirical smile, to their protestations of joy and relief.

"Nonsense," he said in his most deprecating voice, taking a seat beside the princess on the railing and fanning himself lazily with his hat, to the mortification of his body servant, who waved a huge palm leaf in vigorous adulation. "It was nothing. Just being a witness, that's all. You'll find how easy it is when you get back to London and have to testify in the Skaggs will contest. Tell the truth, that's all." The princess was now looking at his brown face with eyes over which she had lost control. "Oh, by the bye," he said, as if struck by a sudden thought, "it is my painful duty to announce to the Mesdames von Blits that they are widows."

There was a dead silence. The three women stared up at him, uncomprehending.

"Yes," he went on solemnly, "Jacob is no more. He was found guilty by his judges and executed with commendable haste and precision. He took his medicine bravely—twelve leaden pills administered by as many skilful surgeons. But it is yet too early to congratulate yourselves on your freedom. Rasula has promised to kill all of us, whether we deserve it or not."

"They shot him?" demanded Deppingham when he had finished.

"Admirably. By Jove, those fellows can shoot! They accepted my word against his—which is most gratifying to my pride. One other man testified against him—a chap who saw him with the Boers not ten minutes before the attempt was made to rob the vaults. Rasula appeared as counsel for the defense. Merely a matter of form. He knew that he was guilty. There was no talk of a new trial; no appeal to the supreme court, Britt; no expense to the community."

He was as unconcerned about it as if discussing the most trivial happening of the day. Von Blits lived not ten minutes after sentence was passed.

"As to their intentions toward us," said Chase, "they are firm in their determination that no one shall leave the chateau alive. Rasula was quite frank with me. He is a cool devil. He calmly notified me that we will all be dead inside of two weeks. No ships will put in here so long as the plague exists. I asked him how we were to die, and he smiled as though he was holding something back as a surprise for us. He came as near to laughing as I've ever seen him when I asked him if he'd forgotten my warships. 'Why don't you have them here?' he asked. 'We're not ready,' said I. 'The six months are not up for nine days yet.' I also made the interesting discovery that suits have already been brought in England to break the will on the grounds of insanity."

"But what good will that do us if we are to die here?" exclaimed Bobby Browne.

"None whatsoever," said Chase calmly. "You must admit, however, that you exhibited signs of hereditary insanity by coming here in the first place. I'm beginning to believe that there's a streak of it in my family too."

"And you—you saw him killed?" asked the princess in an awed voice, low and full of horror.

"Yes. I could not avoid it."

"They killed him on your—on your"—She could not complete the sentence, but shuddered expressively.

"Yes. He deserved death, princess. I am more or less like the Moslem in one respect. I might excuse a thief or a murderer, but I have no pity for a traitor."

"You saw him killed?" she said in the same awed voice, involuntarily drawing away from him.

"Yes," he said, "and you would have seen him killed, too, if you had gone down with me to appear against him."

She looked up quickly and then thanked him almost in a whisper.

CHAPTER XXVI.

CENTURIES TO FORGET.

"My lord," said Saunders the next day, appearing before his lordship after an agitated hour of preparation, "it's come to a point where something's got to be done." He got that far and then turned quite purple. His collar seemed to be choking him. "If what Mr. Chase says is true, we've got a precious short time to live. Well, we've—we've concluded to get all we can out of the time that's left, my lord. So I've come to ask if it will be all right with you and her ladyship, sir. We don't want to do anything that would seem forward and out of place, sir."

"It's very considerate of you, Saunders, but what the devil are you talking about?"

"Miss—Miss Pelham and I have decided to get—er—get married before it is too late."

Deppingham stared hard for a moment and then grinned broadly.

"You mean before you die?"

"That's it exactly, my lord. Haw, haw! It would be a bit late, wouldn't it, if we waited till afterward. Haw, haw! Splendid! So I have come to ask if you think it will interfere with your arrangements if—if we should be married tonight?"

"I'm sure, Saunders, that it won't discommode me in the least," said his lordship genially. "By all means, Saunders, let it be tonight, for tomorrow we may die."

"Will you kindly speak to her ladyship, sir?"

"Gladly. And I'll take it as an honor if you will permit me to give away the bride."

"Thank you, my lord," cried Saunders, his face beaming. His lordship shook hands with him, whereupon his cup of happiness overflowed, notwithstanding the fact that his honeymoon was likely to be of scarcely any duration whatsoever.

The wedding took place that night in the little chapel. Chase deliberately took possession of the princess after the hollow wedding supper had come to an end. Her mood had changed. Now she was quite at ease with him. The taunting gleam in her eyes presaged evil moments for his peace of mind.

"I'm inspired," he said to her. "A wedding always inspires me."

"It's very strange that you've never married," she retorted. She was striding freely by his side, confident in her power to resist sentiment with mockery.

"Will you be my wife?" he asked abruptly. She caught her breath before laughing tolerantly and then looked into his eyes with a tantalising ingenuousness.

"By no means," she responded. "I am not oppressed by the same views that actuated Miss Pelham. You see, Mr. Chase, I am quite confident that we are not to die in two weeks."

"I could almost wish that we could die in that time," he said.

"How very diabolical!"

"It may seem odd to you, but I'd rather see you dead than married to Prince Karl." She was silent. He went on, "Would you consent to be my wife if you felt in your heart that we should never leave this island?"

"I think I shall go in, Mr. Chase," she said, with a warning shake of her head.

"Don't, please! I'm not asking you to marry me if we should leave the island. You must give me credit for that," he argued whimsically.

"Ah, I see," she said, apparently very much relieved. "You want me only with the understanding that death should be quite close at hand to relieve you. And if I were to become your wife, here and now, and we should be taken from this dreadful place—what then?"

"You probably would have to go through a long and miserable career as plain Goodwife Chase," he explained.

"If it will make you any happier," she said, with a smile in which there lurked a touch of mischievous triumph, "I can say that I might consent to marry you if I were not so positive that I will leave the island soon. You seem to forget that my uncle's yacht is to call here, even though your cruisers will not."

"I'll risk even that," he maintained stoutly.

She stopped suddenly, her hand upon his arm.

"Do you really love me?" she demanded earnestly.

"With all my soul, I swear to you," he replied, staggered by the abrupt change in her manner.

"Then don't make it any harder for me," she said. "You know that I could not do what you ask. Please, please be fair with me. I—I can't even jest about it. It is too much to ask of me," she went on, with a strange firmness in her voice. "It would require centuries to make me forget that I am a princess, just as centuries were taken up in creating me what I am. I am no better than you, dear, but—but—you understand?" She said it so pleadingly, so hopelessly, that he understood what it was that she could not say to him. "We seldom, if ever, marry the men whom God has made for us to love."

He lifted her hands to his breast and held them there. "If you will just go on loving me I'll some day make you forget you're a princess." She smiled and shook her head. Her hair gleamed red and bronze in the kindly light; a soft perfume came up to his nostrils.

DEFENSE OF FATHERS.

"Mothers" Resent Mrs. Rorer's Reflections on Sterner Sex.

"Fathers have no business meddling with their children in any way whatsoever, except just to hand out the money to buy their roller skates and schoolbooks and knickerbockers and aprons and things and to provide houses for them to live in and food for them to eat and nurses to take care of them. The nurse is important because, while the mother must train the child's mind—not the father; oh, no—mothers shouldn't be expected to do menial things for their little ones like washing and dressing them."

So said Mrs. Sarah Tyson Rorer recently to the New York City Mothers' club.

"Nature," said Mrs. Rorer firmly, "never intended fathers to train their children, and under present conditions they are so cross and irritable when they get home from business that they aren't fit to have anything to do with the little ones anyway. Let the mother mold the child's character, but not take the actual care of it, for nothing is so tiresome as sweeping and cooking and taking care of children. Let nurses do that."

If the club had been a club of New York city fathers it couldn't have jumped on Mrs. Rorer more unanimously. The members arose to their feet to a woman almost. Mrs. James P. Caban, being present, got the floor and testified for the absent fathers nobly.

"I take issue with Mrs. Rorer," she said. "I've seen just as many ideal fathers as mothers—just as many."

A little woman who looked as if she had brought up a family herself got the floor.

"The status of women being what it is today," she remarked bitterly, "a boy has far more respect for his father's opinion than for his mother's."

Just at present the shampoo shield designed by a New York man and shown in the illustration is being used in up to date hairdressing establishments. It will also find favor with any other person who has ever gasped and spluttered during the process of a shampoo while the soapy water ran into his or her eyes and made them smart. This shield is of elliptical shape to fit the contour of the head. It is placed on the head like a hat, with the difference that there is no crown and the hair comes through the top. The shampooer can rub the head of the subject vigorously, while the latter may be as much at ease as if he was merely having his head combed. The flare of the shield brim sends the water entirely clear of the face, which is kept dry, except for a few drops that may trickle down inside of the rim of the shield. This device will eliminate the annoying features of the shampoo to persons who are short of breath.

HINTS FOR THE NEW YEAR.

Add a few slices of raw potato if the soup proves too salty, then cook a few minutes longer. The potatoes will absorb the salt.

Grease the upper inside edge of a stewpan with a bit of butter to prevent the contents of the pan boiling over, whether milk, chocolate, syrup or cereals.

To make the best of shabby linoleum wash it with glue melted in twice its weight of water. Rub this on with a flannel and polish with a fresh dry flannel.

To test tea burn a small quantity of a metal plate. With good tea the amount of ash remaining is small, increasing in quantity as the quality of the sample tested deteriorates.

If the stained boards of your floor have become light with constant wear, rub them well with paraffin oil and they will become beautifully dark. Then polish with beeswax and turpentine.

For white paint there is nothing to equal a flannel wrung out in warm water and dipped in whiting, using as much as will cling to the flannel. Lastly, wash well in clean water and wipe dry.

When using canned salmon, shrimps or lobster, open the can several hours before needed, put the contents into a colander, pour boiling water over, then drain and cool, and all disagreeable fishy odor and taste will disappear.

When knives that have been put away for a time have become rusty, put the blades in sweet oil for half an hour and then dig them in garden soil several times. Polish with fine emery cloth, and the blades should be brilliant.

"CLAP HANDS" IS GREAT HIT

One of the Songs in "Molly May" That Made Great Hit in Chicago

It is gratifying to announce that Grace La Rue's new comic opera, "Molly May," with her magnetic self as the bright particular star, is to be the attraction at the Grand Opera House (to-morrow), Tuesday night, March 8th. The opera in which she will be seen in the work of Walter Browne and Julian Edwards. The music is the best that has come from the pens of Julian Edwards in a long, long time, and is the musical quality positively refreshing after the deluge of ragtime stuff with which so-called musical productions have been filled for the last few years. A waltz air with "Molly May" as its title, is said to be in Mr. Edwards' best vein, at least this is the comment of a prominent critic. Mr. Browne has supplied an interesting story with an artist's studio as the main setting, and the idea of a model's ball to stir the imagination and furnish a reason for extravagant dressing. The production is made by Byron Chandler, a young Boston millionaire, and with Miss La Rue's well-known reputation for beautiful dressing, it follows that there is some large "doings" in the way of money spending for costume and scenic effects.

The principals in the cast supporting Miss La Rue, who are players who have earned distinction in their various lines, include James E. Sullivan, George Odell, J. H. Goldsworthy, Eva Fallon, Kate Rolla, Frances Keenan and Sydney Grant. The chorus is not only unusually large, being fifty-five in number, but it embraces a collection of good voices and looks such as is seldom seen in musical productions. Chicago critics agreed that in "Clap Hands" Miss La Rue has the best song heard in Chicago thus far this season.

THEATRICAL

David Holcombe

A return engagement of "David Holcomb," a pastoral play of unusual strength and interest, was given at the Grand on Saturday afternoon and evening to highly pleased audiences. The moral tone of the play is most commendable and the presenting company is an excellent one. The play was splendidly received at both matinee and night performances.

Helena, Mont., March 5.—Louis James, the actor, died here to-day.

Mr. James was stricken with heart trouble while in his dressing room at the Helena Theatre last night. He was removed to his hotel and the performance was canceled.

The body will be shipped to-morrow to Kansas City. The company will disband.

Louis James was known in Peterborough. He appeared at the Grand in "Virginius."

"The Affinity," with Lawrence Irving in the leading role, closed at Brantford. The attraction had been drawing small business in Canada.

MILLBROOK PEOPLE WERE TAKEN IN

The gold watch fakirs struck town on Thursday night last and stung some of our people in good shape and the funny part of it is that it is usually the close fisted ones who are bitten. It would not be right to give names, as the bitten ones have had it rubbed in so well already, but the young will learn from this first experience, perhaps, and the old fossils, well, let them take all they got. The operators were up to their game, and the one who has assurance enough to try a hand at it must count on the usual result with fakirs.—Millbrook Reporter.

BARN IN DOURO WAS DESTROYED

Struck by Lightning During Severe Storm--Much Damage Done Throughout Province---Methodist Parsonage Burned at Delta.

Special to the Review.

Lakefield, March 7.—During a terrific thunderstorm last night the house of Edward Dunford, a farmer living about a mile out in the township of Douro, was struck by lightning and totally destroyed. A part of the contents were saved. The loss is partly covered by incurance.

Port Hope, March 7.—Two ricks, the property of Mr. Wm. Berry, living just outside the town, were destroyed by fire last night. They were struck by lightning only a moment after Mr. Berry had locked up for the night. Included in the loss were two valuable horses partly insured.

Kinmount, March 7.—During a heavy electric storm last evening the barn of J. Wilson, about three miles from the village, was struck by lightning and the barn and contents of grain and machinery (were totally destroyed. The loss is about three thousand dollars.

Cannington, March 7.—During the heavy thunderstorm which passed over this section on Sunday, the barns of Mr. Alex. McRae, second concession of Thorah, were struck by lightning and completely destroyed, along with 24 head of cattle, one horse, 600 bushels of oats, 20 tons of hay, and all the farm implements. There is said to be no insurance.

Delta, Ont., March 7.—The Methodist Parsonage here was destroyed by fire shortly after midnight Saturday night. Mrs. Davidson was awakened by smoke in her chamber, and aroused the family, who hurriedly made their escape from the burning building in their night apparel. The barn and the house and its contents are a total loss, only the piano being saved; not a book from Mr. Davidson's fine library was saved. The family lost all their clothing. The loss is partly covered by insurance.

CHARGED WITH SELLING LIQUOR IN BROKEN PACKAGES

Does the Absence of a Label or Stamp From a Flask of Liquor Characterize it as a Broken Package?

What is the definition of a broken package, as regards the sale of liquor in bottles? This is a puzzler, and it caused considerable discussion at the police court this morning, the question having arisen out of a charge against the licensee of a liquor store, preferred by Chief Roszel. The charge was that the manager of the store, on the 26th of last month, sold liquor in broken packages, but Magistrate Dumble held that it had not been proven, and dismissed the case.

Mr. G. N. Gordon acted for the defence.

The prosecution produced two half-pint flasks of liquor, one with a seal and the other without one. The former, the chief contended, was an unbroken package, and the latter a broken package.

The latter, and two others of the same size and quantity were purchased at the store by a blacklisted man. License Inspector Stewart was called, but he would not say which of the two flasks produced was the broken one. He claimed that he had been unable to find any clear definition. "My interpretation of a 'broken package,'" said witness, "is one that had been opened."

"If liquor was sold to a man in a pail or other vessel, would you call that a broken package?" asked the Magistrate of the witness.

"Yes," he answered.

"I have been in stores," continued the witness, "when clerks would refuse to fill bottles for customers."

"Do you know as a matter of fact that a liquor dealer has any right to put a label on a bottle?" asked the Magistrate.

"No, I don't think he has," replied the witness.

There was a lot of discussion amongst witness, Chief Roszel, Mr Gordon and Magistrate Dumble as to which of the two bottles was the broken package, but very little headway was made, and the blacklisted man to whom the liquor was sold, was called, and his evidence was to the effect that he purchased one bottle, but he would not say that there was a stamp on it.

P. C. Meharry, next called, stated that he found three bottles on the man when he arrested him, and these he took to the police station. They had been in his possession up to the last trial, but since then he did not know who had them. The flask without the stamp, produced in court, had the same appearance as one of those taken from the prisoner. The defendant, on the day of this being served, said that he had been selling like that all along.

The defendant, on being called, stated that the flasks sold to the blacklisted man were filled in the store. His definition of an unbroken package was a bottle that had been filled and corked.

"Anything more than a mere cork?" asked the Magistrate.

"No," replied the witness.

He continued that the seal was to show that the liquor was bottled in bond, but he had never heard of a law that required a seal. He had always been in the habit of buying flasks and filling them in the store, but no flasks brought in by customers were filled. In ascertaining the proper amount, government measures were used.

Mr. G. H. Howson, government Inspector of Weights and Measures identified the measure produced in court as an imperial half pint, and stamped with the government stamp. There was no such thing as a wine measure known to the Government Act. One found using such is liable to a fine, and this is also the case where a measure is used without the government stamp, the manufacturer's name and its capacity.

The contents of the unlabelled flask were poured into the measure and it was filled to within about 3-16ths of an inch from the top.

Chief Roszel next identified the unlabelled flask as one of the three produced by P.C. Meharry at the last trial.

"How do you make out your case?" asked the Magistrate of the chief.

"I claim that the unlabelled flask is a broken package," replied the chief.

"But you haven't proved that the flask did not have a label on it," returned His Worship.

THIS MAN HAS "MARBLE" FACE

An Extraordinary Case at Birmingham Hospital

Birmingham, March 7. — A man whose skin looks like marble is puzzling the doctors at the Birmingham Skin Hospital. His name is Morgan Field. He was a needle pointer by trade, and four years ago he contracted pneumonia and was laid up for six months. Soon afterwards his skin developed the appearance of white marble, and looked like the skin of a corpse. It was cold to touch, and the natural lines were obliterated, so that he became devoid of expression.

The skin has become so tight round the points that Field cannot bend them and it is only with difficulty that he can open his mouth partially. His condition is thought to be due to some obstruction in the arteries, veins, or lymph vessels caused by a disturbance in a nervous center.

When the Electric Radium institute in connection with the hospital is finished it is hoped that the treatment will relieve Field. The treatment he is undergoing at present aims at improving his nutritious and increasing his circulation.

LITTLE GIRL RAN AWAY FROM HER FOSTER-PARENTS

Lindsay, March 5.—Mr. Wm. O'Connor, Inspector of the Neglected and Dependent Children's Department, of Ontario, was in town yesterday. He was investigating a case of alleged ill-treatment of a young girl by foster parents, in whose care she had been placed some years ago. The child had become so terrified that she ran away and stayed all night in a swamp, rather than return to her home. She has been returned to Toronto. Fortunately, there are not many cases of this kind.

HE SAW A BILL AND WITH A WILL

He Tried to Get it Out, But for the Sin He Tumbled in and Now May Get the Gout

It was just like Eliza crossing the ice in a production of "Uncle Tom's Cabin," only the role of Eliza was played by a male performer. It happened this morning and the scene of the event was the creek near the Grand Trunk bridge on Bethune street.

To tell the story briefly, it may be stated that one of the postmen who is well known to the hockey fans, was returning after going over his route this morning, when his eagle eye caught sight of a piece of green paper on a piece of ice in the creek. Closer investigation showed that the object of the attention was a two dollar bill. The piece of ice to which the bill was attached was held back by a jam of ice, and it looked an easy matter to secure the greenback. However, when the postman ventured out on the ice the jam gave way, the two dollar bill floated serenely down stream and the venturesome one dropped into the water up to his waist. He struggled ashore and hustled home to change his clothes.

LARGE FLOCK OF WILD GEESE

Seen This Morning Flying Towards North West — Gulls Have Also Appeared

Mr. William Collins, while at the locks below the city this morning, about ten o'clock, saw a large flock of wild geese. They were going in a northwesterly direction and their "honking" attracted the attention of Mr. Collins. There were about twenty birds in the flock. This is the first flock of wild geese reported this spring.

The gulls have again made their appearance at Little Lake, so if the old signs are true, spring has apparently come to stay.

BAD FIRE IN MACHINE SHOP IN TORONTO

Toronto, March 5.—A fire occurred in the top flat of the machine shop of the Schollfield-Hollen Machine Company, about four o'clock this morning doing considerable damage to the roof and contents of the building.

The company state, however, that no damage has been done to the large stock of motor boats, owing to the very prompt action of the fire department, and that they expect to be running again in a few weeks. The cause of the fire is not yet known. The damage, which is estimated at about seven thousand dollars, is fully covered by insurance.

A Complaint

To the Editor of the Review.

Sir,—If the sensible people of this community would give the cold shoulder to those who will persist in making the House of God a place for fun and frolic, for cracking jokes and singing comic, senseless and godless songs, &c., then we would soon get rid of this positive nuisance of young people—and old, too—hawking tickets around the city, to the utter disgust of our citizens, and especially our merchants.

Yours,
JOHN CARLISLE.

COWS ATE TOO MUCH BUCKWHEAT

Mr. Milford Northey, who resides in North Smith, lost seven head of cattle in a peculiar way last week. The animals got into the barn and consumed a large amount of buckwheat which was in a bin. They were watered at the usual time, the owner not being aware that they had consumed a large amount of grain, and the combination of buckwheat and water proved too much.

Mr. Northey's loss is about $300.

SERVICES AT FIRE HALL SUGGESTED

On Sunday Afternoon, as Men on Duty Are Unable to Attend Church

Ald. Morgan, chairman of the Fire, Water and Light Committee, and Chief Howard are considering the advisability of having religious services at the fire hall on Sunday afternoons, if they can be arranged for.

The suggestion appears to be an excellent one, as the men on duty on Sunday are required to be at the hall constantly, and have not the opportunity of attending church.

SPORTING NEWS

IN THE SQUARED CIRCLE

Battling Nelson—Tommy Burns—Young Griffo

Sam Fitzpatrick, former manager of Jack Johnson, is credited with discovering and developing the negro champion, but this claim is not true. The man who discovered Johnson was Leo Posner and the man who developed him was Joe Choynski.

Now they are calling him "Battered" Nelson. Although defeated by Ad Wolgast for the light-weight championship, the Dane is still popular in his home town of Hegewisch, Ill. The dethroned king received a warm greeting on his arrival there the other day, a great share of his townspeople turning out to honor the former champion. Nelson fared well financially in his fight with Wolgast, getting $12,000, while Wolgast received less than $5,000 for whipping him.

Australians are very anxious to have Stanley Ketchel visit that country. They have made big financial offers to the Michigan fighter, but he has turned them down for the time being. Ketchel, despite his defeat by Johnson, is still one of the best drawing cards in the ring, and will be able to clean up big money in matches in the United States. Ketch's style of fighting is one that stirs an audience to its highest pitch. There are many likely fighters who are on the trail of the Michigan Assassin and he will not want for battles

Jack Burns, of Salinas, Cal., is the latest accession to the ranks of the heavy-weights, and the manner in which he has buffted the coast thumpers has aroused the hope that some day he will develop into a champion. He has boxed Jim Flynn to a 10-round draw, and has knocked several other heavies about as if they were wooden Indians. The best point about Burns is that he is a two-handed fighter, landing hard with either mitt, and in addition is a clever boxer. He is well built, being about 5 feet 11 inches tall, weighing 180 pounds in good condition, and is speedy in getting about. Billy Delaney likes Burns and may take him under his managerial wing.

Young Griffo, the Australian probably the cleverest man who ever put up his hands in the ring, is drifting around Chicago a physical wreck. His hair is almost white and he looks to be 50 years of age, although he is far from that. He is being supported by the charity of friends. Speaking of the effort to get him to return to Australia, Griffo says: "I know, some time ago, that friends of mine in Australia subscribed a sufficient amount to pay my passage back to my old home. I refused the offer, for if I was to go there it would only be for a short time, as I would want to come back to Chicago. I do not want to go back to Australia again, as I would not want to meet my friends of early days in this condition. I know I am all in as a boxer and must take my medicine the same as the rest of them."

LACROSSE

Now that Frank Oliver has been nominated for the Council of the Canadian Lacrosse Association, many sports are wondering if Lindsay will be represented in the above Association this year. Lindsay has seen better days in the lacrosse world and a revival of the game would not be amiss. In fact there should be lots of summer athletics in Lindsay this year, and it is to be hoped that the baseball artists will also get busy and re-organize the town baseball league. Last summer it was dead in Lindsay. Forbid a return of such conditions. If there is going to be baseball or lacrosse, let the sports get busy at once. There is no time like the present.—Lindsay Wonder.

SPORTING NOTES

Blake Crawford has sold his hotel business in Newcastle and has taken possession of the Hotel St. Lawrence at Port Hope. He has returned to his old town and will no doubt be found in the baseball ring again this summer.—Cobourg Star.

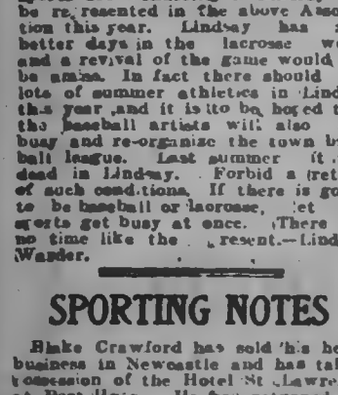
Parkdale and Argonauts played to a tie Saturday night, but the former win the round by one goal of a lead secured in the first game.

Tom Longboat has an attack of typhoid fever and his race with Acoose has been called off.

Ad. Wolgast is to take an engagement with a burlesque show for ten weeks at a salary of $1,000 per week.

The Northern Crown Bank team of Winnipeg won the championship of the Bank Hockey League of Canada Saturday night at Montreal.

The wife of Dr. C. F. Davies, the well-known Detroit organist, is dead. Marshall Hermes Fonseca will probably be elected President of Brazil.



WANDERERS WON AT OTTAWA 3-1

New Champions Were Always in Lead. and Played Superior Hockey

Ottawa, March 6.—In a game that that will live long in the memory of those who witnessed it, the Montreal Wanderers defeated the Ottawa hockey team, holders of the Stanley Cup, at Day's Arena Saturday night, the visitors capturing the honors in a close game by the score of three to one. At half time the tally was one to nothing in favor of the winners, and they increased their lead in the second half, the Ottawas narrowly averting a shut-out.

The Montreal Wanderers, by defeating the Ottawas, won the championship of the National League, and with it the Stanley Cup, the emblem of the world's highest hockey honors. The match was played on an ice surface that was covered with water in spots, and which was too soft to permit of any brilliant playing.

It is estimated that over seven thousand spectators obtained admission to the rink, the crowd being the second largest that has ever witnessed a hockey match in Ottawa. The Wanderers scored the first goal, leading at half time one to nothing. They scored twice in the second half, the Ottawas only getting one goal.

Thousands of dollars were lost on the game, the visitors being second choice in the betting.

HOCKEY

Last Thursday evening the Cobourg hockey club were very pleasantly entertained at a banquet at the Dunham House. After the supper a short toast list was gone through, with Mayor Field occupying the chair. During the evening the seven regular players were presented with fine gold watches, the two spare men and officers getting signet rings

The Mystery of Black Mountain

How the Perpetrator of a Murder Was Discovered.

By JOHN LOUIS BERRY.

Copyright, 1909, by American Press Association.

The lightning flashed, illuminating the dark forest vividly.

"This is the place," said Clare breathlessly after her long run, and she pointed to the ground.

At Jack's feet lay a sinister black heap with its face turned up toward the stormy sky. There was a wide gash in the head. Beside the body lay the brutal implement of the hideous deed—an ax.

"Phil!" cried Jack in horror stricken tones, bending down and feeling the heart. "My God, he is dead!"

"Dead," repeated Clare, "and you killed him."

"I? Why, Miss Fleming, you must be mad. I swear!"—

She held up her hand. "Not another word. Please see me to the edge of the wood."

Jack Lawrence was held for the murder.

One afternoon a week before the day of the trial Jack was surprised by a visit from Clare Fleming.

"I'm going away," she explained, "and I didn't want to leave without saying goodby."

"Thank you," he answered quietly. "Do you still believe me guilty?"

"Don't ask me, please."

He sighed heavily.

"Is there anything I can do for you?" she asked eagerly.

"Yes. Try to believe that I'm innocent. Will you try, Clare?"

"Yes, Jack; I'll try—with all my soul."

"Thank you. You didn't see me strike him with the ax, did you?"

"No." She was silent a moment, gazing at him steadily. "Tell me, are you innocent or guilty?"

"Innocent, so help me God."

She held out her hand. "I believe you," she said, then, ashamed of her fears, hurriedly left him.

Out in the street she met her uncle, Judge Hughes.

"I'm on my way to reserve your berth, my dear," he said. "The train has changed time, and"—

"But I'm not going away—just yet," she interrupted.

"You don't say so! Well, if you're not the most notionate young lady"—But she laughed and hastened past him.

Reaching Dizzy Lodge, the Hughes home, she ordered her pony saddled and soon was galloping up Black mountain. She did not draw rein until arriving at Piney Bill's cabin. The old man was hard at work chopping wood.

"Good afternoon," she said graciously. "I've heard that you're the only person in the county who believes Jack innocent of the murder."

Bill did not respond with much alacrity. Because of this handsome, dashing young woman one of his boys was dead and the other was virtually condemned to die.

"Well, Mr. Bill, that's a mistake," she continued good humoredly, "for here's another who believes him innocent."

Bill gave his ax a rest. "You?" he queried incredulously.

"Come, now," she said briskly, dismounting. "Let's go to the place where poor Phil met his death and talk it over. Maybe we can reach some conclusion."

"Do you remember the exact spot?" Bill asked doubtfully.

"Yes. The tree was struck by lightning."

"P'raps Phil was struck too?" he hazarded, with sublime hope.

She shook her head. "No; it was that horrible ax. Somebody killed him with that, and you and I must find out who it was."

In a few moments they were standing on the fatal spot. The tree had been struck by lightning, as Clare had said, and was now a partly burned and shriveled semblance of its former kingly self. The two friends of the accused examined the surroundings carefully, but found nothing that led to a clew. There seemed to be only hopelessness ahead.

The day of the trial came. The prosecution then called its first and only witness, Clare Fleming. She told a simple and straightforward story of how on the afternoon of the picnic she and the murdered man had met the accused and of how when she and Phil were hurrying home in the rain and darkness Phil had been struck on the head with an ax, thereby killing him.

The defense began the cross examination.

"You were with Mr. Hastings at the time he met his death?"

"Yes."

"Did he cry out?"

"He simply fell to the ground."

"Did you see the murderer do the deed?"

"No."

"Did you see the accused anywhere near?"

"No."

"Did you suspect him then of the murder?"

"Yes."

"Why?"

"Because"—she hesitated—"of their quarrel in the afternoon."

"And you left the body and went to hunt for him?"

"Not for him—simply for help. I lost my way and happened to meet him, then returned with him to the corpse."

"You are excused."

The prosecuting attorney then began his argument.

Judge Hughes followed for Jack. But his eloquence was futile. Only two of his points made anything of an impression—the fact that no footprints had been discovered under the tree other than those of Miss Fleming and the dead man and the further fact that the ax was a very old one of German manufacture, the duplicate of which could not be found for miles around. Certainly no one had ever seen the ax in Jack's possession.

The prosecuting attorney quietly called attention to the relative insignificance of the defense's two points. Then the court gave the charge to the jury. The twelve good men and true retired. They had been gone just half an hour when they filed in and the foreman handed in the verdict, "Guilty of murder in the first degree." It was the shortest murder trial ever held in the state.

The defense's motion for a new trial was not granted. Accordingly Jack was taken to the state penitentiary. The governor, a rather rigid man, saw no extenuating circumstances in the case, and the first week in October was set as the time for the execution. So Jack's fate was sealed. Two months, and he would suffer an ignominious death on the gallows.

A cloud of gloom settled over the village, where Jack had always been a general favorite. Judge Hughes and his niece went to a watering place to spend the rest of the autumn. Clare wrote one letter to Jack—a long, long one. What was in it nobody but themselves ever knew.

Time flew. On the twenty-eighth day of September Clare received the following telegram:

Come at once. Big news. BILL.

Bright and early the next morning she galloped up Black mountain. As usual Bill was chopping wood.

"You mus' scuse me, miss," he apologised, "but as you an' me wus the only ones wot didn't b'lieve him guilty I thought I'd bev ye come an' share the glor'us news. But we mus' be quick about it, as you'll hev to see the gur'nor."

He went into the cabin and brought out the ax which had been found on the ground beside the body. "It's a quar one, ain't it, miss? An' do ye recollect it didn't hev no handle? I wonder wot become of it?" He laughed slyly. "I guess Jack must ha' buried it. But, do you know, miss, I suspicion that this here ax be half as old as I am? Come, I wanter show you the tree. Ever since poor Phil's death I've cussed an' swore at that tree. Time an' ag'in I've gone out thar to chop the critter down, an' time an' ag'in I couldn't. Suthin' allus seemed to hold me back. I'm mighty glad now that suthin' did."

Bill showed Clare his "find." Fifteen minutes later the overjoyed young woman rode down to the village, secured a camera; then, returning to the forest, took a picture of the tree, or, rather, of one particular part of it.

That afternoon she stood in the presence of his excellency the governor of the state.

"Governor," she began quietly, "next week is the time set for John Lawrence's execution. I'm here to ask you for a pardon."

"You don't ask much," his excellency answered dryly.

"Governor," she continued, smiling, "you are familiar with the details of Mr. Hastings' death. I ask you to keep in mind now four points especially—there was a thunderstorm raging at the time, he was standing under a tree, the tree was struck by lightning, and he was struck with an ax."

His excellency looked bored. "Go on."

She opened her satchel and took out the photograph plate and the ax. "There, sir, is the ax. As you see, it's a very fine steel one of an odd shape and size, and if you look down in this corner you'll find it was made in Germany as long ago as 1860. The ax, then, is thirty-nine years old. The tree is a number of years older. Now, this plate shows the part of the tree that was struck by lightning—the 'forks,' so called, or the point where the upper part of the trunk divides into two limbs. The lightning struck the forks, and they split open. Look closely at the plate and you'll see a depression in the wood where the lightning struck, a depression of the exact shape of this ax. And right here is the explanation of the mystery of Philip Hastings' death. This ax was stuck into the tree between twenty and twenty-five years ago by some woodman. He might have done it for several reasons—to mark the tree, to put the ax in a safe and convenient place, or it might have been merely an act of carelessness. Be that as it may, woodmen often do such things. The ax was thrust into this tree, the handle loosening and coming off. The man who did it must have forgotten it or gone away unexpectedly, as it was left in the tree. How do I know that this happened between twenty and twenty-five years ago? I simply compare the age of the ax with the probable age of the tree. The ax was thrust into the tree, and it remained there. As the tree grew the bark gradually covered the ax, and the ax rose higher and higher with the tree." She looked at the governor with quiet assurance. "Now, sir, these facts speak for themselves. The lightning struck the forks of the tree, the tree split open, and the ax fell out. Unfortunately Philip Hastings happened to be standing directly under it, and it struck him, crushing in his head. Your excellency, I ask at least a reprieve."

The reprieve was granted. The next day the governor went to Black mountain to make a personal investigation. There stood the split tree, and there in the forks was a distinct depression into which the ax fitted perfectly.

Leaning Tower's Needs.

Rome, March 7.—The commission appointed to examine the Leaning Tower of Pisa has reported that it thinks its foundations may need strengthening. A spring exists under the tower, the water of which is raised by steam pumps for the use of a local factory.

As the bed of the spring is emptied, it is feared, a subsidence of the ground on which the campanile stands will follow.

Insurance Companies Lose About $125,000.00 by the Wreck at Spanish River

Double Liability for About Twenty-five Persons

A loss of somewhere in the neighbourhood of $125,000 is what the Accident Insurance Companies estimate the wreck at Spanish River bridge means to them.

They figure that about 25 of those who met death carried Accident Insurance, and the average insurance, according to the tables, is $5,000. In case of death in a railway disaster there is a double liability, making the figure $6,000, or $5,000 to be more conservative.

Their loss may total more than that, for the commercial travellers, a number of whom were killed, usually carry very heavy insurance. In addition, some of the companies make the policies payable on the death of the wife while travelling, though the policy is taken out in the husband's name. In such cases they pay the husband the same amount as they would have paid the wife were the husband killed.

We issue the BEST Accident and Sickness policy offered to the public.

NEW STYLE HATS WILL COST MORE

They May be Smaller or Bigger But They'll be Dearer at Anyrate

New York, March 5.—"Now I ask you, ladies," solemnly said Mme. Marie, president of the National Association of Retail Milliners, which is meeting at the Victoria Hotel this week, "to consider the matter and give us your ideas of what the styles will be this season."

All the members in attendance last night apparently became lost in meditation.

"The turban, which comes far down over the ears, will be the most worn," one said decisively.

"The Louis XVI styles will be all the rage," said another.

"Hats will be larger than ever," expounded the woman in the corner.

"Soft, light materials will be used," proclaimed her companion.

One thing is certain. Miss Fitzpatrick, of Minnesota, said it, and she leaned far from her chair as she did.

Millinery will be higher this year than ever."

"Don't say a word about Leghorns," one trimmer cautioned the reporter. "They are too high for anything. The jobbers and wholesalers are holding them up, and there is a terrible shortage in the market.

"What is the matter? Cold storage?" suggested the reporter.

"I don't know, but they are somewhere."

At the request of the newspapermen, Mme. Marie went to her room and after unwrapping many swathings of paper, she balanced an enormous white creation on her finger tips, and held it up for their admiration. It had a long white feather and two small gold roses on it.

"This," she said, "is called the French sailor. It's quite a simple little thing."

"Um," said the baseball expert, who had been pressed in by his paper in an emergency, "how far is it from bounds to—that is, how wide is it across the field?"

"Twenty inches," she replied complacently, picking at the gold roses.

"Why, that's exceeding regulations. There has been a law passed that only allows a woman's hat to be eighteen inches wide."

"Well, in that case it can be turned up a little," Madame replied. "This is quite a simple little affair and only costs $200."

Another confection is a "set," and proved quite beyond masculine comprehension. Anyhow, it was valued at $500 and was what Madame called a Marie Antoinette fichu and a hat of gray to match. It was made of chiffon and trimmed with roses.

The association hopes to collect money to build a hotel and hall. The latter will contain a lecture room, a designing hall and a library, all devoted to the ethics and aesthetic advancement of millinery. The former is for trimmers who come to New York to see the prices.

"Say," said one of the newsmen, "do you people get together and decide what the styles will be and whatever you say the women have to wear?"

Madame gazed back with enigmatical eyes. "Well, we always try to influence our patrons for their best good," she replied.

Can indigestion be cured? Hundreds of thousands of people who suffer from belching of gas; biliousness, sour stomach, fullness, nausea, shortness of breath, bad taste in the mouth, foul breath, nervousness and other distressing symptoms, are asking themselves that question daily.

And if these same doubting dyspetics could only read the thousands of sincere letters from people who once suffered as badly as they do now, but who have been quickly and permanently cured by the use of Mi-o-na, the mighty dyspepsia remedy that cures by removing the cause, they would go to Wm. The price of Mi-o-na tablets is only 50 cents, and Wm. Madill guarantees them to cure indigestion, or money back.

Thin or lean or scrawney people will find in Mi-o-na a maker of flesh and blood, because it causes the stomach to extract more nutritious matter from the food, which quickly enriches the blood.

QUAINT OLD LUND.

Interesting Visit to a Woman's Club in Sweden.

"Would you like to come and see my club?" a Swedish woman resident of the quaint old city of Lund recently inquired of an American friend.

"And you possess a woman's club in addition to all this?" responded the American woman, looking about as they strolled along the cobbled streets of the charming old town, passing the ramparts erected by Charles XII., of glorious memory, and the bishop of Teguer's modest house. But to tell the story in the words of the American visitor:

"It was only a short distance from the heart of the town where the woman's club was situated. We passed through the entrance hall, which was rather dark and lighted by a single lamp on the wall, but when we mounted the staircase which led to the first floor a great surprise awaited me. We opened a small door and passed into a fairyland of beauty and culture.

"A pretty daintiness pervaded everything, from the white bookshelves containing stacks of English, American, German and Danish periodicals and magazines, besides those in the mother tongue, to the cozy window seats.

"There were five rooms in all, and they led one into the other in the true Scandinavian fashion.

"On a table in the center of the drawing room stood a large vase of green beech shoots. Flanking it in either direction were two bowls of white narcissuses, flowers for all the world like tall slender maids of honor in attendance.

"The blue chamber would rest the most jaded nerves, I thought, as we sank down on an inviting sofa backed by a wonderful cross stitched frieze of peasants, trees and plants and rested our parcels on a tiny table covered by a blue check cloth.

"Another apartment seemed to be made for study and meditation, so cozy was the green furniture, and the old wooden lounge was covered with a loug wool work cushion. This made a most pleasing contrast to the dark cream wall paper.

"In the music room I noticed a piano, red chairs and table. The tablecloth was red and white check, and the usual corner stove was white as snow.

"'Just the spot to spend a cold winter's day in,' remarked my friend, 'all glow and warmth. I think we might call the four smaller rooms the four seasons.'

"There is nothing so cosmopolitan as culture, and as we passed out into the busy street, talking of the respective merits of Jane Austen and Charlotte Broute, we forgot our different nationalities and the many miles of rolling water which separates our respective lands in that little 'touch of nature' that makes the whole world kin—sympathy with each other's ideals, tastes and pursuits."

HEALTH AND BEAUTY.

Never get the idea that little things are trifling. They make just the difference between a woman who is beautiful because well groomed and a beauty whose looks are ruined by carelessness.

Massaging the cheeks with the fingers increases and quickens the circulation in them and tends to keep them plump and free from wrinkles. A little cold cream or skin food can be used occasionally in massaging. Frequent brushing of the hair with a good bristle brush will reduce the necessity of frequent washing.

It is not rain or cold weather that is directly harmful and liable to cause illness. Even wet clothes or wet feet are of very little importance if you are walking all the time to keep warm and are careful to change whenever you get indoors. Of course it is fatal to sit about in wet things, and the business girl who gets home "wet through" should have dry things if she wishes to escape a chill.

When a woman is very tired she will find one of the best processes of refreshing herself is to wring out hot cloths and lay them over her eyes and forehead. A hot water bag does not act as a substitute for this, and the treatment is a little trouble. The simplest way is to have two cloths and a basin of hot water ready to wring out and replace the one on the head that becomes cool. Fifteen minutes is enough, and the improvement in the physical condition is marked. It is a wise plan to rinse the face in very cold water immediately afterward.

Hot baths will break up colds if one is willing to go through the discomfort attendant upon such treatment. For this process one gets into a tub in which the water is at a comfortable temperature, but from then until getting out more water of a higher temperature is constantly added. When leaving the water one goes immediately to bed, piling the surface with blankets and lying between two. To drink a glass of hot lemonade increases the tendency to open the pores, and by the next day the cold should be gone. One must always go to bed after a hot bath, for the body is then most susceptible to cold.

RINGING IN NEW YEAR'S.

Interesting Facts About Bells and Events Their Tongues Proclaim.

When you hear the ringing of the bells at midnight on the last day of December you will know that a new year has been ushered in. Bells all over the world will be raising their iron tongues to proclaim this important event. The history of bells is a very interesting one, and their use dates as far back as the year 400. Before that date rattles were used to make joyous sounds.

In the year 610 we read of bells in the city of Sens, the army of Clothaire, king of France, having been frightened away by the ringing of them.

In 900 the first peal of bells was heard in England at Croyland abbey.

Many years ago it was estimated that there were at least 2,262 peals of bells, great and small, in England. It has been thought that the custom of ringing bells was peculiar to England; but, in fact, the cathedral of Antwerp, celebrated for its magnificent spire, has a peal of bells, ninety in number, on which is played every half hour the most elaborate music.

The metal tongue of the big bell rings out many changes in our modern ears. It speaks of disaster and death, of devotion and rejoicing.

In some parts of the country the bell which tolls the old year out is called the "old lad's passing bell."

In western England the bells peal merrily on "oak apple day" to celebrate the escape of King Charles at Boscobel.

Another bell, rung at the beginning of Lent, is known as "pancake bell" because in old times it summoned the people away from their pancakes to confession and fasting.

A lively peal of bells is often rung at the end of the Sunday morning service and is called "pudding bell." Perhaps its purpose is to announce to the stay at homes that service is over and that the pudding may come out of the oven.

Every night at five minutes past 9 "Great Tom," the great bell of Christchurch college at Oxford, booms out its ponderous note 101 times. This particular number was chosen in accordance with the number of students at the foundation of the college.

TENS AND DOZENS.

How Our Clumsy Way of Counting Came to Be Established.

Did it ever occur to you as strange that while we count by tens we buy so many articles by the dozen? If we ask the price of apples, oranges, oysters, eggs, collars, handkerchiefs and many other things we will be told so many cents or dollars a dozen or, if large quantities are wanted, so much a gross, which means a large or dozen dozen.

How do you suppose this has come about? It is in this way. Nearly all savage people count by their fingers—that is, if they want to tell you they have seen two wild beasts they will hold up two fingers, and if ten they will hold up both hands, and if twenty both hands twice, and so on. Babies also learn to count by their fingers and toes, and to many people it seems as if that were the only possible way.

It is, however, rather a clumsy way, as you find out when you try to divide ten. Say, for example, you have ten apples. You can only make an equal division among two or five people, while if you have twelve you can give an equal number to two, three, four or six. We find the same inconvenience in dividing a dollar and often have to pay 13 cents for what should properly cost 12½ cents.

If we had been born with two, four, six or eight fingers or toes, like some animals, it is possible that we should have counted differently, but it does not now seem likely there will ever be any change in the ten or decimal system, as it is called, especially since the Arabic numerals now used nearly everywhere are based on this system.—Chicago News.

ABLE PAPER ON BROWNING READ BY INSPECTOR MOWAT

A feature of the Ministerial Association meeting this morning at the Y.M.C.A. was a very able and highly interesting and instructive paper on Browning, which was read by Mr. A. Mowat, the city Public School Inspector.

Important business was transacted at the meeting, and among other things it was decided to take action on behalf of the more progressive work in connection with the Y.M.C.A.

Mr. Mowat in his address stated that Browning was a great poet and an original thinker. He was a man of the world, and had one of the keenest minds in the last century. He was also a man of powerful individuality.

The reason that his poetery was not more widely read was because it differed so widely from the accepted form of poetry. His poetry was not intended to be a substitute for a cigar, and wasn't to be used to wile away an evening, for the poet regarded poetery as serious as life itself. Browning realized that we were here to prepare ourselves to take part in a higher life.

Mr. Mowat then went on to consider one of Browning's poems in which the poet's philosophy of life was expressed. He pointed out from this poem that the human heart needs a revelation of God as the God of Love.

Browning taught that it is well that we are limited and in his philosophy evil was regarded as necessary for our development. Browning loved to take an utter failure and find something good in such a life.

PETERBOROUGH FAIR WILL CONDUCT SECOND ANNUAL FIELD CROP COMPETITION

A feature that should appeal strongly to the farmers of this district, will be the second annual field crop competition that will be held this year in connection with the Peterborough Industrial Fair. It has been decided by the directors that white oats shall be the competition crop and five prizes will be given of fifteen dollars, twelve, ten, eight and five.

A great advantage besides the possibility of securing the prizes offered by the fair society is that the competitors will have a chance of exhibiting their grain at Guelph and Ottawa. The way for doing this without expense is paid by the Government, which will supply bags and ship the grain free of charge. Further than this, the Government will sell the grain for the competitors or ship it back as may be desired.

The demand for good oats is a constant one and at the sales at both Guelph and Ottawa have never brought less than $1 per bushel. Some of the first prize oats sold at $2.50 per bushel and other prize winners received 50 per cent. above the market price and that without leaving their homes showing the great demand for grains free from weed seeds.

THE MAIN OBJECTS.

The main objects of the competition may be enumerated as follows:

1. To stimulate a greater interest in the growing of first class seed grain.

2. To encourage the practice of growing seed for next year's crop, in a field by itself using only the best obtainable seed, sowing it on the cleanest and best prepared land, allowing it to ripen, and threshing and storing it separately.

3. To obtain pure seed, ie, free from other varieties the presence of which can best be detected when the crop is growing.

4. To encourage the use of seed from heavy, yielding strains.

5. To promote the sowing of seed clean, vigorous crops of uniform stand with bright, stiff straw.

6. To encourage careful and intelligent farming and the production of seed free from weeds.

The competition will be carried on by the co-operation of the agricultural societies branch of the Ontario Department of Agriculture and the seed branch of the Dominion Department of Agriculture. It's great value can readily be appreciated by the progressive agriculturist. If the oats he raises are of a superior quality he will have an opportunity of establishing himself as a producer and will also be able to realize quite a handsome sum in prize money at no expense to himself or may have the oats sold as well at the highest figure. It is to be hoped that the farmers of this district will be encouraged by the prospects of the competition. It will also give them an opportunity of showing what quality of oats can be grown in this part of the province.

NATURE OF COMPETITION.

Competitions shall be limited to one crop, to be selected by the society, which should be the one of most importance to the farmers of this district. Entries for competition must consist of a field of not less than five acres, and where beans and potatoes are entered, the minimum plot not less than one acre.

Competition shall be limited to members of Agricultural Societies, and the fields entered must not be allowed to make entry in only one Society and but one entry can be made by each competitor.

THE BEST WISHES OF THE COURT

Congratulations Extended to Newly Weded Couple by Magistrate Dumble

"I wish them all happiness," was Magistrate Dumble's smiling comment, on being informed by Chief Ressel this morning, that the young man and woman arrested on the street last week and who were to have appeared before him this morning, had been married.

The ceremony of the tearing up of the informations then took place.

SECOND MISHAP THIS WINTER

On Saturday afternoon Mrs. Adam Hall, London street, had the misfortune to fall and break her arm. This is the second time this winter, and the accident occurred near the place of the former mishap, and the fracture was in the same place as in the former case.

DOG WAS NOT MAD---ONLY SOMEWHAT SORE

It is a quiet day now that hasn't its mad dog scare. A dog that looks crosswise these days is sufficient to start a panic, and an ordinary bark puts the canine under the ban of suspicion. Saturday night a street car hit a bull dog on George street, near Brock, and the animal was caused considerable pain. He started to yelp vigorously, and ran down the west side of the street. The crowd—it was about 9.40 o'clock—thought the dog was mad, and it parted in the dog's path as if a locomotive were approaching. One man thought the dog was going to attack him, and he launched forth his foot and caught the canine under the jaw. The jolt was too much for the animal and he ceased the noise-making procedure and slunk away in silence.

GETS AGENCY FOR HIGH TYPE CAR

Mr. C. Banks, Peterborough Sales Representative for E. F. M. and Flanders Autos

Mr. Charles Banks, proprietor of Banks' sporting goods store, George street, has been given the agency for Peterborough and district for the E. F. M. and Flanders automobiles. The firm is one of the most widely known on the continent with American and Canadian headquarters at Detroit and Walkerville.

Mr. Banks recently sold a handsome passenger touring car with top and wind shields to Mr. A. E. Coulthard, manager of the Colonial Weaving Co., and says from present indications he will have a particularly busy season in his auto sales department.

THE LAW WILL BE ENFORCED

Clause eight of the amended regulations dealing with moving picture machines reads as follows: All halls, passageways, stairways, or approaches shall be kept free and unobstructed by any campstool, chair, sofa or other obstruction, or by allowing the public to stand in the aisles. In connection with the above, it may be added that Chief Ressel intends to see that the proprietors of moving picture theatoriums in this city comply with the law, and his men will be on the look-out in the future.

GOOSE HAD GOLD IN ITS GIZZARD

And Man Who Bought it Wants to Know Where it Was Raised

Omaha, March 5.—For his Sunday dinner last month T. J. Flynn, the Omaha street commissioner, had taken goose. He bought the bird at a local commission house. It was alive, and taking it home, he killed and dressed it. Opening the gizzard, he found a number of nuggets of shot gold mixed with the sand and gravel. The face was heralded far and wide, and now not a day passes that Flynn does not receive from one to a dozen letters asking the former haunts of that Thanksgiving dinner goose. This is a question that he cannot answer.

Ever since Christmas Flynn has haunted the commissioner district, interviewing every proprietor, every clerk and every farmer bringing poultry to the city, trying to ascertain whence its craw. He goes upon the theory that could he find the farm on which it was bred there he would locate a gold mine. A dozen times in his quest he has sighted geese that looked like the one in which he made the rich find. He has bought many and washed their gizzards for pay dirt, but none has he found.

FROM ALL CLASSES.

The letters received by Flynn are from all classes of people, about the last one being from Prof. Rothermel, of Milwaukee. The professor writes that he would like to go into partnership in the locating business, telling Flynn that if he, Flynn, will find the locality whence came the goose, he, Rothermel, will do the rest in the way of making the tests, assays and prospecting for pay dirt. He says that he has heard of gold-bearing geese before and that when they have been traced to their original feeding grounds paying placer claims have been found in the vicinity.

Flynn has been given a hunch that the goose came from Sarpy, the county to the south of the one in which Omaha is located, and as soon as the weather warms up he will go down there on a combined gold and goose hunt, though he will not take any professors into the game. He takes the position that if just ordinary geese can go about in Nebraska picking up real gold there is no reason why a man of ordinary intelligence cannot find the location and strike it rich.

A man from New York has written Flynn that a number of times he has found gold by using a "divining rod," and offers to come west and bring the rod along if Flynn will pay travelling and other expenses.

EMILY RESIDENTS WANT A ROAD

Lindsay, March 3.—The people of East Emily, and in fact the whole township, are deeply interested in the efforts being made to get a road suitable for travelling to Emily creek, on the 11th concession. Already a number of meetings have been held, and the proposition is being enthusiastically discussed.

Rev. Father McGuire, the esteemed pastor of St. Luke's church, Downeyville, has been most active in the matter, having already visited Ottawa and received assurances that an engineer would be put on the work at an early date.

The people of Dunsford, realizing the importance of such a highway to that place, have taken the matter up, and will give the people every support.

At present the road is being travelled by a great many, as it is the main road to the farmers of that portion of the township to market their produce at Lindsay and Dunsford.

A meeting in the interests of the road was held at Councillor Herlihey's on Wednesday night.

The cost of the undertaking is estimated at about $6,000, which includes a bridge over Emily Creek.

COL. MATHESON PRESENTS THE ESTIMATES FOR 1911

Change in Financial Year Renders Necessary the Preparation of the Public Expenditure a Year Ahead of Time —Outlay Will be $7,623,745.66 Mostly Current Expenses.

Toronto, March 8.—Under the ... fiscal system, by which the financial year ends on Oct. 31, it is necessary, if there is to be any money to run the province between that date and the time of the opening of the House, for the Legislature to pass the estimates almost a year ahead of the time when they will need to be expended. In accordance with this necessity, Hon. Col. Matheson yesterday brought down the main estimates for the year ending Oct. 31, 1911, which were passed through committee of supply the same afternoon.

The estimates call for an expenditure of $7,623,745.66, of which $6,969,845.66 is current expenditure, $535,000 on capital account, and $118,000 for other purposes.

A grant of $50,000 is made towards a provincial museum.

For the new Government House $100,000 was voted; for the new wing of the Parliament Buildings $200,000, and for the new provincial prison $50,000.

Very few changes are noted in the salary items over the year 1910, as nearly all the increases were included in the supplementary estimates.

Under salaries and contingencies there are decreases from $138,935 to $137,900 in the Department of Lands, Forests and Mines, from $177,765 to $173,345; in the Provincial Secretary's Department and an increase in the Department of Agriculture from $61,610 to $62,010. The total salaries and contingencies is $615,585, as against $624,630 for 1910.

Under civil government there is a decrease from $624,630 to $615,585. In the Attorney-General's Department there is a decrease from $65,916 to $65,576. The Education Department stands at the same figure, $29,980. The Department of Lands, Forests and Mines shows a slight decrease, from $138,935 to $137,900. The Public Works Department gets $66,660, a nominal increase; the Treasury Department $33,804, a small decrease, and the Provincial Secretary's Department a decrease from $177,765 to $173,345. The appropriation for the Department of Agriculture is $62,010, a slight increase. The salary of the Deputy Minister is increased from $3,600 to $4,000. This is in addition to the $600 extra included in the supplementary estimates. Among the miscellaneous items the cost of the official gazette is brought down from $6,500 to $5,000.

The cost of "legislation" is decreased from $279,810 to $255,450. This includes a cut of $10,000 in the stationery account, and $15,000 instead of $20,000 for the library.

The Administration of Justice will cost $680,741.66, instead of $727,388.30 in 1910. The increase from $43,000 to $51,600 for salaries of the provincial police is accounted for by the fact that the former figure was only for ten months. For uniforms for the police there is a decrease from $2,850 to $1,500, and for traveling expenses an increase from $4,000 to $4,800. The administration of justice in districts is lowered from $168,676. The decreases are in the districts of Thunder Bay, Kenora, Nipissing, Parry Sound and Manitoulin. In the Niagara River district appropriations amounting to $18,118 are carried over.

The Education Department will require $1,734,187 against $1,750,526.88 for 1910. Items are a decrease from $20,000 to $10,000 for the text-book committee, and an increase from $10,500 to $12,000 to the education department of Queen's University.

Indications of impending prorogation were not wanting at yesterday's session of the Legislature. The Lieutenant-Governor attended and gave his assent to a number of bills, which have succeeded in escaping the carnage of the last week or two.

T. H. Lennox (North York) brought in a bill to amend the Ontario Railway Act by allowing municipalities to apply to the Ontario Railway and Municipal Board for a connection between two railways. At present only either company can apply. The immediate object of the bill is to permit the County of York to apply for a connection between the Metropolitan and the Toronto Railway Co.'s lines at North Toronto.

Dr. E. Jessop (Lincoln) introduced a bill to amend the Ontario Medical Act. As the law now stands, a medical practitioner who refuses or cannot pay an annuity fee to the College of Physicians and Surgeons has his name erased from the register, and if he continues to practice, can be summoned to the Police Court and fined from $25 to $100, or, in default, be sent to prison. Dr. Jessop's amendment provides that the name may not be erased, nor may the doctor be prosecuted, but the fee may be collected in the Division Court.

Bring Emigrants Under Arms.

London, March 8.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—Major A. G. Brodrick hopes to take his party of emigrating territorials to Canada under arms, get them jobs, and hand them over the Canadian militia, according to a Standard correspondent.

Schwab's Way.

Bethlehem, Pa., March 8.—President Charles M. Schwab of the Bethlehem Steel Co. has refused all the demands of the striking steel workers. He had his decision published in a special edition of a local newspaper.

NINE MORE MEMBERS SPEAK ON THE NAVAL QUESTION

End of the Long Discussion is Expected To-day, When Vote Will be Taken on the First Reading—John Herron of Alberta Says Government is Not Doing Anything to Stick by its Resolution of Last Session.

Ottawa, March 8.—The navy debate is still dragging out its weary length, but to-day will probably see the end of it, or at least the end of the first stage.

Arthur Lachance, Liberal member for Quebec Centre, resumed the debate yesterday. He supported the Government bill on the ground that it was necessary for Canada. The tendency of Empire was to break up, he said, and if the British Empire broke up, Canadians would need a navy to defend themselves. If the Empire did not fall, they would need the navy to help to maintain the supremacy of the British navy.

George H. Perley of Argenteuil, a Quebec Conservative, supported R. L. Borden's policy. The Government had put forward its scheme as a fulfilment of the wishes of the British Admiralty, yet there was nothing to show that the British Government even approved of the proposal.

John Herron, Alberta, said that last year he had not altogether approved of the resolutionfi which was unanimously passed by the House, but he was prepared to take his share of the responsibility for what had been done. He stood by it until the Canadian delegates had returned from the imperial conference, and had shown that they did not intend to stick to the resolution. Nor did the bill attempt in any way to carry out the terms of the resolution.

Mr Herron concluded by reading a letter from a former German naval officer, now domiciled in Canada and a naturalised British subject, which urged more strongly than anything said in the House, a direct contribution to the British navy.

Other speakers were: C. S. Crocket, York, N.B.; F. B. Lalor, Haldimand, and Peter Elson, Middlesex, who supported Mr. Borden's amendment, and D. H. McAllister, Kings and Albert, N.B.; J. P. Turcotte, Quebec County, and Dr. Molloy, Provencher, Man., who supported the bill.

In the House yesterday Clarence Jameson of Digby quoted a press despatch to the effect that Canadians at Sault Ste. Marie are paying a cent and a quarter per pound duty on fish which had been caught in Canadian waters.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier said that if the fish had been shipped into American territory and then shipped back, as appeared to be the case, the duty would certainly have to be paid. He promised to have an enquiry made.

Glen Campbell (Dauphin, Man.) asked the Minister of Agriculture if the feeding place between Ontario and Yorkton, which had been contaminated by the recent shipment of a horse suffering from glanders, had been disinfected.

Mr. Fisher replied he had called the attention of the veterinary director-general to it, and Mr. Campbell declared that he knew that nothing had yet been done.

COSTLY DAM AT ERINDALE WASHED AWAY BY FLOODS

Storm and Washout Do Heavy Damage Throughout the Province — Church at Niagara Falls is Struck by Lightning—Chatham is in the Grip of High Water.

Erindale, Ont., March 8.—With a crash and a roar that startled the entire neighborhood, the Erindale Power Co.'s dam broke away at 6.45 yesterday morning, and the pent-up body of water, half a mile square and 15 feet deep, in the pond above swept down, converting the stream into a raging torrent, and doing considerable damage to property between the dam and the lake.

The Italian and Macedonian workmen living in a shack below the dam had a close call. One Macedonian was rescued after he had twice disappeared from view in the ice and water.

Since the water commenced to rise in the pond, the contractors, the McKnight Construction Co., have maintained two watchmen at the dam and this precaution saved the lives of the workmen. When the first small portion of the concrete gave way, they rushed to the shack and gave the alarm. The men were at breakfast and had only time to get out and reach the bank before a piece of the dam 150 feet long broke loose. One Macedonian tried to go back to save his suit case, but before he emerged from the shack the water had swept it away. The man finally succeeded in grasping a pole, which was extended him, and was hauled to safety.

Flood Around Chatham.

Chatham, March 8.—The Louisville jam broke away at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon, and is now piling on the already formidable jam at Prairie Siding, below here. This jam extends all the way from Prairie Siding to Bagnall, and the water has been diverted so that it is now rushing in torrents four feet deep over the countryside.

Some houses in the lowlands are submerged to their second storeys, and it is feared that the G.T.R. and Wabash tracks will be washed away before morning.

Struck Church at Falls.

Niagara Falls, Ont., March 8.—The congregation of the Drummond Hill Presbyterian Church was thrown into a panic during the anniversary services Sunday evening, when the edifice was struck by a bolt of lightning. The electric flash first struck the carriage shed, and then ran into the church along the electric wires.

The interior of the building was plunged into darkness, and at the same moment a large section of the ceiling loosened by the shock fell down among the worshippers, causing great excitement.

Rev. Prof. Robertson of Knox College(Toronto, who was conducting the services, was slightly affected by the shock.

WAS NO COMBINE AMONG GROCERS

Toronto, March 8.—That there is no combine among the grocers, is the judgment of Chief Justice Falconbridge in the action tried about two years ago against the Grocers' Guild. The findings of his lordship are in brief as follows:

"The defendants have not, nor has any of them, intended to violate the law.

"Nor have they, nor has any of them, intended maliciously to injure any persons, firms or corporations, nor to compass any restraint of trade unconnected with their own business relations."

IMMIGRATION OFFICIALS ARE WITHDRAWN

Windsor, Ont., March 8.—As a result of complaints being lodged with the city council regarding the overbearing manner of the United States immigration officials stationed at the Windsor ferry dock, Commissioner Frick of Detroit, Sunday withdrew his men from Canadian soil. For the past few years these men have worked on the Canadian side of the river by courtesy of the Canadian Government.

TOO MUCH MONEY SPENT ON SPORT

Ottawa, March 8.—"While $5 is the amount the Ottawa Presbytery suggested each congregation should give towards supporting Jewish missions, men in Ottawa can give $5 for a single ticket to see a hockey match that lasts only a few hours," said Rev. J. H. W. Milne, in addressing his congregation at the Glebe Presbyterian Church here.

Queen's Professor to Go West.

Kingston, March 8.—Weyburn, Sask., High School held out good inducements to Prof. John Marshall, assistant professor of English at Queen's University, to assume the principalship, and it is understood he has accepted.

He once taught at St. Thomas High School.

MAY SHORTEN PARLIAMENT

London, March 8.—Premier Asquith announced in the House of Commons yesterday that the resolutions concerning the House of Lords, which are to be submitted by the Government on March 28, would include a proposal for shortening the duration of Parliament.

It is presumed that the recommendation will be for Parliamentary terms of five years instead of seven years as at present.

WILL ORGANIZE THE UNEMPLOYED

St. Louis, March 8.—James Eads How, the millionaire "hobo," who has organized the unemployed into the National Unemployed Association, has been requested to go to Philadelphia to take charge of the unemployed there and prevent their being used to prevent the general strike of labor unions.

LATE TICKS FROM WIRES

Major J. E. Hutchison of Ottawa may be commandant of this year's Bisley team.

The Pope yesterday received in farewell audience the Most Rev. Louis Nazaire Begin, Archbishop of Quebec.

WOULD LIMIT RACE MEETS

Jockey Club Men Would Like to See Some Reforms.

Ottawa, March 8.—The written argument by counsel for the Jockey Clubs was submitted yesterday to the members of the special Parliamentary committee that heard evidence for and against the Miller anti-betting bill. Fifty pages of a printed pamphlet are devoted to an analysis of the facts adduced by the enquiry, the report being signed by F. E. Meredith and Aime Geoffrion, for the Montreal Jockey Club; Leighton McCarthy, for the O.J.C.; J. L. Counsel, for the Hamilton J.C., and J. H. Moss, for the horse breeding interests.

They submit that the committee should report back to the House a bill based on the British statute of 1908, thus meeting the evasion of the law by the hand-book man, by the samples and direct method of prohibiting, frequenting and loitering in streets and public places, for the purpose of betting, in lieu of attempting to create an impossible distinction between the professional and the private bettor, and avoiding the possibility of the recurrence of the British Columbia situation of last summer by limiting the exemption in favor of betting on incorporated race tracks to meets not exceeding twelve days in length, held not oftener than twice a year.

In addition, provisions might be usefully added prohibiting advertising, publishing, etc., or supplying information regarding to pool selling or betting.

The opponents of the bill argued that if this course is adopted the most effective law to suppress the real and serious evils disclosed by the evidence, namely the practices of the hand-book men, the tout, the tipsters, and the advertising which is ancillary to their operations will be obtained, and at the same time the important breeding interests of the country will be undisturbed and the legitimate and popular sport of horse-racing will continue to be carried on under the best possible conditions.

Smith followed her and finally located her by telephone. She alarmed, went into another house. However, when Smith called at the house she had been in, Miss Miller appeared on the street.

Smith gave chase and succeeded in shooting her twice. Later Smith went to a colored club and attempted to shoot Johnson, the keeper. He was arrested shortly afterwards.

The girl will likely recover.

The Daily Review

TUESDAY, MARCH 8, 1910.

IMPORTANT LEGISLATION

Sir James Whitney's bill, introduced in the Legislature last week, to control street railways, is an important one, and is, as the Premier said, far-reaching. It is primarily intended to overcome conditions in Toronto, regarding which there have been loud complaints, but its provisions are not restricted to Toronto, and are applicable to all parts of the province. The measure provides that whenever the Ontario Railway and Municipal Board is of opinion after hearing upon its own motion, or after complaint that the "regulations, practices, equipment, appliances or service of any railway company, in respect to transportation of persons, freight or property are unjust, unreasonable, unsafe, improper, or inadequate," the Board shall have full power to remedy all defects. The sections of the bill, which it becomes law, will place the control of the railways under the Board, and injustice or inconvenience in the service may be remedied.

This is an adequate recognition, so far as these utilities are concerned, of the principle that the interests of the people should be paramount. This principle is a guiding one with the present Ontario Government, and when the machinery for giving it effect is not in existance it is created, as witness the formation of the Hydro-Electric Commission and the Ontario Railway and Municipal Board. New conditions give rise to the necessity for new laws to protect the interests of the people, and for new machinery to enforce them, and the Government has shown a readiness to understand the situation and fearlessness in applying the remedy. It is to be expected that such a course will meet with opposition, as it has, but the people recognize far once they have a Government that legislates for the general good, and they have upheld it, and will continue to do so.

THE LIBERAL SPLIT IN ALBERTA

The first reports of the Liberal split in Alberta indicated that it was on purely geographical lines, the Liberals of the Northern constituencies favoring the railway from Edmonton to the north country, and those south of Red Deer opposing it. Later developments show a more serious condition of things, although the attitude of members is influenced to some extent by the location of their constituencies. Very grave charges are made. It is alleged that while the railway company will receive twenty thousand dollars per mile from the government, the country through which it will run is so favorable to railway construction that it will cost only eight thousand dollars per mile to build it, so that the promoters will get the railway for nothing, and twelve thousand dollars per mile in addition. Moreover, it is said that the Government bonds issued to provide money for this purpose were disposed of in such a way as to give immense profits to a group of American financiers, and it is insinuated that the Liberal campaign fund got a large cash contribution from those interested. Whether these charges are true or false the Review is not in a position to state. They are made by Liberals against Liberals. There are only two Conservatives in the Alberta Legislature.

The situation is somewhat similar to that which arose in the Province of Quebec a few years ago, when, there being no Conservatives in the Legislature, the Liberals began to quarrel among themselves. Very serious charges were made against Premier Parent, but Sir Wilfrid Laurier saved the situation by appointing Mr. Parent to the position of chairman of the National Transcontinental Railway Construction Commission, which has charge of the Government section of the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway.

EDITORIAL NOTES

The snow is melting; the filth appears. Clean up. Refuse should be removed from the back yards and lanes of cities, towns and villages as well as in farm yards. As the warm weather comes heaps of filth will breed disease germs, and the quicker they are removed the better for the general health.

Liberal newspapers say that the Laurier Government will not make very great concessions to the United States tariff experts who are visiting Ottawa. Why should any concessions be made? The American tariff is much higher than the Canadian tariff, and Canadians send many millions of dollars to the United States for things that could be made just as well in Peterborough and other cities of Canada.

In the enquiry as to the truth of the Lumsden charges of over-classification on the Government section of the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway the Liberals insist upon choosing both the counsel for the defence and the counself for the prosecution. The Conservatives think they should be allowed to select the counsel for the prosecution, as the Government is interested in having the charges thrown out. The Conservative demand seems to be in the public interest.

Two young women in Toronto have been arrested on a charge of conducting an usury office. They are alleged to have collected interest at the rate of two hundred per cent. on small amounts. They said they were employed by a millionaire living in New York. No wonder he is a millionaire if he has agents in a number of different cities collecting interest from small borrowers at the rate of two hundred per cent. Twenty-five thousand dollars lent out in small amounts at $200 per cent. interest would yield as large an income as one million dollars lent out at five per cent interest.

Eels' Long Journeys.

Old Maoris dwelling on the west coast of the North Island of New Zealand state that when the eels go toward the sea in a large body they are led by two individuals of an enormous size. A resident at Lewin told Mr. Bruce that he once saw one of these migrations, with two large eels in the van. Overland journeys at night, which are characteristic of some eels, have been noted in New Zealand. Mr. Bruce has been told by some very old Maori friends that they have known eels to undertake fairly long journeys by night. On one occasion the Maoris had camped for the night on a spur that is the watershed between the Wanganui and Mangawhero rivers. About midnight their attention was arrested by their dog, which was much excited and was barking furiously. When they went out to ascertain the cause of the disturbance they found that the dog was following up an enormous eel, which was on one of its land journeys.

Robin and Wren.

The Christmas traditions associated with the wren and robin are recalled by the greeting card issued this season by the Royal Society for the Protection of Birds. As the mythical mate of the robin, "Jenny Wren" has been invested with some sanctity attaching to the red breast—"Robin Red and Jenny Wren, God Almighty's cock and hen," as the old rhyme goes. On the other hand, it has been the custom on some obscure pretext, to hunt the wren on St. Stephen's day, so that Blake's malediction on all who harm this useful little bird is seasonably quoted.

The Man From Brodney's

By GEORGE BARR M'CUTCHEON

Copyright, 1908, by Dodd, Mead & Co.

But these fears were quickly dissipated. The sufferers soon began to mend. By nightfall they were fairly well recovered. The mysterious seizure however, was unexplained. Chase alone divined the cause. Poison! He was sure of it! But who the poisoner?

All previous perils and all that the future seemed to promise were forgotten in the startling discovery that came with the fall of night.

Lady Deppingham and Robert Browne were missing! They had disappeared as if swallowed by the earth itself! Neemah, the wife of Selim, was the last of those in the chateau to see the heirs. They crossed the swift torrent by the narrow bridge at the base of the cliff and stopped below the mouth of the cavern which blew its cool breath out upon the hanging garden. Later on she saw them climb the stanch ladder and stand in the black opening, apparently enjoying the cooling wind that came from the damp bowels of the mountain. Her attention was called elsewhere, and that was the last glimpse she had of the two people about whom centered the struggle for untold riches.

"Chase, they are lost in there!" groaned Deppingham, numb with apprehension. He was trembling like a leaf.

"There's just one thing to do," said Chase. "We've got to explore that cavern to the end. They may have lost their bearings and strayed off into one of the lateral passages."

"I—I can't bear the thought of her wandering about in that horrible place," Deppingham cried as he started resolutely toward the ladder.

"She'll come out of it all right," said Chase, a sudden compassion in his eyes.

Drusilla Browne was standing near by, cold and silent with dread, a set expression in her eyes. Her lips moved slowly, and Deppingham heard the bitter words: "You will find them, Lord Deppingham. You will find them!"

He stopped and passed his hand over his eyes. Then, without a word, he snatched a rifle from the hands of one of the patrol and led the way up the ladder. Chase turned to the white faced princess and said between his teeth:

"If Skaggs and Wyckholme had been in the employ of the devil himself they could not have foreseen the result of their infernal plotting. I am afraid, —mortally afraid!"

"Take care of him, Hollingsworth," she whispered shuddering.

"Goodby, Genevra, my princess," said Chase softly and then was off with Britt and Selim. As he passed Drusilla he seized her hand and paused long enough to say:

"It's all right, little woman, take my word for it. If I were you, I'd cry. You'll see things differently through your tears."

The four men, with their lights, vanished from sight a few moments later. Chase grasped Deppingham's arm and held him back, gravely suggesting that Selim should lead the way.

They were to learn the truth almost before they had fairly begun their investigations.

The heirs already were in the hands of their enemies, the islanders!

The eager searchers, shouting as they went, had come to what was known as the "cathedral." This was a wide, lofty chamber, hung with dripping stalactites, far below the level at which they began the descent. The floor was almost as flat and even as that of a modern dwelling. Here the cavern branched off in three or four directions, like the tentacles of a monster devilfish, the narrow passages leading no one knew whither in that tomblike mountain.

"Von Bill's powder kegs did all this."

Selim uttered the first shout of surprise and consternation. An instant later they were standing at the edge of a vast hole in the floor—newly and pregnant with disaster.

A current of air swept up into their faces. The soft, loose earth about the rent in the floor was covered with the prints of naked feet; the bottom of the hole was packed down in places by a multitude of tracks. Chase's bewildered eyes were the first to discover the presence of loose, scattered masonry in the pile below, and the truth dawned upon him sharply. He gave a loud exclamation and then dropped lightly into the shallow hole.

"I've got it!" he shouted, stooping to peer intently ahead. "Von Bill's powder kegs did all this. The secret passage runs along here. One of the discharges blew this hole through the roof of the passage. Here are the walls of the passage. By heaven, the way is open to the sea!"

"My God, Chase!" cried Deppingham, staggering toward the opening. "These footprints are— They've murdered her! They've come in here and surprised"—

"Be easy, old man! We need to be cool now. It's all as plain as day to me. Rasula and his men were exploring the passage after the discovery of the treasure chests. They came upon this new made hole and then crawled into the cavern. They surprised Browne and— Yes, here are the prints of a woman's shoe—and a man's too. They are gone. God help 'em!"

Signs of a fierce struggle were found near the entrance to the cathedral. Bobby Browne had made a gallant fight. Blood stains marked the smooth floor and walls, and there was evidence that a body had been dragged across the chamber.

Britt put his hand over his eyes and shuddered. "They've settled this contest, Chase, forever!" he groaned.

CHAPTER XXVII.

THE PURSUIT.

DEPPINGHAM sprang to his feet with a fierce oath on his lips. His usually lusterless eyes were gleaming with something more than despair. There was the wild light of unmistakable relief in them. It was as if a horrid doubt had been scaled from the soul of Lady Deppingham's husband.

"We must follow!" shouted his lordship, preparing to lower himself into the jagged opening. "We may be in time!"

"Stop, Deppingham!" cried Chase, leaping to his side. "Don't rush blindly into a trap like that. They've got an hour or more start of us. Nothing will be accomplished by rushing into an ambush. They'd kill us like rats. Rasula is a sagacious scoundrel. He'll not take the entire responsibility. There will be a council of all the headmen. It will be of no advantage to them to kill the heirs unless they are sure that we won't live to tell the tale. They will go slow now that they have the chief obstacles to victory in their hands."

"If they will give her up to me I will guarantee that Lady Agnes shall relinquish all claim to the estate," announced the harassed husband.

"They won't do that, old man. Promises won't tempt them," protested Chase. "We've got to do what we can to rescue them. I'm with you, gentlemen, in the undertaking—first, for humanity's sake; second, because I am your friend; last, because I don't want my clients to lose all chance of winning out in this controversy by acting like confounded asses. It isn't what Sir John expects of me."

In the meantime the anxious coterie in the chateau were waiting eagerly for the return of the searchers. Drusilla made one remark, half unconsciously, no doubt, that rasped in the ears of the princess for days. It was the cold, bitter, resigned epitome of the young wife's thoughts:

"Robert has loved her for months." That was all.

Mr. and Mrs. Saunders, thankful that something had happened to divert attention from their own conspicuous plight, were discoursing freely in the center of a group composed of the four Englishmen from the bank.

"It's a plain out and out elopement," said Mrs. Saunders, fanning herself vigorously.

"But, my dear," expostulated her husband, blushing vividly over the first public use of the appellation, "where the devil could they elope to?"

"I don't know, Tommy, but elopers never take that into consideration. Do they, Mr. Bowles?"

At last the four men appeared in the mouth of the cavern. The watchers below fell into chilled silence when they discovered that the missing ones were not with them. Stupefied with apprehension, they watched the men descend the ladder and cross the bridge.

"They are dead," fell from Drusilla Browne's lips. She swayed for an instant and then sank to the ground unconscious.

* * * * * * *

In the conference which followed the return of the searchers it was settled that three of the original party should undertake the further prosecution of the hunt for the two heirs. Lord Deppingham found ready volunteers in Chase and the faithful Selim. They prepared to go out in the hills before the night was an hour older. Selim convinced Chase that the wily Rasula would carry his captives to the mines, where he was in full power.

"You're right, Selim. If he's tried that game we'll beat him at it. Ten to one if he hasn't already chucked them into the sea they're now confined in one of the mills over there."

They were ready to start in a very short time. Selim carried a quantity of food and a small supply of brandy. Each was heavily armed and prepared for a stiff battle with the abductors.

"We seem constantly to be saying goodby to each other." Thus spoke the princess to Chase as he stood at the top of the steps waiting for Selim. The darkness hid the wan, despairing smile that gave the lie to her sprightly words.

"And I'm always doing the unexpected thing—coming back. This time I may vary the monotony by failing to return."

"I should think you could vary it more pleasantly by not going away," she said. "You will be careful?"

"The danger is here, not out there," he said meaningly.

"You mean me? But, like all danger, I soon shall pass. In a few days I shall say goodby forever and sail away."

"How much better it would be for you if this were the last goodby and I should not come back!"

"For me?"

"Yes. You could marry the prince without having me on your conscience forevermore."

"Mr. Chase!"

"It's easier to forget the dead than the living, they say."

"Don't be too sure of that."

"Ah, there's Selim! Goodby! We'll have good news for you all, I hope, before long. Keep your eyes on Neemah. She and Selim have arranged a set of signals. Don't lie awake all night, and don't pray for me," he scoffed, in reckless mood.

The three men stole out through the small gate in the upper end of the park. Selim at once took the lead. They crept off into the black forest, keeping clear of the mountain path until they were far from the walls.

The starlight filtered down through the leafy canopy above the road, increasing rather than decreasing the density of the shadows through which they sped. None but strong, determined, inspired men could have followed the pace set by the lithe, sure-footed Selim.

Mile after mile fell behind them with no relaxation of energy or purpose. They were coming to the ridge road, and Selim fell back to explain the need for caution. This was, the toad, in all likelihood, he explained, that the abductors would have used in their flight from the cavern. Two miles farther south it joined the wide highway that ran from Ararat to the mines.

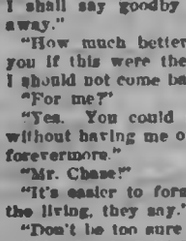
OPERATION HER ONLY CHANCE

Was Cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound



Lindsay, Ont.—"I think it is no more than right for me to thank Mrs. Pinkham for what her kind advice and Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me. When I wrote to her some time ago I was a very sick woman, suffering from female troubles. I had inflammation of the female organs, and could not stand or walk any distance. At last I was confined to my bed, and the doctor said I would have to go through an operation, but this I refused to do. A friend advised Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and now, after using three bottles of it, I feel like a new woman. I most heartily recommend this medicine to all women who suffer with female troubles. I have also taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Liver Pills and think they are fine."—Mrs. FRANK EMSLEY, Lindsay, Ontario.

We cannot understand why women will take chances with an operation or drag out a sickly half-hearted existence, missing three-fourths of the joy of living, without first trying Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

For thirty years it has been the standard remedy for female ills, and has cured thousands of women who have been troubled with such ailments as displacements, inflammation, ulceration, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, indigestion, and nervous prostration.

Collapsed on Scaffold.

The Calgary Herald's Fort Saskatchewan correspondent, telling of the hanging of Henry Zbibley, an Austrian, aged 70, for the murder of his wife, recently, says:

Zbibley, old and bent, and supported by two constables of the mounted police, tottered the few steps from his cell in the guard room here to the scaffold in the police carpenter's shop.

He fainted when the black cap was placed over his head and the noose adjusted. He was barely conscious when the Greek priest muttered the last few words of prayer. As the executioner was about to spring the trap, the old man fainted dead away in the arms of the two constables who were supporting him. A few drops of whisky were then poured down the doomed man's throat, and he partly revived. Constables supported him in an upright position over the trap while the priest said the last words and the hangman dropped the lever that thrust the feeble old man into eternity. His neck was broken by the fall, and he was dead within three minutes after the drop.

Alas, Poor Frankie!

Principal Hutton, of Toronto University, is a man of very quiet and reserved manners; but that he is rather a dangerous person to try to take a fall out of, is evidenced by a story going the rounds just now.

It seems that just before Principal Hutton left for Europe a few months ago, he was reading a roll-call at the University. His accent and manner are decidedly English, and the evil genius of one of the "freshies" suggested to him to make game of it. Therefore, when his name was called, he rose in his place, and with a quadruple-plate English accent answered:

"Heah!"

There was a general snicker, but it rose into a roar when Principal Hutton, gazing intently at the ingenious youth, inquired blandly: "Wheah?"

Dog By-law Going to be Amended — What Will Happen?

There are forebodings in the air regarding the fate of the dogs of Peterborough. What is going to happen is not known yet, but there is going to be something doing. Ald. Duffus, chairman of the Legal Committee, stated last night that the committee proposed amending the by-law in a manner that would protect the residents of Peterborough against what is commonly described as the "dog nuisance." The committee will have a report to make on this matter at the next meeting of the Council.

THREATENS TO TRIM CRITIC

Laurence Irving Gets Real Huffed over Alan Dale's Ridicule

Lawrence Irving, who recently appeared in Peterborough, does not get along real affectionately with his critics anywhere. In New York, after reading some things that Alan Dale said about his acting and his play, he said some things to the audience about Alan Dale. He described him as a counterfeit Bernard Shaw and a cheap highly-paid vituperator. "I have been bothered by Alan Dale," said Mr. Irving, "for the last 10 years, and when I first came to this country with my father he ignored my play, and asserted that my legs were too thin."

"He is a clumsy, blatant parodist," continued Mr. Irving, "who masquerades in his protective pince-nez as a skilled critic. If it were not for his glasses I might resent his insults physically. (Cries of 'Make him take them off.) If he did so I might feel pity for his face and walk away from him." Laughter was mingled with the applause which greeted his sally.

In his notice of "The Affinity" Alan Dale said that Mr. Irving suggested a Red Indian rather than a Frenchman, and Miss Hackney the detectable cheapness of Upper Tooting or Hornsey-rise. "Mr. Irving looked as immobile as a wooden Indian sign outside a tobacco shop. He was grotesque. We could imagine him drinking weak lemonade at a school picnic, while Miss Hackney's idea of a cute little French girl was quite ludicious. She has as much whimsicality as an oyster. One could only imagine her selling ribbons in a department store."

GREAT PIECE OF STAGE MECHANISM

How Realistic Effects are Produced in the Chariot Race in "Ben-Hur"

Much interest has been manifested concerning the mechanical methods of the thrilling chariot race employed in Klaw & Erlanger's new and greater production of General Wallace's famous religious spectacle, "Ben-Hur," which is to be presented at the Princess Theatre, Toronto, week of March 14th.

In this great atomic contest the spectator sees eight horses galloping at break-neck speed and straining every muscle to gain the advantage in the race within the amphitheatre. Behind each quartet of horses is a Roman chariot. The wheels revolve rapidly; the chariots lurch and sway and the flaming beribboned garments of the drivers flutter behind them, adding intensity to the realism of the scene. The illusion is still further increased as the interior wall of the amphitheatre moves along and the dust flies in blinding clouds beneath the crushing wheels of the chariots. The clatter of the rushing hoofs of the horses and the rumble of the chariots are distinctly heard.

Elaborate mechanism and applications of electricity produce this great effect, the mechanism of two great cradles, twenty feet in length and fourteen feet wide, and which are movable back and forth on railways, is supported by a bridge structure capable of holding twenty tons. The tops of the cradles are two inches above the level of the stage. Each cradle bears the four horses and the chariots of each contestant. On each cradle there are four runways and treadmills of hickory slats two inches wide and covered with rubber; they are twelve feet long and two and a half feet wide. On each of these treadmills a horse is secured by steel cable traces which hold him in place and prevent him from moving forward off the runways. As each horse gallops, the treadmill revolves under his feet, thereby eliminating the forward pressure created by the impact of his hoofs, which would force him ahead on an immovable surface. By this mechanical arrangement it is possible for the horses actually to gallop with all their speed within the space of their own length. It is considered the most realistic effect ever seen upon the stage.

When "Ben-Hur" was presented in London at the Drury Lane Theatre, Edward VII. witnessed it twice and then commanded a royal box to be built in the centre of the pit of the theatre, so that he could more thoroughly enjoy the great race scene.

CHARLEY GRAPEWIN AT HIS BEST

One of the Smoothest and Most Gifted Comedians in the Happiest Play of His Career

Charley Grapewin, the unusual comedian who will appear here at "The Grand" next Thursday, March 10th, in a new play, "Above the Limit," disproves in it the old adage that it takes three generations to make a gentleman, for in the short period of five years he develops the dirty, grimy slangy, though happy, Jimmy Hicks into as polished a gentleman as one could wish for. This does not mean that he changes the clothes of Jimmy Hicks for Mr. Hicks, but he improves himself mentally as well. This transition is the theme of a delightful little comedy, filled with heart interest as well as innumerable funny situations. In the character of Jimmy Hicks, Mr. Grapewin's portrayal of an uncouth disciple of acting, who realizes that his ignorance is the one barrier which would prevent his marriage to the girl he loves, and who, by sheer determination, educates himself, is one of the best examples of acting that has been seen on the stage. This is the best verdict of critics who have seen Mr. Grapewin's performance in his new play. The forthcoming engagement will be the only one in this section of the country in some time, as the entire company has been booked to appear on Broadway, New York, for an indefinite period this coming season.

The company supporting Mr. Grapewin this season is the strongest he has ever had. His leading lady is Miss Anna Chance, one of the handsomest and cleverest commediennes on the stage. The production is superbly mounted and the three acts are masterpieces of stage craft.

One of the big scenes shows the lawn of a magnificent estate on the Hudson River. During the action of the play, large steamboats are seen passing up and down the river by night, and there is a constant playing of searchlights to from the boats on a beautiful night scene. This is one of the many elaborate scenic effects in "Above the Limit."

"Molly May" Co. Arrive

A special train of two baggage cars and one coach arrived at the Grand Trunk station at 1.15 this afternoon bearing the scenery and stage crew for the production of the comic opera "Molly May," which will be presented at the Grand to-night. The company will not arrive until 5.30 this evening, coming from Kingston where they played last night, via Port Hope. It takes six hours to get the scenery for this massive production in position, and the stage crew of the local theatre, with the assistance of the big staff carried by the company, are busy with this work this afternoon.

A joint meeting of the Board of Managers and Session of St. Paul's church, was held last night, when the matter of building a new parsonage was taken up.

PETERBORO' GARRISON

The attention of the members of the Garrison is called to the fact that the large recreation room in the Armouries is now completely furnished and supplied with illustrated papers, magazines and games, and the officers desire that the men should take the advantage of the splendid rooms which are open every evening.

An Evening With the Puritans

The social evening in Murray street church school room on Friday evening promises to be a most delightful and educative occasion. Addresses on the Puritans and their life by such men as Judge Huycke, F. D. Kerr and Mr. L. W. Petit, cannot fail to be most helpful to all who attend. The entire programme will be given while at the tables and the entire surroundings will be in keeping with those days made historical by the life and work of such men as John Smith, Roger Williams, Henry W. Longfellow and a host of others.

Doubtless the capacity of the lecture room will be taxed to accommodate those who will wish to be present.

ABOUT THE WILLIAM HAMILTON CO. BY-LAW

The by-law to grant a fixed assessment of $10,000 for ten years to the William Hamilton Company, which will have to be voted on by the ratepayers, cannot go before the people till the Ontario Legislature has passed the city's bill. It has gone through the Private Bills Committee, but must be confirmed by the Legislature before becoming law. The Legislature will adjourn in about three weeks, it is expected, so there is a possibility that the Hamilton Company by-law may be voted on at the same time as the by-law to raise $70,000 to develop power at the waterworks dam—April 19th.

The Rev. E. A. Pearson gave an interesting lecture on his trip through Italy, to a large number of All Saint's Young People last night. He illustrated his lecture by a large number of beautiful slides thrown on the screne by Mr. H. O. Fisk. His audience accompanied him through Pisa, Milan, Florence, Venice and Rome, seeing many points of ancient historical interest and much of the glory of ecclestical history, which centres so largely in Italy.

Hearty votes of thanks were given Mr. Pearson and Mr. Fisk.

Behind the Times

With a 1908 callendar on the wall and the clock stopped with the hands pointing 11.40, the City Council Chamber did not have a very progressive environment, last night. Ald. RATEPAYERS WILL VOTE ON BY-LAW APRIL 19TH

Measure to Raise $70,000 to Develop Power at New Waterworks Dam to be Submitted to the People — Polls Will Close at Five O'Clock—City Council Dealt With Question.

The by-law to raise $70,000 to develop the surplus power at the new waterworks dam will be voted on by the ratepayers on Tuesday, April 19. The polls will be open from nine o'clock in the morning till five o'clock in the afternoon. This decision was reached at the meeting of the City Council last night, when the following report from the committee of the whole Council was adopted:

Gentlemen—Your committee of the whole Council beg leave to report as follows:

1. That your committee held a meeting with the Peterborough Water Commissioners, who had received reports from Wm. Kennedy, jr., of Montreal, in regard to the electric power development at the waterworks dam and street lighting, in which Mr. Kennedy estimated the cost of a building and machinery to generate electrical power at $67,100, and the cost of a street lighting plant, not including poles, at $14,100. After considering the reports and other information received from the commissioners we gave instructions that a by-law be prepared to provide for borrowing $70,000 to develop electric power at the waterworks dam the debentures to be for twenty years and to bear 4 1-4 per cent interest, with a sinking fund based on 4 per cent.

We also gave instructions to have a by-law prepared to appoint W. H. Moore, arbitrator on behalf of the city to ascertain the amount payable by the city to the county for administration of justice, etc.

3. We further instructed the City Solicitor to prepare an agreement with the Peterborough Hydraulic Power Company regarding the sale of Quaker street, and the diversion of Hunter street, and a by-law to carry the matter out.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

ALD. TURNER,
Chairman.

There was considerable discussion as to what date to have the vote on the by-law. April 5th was first proposed and then Ald. Morgan proposed May 20th. Ald. Turner moved that it be April 19th. Ald. Morgan seconded the motion and it carried.

Ald. Morgan moved that the polls be kept open till seven o'clock in the evening and Ald. Duncan seconded the resolution. The motion was lost, 5—7, and the polls will close at five o'clock.

The Mayor said it would take four months to build the power house and instal the machinery.

D. BELLEGHEM TO CLAIM REMUNERATION FOR AMBULANCE UP TO FIRST OF NOVEMBER

The Dan Spence ambulance question appears to have been settled at last although there may be a law suit before the matter is allowed to drop. At the meeting of the City Council last night the Property Committee brought in a report containing the following clause:

"That the date for the beginning of the agreement with A. Comstock for the care and service of the Dan Spence ambulance be April 1st next, and that it be given to D. Belleghem on April 1st, 1911."

A letter was read from Hall, Medd and Davidson, acting for D. Belleghem to the effect that the contract Mr. Belleghem had with the city regarding the Dan Spence ambulance ran from year to year and could only be terminated by six months' notice. As such notice had not been given they intended asking for the full amount of Mr. Belleghem's remuneration up to the first of November.

Ald. Duncan said he had secured the opinion of the city solicitor which was to the effect that the agreement with Mr. Belleghem could be terminated any time.

Ald. Gillespie thought it might be well to send the matter back to the Property Committee.

There was no motion to send the question back to the Property Committee, and on motion the letter of Hall Medd and Davidson was received.

Ald. Turner moved that clause one of the Property Committee be amended by striking out the words after "April 1st next." He did not think it would be well to tie the hands of next year's Council in regard to this matter.

Ald. Duffus seconded Ald. Turner's motion.

Ald. Duncan and the Mayor said the Property Committee had considered the matter carefully and had decided that it would be best to have the ambulance alternate between Messrs. Belleghem and Comstock.

Ald. Hicks said the ambulance should go to the man who would give the best service for the money.

The amendment carried by a vote of six to five.

VARIETY OF MATTERS DEALT WITH BY CITY COUNCIL

Finance Committee Turns Down Dr. Young's Bill for $150.00—Information Given About Extension of Aylmer Street—A Busy Two-Hour Session

The city council had a busy two hour session last night, a large amount of business being transacted. Mayor Morrow presided and all the aldermen were present, except Ald. Graham.

W. Wrigley, secretary of the Retail Hardware and Stove Dealers' Association, wrote the Mayor, asking what inducements the city council would offer in order that the annual convention of the Association might be held in Peterborough next year. About 600 hardware merchants, jobbers and manufacturers attended the recent convention in London. For the convention the association would require a meeting hall capable of seating 250 to 300 persons, and armories or exhibition hall on which a trade exhibition could be held. The exhibition at London required over 5,000 square feet, and a larger place will be required next year—

Referred to Legal and Reception Committee.

An invitation to attend the second annual convention and exhibition of the Canadian Cement and Concrete Association, to be held in London on March 29, 30 and 13, and April 1, was received.—Referred to the Board of Works.

S. Edwards presented a bill for $22 for damage done a house on Loudon street by sewer trouble.—Referred to Board of Works.

Frederick Wright, representing the "Canadian Municipal Journal," and "Canadian Life and Resources," made a proposition to the city regarding publicity.—Referred to Manufacturers' Committee.

The following statement of tax roll was submitted by Tax Collector Green;—

Total amount on roll, 1909	$ 182,029.12
By total amount deposited	172,820.48
Balance	$ 9,726.64
Less 20 per cent. discount on 1st payment	2,652.59
Balance	$ 7,074.05
Amount taken in Feb. and deposited	$ 3,156.90

The formal notice regarding the closing of Quaker street was read and there were no objections. The by-law authorizing the closing of the street was passed later in the evening.

EXTENSION OF AYLMER STREET

A deputation asked about the extension of Aylmer street south, and the Mayor stated that all was ready to proceed with the extension as soon as the weather permitted. Nothing could be done during the winter.

Mr. Macdonald complained about the condition of Albert street. There were 15 inches of water on the street and it was 4 inches deep on the sidewalk on the north side.

Mr. Skuce also lodged a similar complaint. The water stayed on the street nearly all summer.

Ald Hicks stated that the city engineer had been asked to report on all places of the kind referred to by the deputation.

Ald. Duffus moved, seconded by Ald. Duncan, that the street commissioner report on all places in the city where there is water on the streets to excess. This was carried.

Ald Hicks presented the report of the Board of Works, Ald. Bradburn the Finance report, Ald. Duncan the Property Committee report, and Ald. Turner the report of the Committee of the Whole Council.

On motion of Ald. Bradburn and Ald. Duncan, clause 8 of the report of the Property Committee was referred back to the committee. The clause was as follows:—

"That the request of F. J. Turner & Sons to be permitted to place a sign on the island north of the Canadian Pacific Railway bridge be granted provided they at the same time put up and sustain a sign alongside of it, advertising the city, and agree to remove the sign at the time when notified by the Council to do so."

Ald. Turner said if the firm spent $60 or $100 on a sign they would like to have the privilege of having it up for a definite period.

Ald. Duncan said the suggestion was reasonable, but the Property Committee would like to see a sketch of the proposed sign before doing anything definite. Ald. Turner said he would be pleased to take the matter up with the committee.

Ald Batten suggested that the Ontario Government be asked to make this year's grant to the Protstant Home in view of the fact that the Council was dealing with the question of building a new home. The Mayor stated that the matter would be looked into.

The city has been notified that the Government grant has been cut off on account of the present building being unsuitable.

Ald Buller drew attention to the necessity of better drainage on Sherbrooke and Park streets. The Board of Works will look into the matter.

Ald. Bradburn asked about a new sidewalk on the east side of Louis street. He was informed that it will be built this season.

FINANCE COMMITTEE

Ald. Bradburn, chairman, presented the following report from the Finance Committee, which was adopted.—

Your Finance Committee beg leave to report and recommend as follows:

1. That the city treasurer write the Peterborough Radial Railway Company that if the arrears of taxes are not paid the land will be sold in due course of law.

2. That $1,000 be paid to the Central Charity Board to cover their overdraft, and that they be paid their $2,800 for current expenses in monthly instalments

3. That no action be taken on the account of Dr. Young for $400 for services as medical health officer during the time of the smallpox epidemic.

4. That a grant of $150 be made to the Salvation Army Band on the same terms as last year.

5. R23 THE PRO

BASHFUL STANLEY.

His Response to a Speech of Eulogy at a Banquet.

William H. Rideing tells in McClure's Magazine of a dinner of the Papyrus club in Boston at which Henry M. Stanley, the explorer, was the guest of honor:

"Whether he (Stanley) sat or stood, he fidgeted and answered in monosyllables—not because he was unamiable or unappreciative, but because he—this man of iron, God's instrument, whose word in the field brooked no contradiction or evasion, he who defied obstacles and danger and pierced the heart of darkness—was bashful even in the company of fellow craftsmen.

"His embarrassment grew when after dinner the chairman eulogised him to the audience. He squirmed and averted his face as cheer after cheer confirmed the speaker's rhetorical ebullience of praise. 'Gentlemen, I introduce to you Mr. Stanley, who,' etc. The hero stood up slowly, painfully, reluctantly, and, with a gesture of deprecation, fumbled in first one and then another of his pockets without finding what he sought.

"It was supposed that he was looking for his notes, and more applause took the edge off the delay. His mouth twitched without speech for another awkward minute before, with a more erect bearing, he produced the object of his search and put it on his head. It was not paper, but a rag of a cap, and with that on he faced the company as one who by the act had done all that could be expected of him and made further acknowledgment of the honors he had received superfluous. It was a cap that Livingstone had worn and that Livingstone had given him."

Praises French Mothers.

The Duchess de Chaulnes, who is visiting in this country with her mother, says that one thing she has learned during her residence in France is that young society women in that country take better care of the children than American mothers do. She says that when the child is as young as three years old it is allowed to sit at the luncheon table with its mother and members of the family and there learns table manners and the art of table talk in such a way that it is never awkward or at a loss in after years. She intends, she says, to bring up her boy in that way and scores those mothers who go out with their pug dogs while time serving persons are taking care of their children.

Wonderful Cactuses.

The largest cactuses in the world are those to be found in parts of Mexico. The curious bristling plants common in greenhouses and even in botanical collections give but a poor idea of the size and beauty of this variety. It is common, for example, to find a single plant growing to a height of eight or ten feet which will weigh several hundred pounds. The cactuses grow in a bewildering variety of forms and colors. Their blossoms are correspondingly large and varied.

A Cynical Citizen.

"Is your town improving?"

"Yep," answered Broncho Bob. "The figures show that the tone of Crimson Gulch is improving. The population has decreased 30 per cent in the last year, and I don't know of anybody whose absence wouldn't be a benefit."

A bond of union is soon formed between brethren in misfortune.—La Sagi.

HOW LONG IS A DAY?

Some of the World's Inhabitants Eat 315 Meals During One.

If we should meet a man and he should casually remark that he ate 315 meals yesterday we would doubtless be somewhat astonished at his appetite. Likewise we would feel sorry for the man who said that, having foolishly eaten three eggs with bacon for breakfast, he had no appetite for his Christmas dinner. But maybe the first man was from Spitzbergen, where they have a day three and a half months in length, whereas the poor chap who missed the Christmas feast lived in Finland, at Torena, where Christmas day is something less than three hours long.

On the whole, it would be rather wise if one should undertake to do certain work, to receive so much per day in payment, to understand just where the work is to be done, that one might have to labor eighteen and a half hours at Stockholm, if it happened to be the longest day of the year, or all the time from May 21 to July 22 if at Wardbury, in Norway. In St. Petersburg the longest day is nineteen hours and the shortest five hours. At Torena, Finland, there is a twenty-two hour day. At London and Bremen the longest day is sixteen and a half hours, while at Hamburg and Dantzig there are seventeen hours in the longest day. In Washington the longest day is about fifteen hours.—Exchange.

HIS CONUNDRUM.

Propounded in Prose, It Was Answered in Rhyme.

In the olden time before the war, the days so famous for generous hospitality in the south, a brilliant party was assembled at dinner in a beautiful country homestead. Across the table wit flashed back and forth, and the guests began to vie with one another in proposing conundrums.

Mr. Alexander H. Stephens offered one which puzzled the whole company, "What is it that we eat at breakfast and drink at dinner?"

For some time no answer came, and the bright eyes of the southern orator began to sparkle with triumph, when Colonel Johnson, taking up the "Commonplace Book" of the hostess, which lay conveniently by, wrote impromptu upon the flyleaf the following answer:

What is eaten for breakfast and drunken for dinner?
Is it coffee or eggs or butter or meats?
Sure double the stomach of obdurate sinner
Who eats what he drinks and drinks what he eats.

But let us consider. 'Tis surely not butter
Nor coffee nor meats, whether broiled or roast,
Nor boiled eggs nor poached nor fried in a batter.
It must, then, be bread. Ah, yes—when 'tis toast!

Blackburn's Eloquence.

The story is told of Senator Proctor of Vermont in reminiscences by Vice President Stevenson that when invited to go out of the senate chamber just before the day's session began he replied: "Excuse me. I am paired with Blackburn on prayers." When the Rev. Dr. Butler retired from the chaplaincy of the senate Blackburn's speech surpassed all others for ardor and felicity of expression. "The counterpart of the scene that followed his closing words had never been witnessed in legislative assembly. All were in tears. It was even said that venerable senators who had never shed a tear since the ratification of the treaty of Ghent actually sobbed aloud and refused to be comforted. At length, amid silence that could be felt, an adjournment was effected, and the senators passed out to their homes. As he passed the chair Senator Vest in an undertone remarked to the vice president, 'Joe never saw him.'"

A Pot Walloper.

The parliamentary register for 1800 showed that there was then only one pot walloper in all England. One seeing the term for the first time might easily imagine that a pot walloper was a species of ichthyosaurus or some other reptile of a past age. It will be discovered upon inquiry, however, that the term "pot walloper" is literally one who boils a pot and was applied to voters in certain boroughs of England where before the passage of the reform bill of 1832 the qualifications for suffrage was to have boiled (walloped) his own pot in the parish for six months.—London Notes and Queries.

Wonderful Musical Memory.

Sir John Stainer had a wonderful musical memory. It was put to the test once at the Crystal palace when he had to play the organ in the "Messiah" and a folio copy, on which alone he could see the score, was not forthcoming. The conductor was in despair. Sir John cut the knot by a wonderful tour de force, playing the part faultlessly right through and entirely from memory, probably the only time the "Messiah" has been so rendered.—London Standard.

CAUGHT THE MOOD.

The Incident That Helped Verdi With His "Miserere."

Men of genius are confessedly creatures of mood. Grief and adversity have often been a real help to them rather than a hindrance. Poe, it is said, produced "The Raven" while sitting at the bedside of his sleeping but dying wife. Many similar instances might be cited, but an anecdote of Verdi, told by Carlo Ceccarelli, will suffice.

On one occasion when Verdi was engaged on his well known opera, "Il Trovatore," he stopped short at the passage of the "Miserere," being at a loss to combine notes of sufficient sadness and pathos to express the grief of the prisoner, Manrico.

Sitting at his piano in the deep stillness of the winter night, his imagination wandered back to the stormy days of his youth, endeavoring to extract from the past a plaint, a groan, like those which escaped from his breast when he saw himself forsaken by the world. All in vain!

One day at Milan he was unexpectedly called to the bedside of a dying friend, one of the few who had remained faithful to him in adversity and prosperity. Verdi at the sight of his dying friend felt a lump rise in his throat. He wanted to weep, but so intense was his grief that not a tear flowed to the relief of his anguish.

In an adjoining room stood a piano. Verdi, under one of those sudden impulses to which men of genius are sometimes subject, sat down at the instrument and there and then improvised the sublime "Miserere" of the "Trovatore." The musician had given utterance to his grief.

QUEER JEWELRY.

Telegraph Wire Necklaces and Insulators as Earrings.

The aesthetic and decorative uses to which barbarians will turn objects which to civilized races are things of the humblest utility are amusingly illustrated by this "fashion note" from West Africa taken from an Italian newspaper:

For some time the officials of the German colony in Southwest Africa noticed that the telegraph wires and other accessories of the electrical plant disappeared as by magic immediately after they had been put up. The most diligent inquiries remained fruitless.

From other parts of the German possessions came reports of strange predilections for articles of German commerce, as, for example, rubber heels, garters, buckles, and so forth, things which the natives of those countries do not generally use.

The governor of the colony gave an entertainment one year in honor of the emperor's birthday and invited the chiefs of the different tribes to it. What was his surprise when he saw these native gentlemen appear with his stolen telegraph wires twisted round their illustrious necks. The higher the dignity the more rings of the wire were round the neck.

Inquiries were soon started in the outlying villages, and it came to light that the white china insulators of the telegraph poles had become earrings. A young lady of the highest distinction in native society wore a rubber heel hanging from her nose, and a young man who was a well known dandy wore dangling from his ears a pair of beautiful pink silk garters.

A Soldier's Beginnings.

We were visiting at Sandringham. Sir Evelyn Wood, who is very deaf, crept up as near as he could to the musicians, and in one of the pauses he said to me, "Are you fond of music?" I answered, "Yes." "Do you play anything?" I said, "No." "Well," he went on, "I am so fond of it that, would you believe it, I began to practice scales at twenty-four. But one day my sister came up and put her hand on my shoulder and said, 'My dear boy, you had better give that up,' and so I did." He also told me that he began life as a sailor, then went to the bar and finally entered the army. The only profession he had not tried was the church, and his enemies say he would have tried that, only he did not know what church to choose.—"Life of Sir William Broadbent."

The Falling Branch.

In the grounds of Dalhousie castle, Scotland, is said to be a famous example of the sympathy of the vegetable world with human death. It was anciently believed in the neighborhood that a branch always fell from this oak when a member of the family died. Apparently the fall of the original tree early in the eighteenth century did not break the sympathy, for a new one sprang from the old root, and it is upon record that as lately as 1874 an old forester, seeing a branch fall from this on a still day, cried, "The laird's deed noo!" News of the eleventh Earl of Dalhousie's death soon followed.

Straightforward.

He—You mustn't believe every beggar who comes to your door. She—But this was no common beggar. He was a sea captain who had lost everything in a shipwreck. He—How do you know he was? She—He told a straightforward story about how his ship went to pieces on the coast of Switzerland.

"Growing Down."

Everybody has noticed that in extreme old age people grow rapidly shorter, so that a person formerly of average height "grows down" into quite a diminutive man or woman. A German contemporary points out that this decrease of height begins as early as the age of thirty-five years. At thirty, we are told, the human body has reached its full height, which is retained for a few years, after which the "growing down" process begins. At first and for many years the process is so slow as to be almost imperceptible, but at the age of about sixty it begins to be noticeable, and after seventy, even though a veteran does not stoop at all, the fact that he is "growing down" becomes apparent to all.

Insurance Companies Lose About $125,000.00 by the Wreck at Spanish River

Double Liability for About Twenty-five Persons

A loss of somewhere in the neighbourhood of $125,000 is what the Accident Insurance Companies estimate the wreck at Spanish River bridge means to them.

They figure that about 25 of those who met death carried Accident Insurance, and the average insurance, according to the tables, is $5,000. In case of death in a railway disaster there is a double liability, making the figure $6,000, or $5,000 to be more conservative.

Their loss may total more than that, for the commercial travellers, a number of whom were killed, usually carry very heavy insurance. In addition, some of the companies make the policies payable on the death of the wife while travelling, though the policy is taken out in the husband's name. In such cases they pay the husband the same amount as they would have paid the wife were the husband killed.

We issue the BEST Accident and Sickness policy offered to the public.

A CHILD OF MUCH PROMISE

Harry M. Field, Dresden, Teacher Predicts Brilliant Career for Gladys Seward

Last year, through the kindness of interested citizens of Peterborough and Toronto, a fund was raised by which Gladys Seward, a talented child of Peterborough, was sent to study music in Dresden, Germany, under the noted pianist and teacher, Mr. Harry M. Field, he having promised to give her tuition free of charge.

Those interested in the child will be glad to know that she is working most diligently, and that Mr. Field predicts a great future for her, provided she can stay in Dresden as long as necessary. Circulars requesting contributions toward raising the sum of $1,000 required to meet the necessary expenses are being circulated, and liberal responses are looked for.

Mr. Field, in a letter from Dresden, says:—

"She has an extraordinary talent and with work she can become a pianist of the first rank. She is showing herself a good girl, and she is working very faithfully. She has astonished me and everyone in the class by her playing of Beethoven's Variations on a Russian dance theme (Bulow-Ausgabe). She played them almost faultlessly. I am working very hard with her, and am taking the greatest of pains. I do hope she can stay for at least three years to accomplish what she is capable of doing, as you know this cannot be rushed in a few months; she should have a course just the same as a university student. I am willing to do everything for her in her music, in order that Canada may be proud of her. I trust that those who have already helped her so kindly will still do so. This child has a God-given talent, and I consider it a sin not to give her every chance."

Spiritual Suicide

To the Editor of the Review.

Dear Sir,—One day a man jumped off a dock in one of the large cities and was trying to commit suicide. A policeman saw him and protested and covering him with his revolver called to him to get to shore as quickly as he could or he would blow his brains and gave him to understand that he would not commit suicide around here if he could hinder it.

These people in our churches who can see no difference between the House of God and a restaurant; between the sanctuary and a common play-house, are committing spiritual suicide, and they will not be allowed around if I can hinder it. Hence the loud protest and hold-up metaphorically speaking.

From Yours,

A BIT OF ADVICE

First--Don't Delay; Second--Don't Experiment

Mrs. W. Huycke, of 311 Louis St., Peterborough, Ont., says:

"Mr. Huycke frequently suffered with backache. At times the pains in the small of the back would become so severe that he was unable to straighten himself up without much suffering. He could not stoop or lift anything of consequence, and his general health had been run down for some time. He had tried a number of different remedies, but didn't find relief until on advice of a friend he procured Booth's Kidney Pills at Wm. Medill's pharmacy and commenced treatment. He soon found relief. The pains left this back and he straightened. He has had no return of the trouble since, and speaks very highly of Booth's Kidney Pills."

If you suffer from backache; headaches or dizzy spells; if you rest poorly and are languid in the morning; if the kidney secretions are irregular and unnatural in appearance, do not delay. The kidneys are calling for help. Slight symptoms of kidney troubles are but forerunners of more serious complaints. They should be given attention before it is too late.

Booth's Kidney Pills cure kidney trouble. They are recommended by thousands. Can Peterborough residents desire more convincing proof than the statement of a Peterborough citizen.

"I had an ulcerated leg for several years. The ulcers spread all round the limb, which was swollen to nearly twice its normal size. Several doctors treated me. One suggested amputation. None did me any good. Zam-Buk healed the sores!" So says Mrs. Gilmour, of Princess St., Kingston. Or, read this:—

ZAM-BUK

THE GREAT SKIN-CURE.

ZAM-BUK AND A MIRACLE OF HEALING

Over and over again Zam-Buk has performed a miracle of healing when applied to sores and skin injuries which have refused to heal under any other form of treatment. Why not let it heal your trouble? Immediately Zam-Buk is applied to a sore or wound or diseased portion of flesh it commences its work in two directions. It anoints the exterior, and its antiseptic properties prevent any germs and bacilli from creating trouble. Then the herbal essences and juices so finely purified and concentrated, penetrate the subjacent layers and stimulate the weakened or diseased cells to active, healthy operation. These cells then put forth their "Building" products and replace the diseased outer layer with fresh and healthy tissue. By degrees the whole diseased surface is thus replaced by new healthy skin.

In this way Zam-Buk cures cuts, burns, bruises, ulcers, abscesses, itch, eczema, eruptions, pustules, scurvy, salt rheum, blood poison, and other forms of skin trouble. Zam-Buk also cures piles, varicose ulcers, etc. All druggists and stores sell at 50c per box, or from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, for price. 6 boxes $2.50.

COLOSSUS OF RHODES.

One of the Ancient Seven Wonders of the World.

The ancients succeeded in making that alloy of copper which is known as bronze. Among the seven wonders of the world was the famous statue, wholly made of bronze, historically known as the Colossus of Rhodes. It represented Phoebus, the national deity of the Rhodians. It was begun by Chares, a pupil of Lysippus, the sculptor, and was completed by Laches 288 B. C. The popular belief is that it stood astride the harbor of Rhodes, that it was 105 feet high and that ships could easily sail between its legs.

Pliny said that few men could clasp its thumb. It was cast on metal plates, afterward joined together, and this process occupied twelve years. In the interior was a spiral staircase reaching into its head, and in a great mirror suspended to its neck were reflected the coast of Syria and the ships sailing to Egypt.

After it had stood for sixty-four years this colossus was overthrown by an earthquake, and its remains lay on the shore for 923 years—that is, until A. D. 672—when they were sold by the Saracens to a dealer. The original cost was 300 talents—about $6,000,000—and it is not too much to say that a similar image might be constructed now in one-fourth of the time and at one-third of the original cost. Rhodes, by the way, must have had colossus on the brain, for Pliny relates that the port was adorned with 1,000 colossal statues of the sun.

LONDON THEATERS.

The Ordeal of Getting Past the Aged Ticket Taker.

The first difference I always find between going to the play in London and in New York is that in New York the man who has paid for a seat is made to feel that he is a patron of the house, while in London he is greeted by the staff of the theater not exactly as an intruder, but as a necessary evil. They appreciate that an audience is a necessary evil, but sooner than have one they would almost prefer to close the house.

In London for that importantly strategic outpost of ticket taker an old man of eighty is always employed. You think this is accident, but it is not. Old age naturally suggests failing eyesight, and when he keeps you waiting in the foyer while he examines your ticket and assures himself that it is not a laundry bill or a motor bus receipt you attribute the delay to his old eyes. But in detaining you he has a motive. Standing at his elbow, scowling darkly, there always is another man, apparently a plain clothes cut from Scotland Yard, uncomfortably disguised in evening dress. And while the aged ticket taker pretends to scrutinize your ticket the lookout man scans you. You cannot escape his eye. He never sleeps. No American, no matter how reckless, can hope to pass that man with a concealed bomb or a revolver or wearing a white tie with a dinner coat.—Collier's.

Flies at Sea.

The finding of flies and butterflies a long way out at sea is perhaps to most readers a fact not very well known. A recent traveler in the tropics relates that when thirty miles out from land a plague of flies overtook the vessel on which he was steaming. The cabin was so full of them that the beams were blackened. Common black housefllies they were for the most part, with, however, a good sprinkling of large green flies. Where they could have come from was a mystery, but they were a terrible nuisance, and, although those on board swept off hundreds in a net, their numbers were not sensibly diminished. Another singular circumstance was that, although no land was in sight, large dragon flies repeatedly flew across the ship, and a large dark butterfly was observed to flit across in the direction of the nearest land, quite thirty miles away, without stopping to rest on the vessel at all.—London Globe.

Cocoanut Cream Candy.

Melt two tablespoonfuls of butter in a saucepan, add one-half cup of milk and a cup and a half of sugar. Heat to the boiling point and cook twelve minutes, taking care that it does not burn. Push back on the stove, add one-third cup of shredded cocoanut and half a teaspoonful of vanilla. Beat until the mixture is creamy, pour into a buttered pan, cool and mark into squares.

ROMANCE THE THING.

This Bait Catches the Matrimonial Fish, Says Ex-Colibate.

An educated woman who has escaped from the class of unwilling celibates to which so many educated women appear to be doomed tells in the current Independent how she did it. The trouble with the educated woman, says the "One Who Did," is that she isn't romantic, and throughout all the ages "human nature has shown a great hunger for romance."

"Romance," she says, "is the moonlight that silvers over the ugly or commonplace facts of our lives and makes possible the living of them. To this primitive need the educated woman usually fails to respond. Although she has often a deep theoretical appreciation of the romantic, she neglects to throw about herself any of the glamour without which love cannot germinate. Therein the educated woman is to blame for her unsought state. With the fundamental honesty of an intelligent person she refuses to use what she calls artifices and depends solely upon logic, ability and other sterling qualities (and perhaps good clothes) as means of attraction, while her less truly estimable sister must, to attract at all, cover her greater limitations with a cloak of mystery and appeal and have recourse to what are sometimes contemptuously called tricks of the trade."

But these tricks of the trade, argues the "One Who Did," are no more contemptible than is the brighter plumage of the birds in the mating season. "Most men's lives," she says," are hard and monotonous. Is it any wonder that they turn from the thud of massive machinery and grind of business house and office to what appeals to their imagination and chivalry rather than to what touches their brains and logic?"

The "One Who Did" was thirty before she found all this out, but even at thirty she says it isn't too late to mend. As a result, she intimates, of her changed tactics she married a man to whom her intellectual gifts are very useful, but he says he never once thought of them during the courtship stage. He merely felt that she would be, in the somewhat crude language of her younger brother, a "good spooner."

Bathroom Luxuries.

Scented sea salt, lavender perfumed powder and cheesecloth bags holding a mixture of white cornmeal and powdered orris root for softening and perfuming the bathing water are included among the toilet accessories which one daintily groomed young girl considers necessary for sanitary safety as well as for absolute physical comfort.

On the same list are several bath mitts of different sizes, face cloths of softest chamois and sponges of superfine quality to be used alternately while the others are being aired, dried and sunned.

Fine French flower scented soaps are used for the hands and face, castile for general bathing and tar soap for shampooing, but there is also a regular hair fertilising and scalp cleansing soap, and each one of these cakes is kept in an individual box of silver, crystal or celluloid.

Sterilized toothbrushes are kept in stoppered glass cases, and the sanitary tooth paste used upon them issues from the top of a screw covered zinc tube.

Violet and rose toilet waters are purchased in perfectly air tight glass bottles and essences of these flowers, as well as lavender smelling salts, in glass stoppered vials cased in hardwood boxes.

A porcelain jar which holds the cold cream has a glass cover which screws on so tightly that dust cannot possibly reach the preparations. In a leather case are orange sticks, emery boards, cakes of cuttlebone, luster and pumice, a tube of ointment and a nail polishing machine, to which a buffer is attached.

Novel Charity Scheme.

A "tea chain" is a form of entertainment much in vogue for raising money for charitable purposes. Half a dozen or more women interested in a certain society or enterprise agree to give a series of "teas" in the interest of some pet project or charity. If one of the women be musical she will arrange a musical tea—that is, a regulation tea with a program of vocal or instrumental selections. A patriotic tea appeals to others, particularly as there are so many appropriate dates from which to make a selection. Frappe, fruit punch or chocolate is sometimes substituted for tea, and some simple form of entertainment is provided. The list also includes a floral tea, pink, yellow or green tea, a crystal tea (this may be made very effective), a valentine, holly, colonial or gypsy tea. At the gypsy tea a fortune teller or palmist is a usual attraction, and a decorative feature is a pot hung above the tripod. A Dutch tea admits of some excellent effects in blue and white. At these teas the hostess and her aids wear appropriate costumes.

In the hall of the home where the tea is held a box or basket is placed into which the guests drop their contributions for the cause. A small sized tea box with a slit in one corner is sometimes used.

Screens For Girls' Rooms.

Charming screens for girls' rooms are made of silk of a rather heavy texture in the pompadour blues and pinks and trimmed with gold lace or gold beading. The screens are made of gilded wood, and the silk is pulled on at the top and bottom. The trimming in the shape of a shallow valance across the top of the screen, is of the silk trimmed with gold and edged with gold fringe.

His Birthday.

"When were you born?" asked an inquisitive of Robert Louis one day. "May 10, 1850," was the instant reply, and Robert Louis and Fanny Stevenson exchanged glances. This was their wedding day."

A Foot Rule.

Workman—Is there a foot rule in this house? Housekeeper—Yes. Everybody wipes their feet on this mat before they dare come in!—Comic Cuts.

The body taken from the St. Lawrence at Longueuil was that of a man murdered months ago.

TWO ALDERMEN IN FAVOR OF PRESENT SYSTEM OF CONDUCTING THE MARKET

Clause five in the report of the Property Committee, regarding the change in the control of the market, caused some discussion at the Council meeting last night. The clause was as follows:—

"That this committee be instructed to advertise for tenders for the market tolls and charges for the year beginning April 1st next, and that the present market clerk be notified to that effect, and that this committee be given authority to let the contract and complete the necessary papers."

Ald. Duffus thought the system in force at present was the best. He had spoken to many farmers about the matter and they were better satisfied with the present system than the old way.

Ald. Turner thought it would be well to secure tenders and find out what the city would get by letting it by tender. It was not imperative that the system should be changed. The committee could decide which course would be better for the city.

Ald. Duffus moved that clause five be struck out and that the present system of conducting the market be continued.

Ald. Phelan seconded the motion and agreed with what Ald. Duffus had said. It appeared to him that everybody was better satisfied under the present system.

Ald. Duncan said Mr. Ball could tender for the market if he desired to.

The vote on the amendment of Ald. Duffus resulted in its defeat as follows:—

MOTHER AND CHILDREN SLEPT WHILE HOUSE BURNED

Home of James Belleghem Entirely Destroyed by Fire Last Night—Outside City Limits.

The home of Mr. James Belleghem, situated immediately west of the plant of the Peterborough Sandstone Brick Company, together with the greater part of its contents, was destroyed by fire last night, about 11 o'clock and Mrs. Belleghem and her four small children, who were alone in the house at the time, barely escaped with their lives. Mrs. Belleghem had been baking early in the evening, and when she went up stairs to her room to lie down, about nine o'clock, there remained a hot, coal fire, in the stove down stairs. She fell asleep, and is therefore unable to state just how the fire started, but what she is well aware of is that she awakened, almost suffocated by the dense smoke, to find that her home was on fire. The four children were asleep, but they with the mother, made their escape and were taken into the home of Mr. John Billington, which is just across the road.

Neighbors arrived to give assistance but nothing could be done in the way of getting the blaze under control. The house stood in an open space and the high wind, blowing at the time, fanned the flames so that the great heat made it almost impossible for one to attempt anything, and in a short time, the structure, which was a frame one, was entirely destroyed. All that remained were the steps at the front.

A sofa, trunk, a couple of racks and some clothing were saved, but everything else belonging to the family was lost.

Mr. Belleghem, who is employed in the punch press department of the Canadian General Electric Company, was working at night and was not acquainted of the fact that his home was destroyed for some time afterwards. He had taken the property several months ago from Mr. T. Hurley and had partly paid for it, and the loss to him will be heavy, as he had very little insurance on the household effects. The house was insured for $400.

The fire department received a call at 11.26, but on arrival near the scene of the fire, nothing could be done, as no water was obtainable, the property being considerably out of the city limits.

Everything possible to make the premises attractive and inviting will be carried out, and with these additional improvements the Quick Lunch should in the future enjoy a greater patronage.

"JOE" DOWNEY TO SPEAK HERE

Will Address the Canadian Club Next Monday Evening

The third meeting of the Peterborough Canadian Club will be held on Monday evening, March 14th, at 8 o'clock, at the Hotel National. The speaker will be Mr. J. P. Downey, M.P.P., of Guelph. Mr. Downey is regarded as one of the most brilliant speakers in Ontario and the local club is very fortunate to secure him for an address. His subject will be announced later.

Judge Stopped a Fight.

When Judge Morgan, he who now gives many weighty judgments seated on his bench in his chambers, was holding court one session up at Sutton, the place where he presided was in a room on the first floor of a hotel near the railway station. On the first morning during this court, the judge looked out of a window which gave a full view of the driving sheds, and there was surprised to behold two men engaged in strenuous combat with their fists.

"Here," called the judge to the sheriff or the bailiff, "run out there and put a stop to that fight."

The officer obediently withdrew and the case in court continued. A minute or so later the official reappeared with a bump on the nose from which the gore was proceeding profusely.

"Your honor, I can't stop them," he protested.

"You can't, eh? Well, I can," declared the judge. He seized his stick, and falling on the two in the yard knocked them both down with shrewd blows of the weapon. That ended the fight, and court continued.

New Brunswick's expenditure for 1909 was $1,255,380 and the receipts were $1,259,826.

PRESBYTERY OF PETERBORO' IS IN SESSION TO-DAY

Large Representation of Clergy of the Presbytery — Important Budget of Business Transacted — Statistical Report Shows an Excellent Year.

The Presbytery of Peterborough opened this morning at 9 p.m. in St. Andrew's church. The Rev. D. A. McKenzie, B.A., Moderator, presided. There were present Rev. D. A. Thompson, Hastings, clerk of Presbytery, and Rev. Messrs. Burns, Lakefield; Beattie, Cobourg; Brown, Campbellford; Currie, Omemee; Brokenshire, Port Hope; Black, Harwood; Johnston, Millbrook; Keith, Peterborough, Dr. Marsh, Springville; McDonald, D.D., Keene; McLeod, A.R., Brighton; Pogue, Peterborough, Potter, Peterborough; Skene, Baltimore; Thornton, Colborne, ministers, and Messrs. Carruthers, McNaughton, Port Hope; R. Lees, M.A., Wm. Madill, J. C. Shook, R. Harrison, Peterborough; Albert Sanderson, Springville; Horsburg, Coldsprings; Gardner, Millbrook, Kennedy, Harwood, Spier, Cobourg.

The Rev. G. A. Brown, of Campbellford, reported for the Committee appointed to visit Havelock in view of the illness of the pastor, Rev. J. A. G. Sterling. Mr. Brown urged that the sympathy of the Presbytery be extended to Mr. Sterling in his serious, critical condition.

A committee consisting of the Rev. J. C. Potter, Rev. H. J. Keith and Mr. J. C. Shook was appointed to consider the situation, with power to make such arrangements as will relieve the afflicted minister.

The clerk reported that a call from the Norwood Presbyterian church had been most hearty and unanimously proffered to Mr. M. Cree, B.A., member of the graduating class in Knox College but in as much as he was not licensed to preach, the Presbytery agreed to give the Moderator authority to proceed with all necessary steps, and the day of the ordination and induction was set for April 14.

Rev. Messrs. Burns, McDonald and Marsh were appointed a committee to strike the standing committees and will report this afternoon.

A Presbyterian certificate was granted Mr. Harry Wilkie, which will enable him to resume his studies in McCormick Theological Seminary, Chicago.

The Rev. Jas. Skene, of Baltimore, convenor of the Augmentation Committee, reported that the Harwood congregation had renounced their annual grant, and would be henceforth self-sustaining. Grants were passed for Havelock and Mill Street, Port Hope.

The very hearty thanks of the Presbytery was extended to the congregation of Harwood and Rosneath for the generous treatment of their minister in voluntarily and cheerfully abandoning aid from augmentation and deciding to pay the full minimum alone. The pastor, Rev. J. R. Black, has proved that a man of ripe experience and years of service in the ministry can be as active, forceful in preaching and faithful in pastoral work as the most active politician, or physician in their spheres of activity.

The following were then elected as commissioners to the General Assembly meeting at Halifax, N.S., in June:—

SIR JAMES WHITNEY COMES DOWN HARD ON SINGLE TAX

The Premier Puts His Foot Down on Mr. A. E. Fripp's Measure Despite That Gentleman's Protest That it Was Harmless.

Toronto, March 9.—If any single taxers were present at the session of the Legislature yesterday afternoon, it must have grieved his heart to hear the ruthless way in which Premier Whitney put his foot down on Mr. Fripp's baby Henry George bill. The Prime Minister's foot came down so hard that the cradle was rudely upset and the baby cast beneath the wheels of the Government Juggernaut.

"There are a number of gentlemen who believe in the Henry George theory," said Sir James Whitney, when the House came to the amendment to the assessment act introduced by A. E. Fripp (West Ottawa). "Printed resolutions were sent all over the province; in fact there was a propaganda. And many municipalities did pass these resolutions, without much thought, as I believe.

"I am entirely in opposition to the proposition of this bill, but I think it just that it should be discussed, together with the bill of Hon. Mr. Hanna, as that is the only way that the matter can be brought to the notice of the members of this House and the people they represent."

Hon. W. J. Hanna recalled the arguments heard by the special committees on assessment and called attention to some of the features of the Government bill.

Religious institutions which were practically money-making concerns were to have exemption from taxes removed.

In connection with the proposal to raise the wage exemption to $1,200, he called attention to the fact that the assessment commissions of Toronto, Ottawa and London, made a practice of allowing the double expense of railway men at both ends of their run to be considered as a reduction of the salary.

Clubs were made liable to business assessment. Practically no farm assessment was left in cities under the new bill.

A. E. Fripp (West Ottawa) claimed that his bill had been misunderstood. It gave the municipalities, if they so desired, the power to put a higher tax rate on land than on improvements. People were beginning to consider the incidence of taxation, as was shown by the fact that 270 municipalities had passed resolutions in favor of the principle of his bill.

"Land values," said Mr. Fripp, "are given by the community, and not by the individual. It is the coming together of people that gives the value.

"In our effort to get at the income of the rich man," he continued, "we tax 99 people who can ill afford it."

Manitoba, he said, did not tax houses and building in rural districts, Alberta and Saskatchewan taxed land only. Australia had wiped out all personal property taxation whatever. Mr Fripp read from an American magazine, an article in which the exodus of American farmers to the Canadian west was ascribed to the new system of taxation which was springing up here.

W. H. Hoyle (North Ontario) said the reference to the farmers was misleading. The value of farm land was fixed by the buildings on it.

Hon. A. G. MacKay was not shocked by Mr. Fripp's bill he said. It had worked out well in farming communities to give the assessor power not to assess improvements too high. He thought, however, that the matter should not be made one for conflict at annual municipal elections as to what the tax rate should be based on. He would prefer that any action taken should be along the lines of a resolution he himself had brought forward some years before, in which the tax rate on improvements, all over the province, was to be fixed at not more than 50 per cent. of their value.

Allan Studholme (East Hamilton) declared that there was "no Henry Georgeism about it—only a little wee bit." This was nothing to what they were doing in England.

In moving the second reading of his bill to amend the Ontario Railway Act, 1906, C. A. Brown (East Elgin) stated that it was intended to meet a grievance which existed on the electric line running from St. Thomas to Port Stanley, where passengers who got on between stations were charged double fare to the next station.

Hon. J. S. Hendrie said that when the bill was framed, it was thought that a two cent a mile rate would meet the difficulty, but it was found in the case of lines running on the highways that it was sometimes difficult to say just where a passenger got on.

Two bills of H. P. Innes (South Norfolk) to amend the public schools act and the truancy act were withdrawn on the suggestion of Hon. I. B. Lucas.

The bill of H. Eilber (South Huron) to give municipalities power to pass a second bylaw to raise debentures for telephone purposes after construction is begun, and they know better what the cost will be, passed its second reading.

Hon. J. S. Duff introduced a bill to extend the machinery now used to combat the San Jose scale to the ravages of codling moth, yellow, little peach, black knot, pear psylla and pear blight. It is made an offence to sell or import trees suffering from any of these troubles. By the new act a petition of 25 fruit-growers is necessary to the appointment of an inspector.

Bishop of Lincoln Dead.

London, March 9.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—Rt. Rev. Edward King, D.D., Bishop of Lincoln since 1885, is dead. He was ordained in 1854. Principal Cuddesdon College, 1863-73; canon of Christ Church, Oxford, 1875-85.

UNITED STATES ENVOYS LEAVE OTTAWA FOR HOME

No Official Announcement Have Been Made With Regard to the Result of the Conference. But Better Terms Between Canada and the United States Are Confidently Expected.

Ottawa, March 9.—The American Tariff Board representatives had their last conference with Hon. Mr. Fielding, Minister of Finance, yesterday afternoon, and will leave for Washington to-day. The only official announcement made as to the result of the negotiations of the past week is simply that the exchange of views and discussions throughout have been of the most friendly and frank character, and it is hoped that as a result of the better mutual understanding reached as to the respective American and Canadian viewpoints on the aspects of the tariff problem under consideration, there will be a mutually satisfactory and peaceful outcome. It is stated that the proceedings were naturally of a confidential nature, and no announcement could be made as to what transpired pending the report of the American visitors to the Government at Washington.

It was further pointed out that the mission of Messrs. Emery and Pepper to Ottawa was for purposes of investigation and gathering information at first hand as to the feature of Canada's fiscal policy bearing on the question of undue discrimination against the United States. They had no plenary powers to promise any tariff concessions in the future by the United States to Canada in return for any which might be made by Canada, and consequently no definite agreement as to mutual concessions either at present or in the future could be made.

There are no definite promises on either side. At the same time it can be stated that as a result of a clarifying exchange of opinions the outlook is bright for a continuance of friendly trade relations between Canada and the United States, and, indeed, it seems probable that the heart-to-heart talk of the past few days between the Canadian and American representatives will open the way to a more satisfactory reciprocity in trade between the two countries than has obtained since the Dingley tariff went into effect in 1897.

It is believed here that in the next tariff revision at Washington, which will probably not be long delayed any changes that are made will make for better and more equal tariff relations between the two countries. This, of course, is contingent on President Taft being able to find on the report of his tariff advisers that it will not be necessary to impose the maximum tariff against Canada on March 31st next. That he will be able to do so, even though strict judicial interpretation of American tariff law may have to be strained a bit, is the confident belief here among those who have been in close touch with the negotiations of the past week. As one of the parties concerned in the negotiations said last night: "What is the constitution between friends?"

SOUTH HURON MEMBER WAS HISSED BY HIS OWN PARTY

The Man Who Made the Only Unpatriotic Speech in the Naval Debate Tries to Interrupt George A. Clare of South Waterloo, and is Roundly Hooted by Both Parties for His Pains.

Ottawa, March 9.—A little scene, indicative of a feeling of members of both sides of the House towards M. J. McLean, the Liberal member for South Huron, who has made what may be termed the only really unpatriotic speech during the navy debate, occurred yesterday afternoon.

George A. Clare, the German Canadian representative of South Waterloo, was interrupted by Mr. McLean while in the course of an amiable speech, which was being listened to by the largest attendance seen during the naval debate, since the Premier and Mr. Borden addressed the House.

Mr. Clare, who has been in bad health for some time, was obviously speaking under difficulties, and the Conservatives resented the sneer with which Mr. McLean accompanied his interjected question, "Would you favor sending $25,000,000 to England for Dreadnoughts?"

They shouted "Oh, oh," and "Sit down." Mr. McLean refused to sit down, and the hubbub grew boisterous. Finally after much hissing from both sides of the House Mr. McLean resumed his seat.

Mr. Clare paid a warm tribute to the Germans of Waterloo County, and of Canada. He said they were loyal Canadians, and proud of the great empire to which they owed allegiance. His parents had been born in Germany, and while they were proud of the land of their birth, he believed they were prouder of the country in which they had made their home.

Neither the people of Germany nor the people of England wanted war, and he knew that the educated and working classes of Germany had the warmest respect and love for the British nation. All he could see in the future was a war of commerce. In any danger which might occur, he believed the French and the Germans would stand for Canada and its interests always.

"We are one people in this country, and one people only," he said, "and the only way we differ is in how best to do our duty to the Empire to which we belong."

Dr. Neely of Humboldt, Sask., followed, and a somewhat lively scene occurred when he said he resented the charges of disloyalty leveled at French-Canadians by Dr. Edwards of Frontenac.

Dr. Edwards interrupted to deny that he had made any such charge.

Dr. Neely said he had read Dr. Edwards' speech a number of times, and he couldn't interpret it in any other way.

Dr. Edwards insisted on a withdrawal. Dr. Neely said he would accept the statement of the member for Frontenac, but he would have to qualify his withdrawal by saying that, if Dr. Edwards hadn't made such a charge, he had used the wrong words and phrases to express his intention. This was not satisfying to Edwards, and some more cross-firing occurred, but the Speaker in the end ruled that Neely had complied with the rules of the House.

Dr. J. D. Reid, Grenville, supported Mr. Borden's amendment, as something of material service to Canada and the Empire would be gained by it.

W. H. Smyth, West Algoma, read a newspaper report which stated that Hon. Rodolphe Lemieux had, at a public meeting in Montreal, supported a resolution declaring for Canadian independence.

Mr. Lemieux denied the truth of this, and stated that he had expected to be reminded of an incident at Sohmer Park in 1893, when as a member of the Monument Nationale, he had been asked to take part in a four-cornered academic debate. He had been assigned the role of urging the independence of Canada, and Elgin Myers had advocated annexation with the United States. Another Montreal gentleman, Mr. McGoun, had pleaded the cause of Imperial federation.

J. E. O. Gladu, Yamaska, supported the bill, and advocated the building of Canadian warships in Canada. He reviewed the Foster-Macdonald libel suit and made an attack on Mr. Foster.

Major Beattie, London, said he would have remained silent but for the remarkable statement of M. Y. McLean of South Huron, that Canada owed nothing to Great Britain but good-will and affection. He reminded the House of the great benefits which the Imperial authorities had conferred on the Dominion of recent years. He used the word Dominion advisedly, he said, for he hated the word "nation." It smacked of separation.

The adjournment was moved by W. S. Loggie, for Hon. R. R. Emmerson.

The division on the navy bill is not expected to take place until Thursday night, but there are over a dozen speakers to come yet and the whips are undecided to-day whether it will take place to-night or not.

TERRIBLE JOURNEY

Passengers of the C.P.R. Tell of Their Adventures en Route

Vancouver, B.C., March 9.—Weary after their harrowing experiences in lodging snow slides at the summit of the Selkirk, over 150 passengers reached here yesterday morning on No. 97 westbound through express of the C.P.R.

When the second avalanche followed on the first slide, and at same identical spot, the train was stalled at Rogers' Pass station, just one mile east. Bear Creek station, seven or eight miles east of Rogers' Pass depot, had just been reached when a slide covering the track to a great depth for a distance of 2,000 feet crashed down the mountain side. A brakeman, sent back to flag a train, had to run for his life. These events occurred late Friday afternoon. Throughout the night, the passengers hear the boom of a muffled roar of avalanches, expecting that their own fate might be sealed at any moment. Daylight Saturday brought confirmation of rumors, persistently circulated, that the work train crew, bridge gang and section men had been buried a mile further on.

It was not until 10.35 yesterday morning that No. 97 was enabled to start for Vancouver. The main slide, it appears, has not been removed from the tracks. The train was enabled to get by the spot as the main line, half a mile east, was connected by temporary tracks with an old line covered by a snow shed.

The passengers declare that weeks will elapse before the enormous mass of debris can be removed from the main line.

Most of the avalanche victims are being found in a standing posture, with faces toward the slide on various levels. Many are in a climbing attitude, with arms extended. The number found up to this time totals 24, 16 white men and eight Japs. A committee of citizens and the fraternal societies at Revelstoke has been formed to look after the burial of the men

LATE TICKS FROM WIRES

At Kiel, Prussia, the recently completed battleship Posen, one of the four Dreadnoughts about to be added to the German navy was badly damaged by fire.

Dr. B. C. Hyde, charged with the murder and attempted murder in the Swope case, was released from Kansas City jail, after furnishing bonds in the sum of $100,000.

After having fought unsuccessfully for five days a fire in her coal bunkers, the freight steamship Maude from Argentine arrived at New York with the crew exhausted.

An explosion of dry starch powder which occurred in the plant of the American Maize Products Co. at Roby, Ind., probably killed two men and injured twenty-eight others.

It is reported that the Canadian Northern Railway have obtained an option from the Quebec Government on the old Montreal jail property to be used by them as their Montreal station.

The dismembered body found on the railway tracks near Gananoque was that of Stephen Tyo, aged 19, of Kingston, who had jumped from the moving train when it had failed to stop at Findlay station.

Mrs. Cordelie Botkin, serving a life sentence at San Quentin, Cal., for the murder in 1898 of Mrs. John P. Dunning, of Dover, Delaware, by poisoned chocolates, sent through the mails, is dead in the penitentiary.

STILL AFTER RUTHERFORD

Edmonton, Alta., March 9.—Insurgent leader Boyle has introduced a resolution in the Legislature "resenting the action of the Government in tampering with and stripping the files" relating to the Great Waterways Railway deal; while Stuart Sedgewick gives notice of a demand for "immediate and conclusive evidence" as to the whereabouts of $740,000 on the sale of the bonds as represented by the difference between sale at par, as claimed by the Government, and 110, as indicated by reports.

PLUCK SHOWN BY POLICEMAN

New York, March 9.—With bullets singing about him, Policeman Isaac Van Houten plunged into Rockaway Inlet, off Barren Island, and swam to a disabled motor boat in which George Jones, a negro, had escaped from a group of infuriated men after he had sent a bullet through the breast of Henry Holly, also a negro.

As Van Houten, with strong strokes, gradually gained on the drifting craft, the negro stood up and emptied his revolver at the policeman. When the weapon was empty Jones threw it overboard. Van Houten clambered into the boat, which was towed back to shore by a launch.

GIRLS PASS PLATES IN CHICAGO CHURCH

Chicago, March 9.—"No more pennies or suspender buttons in the collection plate. Nothing less than quarters and half dollars go from now on."

Rev. Percival H. Barker, pastor of the First Congregational Church of Maywood, has tried a new plan in his church. He secured the consent of the five prettiest girls in the congregation to act as "offertory collectors," and at the end of the service he smiled.

Rev. Mr. Baker said after the services that the size of the offering was just about double the usual amount. He explained that his decision to get the women to do what has hitherto been regarded as man's work as a "happy thought."

"There were few nickels and dimes in the plate," said the pastor; "the young men dug up quarters and halves."

HON. MR. FOSTER IN POOR HEALTH

Ottawa, March 9.—Hon. George E. Foster's usual good health has given away as a result of the strain of the recent libel suit in Toronto.

He has not been in the House since Tuesday last. Twice since that day he came up to the Parliament buildings and made an effort to overtake his personal business, but had to desist.

It is expected that a rest of a few weeks will put him all right again.

CITIES WANT TO BE CONSULTED

Ottawa, March 9.—At a meeting yesterday of the mayors and representatives of large cities, a resolution was passed declaring that, in order to prevent confusion of plans of operation and of different controls (provincial, federal and civic), and to prevent injury to local franchises, it is essential that all plans of railways or telegraph companies be not granted rights by Parliament except such plans be subjected to the consent of the municipalities, expressed by law.

Those present included Mayor Guerin and Controller Wankyn of Montreal, Mayor Geary and Controllers Spence, Ward and Church, Toronto; Mayor Hopewell, Ottawa; Mayor Pelletier, Fort William; F. H. Chrysler, K.C., representing Winnipeg; M. S. McCarthy, M.P., representing Calgary, and these officers of the Union of Municipalities, W. D. Lighthall, K.C., secretary; Geo. S. Wilson, assistant secretary, and Fred Cook, past president.

Mayors of Halifax, Victoria, Vancouver and Port Arthur gave their assent to the resolution by telegraph.

ARRESTS MADE IN MONTREAL STRIKE

Montreal, March 9.—Three arrests were made yesterday in connection with the strike of cloakmakers, the charge being intimidation and interference with strike-breakers.

Several have been already fined, and some are to be re-arrested on the same charge.

The strikers sent in a revised agreement for the employers to sign, but this they refuse to do.

IMMENSE RUSH TO UNITED STATES

Southampton, Eng., March 9.—More than 6,000 steerage passengers have left Southampton for the United States within a fortnight, breaking all records.

Every steamer has taken her full capacity, while the Oceanic, which will sail to-day, was compelled to close her bookings nearly a week ago.

Emigrants unable to secure passage on the continent, are arriving here in great numbers daily, in the hope of reaching America by the British lines.

NEW SERVICE TO THE ANTIPODES

Montreal, March 9.—The C.P.R. announce the inauguration of a new steamship service between Montreal and Australian and New Zealand ports, known as the New Zealand Steamship Co.

The boats will sail from Montreal in the summer and St. John in the winter, the first sailing being on May 15, when the steamship Rakai will leave Montreal.

There will be monthly sailings. The vessels will call at all the principal Australian and New Zealand ports. The boats will be fitted up with cold storage and every modern equipment.

IS LIMITED TO ONE PROVINCE

Ottawa, March 9.—Sir Richard Scott announced in the Senate yesterday that he proposed to offer an important amendment to his bill relating to the transportation of intoxicating liquor. The amendment would limit the act to provinces which had declared for prohibition, and had enacted prohibitory legislation.

The effect that the bill will be limited to Prince Edward Island, which has asked for it.

WILL PASS LAW AGAINST HATPINS

Chicago, Ill., March 9.—Women's long hatpins were declared to be a public nuisance and an anti-hatpin ordinance was ordered drawn up by the judiciary committee of the City Council yesterday.

The action followed a week's crusade against the hatpin which culminated in a public hearing.

The ordinance will stipulate that hatpins worn in public places "shall not extend more than one-half of an inch beyond the crown of the hat."

AN EX-MEMBER ALLEGES LIBLE

Glace Bay, N.S., March 9.—It is reported that writs have been served on Rev. Father Fraser of New Aberdeen, the Glace Bay Standard Co., A. Donell of The Standard staff, at the instance of Alex. Johnston, ex-M.P., alleging libel, contained in a letter published in The Standard of Dec. 1, 1909, over the signature of Father Fraser, attacking the conduct of members of Parliament in Ottawa, with particular reference to Johnston.

Little Girl a Purse Snatcher.

London, Ont., March 9.—The police arrested a pretty little golden-haired eight-year-old girl in a local department store. They charge that the child is the most daring purse-snatcher ever taken here.

Her father and mother are both dead, and a brother was recently given three years in prison for forging checks.

COMPULSORY EDUCATION DEFEATED

Winnipeg, March 9.—A straight party vote, the resolution of the Opposition, declaring in favor of compulsory education, was defeated late last night in the Legislature.

The Minister of Education declared that he was in favor of the principle, but claimed that if such an act was enforced Catholics would appeal to Ottawa for remedial legislation, and the whole school question would be re-opened.

IS BROUGHT BACK ON SERIOUS CHARGE

Perth, March 9.—Inspector Reburn of the Provincial Detective Department arrived here this morning from Winnipeg with Edward Gardiner Stewart.

Stewart was arrested in the western city on a warrant issued here in June, 1908, charging him with having committed rape on Lily Redmond, under the age of 21, in the Township of Pakenham.

He was employed in a bank here at the time, but disappeared.

The Daily Review

WEDNESDAY, MARCH 9, 1910.

THE FOSTER-MACDONALD VERDICT

There is much difference of opinion in Canadian newspapers as to the meaning of the verdict in the Foster-Macdonald libel suit. On reconsideration of the verdict and the evidence, The Review is inclined to take a less favourable view of Mr. Foster's actions as manager of the Union Trust Company than it did when the verdict was first announced. It is certain that Mr. Foster was not guilty of any criminal act. Even Mr. Macdonald's lawyers took that view of the case, but a man may do wrong without being a criminal. Mr. Foster's actions undoubtedly gave cause for criticism, and he should not be held free from blame. Yet, he should not be judged too harshly.

The last half of the verdict is much more favorable to Mr. Foster that the first half. We guess that the double verdict was the result of a division of opinion in the jury. One faction favored a verdict which read:

"We, the jury, do agree, in view of the evidence presented to us, that Mr. Macdonald was justified in making the statements published by him in the Globe of Oct. 21, 1908."

The other faction contended that the verdict should read:

"We find that while Mr. Foster acted in good faith while in the capacity of manager of the Union Trust Company, his actions are open to criticism, and that he is not entitled to recover damages from Mr. Macdonald."

After much discussion the jury were on the point of disagreeing, when someone made the brilliant suggestion that the two verdicts be pinned together and handed to the judge. The proposal was agreed to and that is why the verdict is so ambiguous that some newspapers say Mr. Foster has won a great victory, while others gloat over his ignominious defeat. But even if the first half of the verdict were struck out the jury's declaration would not be a vindication of Mr. Foster, and it is difficult to see how any one who has read all the evidence in the case can consider the second half of the verdict too strong a condemnation of Mr. Foster's dealing with trust funds.

It is no doubt true that Mr. Foster believed that the Foresters and the Union Trust Company would suffer no harm from the deals made with the Foresters' money. No doubt he believed that the lands purchased were worth much more than the amount paid for them, and that they would greatly increase in value. The lands did greatly increase in value, the Foresters lost nothing, and the Union Trust Company, whose stock the Foresters controlled, made a profit. But suppose that Mr. Foster's belief had been mistaken; suppose the lands had greatly declined in value, how would the Foresters' funds have been replaced? Probably every man who ever used trust funds for speculative purposes believed that his speculation would be successful. Mr. Foster's expectations happened to be realized. They might have been disappointed, as the expectations of many other speculators with trust funds have been.

It must be noted that Mr. Foster's actions were approved by the chief of the Foresters and other high officials of the order, and it is easy to understand why some of the jurymen, while believing that Mr. Foster should be condemned for his dealings with trust funds, did not think in the first place that the jury should justify Rev. J. A. Macdonald in using the very strong language he did in reference to Mr. Foster. The reluctance of some of the jury to emphatically endorse the language of the Globe editor was no doubt increased by the well-known fact that Mr. Macdonald, having a knowledge of Liberal Government dealings with public funds a thousand times worse than anything Mr. Foster did in connection with the Union Trust Company, has never condemned this crookedness either by word of mouth or in his newspaper, the Toronto Globe.

Mr. Foster certainly was not vindicated by the jury's verdict. Nor did the evidence clear him, although it showed that some high officials of the Foresters were also to blame.

Mr. Foster is, in many respects, a great man. He is one of the most eloquent and forcible speakers in the Anglo-Saxon world to-day. He is a patriotic Canadian, a loyal citizen of the British Empire, and while Finance Minister of Canada was a careful and honest administrator of the public funds.

But all these talents and virtues do not excuse his dealings with trust funds while manager of the Union Trust Company.

A POLITICAL HOUSE-CLEANING

Jules Fournier, one of the regular contributors to Henri Bourassa's paper, Le Devoir, in an article on the French-Canadian Liberal members of Parliament, says:—

"I do not hesitate to say that three-fourths of the French-Canadian members of the House of Commons do not hesitate to vote for a private bill in return for a box of cigars or a glass of champagne, while they seldom see the bills or hear them read."

This is a very severe criticism of the French-Canadian Liberal politicians, and we hope it is an exaggeration. It is very fortunate that the charge was not made by any English newspaper or it would have caused the bitterest resentment in the Province of Quebec. Le Devoir is the organ of the French-Canadian Nationalists, of whom Henri Bourassa is chief. Mr. Bourassa was formerly a Liberal, high in the confidence of Sir Wilfrid Laurier, but he now holds himself aloof from both political parties and criticises both. His views on Imperial questions are objectionable, but he seems to be in favor of clean and honest government. Among the well-known writers who support his views are Olivar Asselin and Jules Fournier.

Whether the charge made by Jules Fournier in Le Devoir against the French-Canadian Liberal members of the House of Commons is just or unjust, it is certain that if bad bills were supported only by French-Canadian members they could not pass. The majority of the Liberal members at Ottawa are not French-Canadians. A few English-speaking Liberals by voting with the Conservatives against bad measures introduced in the House could prevent their passage. However, the average English-speaking Liberal thinks he should vote for his party, right or wrong.

Some of the most extravagant and corrupt dealings so far revealed at Ottawa have been in departments of the government under English-speaking members of the Government. For instance, take the dealings in timber lands by the Department of the Interior and the dredging contracts, sawdust wharf purchases and other scandals in Hon. Mr. Pugsley's Department. Who were most active in blocking investigation of the Hodgins' charges of over-classification on the Government section of the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway? Who are most active now in the attempt to block thorough investigation of the Lumsden charges? Certainly not the French-Canadian members.

However, while there has been much corruption in departments controlled by English-speaking Cabinet Ministers there has been wrong-doing also in departments under the control of French-Canadian Ministers, and it is regrettable that whenever Conservative newspapers of Ontario make reference to anything wrong in these departments, the French-Canadian Liberal newspapers pretend that the race cry is being raised, although the race of the wrong-doer may not have been mentioned.

Men of good-will in Quebec and Ontario should unite to turn the rascals out, no matter which race they belong to. A general house cleaning at Ottawa is required, and the cleaning must be done by the ordinary electors in the constituencies all over Canada, whether French or English.

EDITORIAL NOTES

Those who protest against the muzzling order on the ground of cruelty to animals, should note that horses, cows and sheep are being bitten by mad dogs. It is surely as necessary to protect these animals as to care for the comfort of dogs.

The dog owners who are objecting to the muzzling order should note that it is intended for the protection of dogs as well as of men. Your own pet might be bitten by a mad dog. The order is, of course, only temporary, and it is in the interest of both dogs and men that it should be strictly enforced until the province is free from rabies.

CATTLE MARKETS.

Cables Unchanged—Hogs Active and Higher at Buffalo.

LONDON, March 8.—Liverpool and London cables quote live cattle (American) higher, at 12½c to 14½c, dressed weight; refrigerator beef firmer, at 10½c to 11¼c per pound.

Toronto Live Stock.

TORONTO, March 8.—The railways reported receipts of 69 carloads of live stock at the City Yards, consisting of 1133 cattle, 1401 hogs, 278 sheep and yearling lambs and 198 calves.

Exporters.

There were a few export cattle—that is, export weights—bought for Easter purposes at $5.35 to $5.55 by Geo. Rowntree for the Harris Abattoir Company, who always make it a point to have a supply of the best for the holiday seasons, regardless of price.

Butchers.

Geo. Rowntree bought nearly 300 cattle for the Harris Abattoir Company—steers and heifers, $5.70 to $5.90; a few export weights of choice cattle, $5.25 to $5.55; cows, $4 to $4.90.

Milkers and Springers.

The market for milkers continues strong, at $35 to $80 each, with an odd cow now and again bringing $90.

Veal Calves.

Veal calves sold at steady prices, ranging from $3.50 to $7.50, with an odd choice quality calf at more money.

Sheep and Lambs.

Less than 200 sheep and lambs sold at unchanged quotations. Ewes, $4.75 to $5.25; rams, $4.25 to $4.75; lambs at $7 to $8 per cwt.

Hogs.

There were 1401 hogs all told reported by the railways, which was not half enough to supply the demand, and this caused prices to again advance 10c to 15c per cwt. over our previous quotations. Selects, fed and watered at the market, are now selling at $9.40, and $9.15 f.o.b. cars at country points, which means that the farmer is now getting the unprecedented price of $8 per cwt. for his hogs at his nearest station.

The Man From Brodney's

By GEORGE BARR M'CUTCHEON

Copyright, 1908, by Dodd, Mead & Co.

Selim crept on ahead to reconnoiter. He was back in ten minutes with the information that a party of men had but lately passed along the road toward the south. Their footprints in the soft, untraveled road were fresh. The stub of a cigarette had scarcely burned itself out.

They broke away from the road and took a less exposed course through the forest to their right, keeping well within earshot of the ridge, but moving so carefully that there was slight danger of alarming the party ahead.

At last the sound of voices came to the ears of the pursuers. As they crept closer and closer they became aware of the fact that the party had halted in the roadway at the point where a sharp defile through the rocks opened a way down into the valley. Like snakes the pursuers wriggled their way to a point just above the small basin in which the party was congregated.

A great throb of exultation leaped up from their hearts. In plain view, at the side of the road, were the two persons for whom they were searching.

"Good luck is with us," whispered Chase unconsciously.

Lady Agnes, dishevelled, her dress half stripped from her person, was seated upon a great bowlder, staring hopelessly, lifelessly, at the crowd of men in the roadway. Beside her stood a tall islander, watching her and at the same time listening eagerly to the dispute that went on between his fellows. She was not bound. Her hands and feet and lips were free.

Bobby Browne was standing near by. His hands were tightly bound behind his back. His face was blood covered, and the upper part of his body was almost bare, evidence of the struggle he had made against overwhelming odds. He was staring at the ground, his head and shoulders drooping in utter dejection.

Three of the treasure chests were standing beside the road, affording seats for as many weary carriers. It was all quite plain to Chase. Rasula and his men had chanced upon the two white people during one of their trips to the cave for the purpose of removing the chests.

Rasula was haranguing the crowd of men in the road.

"It is the only way!" he was shouting angrily. "We cannot put them to death until we are sure that the others have no chance to escape to England. I am a lawyer. I know what it would mean if the story got to the ears of the government. We have them safely in our hands. The others will soon die. Then—then there can be no mistake! They must be taken to the mines and kept there until I have explained everything to the people. Part of us shall conduct them to the lower mill and the rest of us go on to the bank with these chests of gold."

Rasula and six of the sturdiest men prepared to continue the journey to Aratat, transporting the chests. Five sullen, resentful fellows moved over beside the captives and threw themselves down upon the grassy sward.

"We will wait here till day comes," growled one of them defiantly. "Why should we risk our necks going down the pass tonight? It is 1 o'clock. The sun will be here in three hours. Go on!"

"As you like, Abou Dal," said Rasula, shrugging his pinched shoulders. "I shall come to the mill at 6 o'clock." Turning to the prisoners, he bowed low and said, with a soft laugh: "Adios, my lady, and you, most noble sir. May your dreams be pleasant ones. Dream that you are wedded and have come into the wealth of Japat, but spare none of your dream to the husband and wife who are lying awake and weeping for the foolish ones who would go searching for the forbidden fruit. Folly is a hard road to travel, and it leads to the graveyard of fools. Adios!"

Lady Agnes bent over and dropped her face into her hands. She was trembling convulsively. Browne did not show the slightest sign that he had heard the galling words.

At a single sharp command the six men picked up the three chests and moved off rapidly down the road, Rasula striding ahead with the flaring torch.

They were barely out of sight when Deppingham moved as though impulse was driving him into immediate attack upon the guards who were left behind with the unhappy prisoners. Chase laid a restraining hand upon his arm.

"Wait! Plenty of time. Wait an hour. Don't spoil everything. We'll save them sure," he breathed in the other's ear.

The minutes slipped by with excruciating slowness. The wakeful eyes of the three watchers missed nothing that took place in the little grass grown niche below them. They could have sprung almost into the center of the group from the position they occupied. Two of the men sat with their backs to the rocks, their rifles across their knees. The others sprawled lazily upon the soft grass. Two torches stuck in the earth threw a weird light over the scene.

Bobby Browne was now lying with his shoulder against a fallen tree trunk, staring with unswerving gaze at the woman across the way. She was looking off into the night, steadfastly refusing to glance in his direction.

Then suddenly Lady Agnes arose to her feet and lifted her hands high toward the black dome of heaven, Salammbo-like, and prayed aloud to her God, the sneering islanders looking on in silent derision.

CHAPTER XXVIII.

THE PERSIAN ANGEL.

THE man called Abou suddenly leaped to his feet and, with the cry of an eager animal, sprang to her side. His arms closed about her slender figure with the unmistakable lust of the victor. A hoarse, inarticulate cry of rage burst from Deppingham's lips. His figure shot out through the air and down the short slope with the rush of an infuriated beast. Even as the astonished Abou dropped his struggling burden to meet the attack of the unexpected deliverer he was felled to the earth by a mighty blow from the rifle which his assailant swung swift and true. His skull was crushed as if it were an eggshell.

He was felled to the earth by a mighty blow.

Lady Agnes struggled to her feet, wild eyed, half crazed by the double assault. The next instant she fell forward upon her face, dead to all that was to follow in the next few minutes.

There was no struggle. Chase and Selim were upon the stupefied islanders before they could move, covering them with their rifles. The wretches fell upon their knees and howled for mercy. While Deppingham was holding his wife's limp form in his arms, calling out to her in the agony of fear, utterly oblivious to all else that was happening about him, his two friends were swiftly disarming the groveling natives. Selim's knife severed the cords that bound Bobby Browne's hands. He was staring blankly, dimly before him.

Ten minutes later Chase was addressing himself to the four islanders who, bound and gagged, were tied by their own sashes to trees some distance from the roadside.

"I've just thought of a little service you fellows can perform for me in return for what I've done for you. All the time you're doing it, however, there will be pistols quite close to your backs. Lady Deppingham is much too weak to take the five mile walk we've got to do in the next two hours—or less. You are to have the honor of carrying her four miles and a half, and you will have to get along the best you can with the gags in your mouths. Two of you form a basket with your hands. I'll show you how."

With Selim in the lead the little procession moved swiftly, but cautiously, through the black jungle, bent on reaching the gate if possible before the night lifted. Chase and Bobby Browne brought up the rear with the two reserve carriers in hand. Browne, weak and suffering from torture and exposure, struggled bravely along, determined not to retard their progress by a single moment of indecision.

In his heart Browne was now raging against the fate that had placed him in this humiliating, almost contemptible, position. He, and he alone, was responsible for the sufferings that Lady Agnes had endured. It was as gall and wormwood to him that other men had been ordained to save her from the misery that he had created. He could almost have welcomed death for himself and her rather than to have been saved by George Deppingham.

His wife! He could never be the same to her. He had forfeited the trust and confidence of the one being believer among them all. And now Lady Deppingham loathed him because his weakness had been greater than hers!

When he would have slain the four helpless islanders with his own hands Hollingsworth Chase had stayed his rage with the single, caustic adjuration:

"Keep out of this, Browne! You've been enough of a bounder without trying that sort of thing."

Tears were in Bobby Browne's eyes as mile after mile he blundered along, his heart bleeding itself dry through the wound those words had made.

It was still pitch dark when they came to the ridge above the park. Through the trees the lights in the chateau could be seen. Lady Agnes opened her eyes and cried out in tremulous joy

"You've labored well and faithfully," Chase said to the panting islanders, "and I'm going to reward you. I'm going to set you free, but not yet. Don't rejoice. First we shall tie you securely to four stout trees just off the road. Just as soon as we are inside the walls I'll find some way to let your friends know that you are here."

He and Selim promptly marched the bewildered islanders into the woods. Bobby Browne, utterly exhausted, had thrown himself to the soft earth. Lady Deppingham was standing, swaying, but resolute, her gaze upon the distant friendly windows. After a long, tense moment of indecision she held out her hands, and Deppingham sprang forward in time to catch her as she swayed toward him. She was sobbing in his arms. Bobby Browne's heavy breathing ceased in that instant, and he closed his ears against the sound that came to them.

Deppingham gently implored her to sit down with him and rest. At last she said:

"I've made you unhappy. I've been so foolish. It has not been fun, either, my husband. God knows it hasn't. You do not love me now."

He did not answer her at once, and she shivered fearfully in his arms. Then he kissed her brow gently.

"I do love you, Agnes," he said intensely. "I will answer for my own love if you can answer for yours. Are you the same Agnes that you were—my Agnes?"

"Will you believe me?"

"Yes."

"I am the same Agnes. I am your Agnes. I am! You do believe me?"

He crushed her close to his breast and then patted her shoulder as a father might have touched an erring child.

At last she spoke: "It is not wholly his fault, George. I was to blame. I led him on. You understand?"

"Poor devil!" said he dryly. "It's a way you have, dear."

The object of this gentle commiseration was staring with gloomy eyes at the lights below. He was saying to himself, over and over again, "If I can only make Drusie understand!"

Chase and Selim came down upon this little low toned picture. The former paused an instant and smiled joyously in the darkness.

"Five men are near the gate," he whispered. "They watch so closely that no one may go to rescue those who have disappeared. Friends are bidden inside the wall, ready to open the gate at a signal. They have waited with Neenah all night. And day is near, sahib."

"We must attack at once," said Chase. "Quiet now!"

Five shadowy figures soon were distinguished huddled close to the wall below the gate. The sense of sight had become keen during those trying hours in the darkness.

The islanders were conversing in low tones, a word or two now and then reaching the ears of the others.

Suddenly a blinding, mysterious light flashed upon the muttering group. As they fell back a voice, low and firm, called out to them:

HIGH-O-ME

Thats the Way to Pronounce Hyomei, the Money-Back Catarrh Cure

No doubt exists in the minds of many readers of the Review, let us say that the above is the proper pronunciation of America's most wonderful catarrh cure. Wm. Madill is the agent for Hyomei in Peterborough and he will sell you an inhaler, a bottle of Hyomei, and full instructions for use, for only $1.00.

And if it fails to cure acute or chronic catarrh, asthma, bronchitis, croup, hay fever or coughs and colds, he will give you your money back. The person who suffers with catarrh after such an offer as that, must like to snuffle, spit and wheeze, and be generally disgusting.

Read what Mr. Higginbotham, a respected citizen of Guelph, Ont., says of Hyomei.

"I have the best kind of reasons for giving Booth's Hyomei my hearty endorsement. I had suffered with an itching sensation in my throat, swelling of the nasal glands and glands leading to my eyes, in fact a genuine catarrh for several months. I used several remedies but received no relief until I used Booth's Hyomei. I am glad there is on sale a remedy that relieves like this one and also glad to endorse the use and speak a good word for Booth's Hyomei."—N. Higginbotham, 63 Queen street, Guelph, Ont.

A Cheap Bit of Real Estate.

Out in the shallows of Jamaica bay and within the city limits a man of the name of Meacham owns a bit of property which is valued on the tax books of New York city at 50 cents, and every year the tax assessors have to "view" it officially. This is probably the smallest parcel on the assessment books in New York if not in the world. It is a small cherry tree standing about fifteen feet above the water. According to the law in these matters, the tax assessors must view the property to be assessed "on the spot," and every year they row out to the tree and while there declare the tax of 50 cents.—New York Tribune.

Will Halley's Comet Touch Earth?

Whether Halley's comet will strike the earth, as the recent computations of Father Searle suggest, is still an indeterminable problem. This astronomer's calculations indicate that the famous comet will cross the face of the sun on May 18. If so, its great nebulous mass will doubtless pass near us, but that it will actually graze our planet can be positively ascertained only by later observations of the diameter of the comet's head and its exact path during May relatively to the earth's orbit.—New York Herald.

IS A GREAT FINANCIAL INSTITUTION

Remarkable Growth of the Sun Life Assurance Co.—Annual Statement Makes Interesting Reading

One of the great financial institutions of the Dominion is the Sun Life Assurance Company. Starting business in 1871 it has made wonderful progress and is now the greatest company of its kind in the country. Its remarkable growth is a tribute to the men who have been in charge of the company and to the wise and progressive policy that has been followed. The Sun Life is paying greater profits to its policy-holders than any other company. The thousands of satisfied, one might say delighted, policy-holders are one of the assets of the Sun Life.

Over twenty million dollars of insurance issued in one year is an event in the history of life insurance in Canada. In its annual report the Sun Life shows $21,509,273.16 policies to have been paid for in cash in 1909. This total reflects the healthy financial condition of the country and marks an era of unexampled progress. It also indicates the wide popularity of this company.

The profits of over a million dollars at a greatly reduced ratio of expense show the successful manner in which the company has been operated. The total life insurance in force in the Sun Life is now $129,933,639.52. The year has been a favorable one for the company, and the report published elsewhere makes interesting reading for all, and especially for the policy-holders of the company.

Mr. W. H. Hill, of this city, is the manager of the Sun Life in Central Ontario and he has done much for the extension of the company's business in Peterborough and district. There are hundreds of Sun Life policy-holders in Peterborough alone and they are sharing in the great prosperity of the company.

TELESCOPE FOR THE MEMBERS

Astronomical Society Likely to Buy One—"A Night With the Planets"

The meeting of the Royal Astronomical Society last evening in the Collegiate gave evidence of the increasing interest the public are taking in the study of astronomy. It must be very gratifying to the officials of the society to note the improvement in attendance and the apparent added interest.

It was "Beginners' Night" and the lecture was part chalk-talk and part stereopticon views, giving altogether a very comprehensive resume of the elementary principles of the movement of the planetary system and the characteristics of each of the planets comprising the solar family.

In opening the meeting the president, Mr. H. B. Collier, referred briefly to the condition of the sky at present in connection with the positions of the more prominent constellations and planets. He also noted an article by Prof. Maunder, of Greenwich, dealing with the latest conclusions relative to the planet Mars, to the effect that the atmospheric conditions there were such as to probably make it impossible to secure the flow of water through the so-called canals, in such quantity and for such a distance as an irrigation scheme would demand.

Several new members were proposed for membership and accepted accordingly.

The lecture of the evening was given by D. B. Marsh, Sc.D., under the title of "Among the Planets." He began the talk by using the blackboard to illustrate the meanings of a number of the terms used in astronomy, and as they were used so frequently it was necessary that all should have a clear idea of their significance and application.

Lantern views of the planets were then presented on the screen and and through some very wonderful mechanical slides the planets in their various orbits were set in motion and performed their movements before the eyes of the audience. Undoubtedly this was most comprehensive idea was thus presented of the planetary system.

Among the business items of the evening there was presented the question of the society securing a telescope for the use of members. It met with very favorable comment and accordingly it was decided to open a fund for this purpose, that the members and their friends might contribute to this object. The response was generous and no dout the remainder of the required sum will soon be secured and the telescope purchased.

LECTURED ON A TRIP TO ITALY

Rev. E. A. Pearson Delighted His Audience at Y.W.C.A.

At the Y.W.C.A. last night Rev. E. A. Pearson gave an illustrated lecture on "A Trip to Italy," which was listened to with much pleasure by his large audience. The beautiful scenes thrown on the canvas were explained in an interesting manner, and the evening was an enjoyable one for all. The views were shown by Mr. H. O. Fiske, and his kindness is much appreciated by those in charge at the Y.W.C.A.

During the evening Miss Olive Howell gave a vocal number and Miss Hope Miller a violin selection. Miss Bessie Mecome, of the Conservatory staff, presided at the piano. Sheriff Hall acted as chairman, and at the close of the lecture a vote of thanks was tendered Rev. Mr. Pearson on motion of Rev. Mr. Webb and Mr. B. Shortley.

THEATRICAL

Molly May

It is pretty safe to say that "Molly May" is the most entertaining and best dressed musical play that has appeared at the Grand this season, and there has been some pretty classy musical comedies here at that. The principals are clever and versatile, and both sections of the chorus work with intelligence and precision.

The plot of the play deals with the adventures and subsequent domestic misadventures of two stay-out-all-night prevaricators, who have a most uncomfortable time—most amusing from the audience's standpoint — in trying to satisfactorily explain their infraction of the accepted household rules.

Grace La Rue as Molly May, and Sidney Grant as Jack Willoughby, soon became immense favorites with the audience, and their vocal efforts and entertaining and bright acting won them enthusiastic approval, and no end of encores. Miss La Rue is a captivating comedienne and Mr. Grant is in a class by himself as an unaffected and resourceful juvenile. The two sang "Has Anybody Here Seen Kelly" in such an entertaining and amusing way that several minutes of the performance were taken up in their response to insistent recalls. Miss La Rue's "Play Hands" was also a novel and popular number, and Mr. Grant did the grand in the "Baby Grand" song that delighted everybody.

James E. Sullivan was "very tasty" as Senator Sparks, and provided a generous portion of the evening's laughter, and Kate Rolly was seen to much advantage as his firm ruling wife and mistress. Eva Fallon as Dorothy Dingle looked pretty and sang exceptionally well, revealing a powerful and brilliant soprano voice.

Altogether "Molly May" is an excellent musical offering.

GO WEST AND BE SURPRISED

Is the advice of Sir Charles Rivers Wilson

Real Estate is the great money-making medium of the West. Thousands of fortunes have been made by people who invested in Winnipeg, Regina, Edmonton, Calgary, Vancouver, Fort William and other Western towns, before the great developments took place which made them cities.

YOU WILL BE SURPRISED

how fast $100 invested in a likely townsite will grow. The same opportunities to buy before great developments took place are again offered to the people of the East.

WE SUBMIT

ENTWISTLE

FOR YOUR APPROVAL

Situated on the Grand Trunk Pacific, 65 miles west of Edmonton, it has all the resources necessary to make a great city. These include timber, coal, building stone, pulp wood, water power, and 2,000,000 acres of fine farming country tributary to the town.

Look before you leap. Don't pay inflated prices for Western Real Estate when you can buy first hand. Our prices are right and calculated to make a handsome profit for every investor

ENTWISTLE is not a prospective townsite. It was incorporated at the last session of the Alberta Legislature, and already has Post Office, Dominion Land Office, Board of Trade, Churches, School, Stores, Hotel, and many modern conveniences to its credit.

In addition the resources of Entwistle are:

Immense coal areas in the vicinity; exceptionally fine sandstone which experts claim rivals the celebrated Calgary sandstone; timber limits extending over 200 miles up the river, from which lumber will be cut by mills now erected here; pulpwood in abundance; many good homesteads yet to be had; splendid hay lands within short distance of town; inexhaustible water power supplied by Pembina and Lobstick rivers.

Large Coal Areas, 10,000 acres are optioned by an English syndicate who propose to spend $4,000,000 next summer. The coal is of good quality. Another large coal area adjoining the town will have a spur line run to it and start work.

Upon reliable authority it can be reasonably stated that the C. P. R. will run their line towards Entwistle this year and probably to McLeod River.

Two Companies have been floated to operate stone quarries in Entwistle this year, backed by good financial supporters.

Negotiations are under way for the erection of a pulp mill in the district, and this would mean employment for 1000 people.

An Entwistle Development Syndicate has been incorporated and hold sandstone and mineral rights, freehold land in the town, also sawmill outfit, planer, etc., and the erection of an excelsior factory is under the consideration of the Board.

These facts, with the great natural features for building up a town, should attract the attention of all interested in investments or speculations, also bring conviction to the Government of the readiness and adaptability of Entwistle to tackle this great land settlement scheme right now.

Mr. S. J. THOMAS, who is interested in Entwistle, is in the city, and would be pleased to make appointments with intending investors. Phone (126-60) or Call Statistics—Rev. D. A. Thomson, Rev. A. K. McLeod, Rev. Jas. Skene, Rev. R. Pogue, Rev. Dr. Marsh and Mr. Butrams, elder.

The Rev. S. S. Burns, convenor of Home Missions reported that continuous services had been given at Marmora and Harvey throughout the year. The people at Buckhorn are busy preparing to erect their new church which will be proceeded with at once.

Regarding the re-arrangement of the congregations in Chandos and Burleigh the whole matter was referred to the Home Mission Committee with power to act.

The Rev. Wm. Johnston for the Foreign Mission Committee reported gratifying progress. It was shown that if all the members gave ten cents per week it would give a splendid and very much needed addition to the missionary income. The following recommendations were adopted:

1. That the attention of elders and managers be drawn to the great value of the adoption of the Duplex envelope.

2. That sessions be urged to provide for an intelligent study of missions from time to time.

3. That the united prayers of the people be asked that there may be given to the congregations a vision of God and the attitude and interest of God in the world.

The Rev. Hiram Clark, from Honan, China, will visit the Presbytery during April and will no doubt give a great impetus to the work of missions.

Rev. R. J. Keith reported for the Sabbath School Committee. The standing of the numerical side of the work seemed to remain the same.

The financial aspect was encouraging and although there was a difference in the division of the givings over 1908 the aggregate was good.

The Committee recommended:

1. That when ministers make exchanges that they visit the Sabbath school and show their interest.

2. That the attention of the teachers and children be called to the question of missions arranged for each week.

Rev. Percy B. Thornton reported for the Committee on Church Life and Work. A most interesting survey was made of the development of the spiritual life of the churches throughout the Presbytery.

Reference was made to the great value of the simultaneous evangelistic campaign last November, and the committee find that many of the sessions anticipate a continuance of such missions from year to year.

Mr. Thornton recommended that some definite action should be taken to secure, stimulate and maintain the regular attendance on church services.

The Rev. D. D. McDonald, reported for the Young People's Society. There were 20 societies reported all in a healthy condition and doing excellent work in their different churches. There were five new societies organised during 1909. There are 817 members, an increase of 72, made up as follows:—318 male; 495, female. The number of communicants is 513 a gain increase of 193.

There was contributed by the societies $1,408, an increase of 471 over 1909.

The Rev. Mr. Beattie reported for Mr. Pogue the results of the Simultaneous Evangelistic Campaign held last November. From every quarter of the Presbytery came the message of great delight at the complete blessings the meetings had been to the congregations, and it was recommended:

1. That Presbytery expresses its appreciation of the help which was rendered in the recent evangelistic campaign by the General Assembly's committee, and also thank the many ministers of our church who, at much sacrifice, assisted at the movement.

2. That the Presbytery heartily endorse the simultaneous idea in evangelism, as best commanding itself to our Presbyteries and congregations, and as most likely to remove unreasonable prejudices which often exist against evangelistic services.

The Rev. J. G. Potter reported for the Social and Moral Reform Committee. The Presbytery adopted the following regulations:—

1. That in communities where there are a number of licenses that efforts be made to reduce them to the minimum.

2. That the Presbytery undertake to press the signing of the Total Abstinence Pledge throughout bounds of the Presbytery, and as far as possible get an enrollment of all pledged members.

3. That the subject of gambling be discussed publicly because of its great national character, and that the entire Presbytery be aroused to the terrible hold this awful vice has upon many of the public men of Canada, and that, because of the growing and dangerous tendency in the use of cards for profit or prize, our ministers be enjoined to discourage such use of card playing in Christian homes.

4. That the work of the Lord's Day Alliance in its fight against the desecration of the Lord's Day be encouraged and supported.

5. That the Presbytery place on record its high appreciation of the work of Mr. A. W. Beall, M.A., in his very commendable work of urging the claims of personal purity upon the hearts and conscience of the youth of our communities, and that our ministers be asked to encourage this work and assist Mr. Beall on his entrance to the schools within the bounds of the Presbytery. In this connection the Presbytery unanimously adopted the following resolution:—"The Presbytery of Peterborough at its regular meeting, held in the city of Peterborough on the 8th day of March, 1910, having heard of the excellent work of Mr. A. W. Beall, M.A., in various parts of the Presbytery for the promotion of personal purity among boys, does most cordially endorse his efforts and respectfully suggest to the Hon. Dr. R. A. Pyne, Minister of Education, that steps be taken to give this very important department official recognition. We feel that in Mr. Beall this work has a specialist of a very high order, and one whose usefulness should be extended to every school in the province."

Knox church intimated that the corner stone of the new building would be laid on Saturday, April 16th, and that the Lieut.-Governor would be present on that occasion. The Moderator and clerk of Presbytery were officially appointed to represent the Presbytery on that occasion.

Provisional arrangements were made for the ordination of Mr. Matthew Cree, B.A., at Norwood, on April 14th. The Moderator will preside, Rev. G. A. Brown will preach, the Rev. J. G. Potter will address the new minister, and the Rev. D. D. McDonald will address the congregation. The public service will be held at 2.30. Presbytery will meet at 10 a.m.

Messrs. Spear and Morrison, of Cobourg, were elected Elders.

The Presbytery will hold its next regular meeting the second Tuesday of July at 7.30 p.m., in Cobourg.

The Presbytery then adjourned to meet at Norwood on April 14th.

ACCIDENTS WILL HAPPEN

But This One Was Rather Costly, for Two Young Men

A pane of glass 22x64 in the front door of the Kingan Hardware Co., was broken on Saturday night, February 26th, but none of the four witnesses from the store could say who the guilty party was when asked for information at the police court this morning, and the two young men who were charged with disorderly conduct in front of the store on that night were discharged, the magistrate giving them the benefit of the doubt.

They had previously made a settlement for the damage done, and both claimed that the glass had been broken accidently.

The glass was valued at $6.50.

Meetings in Bethany Tabernacle

The meetings being held in Bethany Tabernacle have thus far been well attended and very profitable. Dr. Zimmerman's messages have been blessed to many hearts.

Last evening he spoke of the Lord's second coming as the Christian's hope and incentive to holy living. He said that if Christians realized the imminence and blessedness of that coming their hearts would find their joy and delight in fellowship with Jesus, and in seeking and saving lost souls. There would be no desire for the pleasures and frivolities of the world.

Dr. Zimmerman will speak again this evening, and each evening until Saturday, when the Rev. E. J. Richards, of Binghamton, N.Y., and the Rev. John Woodberry, of Shanghai, China, will speak. A four days' convention will follow.

LOCAL BONSPIEL WAS OPENED THIS AFTERNOON

This afternoon saw the opening of the local bonspiel at the curling rink, and judging by the great amount of interest displayed by the stone jugglers, it will be a big success. Fourteen rinks are playing this afternoon on splendid ice and there is a good attendance of spectators. Hastings, Keene and Hamilton are outside representatives. The prizes to be awarded are on exhibition in the south window of Neill's boot and shoe store and the list is an attractive and valuable one.

The skips of the rinks playing this afternoon are as follows:—

Davidson vs Brown.
Lang vs Hall.
Neill vs Moore.
McIntyre vs Smith.
Buchanan vs Connal.
Yeates vs Waddell.
Talbot vs Kenneally.

One consolation game was played last night and the rinks and scores follow.—

FINAL MEETING OF CHURCH LEAGUE

The final meeting of the Church Hockey League was held in the Y.M.C.A., last evening, the officers of the league and representatives of the teams being present. The report of Secretary Reed was, on the whole, satisfactory.

The games were all played at the Auditorium rink, but the attendance was small, and while each of the teams has to put up with a deficit, more success is looked for next season.

A presentation will be made to Mr. M. Quigley in recognition of his services as referee during the season.

SPORTING NOTES

Lehman, the Berlin goal tender, will not be eligible to play in the cup series if they are played this season.

Wanderers will likely play in New York on Tuesday and Wednesday, of next week.

Prisoner's Dock From Instinct.

The relation of stories in which a judge figured recalled an occasion a good many years ago when Justice MacMahon held the Assize Court in the old court house on Adelaide street, Toronto. The room was so arranged that when the clerk of the court called the name of each juryman selected to take his place in the jury box, he had to walk the length of the room from behind the rail, back of which spectators sat, to reach his own enclosure. In doing so he passed the prisoner's dock.

On this occasion the clerk called out the name of a juror, and the latter left his seat, but apparently did not know where to sit.

"Get into the box," called out one of the constables after him. The juror walked half the length of the room till he reached the prisoner's dock, when he stopped, opened the gate and walked in and seated himself. There was a laugh at the expense of the juryman, but Judge MacMahon whispered to one of the officials to scrutinize the identity of the man. It was soon discovered that he was an old hand in court, having been three times convicted of offences. He followed his natural instinct in hustling into the box when spoken to sharply.

CATCHING VOTES.

How Candidates Invoke the Sign of the X.

In these days there is no delectable Duchess of Devonshire to go the round of a shaky constituency, and buy up votes at the price of a kiss.

True, there is plenty of "lip" of a kind, and still more "cheek"—both feminine and masculine—brought to bear on the "free and independent" electors of the twentieth century; but as for kisses and caresses, these artful wiles of erstwhile lovely canvassers are now only practiced by unlovely candidates on innocent babes and sucklings.

Up-to-date would-be M.P.'s are, however, well aware that the way to an elector's vote is often through his offspring; hence, when making a personal canvass, a kiss is frequently bestowed on the baby of the house, in the hope that it will be duly returned by its time-honored "sign of the x" opposite the giver's name on the ballot-paper at the fateful poll.

And, writing of babes, one is reminded of the fact that at the general election in 1900 an infant in arms—or, rather, in perambulator—was one of the most interesting of the novel aids which secured the triumphant return of Mr. Marshall Hall, K.C., for the Southport Division of Lancashire.

As he was wheeled about, this juvenile canvasser made quite a brave show, sporting the colors of his candidate beneath the shelter of a silk Union Jack, which served as a cover for his carriage. A large card on a frame fixed to his "pram" proclaimed to the world that:

"Every youngster born alive
Is either Liberal or Conservative.
I'm a Conservative, not very tall,
So please vote for my friend, Mr. Marshall Hall."

Poor doggerel, perhaps, but certainly one of those novelties which add to the gaiety of electioneering.

More than one member of Parliament has literally sung himself into the House of Commons, but there is probably only one who has been returned through the vocal efforts of his wife.

At the time of the 1900 general election, the Hon. Arthur Brand was helping to fight his country's battles in South Africa. In order that his return for the Wisbech Division of Cambridgeshire should not be jeopardized by his absence, his devoted "better half" threw herself heart and soul into his electioneering campaign.

She laid siege to the hearts and votes of the electorate with the moving influence of sweet song, before which opposition disappeared and surrender became the order of the day. The absent candidate got in at the head of the poll.

In the course of the same general election the Right Hon. Arthur Balfour did a good stroke of business by "kicking off" at a match between Manchester City and Stoke, and the veracious chronicler of the incident has left it on record that the ball traveled a distance of some twenty yards as the result of the kick; while it also helped to put the ex-Prime Minister in training for Westminster, the goal for which he was striving.

Mr. Winston Churchill, when fighting for his seat in the last general election of the nineteenth century, descended a coal mine to unburden himself to the men.

In more than one instance members of the canine race have been employed in canvassing for would-be members of Parliament, but never probably with more disastrous results than in one of the North London constituencies nine years ago.

The four-footed canvasser in this case was a fox-terrier, which ran through the streets with a card round his neck bearing the candidate's name, and barking vigorously as he ran. His tour of the constituency was, however, suddenly brought to a full stop, for, unfortunately, a heavy wagon ran over the dog, and crushed the life out of the poor animal.

Woman's World

PRINCESS VICTORIA LOUISE.

The Kaiser's Daughter, Who Will Soon Make Her Formal Bow to Society.

Princess Victoria Louise, the kaiser's only daughter, will be the most famous debutante of the season. She has recently tucked up her hair and put on her first long dress preparatory to making her formal bow to high society. Although a very fortunate young lady, the most strictly chaperoned American bud will have more fun than this royal princess. The greatest pleasure of which the princess will be deprived is that of falling in love and of being the object of devotion. The princess probably will never have the exciting experience of being engaged more than once. Royal engagements are such complex affairs that the summer girl with her collection of rings and the winter beauty with her host of "tentative affairs" are fabulous creatures to the kaiser's daughter.

And, once married, no matter how unhappy or disappointed she may be, the easy escape of the fashionable American woman from ties that are distasteful is a closed avenue to her.

The marriage of this important debutante may have power to make history, to prevent wars and create world-wide alliances. In reality she is only a political pawn, and, no matter what poet or handsome lieutenant she may dream of, she will have as husband that prince who may offer the greatest political advantage to her father's empire.

The most brilliant match which has been mentioned for her is Prince Karl, heir presumptive to the throne of Austria. He is a handsome, manly fellow, the hope of his country, but in his veins runs blood that in this country would be looked upon almost as a bar to marriage. He is a son of the mad Archduke Otto, whose escapades were the scandal of Europe for years. However, difference of faith is apt to be a serious obstacle to this union.

PRINCESS VICTORIA LOUISE OF GERMANY.

The handsome King Manuel of Portugal is another who may be a suitor, but the insecure state of the throne in that country would hardly make a peaceful home possible.

Prince Leopold of Battenberg, brother of the queen of Spain, has been talked of, but the coming Grand Duke of Mecklenburg-Strelitz is regarded as her future husband by many belonging to court circles in Berlin.

The princess was confirmed recently, and a few weeks later the kaiser created her a colonel in the famous Second hussar guard regiment. She was mounted and looked her smartest in the frogged hussar jacket and dolman richly trimmed with black astrakhan and silver lace. Her fur busby bore in front the grim skull and crossbones in silver, which is the badge of the regiment.

She is going to reside in the palace near Potsdam known as Rheinsberg, a pretty little place with a pleasant garden and looking over a charming lake. She will command a staff of eight indoor servants. She will be the sole mistress of her castle and is setting up housekeeping on her own account.

The princess' boudoir and two reception rooms are in pink, the bedroom in white, with white enameled furniture. She has a fondness for maple wood, and as many rooms as possible are panoled with this wood and polished. In the spacious park two tennis courts, a croquet lawn and a skating rink, to be flooded in winter, have been laid out.

The princess paints in water colors, plays and sings prettily and has been taught to be an excellent housekeeper. Perhaps she would rather have the opportunity to exercise these talents in some happy, quiet home than attend the brilliant round of court balls and receptions that will be given in her honor as the most important debutante in the world.

Japan's Richest Woman.

Japan's richest woman shortly is to be a resident of New York city. She is Mrs. S. Takaki and is a daughter of the house of Mitsui, the Rothschilds of Japan. She has a fortune of $1,000,000 in her own right and is heir to a vast fortune. Her marriage to Takaki, who is a graduate from the University of Pennsylvania, took place in Tokyo on Oct. 9 last and was an event of great social importance. Her husband is to have charge of her father's interests in this country. She is a highly educated and cultivated little woman.

Fire which broke out in the Nationoscope Theatre, a nickle show, in Montreal, did $20,000 damage.

BEAUTY PRESCRIPTION.

An Eminent Physician Orders Chocolates For His Patients.

An eminent physician is prescribing for many of his young women patients half a pound of chocolate daily, to be eaten whenever the patient feels like it.

It is prescribed for beauty. Seems odd, does it not?

But the oddity of it is more striking when it is considered that the chocolate, in the opinion of the physician himself, is neither beneficial nor otherwise. He prescribes it in case of complexion trouble most particularly for no other purpose than to make the patient thirsty and thereby to compel her to drink water.

Two facts may be set down as undeniable—first, that few women drink as much water as they ought to drink; second, that this habit of not drinking enough water is largely accountable for troubles of the complexion.

Medical science tells us that purity of complexion depends first and fundamentally upon the condition of the interior of the body. If the latter be not kept thoroughly cleansed the skin will be muddy; hence the necessity of drinking plenty of water, which is the only effective agent that can be utilized for the purpose.

A girl goes to a physician and says to him plaintively: "What shall I do for my complexion? It is giving me a great deal of anxiety."

The doctor asks her a few questions and, if he knows his business, tells her to drink plenty of water—two or three quarts a day—to which she is more than likely to reply:

"Oh, doctor, I simply can't do that!" or, as more often happens, she assents and, not believing at all in the prescription because it is so extremely simple, fails to obey the advice.

Hence it is that the eminent physician aforementioned prefers to prescribe chocolate in considerable quantities, which his young women patients will take readily enough, and by this means to promote the drinking of water by engendering thirst.

Three out of four cases of muddy or otherwise bad complexions will be greatly benefited, if not entirely cured, by drinking plenty of water. And what is plenty of water? The body requires about a quart and a half to supply its own daily waste, but there ought to be a considerable surplus available for cleansing the internal mechanism.

Three quarts of water a day means twelve tumblerfuls. It may be found a little bothersome at first to take that much, but it is not really difficult at all if a good sized pitcher of water be kept conveniently at hand, and results will amply repay the trouble.

Muffs the Biggest Ever.

Muffs are perfectly enormous this season, and not only are they as wide as one can carry, but in many instances they extend quite to the hem of the frock. They are smart, these immense muffs, not alone in fur, but when combined with several materials. A very smart woman this winter is carrying a huge affair made to match her cloth walking gown. There is an outer flap or pocket into which small packages may be stowed. Bands of fur trim the edges.

The sentimental muff of the day is heart shaped. The freak example is the "dog muff," but the variety most used is the bolster shape. The "dog" model is made in imitation of a pet toy canine, generally of the "Pom" breed, and is worn under the arm. To be sure, there is a pocket into which the hands may be thrust when desired.

Sealskin and skunk, a popular combination this year of pelts, is used in the long muff and scarf set seen in the illustration. The scarf is a graceful type of the Victorian order evolved from sealskin edged with a rather wide band of skunk. These fur scarfs, by the way, are very fetching worn by the right woman.

"Growing Down."

Everybody has noticed that in extreme old age people grow rapidly shorter, so that a person formerly of average height "grows down" into quite a diminutive man or woman. A German contemporary points out that this decrease of height begins as early as the age of thirty-five years. At thirty, we are told, the human body has reached its full height, which is retained for a few years, after which the "growing down" process begins. At first and for many years the process is so slow as to be almost imperceptible, but at the age of about sixty it begins to be noticeable, and after seventy, even though a veteran does not stoop at all, the fact that he is "growing down" becomes apparent to all.

Insurance Companies Lose About $125,000.00 by the Wreck at Spanish River

Double Liability for About Twenty-five Persons

A loss of somewhere in the neighbourhood of $125,000 is what the Accident Insurance Companies estimate the wreck at Spanish River bridge means to them.

They figure that about 25 of those who met death carried Accident Insurance, and the average insurance, according to the tables, is $5,000. In case of death in a railway disaster there is a double liability, making the figure $6,000, or $5,000 to be more conservative.

Their loss may total more than that, for the commercial travellers, a number of whom were killed, usually carry very heavy insurance. In addition, some of the companies make the policies payable on the death of the wife while travelling, though the policy is taken out in the husband's name. In such cases they pay the husband the same amount as they would have paid the wife were the husband killed.

We issue the BEST Accident and Sickness policy offered to the public.

THE COST OF HIGH LIVING

Educating the Public in the Matter of Living Well and Cheaply

In an interview published originally in a Montreal paper and reprinted in this issue of the Northwestern Miller, Mr. F. W. Thompson, managing dircetor of the Ogilvie Flour Mills Company, makes a strong statement in behalf of bread, when considering the much discussed topic of the advanced cost of living. It is rather convincing proof that the increased expense is due more to luxurious habits than to necessity when bread remains, as it is, a comparatively neglected article of diet. If people actually felt the pinch of the increase, they would eat more bread and less meat and other expensive foods.

As Mr. Thompson points out, the average family spends more in reading matter and amusements in two months than its entire expense for bread in a whole year; the butter bill is actually double that of bread, the milk expense nearly three times as much. Mr. Thompson places the average per capita expenditure for bread in Canada at less than three cents a day.

Man can actually live by bread alone, if he actually wants to do so. The government reports prove conclusively its nutritive value. It is the healthiest, cheapest and best food in the market, yet while the public is bowling over the increased cost of living and Congress is investigating the cause; while we charge the condition to trusts, to the tariff, to the increased production of gold and to every other imaginable cause that we can think of, we stubbornly turn away from the best and cheapest food, because we have allowed ourselves to grow luxurious in choosing what we eat. We actually scorn bread, not because it is unappetizing, but because it is so cheap as to escape serious consideration.

Both bakers and millers could vastly increase the consumption of their output at this very opportune itime by calling the attention of the consuming public to the simple, sound merits of bread as an article of diet. People have overlooked the obvious advantage, both to purse and stomach, of eating more bread, in their foolish devotion to more expensive foods. They need to be reminded of the very easy method of reducing the cost of living which is within the grasp of every one. By eating more bread and cultivating a taste for this most wholesome and nutritious food, they can very materially reduce their expenses without neglecting in the slightest a strength and muscle producing diet.

The public really does not know how cheap and how good bread is compared to the other foods to which they have turned in their scorn of simplicity. It needs enlightenment and education, and the bakers and millers can individually do the world and themselves great service by exploiting in every way possible the strong and economic position in which bread stands compared to any other food now offered.

It is folly to contend that a man is forced to live expensively, while the consumption of bread is so small that three cents a day represents the average expenditure per capita. Life, wholesome, vigorous, effective life can be entirely sustained, if need be, at an expenditure of only six cents a day for bread. Moreover, people would be infinitely better off, mentally, morally, physically and financially, if they ate more bread and less of other foods.

There are tables which graphically show the difference between the cost of bread and other commodities which the public consumes. These should be placed before the people without unnecessary comment. They tell the true and simple story so plainly that even the most ignorant can understand their meaning. Millers and bakers should individually and collectively, use their utmost endeavors to get these facts before the public.

In such a showing there lies the answer to the claim of increased cost of living, that is, necessary increase. If a man will, he can emancipate himself entirely from the thraldom of high prices which now exhausts his endeavor. He can do so by the simple expedient of turning to the staff of life, never purer, better or comparatively cheaper than it is to-day, and avoiding foods which are as unnecessary to the proper maintenance of healthy vigor as they are out of proportion, in their cost, as strength and muscle producers. It is the province of the millers and bakers to call back the people to their old allegiance to bread as a sure protection against unnecessary extravagance in living.

Social Life Among Christians

To the Editor of the Review

Sir,—I have read with amusement the letter of a Mr. Carlisle in your paper of last night. The illustration of the man trying to commit suicide was most fitting. Evidently Mr. Carlisle intends to kill completely those who may or may not lose their lives by a dip in the surf.

One thing Mr. Carlisle would doubtless approve is this, that the Lord urged upon His people the need of social life among Christians, and also that the temple out of which he drove the desecrators He himself destroyed at death, when the veil of the temple was rent in twain and the priesthood and temple forever abolished and altars forever put away. The church of to-day is merely the meeting place of those who believe in and seek to follow the One who enjoyed feasts at the home in Bethany, in Cana and with Matthew, and in every case he gave the social gathering a spiritual turn, as I hope all the churches do which seek to obey the command "Be not forgetful to entertain strangers."

Yours sincerely,
LAWRENCE.

Find the Nigger

To the Editor of the Review.

Sir,—It seems to me that the City Council is anxious to run the tax rate up into the clouds. It is 22 mills this year, and if $70,000 is spent in a new power house where will we be? But, dear brother, is this the intention? Don't they know the by-law will be beat, that is those who are running it? I think they do, sir. And what are they up to, do you think? Peterborough town will be high and dry some of these days. Everybody knows that the power could be sold, as it is, without more fixtures. It's like putting a ten-thousand-dollar house on a Monaghan farm before selling it. Let the other fellow do that. No, sir, I believe somebody is fooling up about that power. However, it don't make much difference to this child; only it don't look reasonable, does it?

Yours, etc.,

Mr. Bailey Has No Sheep

To the Editor of the Review.

Sir,—The Examiner again raves about the dog. Might as well rave against the universe; and this is what these eugenical blasphemers are at. If dogs are after the sheep there is something wrong about the sheep or the shepherd. Could they not feed the dogs? I haven't any sheep, but my dog has senses human beings have not. He has the soul of a man. Which would you rather meet on a dark road, one hundred men off the streets or one hundred dogs? Ask a woman or child.

Turning God's House into a Restaurant

To the Editor of the Review.

Sir,—Not long ago the writer heard a prominent Rev. D.D. of the Methodist Church of Canada announce from his pulpit in this city, that the proposed church supper for raising funds would be called off and a free-will offering would be taken from the congregation instead. He added: "There is no religion nor business in turning God's house into a restaurant." The free-will offering was taken and exceeded far the amounts realized from previous church suppers.

Thanking you, Mr. Editor, for your kindness in publishing my letters, I remain,

Yours, &c.,

A PRESENTATION

Madoc, March 8.—A very pleasant evening was spent at the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. Holland, Saturday evening, February 26th, in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Noyes, who are leaving for Kisbey, Sask., March 1st. They were presented with a beautiful linen tablecloth and one-half dozen best silver teaspoons. The address read by Mr. W. Blakely was as follows:—

To Mr. and Mrs. Noyes:

Dear Friends,—It is with deep feelings of the loss from our midst that we, your friends, have assembled this evening for a few hours of social intercourse with you before your intended departure from us. We have felt that we could not let you depart without some token of remembrance to you. It is not for their instrinsic value that we present these articles to you, but we trust as you carry them with you, they may bring pleasant memories of your loving friends, and that the hand of Providence may guide you along life's journey wherever your lot may be cast.

A. HOLLAND,

Mr. Noyes responded in a few well chosen words.

Mr. Noyes is a cousin of Messrs. Charles and John Noyes, of Ashburnham.

NEWSY NOTES FROM THE VILLAGE OF NORWOOD

Special to the Review.

Norwood, March 8.—The beautiful spring-like weather of last week played havoc with the sleighing in the country. Many of the roads are now bare, while in other places snow drifts cover the roads making either wheeling or sleighing very unsatisfactory.

There is now some danger that this fall wheat and clover may be killed by spring frosts as many of the fields are exposed to the hot sun by day and the severe frosts at night.

A very successful auction sale of farm, stock and implements was held on Tuesday at the home of Mr. Thos. McMillan of Dummer. Prices ruled high. Hens brought 69c. each. Geese sold at $2.70 each and cows averaged about $50 each. Horses sold at good prices, while the farm machinery brought in most cases good average prices. Altogether Mr. McMillan is well pleased with the prices obtained. Auctioneer McKelvie conducted the sale.

Mr. McMillan has sold his farm to Mr. Edwards, of Dummer, and has purchased the H. N. Drain property in Norwood, where he will reside in the future.

Mr. John Patterson, of South Dummer, will sell his farm, stock and implements by public auction on Thursday afternoon of this week. J. R. McKelvie will wield the hammer. Mr. Jas. Calder spent last week in Peterborough assisting in the auditing of the county books.

Mr. T. J. Rahal, who has been in the hardware business for the past two years in the old Fraser stand has sold out to Mr. J. W. Rork, of this place. Mr. Rork intends to move the stock to his own store and in future there will only be one hardware store in Norwood.

Miss Tait, of Hastings, who has a large number of pupils in music in Norwood, held a recital at the home of Mrs. Thos. Loughbridge on Friday evening of last week. Nearly all of Miss Tait's pupils took part in the recital and those present were surprised and delighted with the progress many of the young folks were making in the art of music.

Rev. Mr. MacLarren, of Toronto, gave an address accompanied by appropriate lime light views on India on Monday evening in the Presbyterian church.

Mr. McLeod, who has been in the Union Bank here as teller for the past couple of years has been transferred to one of the bank's eastern offices. We understand the transfer means a much merited advancement to Mr. McLeod, who has during his stay in Norwood, won the esteem and respect of the patrons of the bank as well as the citizens in general by his business-like accommodating and gentlemanly demeanour. While we regret to lose Mr. McLeod in Norwood, we still are glad to note his advancement in his profession.

We understand that three of our Norwood citizens have each purchased a gasoline launch for Stony Lake, to use during the summer holiday season.

Mr. James McNicholl, of Norwood, had the good fortune in a real estate deal in Vancouver recently to clear up the tidy sum of seven thousand dollars.

Capt. Smith, of Belleville, has purchased the steam barge Calvin.

DEAN CONNELL SAYS STUDENTS MAY HAVE TO ROB COUNTRY CEMETERIES

Special to the Review.

Toronto, March 9.—The Ontario Government has decided to increase the number of high court judges by two. The bench asked for three.

The Private Bill Committee agreed to incorporate the Hamilton School of Anatomy. Queen's University opposed, claiming that there were not enough dead bodies for present needs. Sixty or seventy were handed out from jails, houses of industry, etc. each year, but Queen's got only one in 1907, and four in 1908. Unless there was some remedy made students would have to rob country grave yards. The Government had refused to give up bodies of unclaimed patients in asylums.

GRAPPLING WITH PROBLEMS OF THE DAY "A MAN'S JOB"

The recently organized Brotherhood of St. Paul held it's first regular meeting last evening in St. Paul's church, with Dr. Taylor of Cooke's church, Toronto, as the speaker. Dr. Taylor chose as his subject, "A Man's Job," and succeeded in showing the members of the Brotherhood that they have great possibilities ahead of them in their work, not only as it pertains to church work itself, but to the larger public questions of the day as well. Dr. Taylor pointed out that the great questions of capital and labor and of social reform were pressing for solution. Hitherto, Christian men in the churches have been practically dead as far as grappling with these questions is concerned. The issues of the day have been passing by the churches because the men in the churches have not taken hold of their job. Unless the men in the churches give these problems intelligent consideration and take concerted action to bring about improvements, the men outside of the churches will undertake to do so to the disgrace of the church.

The men's organizations in the churches should prepare programmes of definite work and should stand by the job through fair weather as well as through foul. Only by appreciating the importance of their work and the responsibility that rests on them can they hope to accomplish definite results for good.

Some short speeches made on the conclusion of Dr. Taylor's address by the President of the Brotherhood, Mr. Percy McLean, who presided, by Rev. Robert Pogue and Messrs. H. B. Cowan and James Connal, showed that the members of the Brotherhood appreciated the importance of the message that had been given them. Dr. Taylor suggested that the Brotherhood should meet weekly. This suggestion may be adopted. The Brotherhood is planning aggressive building work that should be productive of much good. The musical portion of the programme was furnished most acceptably by the Misses Davies, Lillian Moore and M. G. McCaw.

THE CAST OF "SHAUN RHUE"! AT THE GRAND MARCH 17TH

A finished and interesting presentation of Shaun Rhue should be given by the amateurs of the T.A.S dramatic section when this celebrated Irish play is produced at the Grand Opera House on Thursday, March 17th. The members of the cast have been most faithful in their attendance at the rehearsals, and all the details of the play have been worked out very thoroughly under the able direction of Mr. George Lynch. Those who have seen the rehearsals say that the attraction of this season will be the most satisfactory of any given under T.A.S. auspices.

The cast will be:—

Shaun Rhue—Mr. George Lynch.
Patrick Kavanaugh—Mr. Wm. O'Brien.
Gerald Kavanaugh—Mr. W. Cahill.

Peter Callaghan—Mr. James O'Brien.
Bryan Callaghan—Mr. John King.
Waddy—Mr. John Gorham.
Tim—Mr. Egbert Kelly.
William Summerfield — Mr. Claude Brady.

The play is in four acts and the story of the drama, which is widely known, is a highly interesting one.

WAS HONORED BY FRIENDS IN OTONABEE

A very pleasing function took place at the residence of Mr. Thomas Jackson, Otonabee, Monday night, when Mr. Adam Thompson, who is leaving for Indian Head, Sask., was presented with a gold watch and fob, accompanied by the following appreciative address;—

March 7th, 1910.

Dear Mr. Thompson,—On this, the evening previous to your departure from our midst, we, your relatives and friends, have gathered together to spend another few of the many pleasant hours we have often spent in your company.

Mr. Thompson, you are leaving Otonabee carrying with you the admiration, love and good wishes of all those who have had the privilege of knowing you. You are leaving behind you a host of friends, and while regretting much your departure, at the same time feel it inevitable, knowing that you are going to a country where opportunities unceasingly present themselves to a man of your capabilities.

Mr. Thompson, in your choosing a new home in the West, we wish you unlimited success, and would have you in your lonesome hours there—if any you have—to think of your many friends here, who will always be interested in your welfare.

Especially in our social gatherings we will miss you; but we must console ourselves in this case as in many others. What is the loss of the East is unquestionably the gain of the West.

Now, Ab.—if you will pardon us for using that most familiar to us—we feel that we cannot let you go from among us without taking some small token of remembrance, which although small, may remind you of the space you hold in the hearts of your friends here. We therefore beg of you to accept this as a memento from your old associates.

Signed on behalf,

FRED. FOOT.
EDGAR RUTH.

A very enjoyable "At Home" was the occasion of the presentation, and about eighty were in attendance. Stewart's orchestra provided excellent music.

Disease of The Kidneys Brought on By Catarrh.

Pe-ru-na Made a Well Man of Me.

I Cannot Speak Too Highly of It.

Mr. George King, 63 St. Denis St., Montreal, Canada, a well-known business man of that city, writes:

"Pernna cured me from what the doctors were afraid would turn into Bright's disease, and after you have gone through the suffering that I have with catarrh of the bladder and kidney trouble, and have been cured you are pretty apt to remember the medicine that did the work.

"Peruna is a blessing to a sick man. Eight bottles made me well and were worth more than a thousand dollars to me. I cannot speak too highly of it. It is now four years since I was troubled, and I have enjoyed perfect health since. Every spring and fall I take a bottle of it and it keeps me well."

MR. GEORGE KING

CATARRH of the kidneys is a very much neglected disease.

It is not until the disease has a firm hold upon the kidneys that the patient begins to realize that there is some derangement of these organs.

The slight backaches, the feelings of lassitude, and other warning symptoms of kidney disease are overlooked.

They are not serious enough to detain the patient from his regular work.

Even when he discovers that the kidneys are affected, he does not recognize the difficulty as being caused by catarrh.

INTERNAL CATARRH REACHES THE KIDNEYS.

Catarrh is sometimes so very gradual in its approach and its earlier symptoms cause such slight discomfort that it is not noticed.

However, when it is once firmly seated in the kidneys it becomes a difficult disease to exterminate.

Indeed, catarrh of the kidneys is more serious than catarrh affecting some of the other organs of the body.

In the kidneys it is liable to terminate in Bright's disease or diabetes, both of which are recognized as very serious ailments, if not fatal.

The thing to be done, when catarrh of the kidneys is discovered, is to take some internal, systemic catarrh remedy, one that reaches the very source of the catarrh and removes the cause of the difficulty.

Such a remedy has been found in Peruna. It reaches catarrh, no matter where it may be located in the body—whether in the more exposed membranes of the nose and throat, or whether in the remotest part of the kidneys.

PE-RU-NA AN INTERNAL CATARRH REMEDY.

That Peruna is at once the safest and most reliable remedy for catarrh of the kidneys is proven by the many testimonials written by those who have experienced its benefits.

The testimonials given here are only specimens of the many testimonials on our records, pertaining to the relief afforded by Peruna in severe cases of kidney trouble.

Kidney Disease of Long Standing.

Mr. Samuel A. Paxton, 1118 Troost Ave., Kansas City, Mo., member I. O. O. F. and National Annuity Association, writes:

"I am a well man to-day, thanks to your splendid medicine, Peruna. I was troubled with catarrh and kidney disease of long standing when I first began using Peruna. I soon found I was getting better and continued taking it for four months. It cleaned out the system, leaving me well and strong and feeling better than I have in years."

NAVY BILL VOTE IS TAKEN IN HOUSE OF COMMONS

Government Has a Majority of 55 Against Amendment—Mr. Monk's Proposal to Submit the Measure to the People is Defeated by 175 to 13.

Ottawa, March 10.—The air of the House of Commons Chamber was charged with excitement, when shortly after midnight this morning, the first vote on the amendments to the Government's navy bill was called by the Speaker.

F. D. Monk's amendment, which demanded a plebiscite of the people on this great question, which has already been debated in the House for five weeks, was put to the members and was defeated by 175 votes to 18.

The following voted for Monk's amendment: Messrs. Verville (Lib.), Doherty, Broder, Wilcox, Monk, Lewie, Forget, Worthington, White (Renfrew), Lortie, Paquet, Currie (Simcoe), Chisholm (Huron), Herron, Sharpe (Ontario), Nantel, Blondin and Jameson, 18.

Amongst the Conservatives who voted against Monk's amendment were: Messrs. Borden, Armstrong, Haggart, Sexsmith, Wright, Boyce, Lake, Wilson (Lennox and Addington), Staples, Richards, Hughes, Sproule, Lalor, Owen, Lancaster, Porter, Barnard, Crothers, Smythe, Gordon (Nipissing), Thoburn, Robb, Magrath, Maddin, Middleboro, Haggart (Winnipeg), Lennox, Roche, Meighen, Thornton, Edwards, Campbell, Fraser, Russell, Best, Blair, McCarthy, Wallace, Stewart, Taylor (Leeds), Taylor (New Westminster) and Goodeve.

The Government had anticipated that the vote on Mr. Borden's amendment would be taken immediately afterwards, but to the surprise of most of the members, Mr. Thoburn, the Conservative member for North Lanark, rose to his feet, and, in the most matter of fact tone, continued the navy debate. He was questioned by one or two Liberal members as to whether he had already spoken on the question. He replied in the negative.

Prior to the taking of the vote the scene was an interesting one, the galleries were crowded to their utmost capacity, ladies in evening dress predominating.

The Liberals sang "O Canada" in French, and in response the Conservatives, led by C. L. Owen, sang "God Save the King." The Liberals immediately joined in the National Anthem, the whole House standing, and at its conclusion rousing cheers were given by both sides.

When silence had been restored, Dr. Clark of Red Deer called "Three cheers for Sir Wilfrid Laurier." These were heartily given. The Conservatives replied with "Three cheers for Mr. Borden," and there was a contest of lungs with much waving of handkerchiefs.

Mr. Thoburn was proceeding to quote a recent speech by King Edward when he was called to order. He concluded his speech at 12.40 p.m., and the Speaker put Mr. Borden's amendment to the House.

Meanwhile the Conservatives sang "Rule Britannia" and "God Save the King."

Six Conservatives from the Province of Quebec voted against Mr. Borden's amendment, which called for a contribution of Dreadnoughts to Great Britain and a reference to the people of the question of a Canadian navy. They were Messrs. Monk, Paquet, Nantel, Blondin, Lortie and Forget. Mr. Clare (Con., South Waterloo), also voted with the Government, as did Mr. Verville.

The Opposition leader's amendment was voted down by 129 to 74, a Government majority of 55, the largest during the present Parliament.

All the English-speaking Conservatives who voted with Mr. Monk, voted with Mr. Borden the second time.

W. B. Northrup, East Hastings, then announced that he had an important amendment to move, and suggested that as the hour was late, the House might adjourn. In this the Premier concurred.

Mr. Northrup, it is learned, will move at the next sitting of the House that the navy bill be given a six months' hoist.

In view of the fact that seven Conservatives voted with the Government, Sir Wilfrid Laurier's majority should have been 63.

It was noticeable when the Conservatives cheered Mr. Borden, that Mr. Monk was the only one of the party who sat silent.

ALBERTA GOVERNMENT FALLS AT HANDS OF INSURGENTS

Premier Rutherford Resigns and Hon. W. Buchanan Also Steps Out—Feeling Among Conservatives and Liberals Over the Alberta and Great Waterways Railway Deal Results Collapse of the Cabinet.

Edmonton, Alta., March 10.—Premier Rutherford is expected to formally resign the administration of Alberta Government to-day. With him will go the remnant of his Cabinet, Hon. Duncan Marshall, Minister of Agriculture, and Hon. P. E. Lessard, Minister without portfolio.

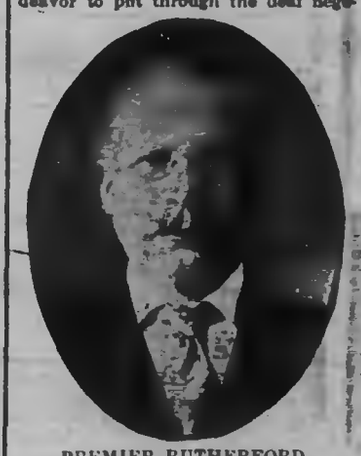
Hon. C. W. Cross Attorney-General, and Hon. William Buchanan, Minister without portfolio, resigned yesterday morning, and Premier Rutherford faced the House yesterday afternoon in company with only one Minister, Lessard.

The Premier is already believed to have handed his written resignation to the Lieutenant-Governor.

Already supporters of Cross are getting busy in an effort to make him the leader of the reorganized Liberal party.

Hon. W. H. Cushing, resigned Minister of Public Works, will also be called upon to lead the party, and a fight will be between these two in the election that is expected within a very short time.

The fall of the Rutherford regime has been brought about by the endeavor to put through the deal negotiated for the construction of the Alberta and Great Waterways Railway, which was planned to open up the homestead land to the north, and to open the way to the great mineral fields of Alberta. The object was laudable enough, but the details were not to the liking of the Liberals in the southern sections of Alberta. An "insurgent" feeling soon developed in the present Legislature, which opened a moth or so ago, and the resignation of Hon. Mr. Cushing, Minister of Public Works, three weeks ago, infamed the Opposition to the deal.



PREMIER RUTHERFORD.

Alberta's Premier and members of his Cabinet dreamed of a greater Alberta with railways extending far to the northward, giving depth as well as width to the province. The Alberta and Great Waterways Railway, which is said to be backed mainly by a group of Kansas City bankers, took form and the Government was asked for assistance.

An agreement was framed by which the railway was guaranteed $20,000 a mile. It is on the terms of this agreement that the Minister of Public Works disagreed from the Government. He claimed that the Canadian Northern Railway had undertaken certain extensions on a much more reasonable basis. The Canadian Northern guarantee was on a bond guarantee basis of $13,000 a mile, and he contended that there was no justification for the more extensive guarantee to this new system. He pointed out that the Canadian Northern had a main line eastward and that the construction of the railroad had a greater value to the province than a line which extended northward with no main line connections to the east.

Enemies of the administration and friends of Mr. Cushing have claimed that the road will cost in some sections not more than $8,000 a mile and that the Government is being called upon to pay $20,000, thus affording the promoters of the railway unlimited opportunities for immense personal profit. Cushing charged that the Cabinet had approved the deal before he himself had inspected the plans.

Premier Rutherford, in defending the agreement, and referring to hints at graft, said:

"I know full well that temptations are sometimes placed in the way of public men by unscrupulous individuals. It is for our public men to resist these temptations.

"From what I have observed and learned within the last few days I have almost arrived at the conclusion that there is a nest of traitors in the Liberal camp in Alberta. It is not the largest nest. I don't couple the name of the ex-Minister of Public Works with that nest. That would be ungenerous, but I think that he has been misled—he has been duped. If left to his own calm judgment he would still be an honored and honorable member of my Cabinet."

Found $30,000.

Manchester, N.H., March 10.—Thirty thousand dollars worth of ambergris accidently picked up in the St Lawrence River was the lucky find of a Manchester painter recently while on a fishing trip to Canada.

The Difference In the Morning.

Kingston, March 10.—John Sears of Inverary went around to see the sights with a stranger. When he came to, he found himself in a henroop, and his furlined coat, gold watch and $1? gone.

PREMIER WHITNEY IN FAVOR OF CHECKING JOY-RIDERS

Pedestrians Has the Right of Way, Says Sir James, and the Chauffeur Must Respect it or Pay the Penalty Mr. MacKay Also Favors it.

Toronto, March 10.—Dare-devil drivers of speed Juggernaut motors were the subject of an impressive warning by the Prime Minister of Ontario in the Legislature yesterday afternoon.

The Premier, who spoke with some warmth, declared that the question was one that would have to engage the serious attention of the Government of the day at no distant period. He did not favor a low speed limit. It was not necessary, but he would place the responsibility for accidents on the driver.

The need of drastic measures was emphasized by Sir James in connection with the bill of Valentine Stock (South Perth), which followed the same lines as his measure of last session, was under discussion.

"The reason," said the Premier, "is not that the municipalities own the highways. The municipalities are only trustees of the highways for all the people of the province. They have no right to legislation to keep people off the highways.

"But the pedestrian has the first right to the road. The chauffeur who thinks that, because he gives warning of his approach is entitled to the road, is utterly and entirely wrong. He comes after the pedestrian, and even after the man on the bicycle. It is not the pedestrian who must get out of the way of the automobile, but the automobile that must get out of the road of the pedestrian, even if he is standing still.

"Probably if the ordinary driver of a motor car could get it sunk deep down into his understanding that twice in the last year the driver of a car conveying His Majesty's mail in London was told by a police magistrate that he had no right of way on the highway, he might begin to realize his legal position."

Sir James has been noticing cars on his way to the buildings, and he didn't think one was traveling within the legal rate.

There was no real reason for their doing so, he thought, on streets where there was no traffic. He favored the adoption of the English practice (lately adopted in New York), by which a limit of say 30 miles an hour would be set and then, no matter what the rate was, would make the driver responsible for accidents.

"The way 50 per cent. of the drivers act," said Hon. A. G. MacKay, "would lead you to believe that when that 'honk' goes King Edward VII. is coming."

He thought the provision in Mr. Stock's bill, taking away the chauffeur's license for the second conviction was a good one. There were big men who didn't care anything for the small fry, but who might have a chauffeur whose services they valued and whom they would not like to lose.

He agreed with the Premier that the King's highway was for all of the King's subjects, but it was necessary to do something. He hoped that the reasonable and honest owners would do something to prevent the necessity of too drastic legislation.

The bill was given its second reading, and sent to the municipal committee, to see if any of its provisions might with advantage be incorporated in the legislation on the subject.

Sir James Whitney entered public protest against the inconsistency of members decrying the indiscriminate giving of bonuses and then coming to the Legislature and introducing "all sorts of bills that under ordinary circumstances would not come within speaking distance of the statute."

The occasion of the Prime Minister's declaration was the passage of the second readings of four bills respecting the town of Barrie and the Township of Tay. These were let through, as little loss to the communities involved would result, but the warning stands.

Some discussion ensued on the bill of W. S. Brewster (South Brant) to permit the election of benchers of 20 years' standing as life members of the Law Society. The Premier intimated that he had an open mind on the question and that Government members were at liberty to vote as they pleased. Hon. J. J. Foy thought it was a matter for the sense of the majority of the members of the Bar. On the Premier's suggestion the bill was sent to the legal committee to allow members to communicate with constituents regarding it.

J. C. Elliott (West Middlesex) gives notice that he will enquire of the Ministry as follows: What sums of money have been given by the Province of Ontario to colleges or universities in Ontario during each of the years 1906, 1907, 1908 and 1909, with the particular amount given to each in each year?

Fought a Duel.

Rome, March 10.—Deputy Chiesa and Gen. Prudente, the Under Secretary of State for War, fought out their grievances yesterday.

Chiesa was wounded slightly in the face.

Gen. Prudente had been offended by the deputy's references in the Chamber to Madame Sieman.

Man Free; Woman Convicted.

St. Petersburg, March 10.—Nicholas Tschaikovsky, who was being tried on the charge of criminal activity in the revolutionary organization was acquitted here yesterday.

Madame Breskovskaya, who was being tried at the same time, was convicted and sentenced to be exiled.

Toronto, March 10.—George Aird of 33 Nelson street, Brantford, died in St. Michael's Hospital yesterday. He was taken there Tuesday suffering from convulsions.

BAD FLOOD AT CHATHAM

Thirty Square Miles Are Under Water—Railway Traffic May be Cut Off.

Chatham, March 10.—At five o'clock yesterday afternoon, the flood situation at Prairie Siding was unchanged.

The jam moved about a quarter of a mile during the night, and about sixty feet yesterday, but it is now wedged tighter than ever.

The torrent is running seven feet deep over the Prairie Siding district, and over the railway tracks in places, and the construction men have all they can do to keep up the ballasting.

It is feared that they will not be able to cope with it much longer, and traffic on the Grand Trunk and Wabash between here and Detroit will be cut off.

The Prairie Siding district has now been submerged for seventy-two hours, and the farmers living on the plains have been cut off from communication all this time.

The district covered by water comprises thirty square miles. Indications are that the flood will last for two weeks or longer. Attempts to dynamite the jam have proved a failure.

Thamesville is inundated, and the northern part of Wallaceburg is under water.

A report from Kentbridge yesterday afternoon states that there is a big jam at this point, and the steel bridge at that point may be carried away.

Chatham has so far escaped the freshet, though there is water in most of the basements and cellars. If the blockade does not break up within twenty-four hours, it is likely the water will be in Chatham.

A Bold Black Squirrel

Mr. George Cochrane is keeping his weather eye open for a black squirrel which has made its appearance in the trees near his home on George street every spring for a number of years. So far this season it has not showed up.

LATEST ABOUT THE STRIKE SITUATION

Philadelphia, March 10—In addition to the strike of 1,000 men of the Baldwin Locomotive Works, an important acquisition to the ranks of the strikers was announced last night from Camden, N.J., where 1,500 carpenters went out. About the same number quit work at suburban points along the Pennsylvania Railroad's main line, and the men declared that if necessary 2,500 more carpenters would be called out in Montgomery County, next adjacent to Philadelphia, to-day.

There may be trouble at a proposed open-air strike meeting at the National League Baseball Park to-day. The police have prohibited it.

JEALOUS OF CULTURE AND REFINEMENT

London, March 10.—(C.A.P. Cable.) At the Royal Colonial Institute, Dr. H. B. Gray said that from a fairly extensive acquaintance with Canadians of many different callings, he was inclined to think they had a tendency to exaggerate the failings and angularites of island-born Englishmen.

Perhaps they were somewhat jealous of the culture and refinement of manner which seems the property of those who possess centuries of traditions and customs behind them.

Prof. Grant said that while the English public schools educated for the governing class, and that while there was sometimes friction when the public school boy emigrated, if however, such boy became acclimatized, there was no better stuff in the colonies.

HURT WHILE ATTENDING CONVENTION

St. Catharines, March 10.—Fred Dane of the T. & N. O. Railway Commission sustained a painful injury here yesterday morning.

On the way from the station he fell on the icy sidewalk and sprained his hip. Dr. Greenwood examined him at the Welland Hotel, but found no bones broken. The ligaments of Mr Dane's hip are badly bruised. He will probably be confined to the house for a week.

Mr. Dane came here to attend the Grand Orange Lodge, of which he is deputy grand master.

ANOTHER SLIDE IN THE ROCKIES

Vancouver, March 10.—Another slide occurred yesterday morning a mile west of Glacier. It was half a mile long and thirty feet deep.

It is filled with rocks and timbers. Because of this, all trains will, until further notice, be handled by way of Nelson and the Crow's Nest.

Forty-one bodies in all have been recovered.

Traffic In Young Calves.

Brockville, March 10.—An officer from the Agricultural Department boarded a cattle train at Prescott on Tuesday and made an examination of the live stock that was being shipped to Montreal.

He counted no less than 56 calves some of which were not older than one day.

Interfered In Dog Fight and Is Bitten.

Kingston, March 10.—While trying to separate three dogs fighting on the barracks square, Sergt. Hart of B Battery was badly bitten about the face and neck by one dog, which was shot and the head sent to Toronto to be examined for rabies.

FARMER WINS AN INTERESTING CASE

Woodstock, March 10.—E. D. Service, a West Oxford farmer, whose farm was burned recently, was awarded $1,000 against the Waterloo Mutual Co. at the high court yesterday.

He gave a note for the premium, but the policy wasn't delivered to him by the local agent, and in the meantime the fire took place. The company had raised the rate on him, which he refused to pay.

The judge held that the note covered the policy, although it was for the smaller amount, and gave a verdict against the company with costs.

LIFE-SAVING STATION AT THREE ISLANDS

St. John, March 10.—J. A. Legree, of the Marine and Fisheries Department, Halifax, announces here that the Department has decided to build a life-saving station on Three Islands between Grand Manan and Ganet Rock, which is near the scene of last autumn's wreck of the Donaldson liner, when forty lives were lost.

There will be a modern shed for the life-boat, and a dwelling situated so as to allow free observation by the man in charge.

INAUGURATION OF AERIAL SERVICE

Munich, Bavaria, March 10.—The first regular air navigation service in Europe will be inaugurated on May 15.

Regular trips will be made from this city alternately to Starnberg and Oberammergau.

A dirigible balloon of the Parseval type, having a gas capacity of 6,700 cubic metres and driven by two motors of 100 horsepower each, will be used.

The aerial carriage will accommodate twelve passengers besides the crew. The fare for the round trip to Starnberg will be $55, and for the round trip to Oberammergau $175. The regular service will close for the season on Sept. 1.

An officer of the German aeronautic corps has been detailed to serve as captain of the dirigible.

LATE TICKS FROM WIRES

Hogs sold at $10.60 per cwt. at Pittsburg yesterday.

J. H. Fryer's residence at Galt was burglarized Tuesday night.

Dr. G. W. Bell has been appointed inspector of live stock at Kingston.

Ronald Davidson, a C.P.R. employe, aged 26, had both legs crushed at Fort William.

Principal Gordon of Queen's University, emphatically denies a report that he intends to resign.

King Gustave of Sweden, who recently was operated on for appendicitis, is en route to the Riviera.

The militia is on duty at Corinth, N.Y., where employes of the International Paper Co. are on strike.

Rufus Isaacs, newly-appointed solicitor-general of Great Britain, has been re-elected unopposed for Reading.

The infant daughter of John Lyons, a farmer, near Port Law, P.O., died suddenly on Sunday while out in a cutter with the parents.

It is learned that the Pope has cabled to John D. Rockefeller, congratulating him on his latest plan to endow a great philanthropic organization.

Practical jokers invaded the Brantford dog pound and, removing the dog wagon to Lorne Bridge, dumped the outfit into the swift current of the Grand River yesterday.

Mrs. Elizabeth Stock died in the Ottawa hospital yesterday as the result of injuries received when the cook stove in her home blew up on Tuesday. She was horribly burned.

Rioting which began with a quarrel between the manager of an American-owned street railway at Bogota, Colombia, and a police officer on Monday, continues. The anti-American feeling is intense.

RUTHERFORD IS STILL IN OFFICE

Special to the Review.

Edmonton, March 10.—Premier Rutherford and two ministers are still in office. Twelve Liberals are in revolt and Frank Oliver is behind them.

DARING ROBBERY OF MAIL

Windsor, March 10.—A daring mail robbery in which nearly every bank in Windsor is involved has just been made public.

The robbery occurred on the evening of Feb. 8, when checks and drafts to the amount of about $18,000 were stolen from the mail bag when in transit between Windsor and Toronto.

The robbery has been kept quiet, but has leaked out as a result of the visit to Windsor of C. Fisher, assistant postoffice inspector for London district, who has just completed his investigation at this end of the mystery.

The efforts of inspectors and detectives will now be concentrated in and around the Toronto office.

On the evening of the robbery all the banks in Windsor sent out checks and drafts to the Toronto banks.

The Dominion Bank alone posted letters containing paper for over $16,000.

John Curry, a prominent ex-banker of this city, also lost checks.

It is believed by the postoffice officials that the object of the thief was to secure currency, as none of the missing drafts, etc., have turned up.

ATLANTIC SERVICE OF THE G. T. R.

London, March 10.—General Manager Hays, interviewed yesterday, said that the Grand Trunk Pacific would wait till the line was almost completed "before we settle seriously on Atlantic boats."

ADVERTISE IN THE REVIEW.

AN ITALIAN WAS FOUND MURDERED

Port Arthur, March 10.—Coroner Brown stated yesterday afternoon, after examining the body of a man found on the trail to a mining camp near Beck Siding, that he had no doubt that it was a case of murder.

The dead man was an Italian, but there are no means of identification. James Douglas, clerk last winter at the Camp Beaulah mine property of the Dominion Bessemer Ores Co., remembers the man as an employe, who left last November after a violent quarrel with a fellow-countryman, who left half an hour after.

The body was almost completely covered with rocks and brush, some rocks as heavy as 15 pounds.

JEWELERY FIRM CARRIED UNDER

St. Stephen, N.B., March 10.—A second failure following the St. Stephen Bank suspension occurred yesterday, when the St. Croix Jewelry Co. of this town assigned. The St. Stephen Bank is said to be a creditor to the extent of some $20,000. The company's liabilities are estimated at $25,000, and assets at $10,000. It is said that J. T. Whitlock and J. D. Chipman, St. Stephen Bank officials, are in the company.

POPULATING AUSTRALIA

Melbourne, Australia, March 10.—The United States, Dutch and Danish consuls here have offered to assist in promoting the success of the Victorian Cabinet's immigration scheme, whereby it is hoped to secure 40,000 settlers within two years.

The Commonwealth Ministry is arranging for cheap excursions from Great Britain and America, to enable farmers in those countries to visit Australia and investigate the opportunities awaiting settlers.

Engine Exploded.

Hoxie, Ark., March 10.—While running at the rate of 30 miles an hour, the boiler of a freight engine on the St. Louis and San Francisco Railway exploded one mile east of here Tuesday night, killing the engineer, fireman and brakeman.

THE LUMSDEN CHARGES

Will a lawyer in a case take the same course whether he is engaged by the plaintiff or the defendant? Do not the instructions he receives from his client guide him in his conduct of the case? The ability or the probity of the counsel is not in question, nor any question of the ethics of the profession, but the practice that is followed. Everyone can easily answer these questions, and the answers will explain the withdrawal of the Conservative members from the committee appointed to investigate Mr. Hugh Lumsden's charges in connection with the building of the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway. The work was being done under a commission appointed by the Dominion Government. Mr. Lumsden was Chief Engineer for the Commission, and because he believed that payments were being made to contractors at a higher being made to contractors at a higher rate than they should have received, he resigned his position. A Parliamentary Committee was appointed to investigate his charges, with, of course, a majority of Liberals upon it. The Commission was given counsel to act for the defence, and the Conservative members insisted that counsel should be appointed for the other side. This was resisted and it was argued that the one counsel could look after all interests, but finally the majority agreed that another counsel should be appointed, but that they should make the selection. The Government is interested in making out that Mr. Lumsden's charges are not well founded, and there was one counsel engaged to support that view. Another selected by the Government or its supporters on the committee, and instructed by them, would not be of much advantage in bringing out the facts. The Conservatives took the view that the Opposition should select the counsel to look after the other side of the case, and when it was made clear that the Government was determined to hold the whole matter in its hands, with a Liberal majority on the committee and the lawyers selected in the one interest, they withdrew from an investigation to be conducted in that manner. The Conservatives have learned something from experience. They have had their efforts to elicit information blocked on other committees, and one of the active "blockers" on the Public Accounts Committee in previous sessions has been Mr. G. M. McDonald, who is now a member of the Lumsden investigation committee. The Conservative members wish a full investigation, and if there is to be no opportunity for that they do not wish to be associated with it further.

NO BLOCKERS AT TORONTO

It has been shown that an automobile purchased for the Hydro Electric Commission had belonged to the Chief Engineer of the Commission and had been sold by him to the company, from whom it was purchased for the Commission. This could happen not only without the consent but even in opposition to the wishes of the Engineer, and it is probably quite true, as the agent of the company said, that the machine was good value at the price paid for it. At the same time it would have been better if the transaction had not taken place. It is not the kind of business that one wishes to see connected with the Commission or any branch of service under the Whitney Government.

There is one point in connection with this matter that shows a difference between Toronto and Ottawa methods. The sales agent who made the sale to the Commission was asked where and at what price the machines were purchased by his company. When such questions have been asked in the Public Accounts Committee at Ottawa they have been ruled out on the ground that such information was not needed to judge whether the country had been given value and should not be answered. At Toronto the Opposition are given every opportunity to make all the enquiries and investigations it wishes, and the question was asked and answered. If any wrong has been done in any matter the Government and its supporters wish to know it. Any transaction that will not bear the light will not be defended. So there are no "blockers" at Toronto, as there are at Ottawa, where every effort to investigate is met with opposition.

EDITORIAL NOTES

"Trade laughs at tariffs," says the Toronto Globe. It certainly has reason to laugh at the Canadian tariff, which last year permitted Americans to sell to Canadians over-twenty-five dollars' worth of goods for every man, woman and child in this country, while they bought from Canada less than one dollar's worth of goods per head of their population.

Premier Whitney recently announced that the Government may consider a proposal to advance the passage money from the United Kingdom to Canada of women who are willing to take positions as domestics in Ontario. The Premier evidently believes that the women of this province want domestic servants more than they want votes, and he is probably right. However, great care should be taken that the right kind of women are brought out.

THEATRICAL

Molly May

It is pretty safe to say that "Molly May" is the most entertaining and best dressed musical play that has appeared at the Grand this season, and there have been some pretty classy musical comedies here at that. The principals are clever and versatile, and both sections of the chorus work with intelligence and precision.

The plot of the play deals with the adventures and subsequent domestic misadventures of two stay-out-all-night prevaricators, who have a most uncomfortable time—most amusing from the audience's standpoint — in trying to satisfactorily explain their infraction of the accepted household rules.

Grace La Rue as Molly May, and Sidney Grant as Jack Willoughby, soon became immense favorites with the audience, and their vocal efforts and bright acting won them enthusiastic approval, and no end of encores. Miss La Rue is a captivating comedienne and Mr. Grant is in a class by himself as an unaffected and resourceful juvenile. The two sang "Has Anybody Here Seen Kelly" in such an infectious way that several minutes of the performance were taken up in their response to insistent recalls. Miss La Rue's "Clap Hands" was also a novel and popular number, and Mr. Grant did the grand in the "Baby Grand" song which delighted everybody.

James E. Sullivan was "very tasty" as Senator Sparks, and provided a generous portion of the evening's laughter, and Kate Rolly was seen to much advantage as his firm ruling wife and mistress. Eva Fallon as Dorothy Dingle looked pretty and sang exceptionally well, revealing a powerful and brilliant soprano voice.

Altogether "Molly May" is an excellent musical offering.

Montreal Live Stock.

MONTREAL, March 9.—(Special.)—At the Canadian Pacific Live Stock Market offerings were 800 cattle, 50 sheep and lambs, 550 hogs and 725 calves. There was no important change in the market for cattle, prices being fairly well maintained on account of the comparatively small supplies, and the fact that a large percentage of the same was of a good, useful quality.

Choice steers sold at 6¼c, good at 5¾c to 6c, fair at 5½c to 5¾c, medium at 4¾c to 5c, common at 4¼c to 4½c, cows at 3½c to 4¾c, and bulls, at 3½c to 5c per lb.

A feature of the small meat trade was the increased supplies of calves, for which the demand was good, but as the quality of the same was not very good sales were made freely at from $3 to $5 each.

Offerings of sheep and lambs were very light, with a ready sale at firm prices. Lambs brought 7c and sheep 4½c per lb.

The tone of the market for hogs was strong. Sales of selected lots were made at $9.90 to $10 per cwt., weighed off cars.

Reducing Number of Stops.

Montreal, March 10.—The Lancaster rules making trains slow up at crossings have been modified. The commissioners and their inspectors have ridden on the train with a view to reducing the number of stops, and trainmen now say that on through trains like the Montreal to Chicago the schedule can now be lived up to although on locals there is still a delay of from ten minutes to half an hour.

May Drop Insurance Bill.

Victoria, March 10.—The royal commission on fire insurance find that there is bitter opposition to the proposed insurance bill, and it may be withdrawn. The bill proposes that all insurance companies doing business in the province should put up a $30,000 guarantee, that an inspector be appointed, and that an enquiry be instituted into the cause of every fire.

The Man From Brodney's

By GEORGE BARR M'CUTCHEON

Copyright, 1908, by Dodd, Mead & Co.

"Not a sound or you die!"

Four unwavering rifles were bearing upon the surprised islanders, and four very material men were advancing still in the center of the graveled path. Beyond her was the tall figure of a man.

"Drop your guns—quick!" commanded Chase. "Don't make a row!"

Paralyzed with fear and amazement, the men obeyed.

While the three white men kept them covered with their rifles Selim ran to the gate, uttering the shrill cry of a night bird. There was a rush of feet inside the walls, subdued exclamations, then a glad cry.

"Quick!" called Selim. The keys rattled in the locks, the bolts were thrown down, and an instant later Lady Deppingham was flying across the space which intervened between her and the gate.

The men were beside her a moment later, possessed of the weapons of the helpless sentinels. With a crash the gates were closed, and a joyous laugh rang out from the exultant throat of Hollingsworth Chase.

"By the Lord Harry, this is worth while!" he shouted. Outside the maddened guards were sounding the tardy alarm. The first gray shade of day was coming into the night.

He saw Neenah ahead of him, standing still in the center of the graveled path. Beyond her was the tall figure of a man.

"You are a trump, Neenah," cried Chase, hurrying up to her, "a Persian angel!"

It was not Neenah's laugh that replied. Chase gasped in amazement and then uttered a cry of joy.

The Princess Genevra, slim and erect, was standing before him, her hand touching her turban in true military salute, soft laughter rippling from her lips.

In the exuberance of joy he clasped that little hand and crushed it against his lips.

"You!" he exclaimed.

"Sh!" she warned. "I have retained my guard of honor."

He looked beyond her and beheld the tall, soldierly figure of a Rapp-Thorberg guardsman.

"The devil!" fell involuntarily from his lips.

"Not at all! He is here to keep me from going to the devil!" she cried so merrily that he laughed aloud with her in the spirit of unbounded joy. "Come! Let us run after the others. I want to run and dance and sing."

He still held her hand as they ran swiftly down the drive, followed closely by the faithful sergeant.

"You are an angel," he said in her ear. She laughed as she looked up into his face.

"Yes—a Persian angel," she cried. "It's so much easier to run well in a Persian angel's costume," she added.

CHAPTER XXIX.

A PRESCRIBED MALADY.

"YOU are wonderful, staying out there all night watching for—us." He was about to say "me."

"How could any one sleep? Neenah found this dress for me. Aren't these baggy trousers funny? She rifled the late Mr. Wyckholme's wardrobe. This costume once adorned a sultana, I'm told. I wore it tonight because I was much less conspicuous as a sultana than I might have been had I gone to the wall as a princess."

"I like you best as the princess," he said, frankly surveying her in the gray light.

"I think I like myself as the princess, too," she said naively. He sighed deeply. They were quite close to the excited group on the terrace when she said: "I am very, very happy now, after the most miserable night I have ever known. I was so troubled and afraid"—

"Just because I went away for that little while? Don't forget that I am soon to go out from you for all time. How then?"

"Ah, but then I will have Paris," she cried gayly. He was puzzled by her mood—but then, why not? What could he be expected to know of the moods of royal princesses? No more than he could know of their loves.

Lady Deppingham was got to bed at once. The princess, more thrilled by excitement than she ever had been in her life, attended her friend. In the sanctity of her chamber the exhausted young Englishwoman bared her soul to this wise, sympathetic young woman in Persian vestment.

"Genevra," she said solemnly in the end, "take warning from my example. When you once are married don't trifle with other men—not even if you should not love your husband. Sooner or later you'd get tripped up. It doesn't pay, my dear. I never realized until tonight how much I really care for Deppy, and I am horribly afraid that I've lost something I can never recover."

"You were not in love with Mr. Browne. That is why I can't understand you, Agnes."

"My dear, I don't understand myself. How can I expect you or my husband to understand me? How could I expect it of Bobby Browne? Genevra, you are in love—madly in love—with Hollingsworth Chase. Take my advice. Marry him. He's one man in a"— Genevra placed her hand over the lips of the feverish young woman.

"I will not listen to anything more about Mr. Chase," she said firmly. "I am tired—tired to death—of being told that I should marry him."

"But you love him," Lady Agnes managed to mumble despite the gentle impediment.

"I do love him—yes, I do love him!" cried the princess, casting reserve to the winds. "He knows it—every one knows it. But marry him? No—no—no! I shall marry Karl. My father, my mother, my grandfather, have said so, and I have said it too. That ends it, Agnes. Don't speak of it again." She cast herself down upon the side of the bed and clinched her hands in the fierceness of despair and—decision.

After a moment Lady Agnes said dreamily: "I climbed up the ladder to make a 'ladyship' of myself by marriage, and I find I love my husband. I dare say if you should go down the ladder a few rounds, my dear, you might be as lucky. But take my advice. If you won't marry Hollingsworth Chase, don't let him come to Paris."

"Agnes, you forget yourself!"

"My dear," murmured Lady Agnes sleepily, "forgive me, but I have such a shockingly absent mind." She was asleep a moment later.

In the meantime Bobby Browne, disdaining all commands and entreaties, refused to be put to bed until he had related the story of their capture and the subsequent events that made the night memorable. He sat with his rigid arm about his wife's shoulders. Drusilla was stroking one of his hands in a half conscious manner, her eyes staring past his face toward the dark forest from which he had come. Mr. Britt was ordering brandy for his trembling client.

"After all," said Browne, hoarse with nervousness, "there is some good to be derived from our experiences, hard as it may be to believe. I have found out the means by which Rasula intends to destroy every living creature in the chateau." Chase threw off his spell of languidness and looked hard at the speaker. "Rasula coolly asked me at one of our resting places if there had been any symptoms of poisoning among us. I mentioned Poog and the servants. The devil laughed gleefully in my face and told me that it was but the beginning. I tell you, Chase, we can't escape the diabolical scheme he has arranged. The water that comes to us from the springs up there in the hills is to be poisoned by those devils. I heard Rasula giving instructions to one of his lieutenants. He thought I was still unconscious from a blow I received when I tried to interfere in behalf of Lady Agnes, who was being roughly dragged along the mountain road. Day and night a detachment of men are to be employed at the springs, deliberately engaged in the attempt to change the flow of pure water into a slow, subtle, deadly poison, the effects of which will not be immediately fatal, but positively so in the course of a few days. In the end we shall sicken and die as with the scourge. They will call it the plague."

A shudder of horror swept through the crowd. Every one looked into his neighbor's face with a profound inquiring light in his eyes, seeking for the first time evidence of approaching death.

Hollingsworth Chase uttered a snort, scornful laugh as he unconcernedly lifted a match to one of his precious cigarettes. The others stared at him in amazement.

"Great God, Chase," groaned Browne, "is this a joke?"

"Yes, and it's on Rasula," said the other laconically. "You say that Rasula isn't aware of the fact that you overheard what he said to his man. Then, even now, in spite of your escape, he believes that we may go on drinking the water without in the least suspecting what it has in store for us. Good! That's why I say the joke is on him. Browne, you are a doctor, a chemist. Well, we'll distill and double and triple distill the water. That's all. A schoolboy might have thought of that. It's all right, old man. You're fagged out. Your brain isn't working well. Don't look so crestfallen. Mr. Britt, you and Mr. Saunders will give immediate instructions that no more water is to be drunk or used until Mr. Browne has had a few hours' rest. He can take an alcohol bath, and we can all drink wine. It won't hurt us. At 10 o'clock sharp Dr. Browne will begin operating the distilling apparatus in the laboratory. By Jove, will you listen to the row my clients are making out there in the woods! They seem to be annoyed over something."

Outside the walls the islanders were shouting and calling to each other. Rifles were cracking far and near, voicing in their peculiarly spiteful way the rage that reigned supreme.

As Chase ascended the steps Bobby Browne and his wife came up beside him.

"Chase," said Browne in a low voice, his face turned away to hide the mortification that filled his soul, "you are a man! I want you to know that I thank you from the bottom of my heart."

"Never mind, old man! Say no more," interrupted Chase, suddenly embarrassed.

"I've been a fool, Chase. I don't deserve the friendship of any one—not even that of my wife. It's all over, though. You understand? I'm not a coward. I'll do anything you say, take any risk, to pay for the trouble I've caused you all. Send me out to fight"—

"Nonsense! Your wife needs you, Browne. I dare say that I wouldn't have been above the folly that got the better of you. Only"—he hesitated for a minute—"only it couldn't have happened to me if I had a wife as dear and as good and as pretty as the one you have."

Browne was silent for a long time, his arm still about Drusilla's shoulder. At the end of the long hall he said, with decision in his voice:

"Chase, you may tell your clients that, so far as I am concerned, they may have the beastly island and everything that goes with it. I'm through with it all. I shall discharge Britt and"—

"My dear boy, it's most magnanimous of you!" cried Chase merrily. "But I'm afraid you can't decide the question in such an offhand manner. Take good care of him, Mrs. Browne. Don't let him talk."

She held out her hand to him impulsively. As he gallantly lifted the cold fingers to his lips she said, without taking her almost hungry gaze from his face: "Thank you, Mr. Chase. I shall never forget you."

He stood there looking after them as they went up the stairway, a puzzled expression in his face.

"I guess he'll be a good boy from now on." But he wondered what it was that he had seen or felt in her somber gaze.

In fifteen minutes he was sound asleep in his room, his long frame relaxed, his hands wide open in utter fatigue. He dreamed of a Henner girl with Genevra's brilliant face instead of the vague, greenish features to haunt the vision with their subtle mysticism.

He was awakened at noon by Selim, who obeyed his instructions to the minute. The eager Arab rubbed the soreness and stiffness out of his master's body with copious applications of alcohol.

CURE SICK HEADACHE.

PROOF THAT NO ONE CAN DOUBT

That Dodd's Kidney Pills Always Cure Rheumatism.

Conclusive Evidence Given by Durham Brown, of Brantford, Ont — How and Why the Cure is Effected.

Brantford, Ont., March 9.—Special.—That Rheumatism is caused by diseased Kidneys, and that Dodd's Kidney Pills cure both the sick Kidneys and the Rheumatism, is again proved in the case of Mr. Durham Brown, of No. 2 Spring street, this city.

"I was troubled with Backache and other well-known symptoms of Kidney Disease," Mr. Brown states. "I also suffered from Rheumatism in my right side and hip to the extent that I was always while at my work in agonizing pain.

"After taking one box of Dodd's Kidney Pills I found an improvement and after taking six boxes I found both my Kidney Disease and Rheumatism entirely cured."

Mr. Brown is only one of many cases in which it has been proved beyond a doubt that the natural way to cure Rheumatism is to remove the cause. The cause of Rheumatism is uric acid in the blood which crystallizes at the muscles and joints. Well Kidneys strain the uric acid out of the blood. Dodd's Kidney Pills make well Kidneys. That's why Dodd's Kidney Pills always cure Rheumatism.

A Cheap Bit of Real Estate.

Out in the shallows of Jamaica bay and within the city limits a man of the name of Meacham owns a bit of property which is valued on the tax books of New York city at 50 cents, and every year the tax assessors have to "view" it officially. This is probably the smallest parcel on the assessment books in New York if not in the world. It is a small cherry tree standing about fifteen feet above the water. According to the law in these matters, the tax assessors must view the property to be assessed "on the spot," and every year they row out to the tree and while there declare the tax of 50 cents.—New York Tribune.

Will Halley's Comet Touch Earth?

Whether Halley's comet will strike the earth, as the recent computations of Father Searle suggest, is still an indeterminable problem. This astronomer's calculations indicate that the famous comet will cross the face of the sun on May 18. If so, its great nebulous mass will doubtless pass near us but that it will actually graze our planet can be positively ascertained only by later observations of the diameter of the comet's head and its exact path during May relatively to the earth's orbit.—New York Herald.

ANNUAL MEETING OF MURRAY ST. WOMEN'S MISSION CIRCLE

Seventeen New Members Have Been Added — Special Monthly Study is Instructive and Interesting — Treasurer's Reports and Officers for the Year — A Missionary Talk by Mrs. (Rev.) Fee

The thirty-first annual meeting of the Women's Mission Circle of Murray St. Baptist church was held Tuesday afternoon. After the opening exercises, the president, Mrs. Hunter, read the Scripture lesson.

The secretary's report followed, showing a present membership of 94, an increase of ten over last year. Some removals had lessened the membership, but by the special effort of Mrs. Webb, seventeen new names were added.

Special study each month of the mission fields of to-day is increasing the knowledge and interest in missionary work.

The treasurers' reports for the year were as follows:

Foreign Missions	$130 57
Home Missions	78 12
W. W. Indians	20 00
Monthly Collections	9 39
Mission Band	77 19

The officers for the year are:
President—Mrs. Hunter.
Vice-President—Mrs. Scott.
1st Vice-Pres.—Mrs. Wood.
Secretary—Mrs. Dunlop.
Home Mission Treasurer—Miss Aldridge.
Foreign Mission Treasurer — Mrs. Eastwood.
Collector for N. W. Indians—Mrs. Scott.
Collector for Medical Fund—Mrs. Downham.
Collector for Mite Fund—Mrs. Wood.
Collectors for Circle dues — Mrs. Chalmers, Mrs. Wm. Montgomery, Miss Matthews, Miss Cochrane.

Prayer of thanksgiving was offered by Mrs. Huycke, and a solo rendered by Mrs. Hunt.

Miss M. A. Nichols gave a most interesting synopsis of the women's work in Telugu, dividing it into three parts, viz: religious, medical and educational. Then a brief outline of Home Mission work, which extends from Belleville to Rainy River District.

Mrs. Fee, who has spent fifteen years in China, gave a soul-stirring address on her work among the Chinese. Its importance was made clear as she pointed out the vast extent of work to be done in that densly populated land, and the discouragements, almost disheartening, in trying to gain the confidence of the Chinese women. "But," said the speaker, "what costs us little is little esteemed, and once the confidence is gained, it is wonderful what capacity for spiritual enlightenment there is in these people."

Words of appreciation were tendered to Mrs. Fee by Mrs. T. F. Matthews, and were heartily endorsed by all present.

After the benediction by Rev. J. R. Webb, refreshments were served by the members of the Circle.

SERIOUS CASE OF RABIES IS REPORTED FROM DURHAM

Is causing the Provincial Department Much Anxiety — Was in an Advanced State When Located

Toronto, March 9.—The demands on Ontario's Pasteur treatment are increasing. Up to last night seventeen patients were undergoing treatment at the hands of Dr. C. A. Hodgetts and Dr. J. A. Amyot. Yesterday a boy was brought in from Berlin who had experienced a rather severe bite from a canine believed to have been suffering from rabies.

It is not unlikely that, on the advice of Dr. J. G. Rutherford, the Veterinary-General, the Dominion Government will enlarge the territory now under muzzling regulations. Should this action be determined upon, the Provincial Government will again co-operate in its enforcement.

The extension, if made, will be the result of the fact that already the rabies epidemic has spread beyond the present confines of the regulations. Heads of animals killed as a result of contagion are forwarded to Ottawa when an analysis is desired. In cases where the animals have bitten human beings the heads are sent to the Provincial laboratory.

The laboratory officials issued a statement to the Provincial Secretary's Department yesterday of the cases in which the diagnosis had been positive. From February 21 to the end of that month positive cases of rabies were diagnosed from Monkton, Guelph, St. Thomas, Toronto, Strathroy, Hamilton and Niagara Falls. During the present month the rabic heads received come from Rodney, Harriston, Dundas, Forest, Aldershot, Millbrook, Hamilton, Highgate, Lobo township, Burgessville, Guelph, Ingersoll and Waterloo.

The case from Millbrook is the one which has caused the gravest anxiety to the Provincial Department, coupled with the reports from the Dominion Department. It was an advanced case located in Durham county, which is not within the district under regulation at present.

The departments are conferring and the indications are that in the near future the regulations must be extended to other portions of the province.

AN INTERESTING SPEAKER FOR Y.M.C.A. MASS MEETING

The mass meeting in the opera house to-morrow night at eight o'clock should attract a large gathering, as the Y.M.C.A. have been very fortunate in having such strong speakers present on this occasion.

The address of the evening will be delivered by Mr. E. T. Colton, of New York, on the subject, "The World Without a Foreign Land." To those who heard Mr. Colton last year no further reference is necessary regarding his ability as a strong and convincing speaker; those who were not so fortunate on this previous visit should not allow the opportunity to pass without making every effort to be present.

The other speakers, Mr. G. S. Phelps and Mr. G. E. Truman, have both had experience in Y.M.C.A. missionary work in Japan, and will be able to present interesting particulars of this great foreign work movement of the Y.M.C.A.

Miss Pringle will be present to render a vocal selection.

WM. HAMILTON COMPANY SECURES A LARGE ORDER

Another large order has been secured by the William Hamilton Mfg. Company, and it is learned that the number of men will be increased considerably during the next few weeks. In fact the Review has been assured that before long there will be as many employees on the premises as at any time in the past.

The latest big order is from the Simcoe Railway and Power Company and consists of the supplying of the penstocks, standpipes and five large hydraulic turbines for a large power house to be built at Big Chute, on the Severn River. The headquarters of the Simcoe Street Railway and Power Company are at Midland, and they will supply the power for an electric railway running out of Midland and for several elevators in that district.

Citizens generally will be glad to hear that the Hamilton Company are getting along so well.

SPECIAL SERMONS

The Rev. W. C. Riddiford will commence a special series of sermons next Sunday evening at the Park Street Baptist church. The special themes will be "Some Things Concerning Christ."

"Christ, Our Physician."
"Christ, Our Life."
"Christ, Our Lamb."
"Christ, Our Shepherd."
"Christ, Our Song."
"The Christ Consciousness."

These will be helpful and profitable messages for all who hear them.

HAS ANYBODY HERE SEEN KELLY?

Who Went Out for a Time Last Night and Received a Beautiful Souvenier

Has anybody here seen Kelly? He's got a peach and he claims to know the name of the man who connected with his left eye last night and gave it to him. His eye is blue alright, and when he called at the Police Station this morning to protest, the injured optic looked as though an aeroplane struck him, but that wasn't the cause. Kelly went out for a time last night, but alas, fell into the hands of an old time pal whom he had trimmed last July. The friend took advantage of Kelly's condition and landed on his pecker with telling effect. Now Kelly is looking for revenge.

OMEMEE MAN AND HIS TEAM PERISH

Arnold Toole Found Dead Yesterday Morning on Road Near His Farm---No Information Forthcoming as to Cause of Death. No Inquest Likely.

Omemee, Ont., March 10.—Arnold Toole was found dead yesterday morning in the road near his farmhouse. He had been to Mount Pleasant Tuesday afternoon, and is supposed to have tried to break the road to his place on the highway, which had been drifted for some time. His team was found a few rods away, both horses dead, having perished from exhaustion and exposure.

The above despatch from Omemee was received by the Review to-day. Either the residents of Omemee are very reticent or else know nothing of the suspected cause of death. The Review was in communication with the village this afternoon, but could obtain no particulars concerning the nature of the death and no light was thrown on the matter more than that given in the despatch. Dr. Sutton, of Norwood, and Dr. Blanchard, of Lindsay, the coroner, were called. No inquest will be held, it is stated.

Toole lived with his mother, Mrs. Arnold Toole, in the village, and worked his farm a short distance south of Omemee. He was 49 years of age and in good circumstances financially. He was unmarried.

The Brock street rink will be open every morning, afternoon and evening, the schedule being as follows:—

ORANGEMEN FAVOR GIVING DREADNOUGHT

Special to the Review.

St. Catharines, March 10.—The Orange Grand Lodge of Ontario West appointed a committee this afternoon to draft a political platform and passed a resolution in favor of immediate gift of a Dreadnought.

FIRE IN ITALIAN FRUIT STORE

About $25 damage was done to the building and about $50 damage was done to the stock in a fire at the Italian fruit store kept on George street by Peter De Carlonis. The fire started in the basement of the store where a gas stove was left burning all night owing to the young man in charge of the store going home without turning it out. The same basement runs under the store and Hooper's confectionery store, and considerable damage was done to stock in the latter store by smoke.

The call was sent to the fire hall at 1.20 this morning, and the blaze was extinguished principally by the use of chemicals.

OBTAINED HONORS

Are in Toronto

Ald. Duffus and Ald. Phelan are in Toronto looking after the interests of the city in the bill now before the Legislature in regard to the administration of justice between cities and towns not united with counties. It is understood that Belleville is in a similar position with the county of Hastings, as this city is with Peterborough county, and the two cities are taking united action.

That Power By-Law

To the Editor of the Review.

Dear sir,—I noticed a letter in last night's paper with reference to the by-law which will be submitted to the people to raise $70,000, for developing power at the Waterworks dam, to which the writer took exception and inquired if the taxes were not high enough without incurring additional expense.

Replying briefly, I would say that the development of this power will be an asset to the city and after it has been developed, it can be sold at a profit, either to the city for lighting purposes or to manufacturers, so that the cost of the power house and equipment will be paid for in twenty years out of the revenue derived from the power. I feel certain that this proposition will recommend itself to the ratepayers as it will be just as good an investment as the waterworks plant.

Yours sincerely,
J. J. TURNER, Jr.

An Excellent Speaker

To the Editor of the Review.

Sir,—Having been asked by those in charge of Mr. Colton's appearance in the Opera House to-morrow evening to express my opinion of him, having been one of those who heard him when he was here before, I can truly say that I have never heard a man place the subject of his discourse more clearly and suitably before an audience. Mr. Colton is a New Yorker of experience and has a natural gift for imparting his most interesting story.

Yours truly,
J. H. BURNHAM.

THIS DEAL IN AUTO STOCK IS RECORD ONE

New York, March 9.—One of the largest deals ever made in the history of the automobile industry in this country was made to-day when J. P. Morgan and Co. announced that, in accordance with an agreement with the stockholders of the Studebaker Bros. Manufacturing Co., the banking firm had purchased all the stock of the Everett-Metz-Flanders Co., of Detroit, that was not already owned by members of the Studebaker firm. It was said that the price paid for the 64 per cent. of the Detroit Company's stock bought for the Studebakers was nearly $5,000,000, or practically on the basis of 3 to 1 on the capitalization of $1,000,000.

The litigation between the Studebaker firm and the big Detroit company is to be terminated.

J. P. Morgan and Co. it was stated to-day, acted in the matter merely as brokers for the Studebaker interests in putting the deal through.

PRESENTATION BY PLAYERS AND OFFICERS OF STRATHCONAS

The players of the Strathcona hockey team and the officers said goodbye to Mr. Hugh Burritt last night, and presented him with an address and a gold signet ring. Hugh leaves to-morrow for Toronto, where he has accepted a position with the Dominion Bank. His services in centre ice during the season have been appreciated by his team mates, and the officers of the club, and the affair last night was an expression of the general good feeling which has existed. Mr. Charles Ray made the presentation, while Mr. Charles Curtis read the following address:—

Dear Hugh,—The officers and players of the Strathconas have learned with deep regret of your intending departure from the city, which means that the pleasant relations that have existed must be severed, temporarily, at least. Although this has been your first season with us, your unfailing cheerfulness, your anxiety and eagerness to work for the best results for your team and to play the game as it should be played, have won for you the respect and admiration of your team mates, and the officers of the club, and no one will regret your leaving Peterborough more than those you have helped carry the red and white colors to victory.

We feel that we cannot allow you to say good-bye to us without indicating in some manner our feelings towards you, and as a souvenir of your season with the Strathconas we ask you to accept this ring, trusting that it will bring pleasant memories to you of the hockey season of 1909-10.

We tender it to you with the hope that in life's bigger game which you are now entering, you will be always camped before the nets of Success, waiting for the passes of Opportunity and that you may be able to score as frequently as you have when wearing the colors of the High Commissioners. We hope, too, that the mysteries of the financial system of which you are about to become a unit, will so operate that you will be back with us next season to do your part in making another attempt upon the City League championship.

Wishing you every success.

The Strathcona Hockey Club.
Charles E. Curtis, Charles J. Ray, Leo Derocher, Alan Campbell, Ira D. Moore, Fred B. Denison, Ben C. Dusty, Herb. C. McMillan, Bert Parnell, Sam Thomas, W. J. Methral, Fred. D. Craig.

The honor was acknowledged by Mr. Burritt in a neat reply, and he gave his assurance that his connection with the club would be severed by distance only, and should the future allow him to rejoin his friends he would put forth his best efforts on their behalf.

HOW ABOUT A MEETING TO TALK BASEBALL PROSPECTS

What about a meeting of those interested in the baseball game? It is not too early. The fans in the city showed by their attendance at Riverside Park, last season, that they will patronize the game if the goods are delivered. If the city league is to have another season, now is the time to get moving and see what the prospects are. There were some developments last season not conducive to success and it is up to the managers of the clubs to get together a stone wall constitution and live up to it. The fans want good live baseball but are not going to spend their money or time, to witness a lot of wrangling. If a good constitution is drawn up, there would be no difficulty in securing officers, such as would inspire the lovers of baseball with confidence in such a league and if these two departments are well looked after, there will be no trouble in securing material, by which strong teams could be built up. In regard to a meeting, those interested should make it their purpose to be present to talk business and not act like a lot of juveniles as has been the case in the past.

MEETING Y.M.C.A. BASEBALL CLUB

In order that the season's prospects may be discussed and step taken towards organization the Y.M.C.A. baseball club will meet to-night at 9 o'clock, when a full attendance of all interested is requested.

DR. LIONEL KING WITH OLD TIMERS

Prince Albert Seven Play Hockey Match--Old Timers Won 6-2

The Prince Albert Daily News has the following account of a hockey game played between "The Old Timers" and the "Presents." Dr. Lionel King, formerly of this city, played for the winners:—

The Prince Albert News says: The Old Timers carried out their threat and defeated the "Presents" in a very exciting game of hockey last night, the score being 6—2 in their favor.

One thing must be said and that is that Leach was in goal for the Old Timers and that helped some.

The star for the victors was undoubtedly conductor Webb; he made some brilliant end to end rushes, scoring two of the goals.

Dr. King showed much of his last year's form and managed to hold Maudy down very well. It is the first time that "Doc" has had a uniform on this year, but we hope it will not be the last.

Zeigler, Oram, W. Kidd, Agnew, all played a good game.

For the "Presents" no special mention can be made; they blame their defeat on the goal umpire, who for safety's sake shall be nameless.

Jim Scott performed the dual role of referee and judge of play and it was thought he did his job well, until he confessed to selling out, but would not say to whom.

NEW BASE FOR STANLEY CUP

Messrs. P. D. Ross and William Foran, trustees, left an order this morning for the first improvements that have ever been made to the Stanley Cup. The present base of the famous trophy is carved and marked up to such an extent that further names could not possibly be put upon it. Consequently the trustees have ordered a new base for the cup, also a new silver ring, which will provide space for engraving for many years. As soon as the new work on the trophy has been completed it will be shipped to the Wanderers.—Montreal Star.

HOCKEY

Kingston Frontenacs won the Junior O.H.A. championship last night by defeating Preston 5—1. The champions take the honors by the small margin of one goal, Preston having secured a three goal lead in Preston on Monday night. The game was won in the last few minutes of play, by a whirlwind finish on the part of Frontenacs. This is the third Junior O.H.A. championship for Kingston.

St. Michael's and Parkdale played a 4—4 score last night, and the second game will be played on Saturday night. No scoring was done in the second half. "Kernel" Redpath scored two of the four goals for Parkdale. St. Michael's could not stand the soft ice and while the score was even, Parkdale had the better of the play.

Berlin and Wanderers will play a sudden death game at Montreal on Saturday for the Stanley Cup.

LACROSSE

Montreal, March 9.—The indications are that the Montreal lacrosse team, champions of the N.L.U., will meet New Westminster on June 18 and 25 for the Minto Cup, as originally proposed. This morning President W. E. Findlay, of the champions, received a letter from the New Westminster Club, in which they declared that June 18 and 25 were the only dates suitable for them.

President Findlay said this morning that the club would likely play on the dates mentioned, and would fill in the interval with a mid-week match. The Vancouver club has made an attractive offer for a game on the Wednesday, and the lacrosse club of San Francisco has also extended an invitation to the team to make a trip to the Golden Gate. The invitation will likely be accepted.

The indications are that the whole of last year's team will make the trips. Already there is talk of getting into condition, and a week or two will see some sort of work starting, either in the gymnasium or on the road.

EDMONTON CUP TEAM FOR 1911

Ottawa, March 9.—Geo. B. Macleod, former manager of the Edmonton Hockey Club, who came east with the cup challengers on the occasion of their recent trip is authority for a statement regarding the whereabouts of the Patrick brothers next year, together with Whitcroft and Hay Millar. Connected with the story are the plans of the Edmonton team to lift the Stanley Cup in 1911.

Mr. Macleod, who was an interested spectator of the Ottawa-Wanderer game at the Arena, last Saturday, unfolded his plans to local sportsmen, stating that the quartette were planning to leave Renfrew next week and hike back to the Golden West. The Edmonton scheme is to have the Patricks, Millar and Whitcroft form the nucleus of a team that could without difficulty win the championship of the Alberta League. That town would then challenge for the Cup, and before next year the Western hockey magnates hope to induce a couple of well-known eastern stars to locate in Edmonton.

Newsy Lalonde has been mentioned as a possibility for the prospective cup challengers, the latter has been quoted as signed by Ottawa. Montreal, Cornwall and Vancouver lacrosse teams, and Lalonde himself is not sure where he will locate. Should he decide to again play lacrosse at the Coast, it is more than probable that he will come east with the Edmonton seven. Figuring on the players that are already in the west, the Alberta team hope to have the following players in line:

Winchester, goal; Field, point; Frank Patrick, cover-point; Lester Patrick, rover; Lalonde, centre; Whitcroft and Denton on the wings. That looks to be a pretty shifty aggregation and the eastern magnates would be caused not a little worry, should the above collection of stars be gathered together.

Winner Will be Decided This Afternoon--Much Interest In Games

The finals in the primary of the bonspiel at the curling rink will be decided this afternoon at five o'clock, competition having narrowed down to two rinks skipped by R. M. Waddell, of the local curlers, and McIntyre, of Keene. The games have created much interest and the contest for first place promises to be a warm one. INDOOR BASEBALL

"Neal Ball" Ringer pulled off a great play at the armories Tuesday night for No. 2 Company when he made an unassisted triple play at his position on right short. Ten men were in the field and the opposing team had the bags all occupied.

The batter hit a hard one straight at Ringer. He stabbed at by some classy work, touched the runner coming from first and then beat out the runner who had left second. Not content with this he threw to third and got the man who had led off from that base, making four outs.

This is a record for indoor baseball here, and the play is being considerably discussed.

A LARGER MILK SUPPLY

Patrons of cheese factories and creameries need not only see to it that the raw material is delivered in the best possible condition, but that a large and steady supply is furnished. Can any means be taken to increase the production per cow or per acre? The answer to that query implies a knowledge on the part of every dairyman as to just what each cow in his herd can produce. Does any stable nowadays furnish free quarters and good feed to cows that have no intention of giving more and that have no possibility of a profitable yield? Is every dairyman quite certain that each cow in his stable "pays?" It is an excellent plan to make sure of that vital point, it is the initial step in successful dairying, the foundation for building a profitable herd. The only way to make sure is to keep dairy records, then it is an easy matter to distinguish and dispose of any non-paying guest, and feed each selected cow up to her full capacity of production. Through a continuous check on the yield of each individual cow many herd owners have been enabled to increase the average yield by as much as 1,500 and 1,800 pounds of milk per cow in three years. Forms for recording weights of milk, or feed, will be supplied free on application to the Dairy Commissioner, Ottawa.

Insurance Companies Lose About $125,000.00 by the Wreck at Spanish River

Double Liability for About Twenty-five Persons

A loss of somewhere in the neighbourhood of $125,000 is what the Accident Insurance Companies estimate the wreck at Spanish River bridge means to them.

They figure that about 25 of those who met death carried Accident Insurance, and the average insurance, according to the tables, is $5,000. In case of death in a railway disaster there is a double liability, making the figure $6,000, or $5,000 to be more conservative.

Their loss may total more than that, for the commercial travellers, a number of whom were killed, usually carry very heavy insurance. In addition, some of the companies make the policies payable on the death of the wife while travelling, though the policy is taken out in the husband's name. In such cases they pay the husband the same amount as they would have paid the wife were the husband killed.

We issue the BEST Accident and Sickness policy offered to the public.

Mr. and Mrs. G. N. Sargent Honored by Neighbors in Cavan

Special to the Review.

Morrow, March 7.—A gathering, in the form of a surprise party, was held on Friday evening at the home of Mr. John M. Sargent, Fairmount, Cavan.

Between fifty and sixty were present and a very pleasant time was spent, the object of the gathering being the presentation to Mr. and Mrs. Sargent of the following address, and a beautiful mantle clock, on the eve of their departure from the neighborhood to take up residence in Peterborough;—

As the time is drawing near when you are about to leave this section of the community, we, your neighboors, have gathered here to-night wishing to acknowledge the debt we owe you on account of your fidelity to the best interests of the neighborhood.

For a quarter of a century you have been among us, and we feel your influence and help have been far greater than any person suspects.

By your stirling good qualities and Christian character you have gained a place in our midst that few have ever held in any community.

You have been closely identified with the church work, as well as the secular interests of the neighborhood, and we have learned to appreciate your honest efforts.

We cannot allow this opportunity to pass without expressing to you in some way the regard in which you are held, and we ask you to accept this token of our good-will.

Our earnest wish is that you may be spared to each other for many years to enjoy the competence you have acquired, not through any chance game of fortune, but by close, diligent, honest labor.

Signed on behalf of the community.

Teas, it will be observed, are far ahead of the more serious table exercises, a circumstance largely accounted for by the social attractions and duties of the terrace, as well as in part by the more frugal tastes of modern legislators. From statements of accounts it appears that the amount realized from sales totaled 110,244 ($76,720), of which $45,890 came for provisions, $26,265 for liquors and $3,880 for cigars. Profits in the sum of $15,190 were swallowed up by wages and expenses, and but for the subsidy which the House votes this department every year the kitchen committee probably would come out at the small end of the horn.

The member of Parliament who conscientiously reckon up his expenses at the end of each section can picture the days when these disbursements were refunded by a grateful constituency. For in the old days the constituency gave each of its members a horse to carry him to Westminster and also paid his expenses on the road. These outlays, together with an allowance for each day spent on duty in the House generally approximating about eighty-three cents a day—were refunded in one lump sum when the member returned home at the close of the Parliamentary year.

One Mr. Slater, who conducts a barber shop in the House of Commons, has been playing a verbal "anvil chorus" on the existing Government because it reduced the charge of a shave from sixpence to threepence.

SCOTT'S PREPARATIONS.

Antarctic Explorer Hard at Work Getting Equipment.

Good progress is being made with the preparations for Capt. Scott's Antarctic expedition—officially designated "British Antarctic Expedition of 1910"—and one member of the staff has left for Siberia to obtain the necessary dogs and ponies.

Capt. Scott has himself only recently been relieved of his appointment at the Admiralty, in order that he may devote the whole of his time to the work of his expedition. Work has already commenced on the ship Terra Nova, and the removal of oil tanks, with other minor work, is in progress. The selection of all the members of the scientific staff has not yet been definitely made, but it is gradually getting into shape.

Dr. Wilson, chief of the scientific staff, will also be zoologist and artist, but it is expected that three zoologists will be taken with the expedition. Two, and possibly three, biologists will be included in Capt. Scott's personnel, and steps are being taken to induce a man having special knowledge of marine biology to join the expedition.

The services of C. R. Meares, a well-known traveler, who lately completed a most interesting journey on the Chino-Tibetan border, has been secured for the expedition, and is leaving England almost immediately for Siberia to get suitable ponies and dogs. Mr. Meares will collect his animals at Vladivostok, whence they will be sent to Kobe and transhipped for Australia and New Zealand. He will join the Terra Nova in New Zealand. The landing parties probably will consist of 30 men in all, 25 of whom will be at the first station and five at the second station. The position of these stations will be alternately east of west of the barrier, according as circumstances may dictate.

An improved motor sledge of a type tried successfully last year in Norway is being constructed, and Capt. Scott is going to Norway early in the year to superintend the trials.

Father of the Lords.

On Boxing Day the Earl of Leicester was eighty-seven years old. His lordship has sat in the House of Lords longer than any other peer, and is thus the "father" of that assembly. In point of age Lord Wemyss holds the record.

Outspokenness and unconventionality are two of Lord Leicester's most dominant characteristics. His favorite dish is Norfolk dumplings; and he has frequently been mistaken for one of his own farm laborers when he has been regaling himself with bread and cheese and raw onions, cut with a laborer's knife, and washed down with draughts of beer, whilst siting under country hedges.

The noble earl, who was born when his father was sixty-nine, stands behind the gunners when there is a "beat" on his vast estates, and, should the shooting not be up to the mark, his lordship's criticisms are distinctly chilling.

Basuto Sayings.

The Basutos are addicted to metaphor, and their metaphorical sayings are numerous and interesting. The following are a few in common use and are given as specimens:

"Men may meet, but mountains never"; "Do not prick an enemy with a two pointed needle, as that hurts yourself quite as much as it does him"; "A mother is like the cow which sustains the family in time of drought"; "One hand washes another"; "A sitting hen never gets fat"; an answer to our "rolling stone" aphorism. When all is quiet in the land they say, "We are sitting down building houses." Another saying is, "A man who is patient eats fatted beasts, but an impatient man has to content himself with the flesh of a lean goat."—Chambers' Journal.

The bridal party stood under an arch of red cedar and flowers. Only the families of the contracting parties and a few intimate friends were present. After the ceremony and congratulations the guests repaired to the dining-room, where an excellent supper was provided. The tables were beautifully decorated with flowers and an orange tree in full bloom.

THIRD OPERATION PREVENTED

By Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Chicago, Ill. — "I want to tell you what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound did for me. I was so sick that two of the best doctors in Chicago said I would die if I did not have an operation. I had already had two operations, and they wanted me to go through a third one. I suffered day and night from inflammation and a small tumor, and never thought of seeing a well day again. A friend told me how Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound had helped her, and I tried it, and after the third bottle was cured."—Mrs. ALVENA SPERLING, 11 Langdon Street, Chicago, Ill.

"If you are ill do not drag along at home or in your place of employment until an operation is necessary, but build up the feminine system, and remove the cause of those distressing aches and pains by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs.

For thirty years it has been the standard remedy for female ills, and has positively restored the health of thousands of women who have been troubled with displacements, inflammation, ulceration, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, bearing-down feeling, flatulency, indigestion, dizziness, or nervous prostration. Why don't you try it?

MARSHALL AND LESSARD HAND IN RESIGNATIONS

Alberta's Premier Has Not Resigned Yet, and Refuses to Say When He Will do so, But His Relinquishment of Office is Expected To-day.

Edmonton, Alta., March 11.—Premier Rutherford didn't carry out the program anticipated for him, and is still on the job, but he is in "splendid isolation." For yesterday his last remaining Ministers, Duncan Marshall, Minister of Agriculture, and P. E. Lessard, without portfolio, sent in their resignations.

It is now fully expected that the Premier will end the agony to-day, and that Cushing, the retired Minister of Public Works will be called upon to pick his Cabinet as follows: Cushing, Premier and Public Works; J. R. Boyle (Sturgeon), Attorney-General; Geo. P. Smith (Cameron), Education; Dr. Warnock (Pincher), Agriculture; Riley (Gleicean) and McDougall (Edmonton) without portfolios.

So far as official announcement of retirement, or of the resignations of any of the Cabinet Ministers, Premier Rutherford's lips was sealed in the Legislature yesterday afternoon. When pressed by R. B. Bennett for an explanation or statement, he maintained the attitude of silence that he has always maintained towards the House and press on statements and rumors that have been published.

In the afternoon, however, he did add another statement to his stereotyped sentence. He said that he had received no official communication from the Lieutenant-Governor bearing on the resignations.

Bennett reminded him that the Premier was the adviser of the Lieutenant-Governor, and that his honor did only what the Premier told him to do. Premier Rutherford said nothing.

Bennett interrupted the motion to adjourn, to press the Premier for an explanation. It is time, he said, that the House took stock of the situation. It was the 21st day of the session, and three Cabinet Ministers had disappeared from their seats and there had been no explanation. The situation was unprecedented. It was idle to ignore the fact that the situation was grave and that the Legislature was becoming the laughing stock of Canada.

"The King's Government must be carried on, but this was no Government," he said, "this is simply marking time. Second-hand information is annoying, when constituents telephone us to know what is doing, and we have to tell them nothing. Is it true that the Attorney-General has resigned?"

Premier Rutherford made this response: "I would very much like to gratify the curiosity of the junior member for Calgary. The newspapers have been making comments, but the junior member should not take stock in what the newspapers say. I have to say that I have no communication from the Lieutenant-Governor. That is the only constitutional stand I can take."

Bennett—"When may we expect something? To-morrow?"

The Premier—"I cannot say what his honor intends doing."

Bennett—"Oh, yes, you are his advisor. His honor must do what his first Minister says."

Premier—"I can say no more than I have said."

Bennett—"I will not say what I think now, but I will leave it for another day."

Resolutions both for and against the Government were shelved till next week, as was the case with a great deal of legislation on the order sheet. The session lasted scarcely more than an hour. Stewart of Sedgewick asked that his resolution asking the Government for an explanation of the sale of the railway bonds be left over till Tuesday, as was the Premier's resolution to form a railway board.

To questions as to whether the Government had accepted the offer of Clarke of the waterways, Boyle got an answer from the Premier that the Government were still conferring with the company regarding proposed changes in contract, as asked for in resolution, voted upon last week. To his question as to whether any plans of the railway had been approved by the Government. Mr. Boyle got an answer in the negative.

CLARK'S TAXATION RESOLUTION FAILS IN THE LEGISLATURE

Premier Whitney Objects to the Colonel's Ideas of Exemptions and After Some Heated Discussion the House Votes on and Defeats the Proposals.

Toronto, March 11.—Quite a tempest in a teapot arose in the Legislature yesterday afternoon when the House was in committee on the Government measure, introduced by Hon. W. J. Hanna, to amend the Assessment Act.

The committee had progressed from clause to clause in due order and were to all appearances ready to report the bill, when Col. Hugh Clark returned to the charge with a resolution to go back and re-open the clause dealing with income exemptions.

The Premier objected. It was irregular, disorderly, and several other things that Sir James had no hesitation in mentioning, to go back again to the beginning. What guarantee was there, he asked, if they did this, that when they got through the bill again, a proposal would not be made to repeat the process? The committee had gone into the matter very thoroughly. What reason was there to go back on account of one clause?

Col. Clark had the temerity to assert that he did not consider the report of a committee a sacred thing on which they should not lay their hands.

The British system of Government and the stability of Parliamentary institutions seemed visibly to shiver and hang in the balance as one listened to the 'Prime Minister's word and those of his recalcitrant follower.

Col. Clark explained that he thought his action was preferable to the moving of an amendment when the bill came to its third reading.

With a dramatic gesture the gallant colonel, who was by this time, speaking vulgarly, "quite on his ear," dashed his amendment on the floor and announced that he had no intention of asking special privileges or irregularities on his behalf.

British institutions seemed convalescent, so to speak.

"Then will the honorable gentleman introduce his amendment at the third reading," enquired the Premier.

"No, I will not," retorted Col. Clark.

British institutions had a relapse.

After some persuasion, oil was poured on the troubled waters and the member for Centre Bruce picked his amendment up from the floor and moved it. It was lost.

The clause that furnished the "casus belli" was the one which raised the exemptions on income tax for householders in towns and cities from $1,000 to $1,200 and in other municipalities from $700 to $900.

Special recognition of the hard case of railwaymen whose occupation compelled them to be away from home half their time and who had to maintain double establishments was objected to by Hon. A. G. MacKay, who thought it was a matter for the railways to settle by paying better salaries to these men.

The Minister of Public Works brought down a return showing that the Canadian Northern Ontario Railway has constructed and operated thirty miles of railway from Sellwood Junction in Hutton Township in a northerly direction. Into the clay belt. Four survey parties are in the field between the completed portion and Port Arthur, on which about seventy persons are engaged.

Another return was brought down by the same Minister showing that the expenses for overseeing and inspecting colonization roads in 1908 were $40,477.18 and $13,978.05 respectively. In 1909 the figures were $33,464.75 and $14,057.13.

Hon. J. S. Duff introduced a bill to carry out the recommendations of the milk commission by permitting cities, towns and incorporated village to inspect at the source of supply, if it were found necessary so to do.

Mr. Stock's automobile bill was laid over. He stated that it was aimed largely at American tourists, who were the worst offenders on the country roads.

NAVAL BILL GETS SECOND READING IN THE COMMONS

With a Majority of 41 the Government Put the Measure Through its First Place—W. F. Maclean Opposes all Amendments.

Ottawa, March 11.—The navy bill passed the second reading in the Commons last evening after a vote had been taken, the Government majority being 41. The division was: For the bill 119, against 78.

There was no excitement, and compared with the scene which witnessed the defeat of the Monk and Borden amendments early yesterday morning, the proceedings were far from spectacular.

The only feature was the fact that Alphonse Verville voted against the bill.

Three Ministers were absent, Hon. Wm. Paterson is in the West Indies, and Sir Fred. Borden and Hon. L. P. Brodeur are ill. On the Conservative side the most notable absentee was Hon. Geo. E. Foster, who is also an invalid.

Prior to the vote on the bill itself, Northrup's amendment to give the bill a six months' hoist was defeated by 41, exactly the same majority, Mr. Verville also voting with the Opposition.

W. B. Northrup (East Hastings) who began yesterday's debate, moved that the bill be given a six months' hoist. He insisted that it did not lie within the right of the Dominion Parliament to pass the bill in the form proposed by the Government, and that such a bill, if passed, would be ultra vires of the Imperial Parliament.

He based this argument on the proposal in the bill to place the navy under the control of the Governor-in-Council, seeing in this an attempt to override the prorogative of the King.

W. F. Maclean was in the House and made his first speech on the navy question.

"I should have spoken earlier in this debate," said Mr. Maclean, "but as I am only recovering from a somewhat prolonged cold, I have had to defer what I had to say. Moreover, what I have to say may not be acceptable to either side of the House.

"I cannot approve of the amendment which has just been submitted to the House for giving the bill the six months' hoist, nor could I have voted for the amendments that were voted on yesterday, proposing to send this question to the people. I believe absolutely in the responsibility of Parliament and it is up to this Parliament, and to the Government, to make the fullest and amplest provision for the defence of the country."

Among others who spoke were Capt. Tom Wallace (Centre York), Glen Campbell, R. S. Lake, W. D. Staples and W. A. Wright, who all supported the amendment.

Capt. Wallace attacked Mr. Maclean for not supporting Mr. Borden's amendment, and said that he would vote for the six months' hoist, as he believed that the view of his constituents was that the pavy, as proposed by Sir Wilfrid Laurier, would be of so little account as to be wholly inadequate.

He did not believe there was any public sentiment throughout the country in favor of a navy.

The insurance bill was given its third reading, and passed in the Senate yesterday.

Senator Power resumed the debate on Sir Richard Scott's bill to prevent intoxicating liquor being sent into any province which has enacted prohibitive legislation. Senator Power said that he thought the bill was unconstitutional. It did not regulate commerce, but forbade commerce, and he thought Parliament had no right to say that any sort of commodity should not be carried into any province.

Senator Power said this bill was a sample of tyrannical legislation promoted occasionally by exceedingly good women, and sometimes men, who made a fetish of some particular virtue. There was no scriptural authority for this bill, nor was the use of wine prohibited by any command of the decalogue or the Bible. This bill showed that these people had a superfluous amount of energy and virtue, which had to be relieved in this way. The measure, he said, could have been framed only by a fanatic.

The situation which has developed in the investigation will be taken up in the Commons to-day on the House going into supply. A keen debate is anticipated.

COULDN'T TRAVEL THROUGH THE U.S.

Montreal, March 11.—The might of the British Jack Tar has been shown in an incident not heard of to-day.

Sixteen men of H. M. S. Egeria, which is to become a training ship for the Canadian navy, passed through here yesterday, en route from the Pacific coast, to Halifax. It had been intended that they should travel through on the C.P.R. to Portland, but the U. S. authorities took advantage of the law forbidding the passage of armed foreigners through their country, and although the sailors were not armed, it was held that sixteen was too large a number of men in the British service to travel together. The men left here over the I.C.R.

PRIVATE BETTING WON'T BE ILLEGAL

Ottawa, March 11.—It is hardly likely that Miller's anti-betting bill will be made a Government measure, and it is impossible to forecast its fate in the House.

Five members of the committee are in favor of the hill, and two members, F. D. Monk and J. B. McColl, suggest as an amendment that betting be allowed during the progress of a meet.

Before recommending the bill to the House it was finally agreed to get the opinion of the Justice Department as to the phraseology of the bill in order to make certain that private betting is not declared illegal.

MAN GROUND TO PIECES IN VAT

Newark, N.J., March 11.—After falling into a vat, filled with tanning acid, William Karcher was ground to death yesterday by the revolving steel ladles in the leather manufacturing works of Blanchard Bros. & Lane. Karcher was superintending the mixing of acids to tan leather, when he slipped and plunged into the vat. When the machinery was stopped he had been ground to pieces.

FALLING WALL KILLS TWO MEN

Pittsburg, Pa., March 11.—With a low rumbling sound a 50-foot brick wall left standing in the ruins of the fire which early Tuesday morning partially destroyed the bolt and nut manufacturing plant of M. Lans & Sons, collapsed yesterday, burying twenty workmen, mostly foreigners, who were razing the ruins, killing two and injuring ten more.

Poor House Burned.

New York, March 11.—Burned out of house and home was the ill-fate added to the affliction of poverty of the inmates of the poor-house at Hempstead, L.I., which was destroyed by fire yesterday. One aged inmate was burned to death, though a young woman nurse risked her life to save him, while five other inmates were seriously burned.

THE PRESERVATION OF THE FORESTS

Ottawa, March 11.—Senator Edwards presided at the annual business meeting meeting of the Canadian Forestry Association yesterday.

Resolutions were passed favoring the making of a forest reserve of the eastern slope of the Rocky Mountains, fire protection along the lines of the Government railways, preservation of water powers, especially in boundary waters, reservation of forests on the head waters of streams, and favoring the making of permanent forest reserves in areas suited only for forests.

THE BRITISH CIVIL SERVICE ESTIMATES

London, March 11.—The civil service estimates for 1910, which were given yesterday, with a total amount required of upwards of $330,000,000, show, like the navy and army estimates, a marked increase in the national expenditure.

Should the Chancellor's budget provide for the usual consolidated fund charges, the grand aggregate expenditure which the Chancellor will have to meet will be upwards of $855,000,000, or nearly $50,000,000 in excess of last year.

The civil service estimates include $46,100,000 for old-age pensions.

LONDON MAY HAVE MUNICIPAL BAKERY

London, Ont., March 11.—A movement is on foot here to ask the Government for an investigation into the bread question.

Instances have been reported where dealers are sending wagons long distances into the country, and selling farmers two loaves more for a dollar than city patrons are getting. There is also considerable talk of establishing a municipal bakery.

TORONTO MAN WAS HURT IN BRAWL

Toronto, March 11.—H. S. Fee, tailor, 287 Yonge street, was arrested by Detectives Armstrong and McKinney yesterday afternoon, charged with wounding Arthur Green, provincial whisky detective, who lies in a serious condition in St. Michael's Hospital. He was picked up unconscious in Wilton avenue Monday night.

The evidence in the hands of the police goes to show that Green was injured in a brawl in Fee's shop. It was thought as late as yesterday morning that Green was at the point of death, and preparations were made for taking an ante-mortem statement, but after a consultation of the doctors in attendance it was deemed unnecessary.

Major Stephen Has Been Ill.

Montreal, March 11.—Word was received yesterday from Paris to the effect that Major G. W. Stephens, chairman of the Montreal Harbor Board, has been seriously ill in that city.

The major left New York for Naples, but becoming ill was obliged to leave the ship at Marseilles, and go direct to Paris. He is now better and will return home about April 1.

DAMAGES BY FLOOD

The Chatham Ice Blockage Breaks and Ice Rushes Down.

Chatham, March 11.—At 2.45 yesterday afternoon, the ice blockade at Prairie Siding broke of its own accord, and the mass of ice commenced a rapid journey down the river to the lake.

This means that the farmers, who have been marooned for over one hundred hours, will now be able to get into communication with the outside world.

The damage done by the flood is beyond present calculations. The water has been rushing over the plains for over three days and three nights. The fall wheat is most likely all flooded out of the ground, and it is quite probable that pools of stagnant water will stand on the lowlands till long after the spring work is over. Besides this, the damage to stock must be immense. Cattle, horses, pigs and fowl had to be placed on straw stacks for safety, and in some cases animals have died of exposure.

The flood this year was not as great in depth as that of six years ago, but it was of longer duration, and, therefore, more destructive.

CONGREGATION ENDORSES HIM

Corunna, Mich., March 12.—A. B. Leonard, superintendent of the Methodist district, on Wednesday requested Rev. David Hicks to resign the pastorate of the Corunna Methodist church, and ordered him to vacate the parsonage at once. This action followed a trip by Mr. Leonard to Gesto, Ont., where he investigated Mr. Hicks' affairs. He failed to find the receipt for $210 missionary money which Mr. Hicks declares he forwarded to Montreal before he left the Gesto charge.

Yesterday, however, the congregation showed their faith in him by presenting him with a purse containing $150, and the request for his resignation was withdrawn. The local congregation sympathize with Hicks because they believe that he is honest and would square his accounts in Gesto if given a chance. He has six children, the oldest six years old and the youngest two.

SIR EDWARD GREY DOES NOT KNOW

London, March 11.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—In the House of Commons yesterday, Sir E. Grey, replying to Donald McMaster, M.P., said after communication through Hon. James Bryce with the United States, another expert had been delegated in conjunction with the United States consul-general at Ottawa to discuss tariff relations with the Dominion Government. Sir Edward Grey had not heard the results of what had passed.

LATE TICKS FROM WIRES

Geo. Mesci was hanged yesterday at Prince Albert, Sask., for the murder of his employer, and the latter's wife and mother-in-law.

It is said on good authority at Regina that Hon. W. R. Motherwell will be appointed to the Railway Commission in a short time.

Philander Knox, jr., son of the Secretary of State, has been cut off with an allowance of about $100 a month, for marrying May Boler.

The first session of the twelfth Parliament of British Columbia was prorogued yesterday afternoon. At the morning several bills were killed.

The strike of papermakers and sulphite workers at Corinth, N.Y., has now spread to five mills of the International Paper Co. Four hundred men walked out yesterday afternoon at the Fort Edward mills, making 1,500 and odd men out in all.

NORTH BAY CITIZENS ARE INDIGNANT

North Bay, March 11—Arrangements made for the presentation of the Royal Albert medal to Thomas Reynolds, for heroism at the Spanish River wreck, are far from satisfactory to his friends, and North Bay citizens generally.

It was thought at first that the presentation would take place on the floor of the House of Commons, but Massey Hall, Toronto, was suggested as being a more suitable building, with more central location. No objection was taken to this move particularly, although many thought that his home town should have had the honor, next to Ottawa. Now it turns out that the event is to be made the drawing card for a 50-cent entertainment, held by a Toronto society, and the copy of the plan of reserved seats has been received in North Bay, in solicitation of orders for tickets.

North Bay citizens are indignant that the event should be used as an advertising medium, and they hope that when Mr. Reynolds is made acquainted with the facts that he will refuse to be a party to it. North Bay could handle the event without any trouble, and without charging any admission fee.

TO MAKE GASPE A WINTER PORT

Campbellton, N.B., March 11.—It is announced here that a company, composed of capitalists, of which it is believed the Canadian Northern are not the least prominent, may be formed to continue railroad lines to Gaspe, Quebec, with the idea of making that port the winter port of Canada.

It is claimed the harbor at Gaspe is free of ice practically all the time, and that the water is deep enough in all parts to allow the largest ocean steamships to come direct to any wharves which may be built, without the necessity of dredging a yard of mud.

PREPARING TO HEAR COMMANDER PEARY

London, March 11.—Commander Robert E. Peary, it was announced here yesterday, is bringing proofs of his polar achievement with him and will make them public at a meeting which he is to address at Albert Hall under the auspices of the Royal Geographical Society.

Already, two months ahead of the date of his lecture, the applications for seats are said to twice fill the great hall. The members of the royal family are expected to be present at both the lecture and the banquet preceding it.

"I can see no reason," said Sir Ernest Shackleton, yesterday, "why Commander Peary, who had dogs with him, should not have done what he has claimed. The dogs, of course, must have done the pulling, the men could not. On my journey from the ship I covered on five successive days 20, 18, 23, 26 and 29 miles."

LINEMAN STRUCK BY FALLING POLE

Madoc, March 11.—Andrew Halliday, one of the C.P.R. telegraph linemen, while engaged in making alterations in the line near Ivanhoe, was struck on the head by a falling telegraph pole, about 8 a.m. His injuries were not considered serious, but about four o'clock in the afternoon, he took a turn for the worse. Word was sent to Madoc for a doctor, but Halliday expired before he arrived.

Deceased has one brother living in Canada, the two having come from Ireland not very long ago. The body is being sent to Toronto.

INDIAN STOLE MILLIONAIRE'S RARE COINS

SARAH BERNHARDT IS COMING AGAIN

New York, March 11.—Mme. Sarah Bernhardt will come to this country next November to act in a repertory of eleven plays. She will open in Chicago and will play in New York during the three weeks previous to Christmas. After her New York engagement Mme. Bernhardt will begin a tour of the country which will take her to every large city in the east, south and west.

Mme. Bernhardt said in Paris the other day that she was to play only at the most beautiful theatres in America. She did not relish a repetition of her 1906 trip, when she was forced to play in tents, halls and auditoriums unsuited to dramatic presentations. Mme. Bernhardt will bring with her a large company from her theatre in Paris.

VILLAGE POSTOFFICE WAS BURGLARIZED

Greenwood, March 11.—The store belonging to M. Gleeson here was entered by thieves early yesterday morning, and the postoffice till robbed and several articles taken. Luckily the postmaster had left only about $2 in the till. The burglars gained entrance through a back window, and took out a panel from the inner door. The theft of goods was not large as only several small articles such as tobacco, etc., were missed.

The strike is the result of organizing the miners in this section, which has heretofore been non-union, and is for recognition of the organization.

THE DOG DID HAVE RABIES

Waterloo, March 11.—At a special meeting of the Board of Health, an order was issued that all dogs be tied up, or kept under lock and key. The order was issued on the strength of a report from the provincial analyst, who had examined the head of a dog shot here last week. The report stated that the dog was suffering from rabies.

VERY MUCH TO BE DONE

That the world is better than it once was may be true. There is more benevolence, greater efforts to relieve distress, more freedom and less cruelty. Kings do not make war to add to their glory or give away principalities or estates to relatives or favorites. A calamity in one nation awakens sympathy and assistance in others. Yet we cannot flatter ourselves that the world has progressed to a stage where peace or contentment is reaches.

Nations are still armed, and armed as never before, to assail others or to protect themselves, and the greatest armaments are found in the most civilized countries. Civilized people do not invent and manufacture engines of destruction to protect themselves from the uncivilized, but with their intentions directed towards other civilized peoples. Trade and commerce, the outgrowth of modern conditions, are made grounds for war, and the horrors of conflict and the burdens of armed peace are not less because the danger of war arises from greed instead of glory. Earnest men are endeavouring to show the folly of the majority, and the efforts of the Peace Associations are making an impression. Very much remains to be done in this respect, but progress is being made, and the fact that rulers, foremost among whom is the King of England, apply their energies and their influence to the side of peace, gives ground for hope that further progress, though it may be slow, will be made in convincing the peoples of the world that war is unnecessary as well as horrible. The Peace Conferences at The Hague have not accomplished what some hoped for when the first was convened, but the fact alone that accredited representatives of the nations have conferred once and again on the subject is hopeful. There have been useful results from the Peace Conferences, and at The Hague a germ is growing that may yet blossom into fuller bloom and fill the world with fragrance. That can only be, however, after much educative work has been done, not among titular rulers, but among the people, to convince them that foreigners need not be enemies, and that nations may work together for the benefit of themselves and each other. Wars may take place before this is accomplished, even many wars, but so long as those who see the light ahead do not neglect to enforce their views and to teach the higher doctrine, even while for present protection they carry arms, the world will move in the right direction.

It is alone between nation and nation that disputes arise that result in strife and bloodshed. Armed soldiers for months held possession of a town in Cape Breton, last year and this, to prevent destruction of property and life, and Philadelphia is the scene of a conflict that has resulted in destruction, wounds and death. In the very midst of civilization, under the eye of the most advanced forms of Government, the people of the same country fly at each other's throats. This is not pleasant to contemplate, nor is it encouraging. Efforts to frame laws to prevent such strife have been made. Canada has a law for that purpose. But they have not succeeded in bringing about peace, or in preventing disorder and violence. Such conflicts may be expected for a time where labor is freed from the trammels that once held it in bondage, and where employers have not yielded to the new condition. On the one side too often there is undue impatience that leads to inconsiderate and unreasonable demands, and on the other there is too frequently a deaf ear turned to the requests for justice and considerate treatment. These again arise from the same cause as most of the dangers of conflict between nations, the desire to possess, and the refusal to recognize the rights of others. Where such a conflict is imminent there should be a power, created by the people as a whole, to intervene, and if there is any ground for the expectation that peaceable arbitrament between nations will come there should be much greater reason to hope that strife between people of the same nation will be abolished. Here again is a field for educative effort, so that governments may be enabled to enact laws that will be sufficient to make peace within the borders of the country over which they rule, and not only peace but peace with justice, protecting the weaker, whether the weaker should in any particular instance be labour or capital, from oppression or injustice.

Higher mentality is said to have developed, and a higher morality must keep pace with intellectual advancement or peace cannot be looked for.

EDITORIAL NOTES

Women are gradually securing their rights. A Toronto man is suing a lady for breach of promise of marriage.

Belleville is very proud because the Moira has overflowed its banks and flooded some cellars. It is quite in the Paris fashion.

A Royal Commission in England is investigating the subject of divorce with a view to suggesting reforms in the laws regarding it. A simple and effective reform would be to abolish divorces and abrogate the laws.

There is a strong, or at any rate noisy, opposition to the order that all dogs should be muzzled. One writer settles the matter by calling those who wish the dogs to be muzzled "fussy feebles." As an argument, that is a clincher.

Mr. Lachance, a Liberal M.P., said in the naval debate that he "was a believer in the future independence of Canada. That, he thought, was bound to come." The Globe says he delivered an excellent speech in support of the Government's bill.

Half of his subjects waited upon the Prince of Monaco and demanded a constitution. The proportion may have made the deputation formidable, but the number may have been only about six hundred—a good sized Trent Valley Canal deputation. It is not said that they objected to "taxation without representation," and they probably did not, as Monaco is a state without taxation, the revenue being principally derived from rents from the celebrated gaming resorts at Monte Carlo. The prince took the request into serious consideration.

TORONTO, March 10.—The railways reported 102 carloads of live stock as the receipts for Wednesday and Thursday, consisting of 1217 cattle, 3999 hogs, 301 sheep and lambs, 125 calves and 3 horses.

Exporters

We did not hear of any cattle being offered or sold for export purposes on this market, but 5 car loads of the best cattle picked from amongst the best loads of butchers sold here on Tuesday and Wednesday, were sent up to the Union Market on Wednesday, when the exporters were selling at high figures. Bulls of export weights sold at $4.75 to $5.25 per cwt.

Butchers.

George Rowntree bought 220 cattle for the Harris Abattoir Company at the following quotations: Steers and heifers, $5.20 to $5.75; cows, $3.50 to $5; bulls, at $3 to $5.25.

There were a few sales of prime picked lots quoted at $5.20 to $6, but as will be seen by sales given below, they were few in number, not more than a dozen out of 1200 cattle on sale.

Stockers and Feeders.

Harry Murby reports little being done in stockers and feeders. Mr Murby bought 70 mixed, feeders, stockers and butchers, 700 to 900 lbs., at $3.90 to $4.20 per cwt.

There was a good supply of milkers and springers. There was a moderate demand, but prices were reported to be about $5 to $8 per head lower than a week ago. Prices ranged from $35 to $60 each.

Veal Calves.

The supply of veal calves was not large and prices were firm at $4 to $8 per cwt.

Sheep and Lambs

Receipts for the two days were about 500, which sold at higher quotations. Sheep, ewes sold at $5 to $5.50, and a few selects at $6; rams and culls, $4 to $5 per cwt.; lambs, $7.40 to $8.25 per cwt.

Hogs.

Receipts from all sources for the two days were reported by the railways to be 3999. Prices have advanced steadily all week, closing firm at $9.50 for selects, f.o.b., and watered, at the market, and $8.25, f.o.b., cars at country points.

"I'm sorry you awoke me, Selim," said the master enigmatically. Selim drew back, dismayed. "You drove her away." Selim's eyes blinked with bewilderment. "I'm afraid she'll never come back."

"Excellency!" trembled on the lips of the mystified servant.

"Ah, me!" sighed the master resignedly. "She smiled so divinely. Henner girls never smile, do they, Selim? Have you noticed that they are always pensive? Perhaps you haven't. It doesn't matter. But this one smiled. I say," coming back to earth, "have they begun to distill the water? I've got a frightful thirst."

"Yes, excellency. The Sahib Browne is at work. One of the servants became sick today. Now no one is drinking the water. Ballio is bringing in ice from the storehouses and melting it, but the supply is not large. Excellency, you will take Selim to live with you in Paris?" he said after awhile wistfully. "I will be your slave."

"Paris? Who the dickens said anything about Paris?" demanded Chase startled.

"Neenah says you will go there to live, sahib. Does not the most glorious princess live in Paris?"

"Selim, you've been listening to gossip. It's a frightful habit to get into. Put cotton in your ears. But if I were to take you, what would become of little Neenah?"

"Oh, Neenah?" said Selim easily. "If she would be a trouble to you, excellency, I can sell her to a man I know."

Chase looked blackly at the eager Arab, who quailed.

"You miserable dog!"

Selim gasped. "Excellency!"

"Don't you love her?"

"Yes, yes, sahib—yes! But if she would be a trouble to you—no!" protested the Arab anxiously. Chase laughed as he came to appreciate the sacrifice his servant would make for him.

"I'll take you with me, Selim, wherever I go—and if I go—but, my lad, we'll take Neenah along, too, to save trouble. She's not for sale, my good Selim." The husband of Neenah radiated joy.

"Then she may yet be the slave of the most glorious princess! Allah is great! The most glorious one has asked her if she will not come with her."

"Selim," commanded the master ominously, "don't repeat the gossip you pick up when I'm not around."

CHAPTER XXX.

THE TWO WORLDS.

TWO days and nights crept slowly into the past, and now the white people of the chateau had come to the eve of their last day's stay on the island of Japat. The probationary period would expire with the sun on the following day, the anniversary of the death of Turwell Skagg. The six months set aside by the testator as sufficient for all the requirements of Cupid were to come to an inglorious end at 7 o'clock on March 20. According to the will, if Agnes Ruthven and Robert Browne were not married to each other before the close of that day all of their rights in the estate were lost to them.

Tomorrow would be the last day of residence required. But, alack, was it to be the last that they were to spend in the world forsaken land?

No later than that morning a steamer—a small Dutch freighter—had come to a stop off the harbor, but it turned tail and fled within an hour. No one came ashore. The malevolent tug went out and turned back the landing party which was ready to leave the ship's side. The watchers in the chateau knew what it was that the tug's captain shouted through his trumpet at a safe distance from the steamer. The black and yellow flags at the end of the company's pier lent color to a grewsome story. The hopeless look deepened in the eyes of the watchers.

Hollingsworth Chase alone maintained a stubborn air of confidence and unconcern.

"Don't be downhearted, Bowles," he said to the moping British agent. "You'll soon be managing the bank again and patronizing the American bar with the same old regularity."

There had been several vicious assaults upon the gates by the infuriated islanders during the day following the rescue of the heirs. Some powerful influence suddenly exerted itself to restore them to a state of calmness. They withdrew to the town, apparently defeated. The cause was obvious—Rasula had convinced them that death already was lifting his hand to blot out the lives of those who opposed them.

Bobby Browne was accomplishing wonders in the laboratory. He seldom was seen outside the distilling room. His assiduity was marked, if not commented upon. Hour after hour he stood watch over the water that went up in vapor and returned to the crystal liquid that was more precious than rubies and sapphires.

Drusilla kept close to his side during these operations. She seemed afraid or ashamed to join the others. She avoided Lady Deppingham as completely as possible. Her effort to be friendly when they were thrown together was almost pitiable.

As for Lady Agnes, she seemed stricken by an unconquerable lassitude. The spirits that had controlled her voice, her look, her movements, were sadly missing. More than once Genevra had caught her watching Deppingham with eyes that spoke volumes, though they were mute and wistful.

From time to time the sentinels brought to Lord Deppingham and Chase missives that had been tossed over the walls by the emissaries of Rasula. They were written by the leader himself and in every instance expressed deepest sympathy for the plague ridden chateau.

"There's a paucity of real news in these gentle messages that annoys me," Chase said after reading aloud the last of the epistles to the princess and the Deppinghams. "I rejoice in my heart that he isn't aware of the true state of affairs. He doesn't appreciate the real calamity that confronts us. The plague? Poison? Mere piffle. If he only knew that I am now smoking my last—the last—cigarette on the place!"

"I believe you would die more certainly from lack of cigarettes than from an overabundance of poison," said Genevra. She was thinking of the stock she had hoarded up for him in her dressing table drawer, under lock and key.

"I say, Chase, can't you just see Rasula's face when he learns that we've been drinking the water all along and haven't passed away?" cried Deppingham.

"And to think, Mr. Chase, we once called you 'the enemy,'" said Lady Agnes in a low, dreamy voice.

"I appear to have outlived my usefulness in that respect," he said. He tossed the stub of his cigarette over the balcony rail. "Goodby!" he said, with melancholy emphasis. Then he bent an inquiring look upon the face of the princess.

"Yes," she said, as if he had asked the question aloud. "You shall have three a day, that's all."

"You'll leave the entire fortune to me when you sail away, I trust," he said. The Deppinghams were puzzled.

"But you also will be sailing away," she argued.

"I? You forget that I have had no orders to return. Sir John expects me to stay. At least, so I've heard in a roundabout way."

"You don't mean to say, Chase, that you'll stay on this demmed island if the chance comes to get away?" demanded Lord Deppingham earnestly. The two women were looking at him in amazement.

"Why not? I'm an ally, not a deserter."

"You are a madman!" cried Lady Agnes. "Stay here? They would kill you in a jiffy! Absurd!"

"Not after they've had another good long look at my warships, Lady Deppingham," he replied, with a most reassuring smile. "I think I'll take a stroll along the wall before turning in."

He arose and leisurely started to go indoors. The princess called to him, and he paused.

"Wait," she said, coming up to him. They walked down the hallway together. "I will run upstairs and unlock the treasure chest. I do not trust even my maid. You shall have two tonight. No more."

"You've really saved them for me," he queried, a note of eagerness in his voice, "all these days?"

"I have been your miser," she said lightly and then ran up the stairs.

He looked after her until she disappeared at the top with a quick, shy glance over her shoulder. An expression of utter dejection came into his face. A haggard look replaced the buoyant smile.

"God, how I love her—how I love her!" he groaned, half aloud.

She was coming down the stairs now, eager, flushed, more abashed than she would have had him know. Without a word she placed the two cigarettes in his outstretched palm. Her eyes were shining.

In silence he clasped her hand and led her unresisting through the window and out upon the broad gallery. She was returning the fervid pressure of his fingers, warm and electric. They crossed slowly to the rail. Two chairs stood close together. They sat down side by side. The power of speech seemed to have left them altogether.

He laid the two cigarettes on the broad stone rail. She followed the movement with perturbed eyes and then leaned forward and placed her elbows on the rail.

"If the ship should come tomorrow you would go out of my life—you would go away and leave me here," he began hoarsely.

"No, no!" she cried, turning upon him suddenly. "You could not stay here. You shall not!"

"But, dearest love, I am bound to stay. I cannot go. And, God help me, I want to stay. If I could go into your world and take you unto myself forever—if you will tell me now that some day you may forget your world and come to live in mine—then, ah, then, it would be different! But without you I have no choice of abiding place—here as well as anywhere."

She put her hands over her eyes.

"I cannot bear the thought of—of leaving you behind—of leaving you here to die at the hands of those beasts down there. Hollingsworth, I implore you—come! If the opportunity comes—and it will, I know—you will leave the island with the rest of us?"

"Not unless I am commanded to do so by the man who sent me here to serve those beasts, as you call them."

He leaned over and took her hand in his. "You do love me?"

"You know I do—yes, yes!" she cried from her heart, keeping her face resolutely turned away from him. "I am sick with love for you. Why should I deny the thing that speaks so loudly for itself—my heart! Listen! Can you not hear it beating? It is hurting me—yes, it is hurting me!"

He trembled at this exhibition of released, unchecked passion, and yet he did not clasp her in his arms.

"Will you come into my world, Genevra?" he whispered. "All my life would be spent in guarding the love you would give to me—all my life given to making you love me more and more until there will be no other world for you to think of."

"I wish that I had not been born," she sobbed. "I cannot, dearest—I cannot change the laws of fate. I am fated—I am doomed to live forever in the dreary world of my fathers. But how can I give you up? How can I give up your love? How can I cast you out of my life?"

"You do not love Prince Karl?"

"How can you ask?" she cried fiercely. "Am I not loving you with all my heart and soul?"

"And you would leave me behind if the ship should come?" he persisted, with cruel insistence. "You will go back and marry that—him? Loving me, you will marry him?" Her head dropped upon her arm. He turned cold as death. "God help and God pity you, my love. I never knew before what your little world means to you. I give you up to it. I crawl back into the one you look down upon with scorn. I shall not again ask you to descend to the world where love is."

Her hand lay limp in his. They stared bleakly out into the night, and no word was spoken.

The minutes became an hour, and yet they sat there with set faces, bursting hearts, unseeing eyes.

Below them in the shadows Bobby Browne was pacing the embankment, his wife drawn close to his side. Three men, Britt, Saunders and Bowles, were smoking their pipes on the edge of the terrace. Their words came up to the two in the gallery.

"If I have to die tomorrow," Saunders, the bridegroom, was saying, with real feeling in his voice, "I should say with all my heart that my life has been less than a week long. The rest of it was nothing. I never was happy before, and happiness is everything."

"I cannot bear the thought of leaving you behind."

The Fool and the Auto.

If a man should put rubber tires on the wheels of a locomotive and drive the same at express speed or anywhere near it over an ordinary wagon road he would be pronounced a suicidal lunatic, says an exchange. Yet this is exactly what men presumably of sound mind are doing every day with their motorcars. An automobile is practically a locomotive, and, like the latter, it can be driven with safety at any speed faster than a jog trot only on a specially prepared track free from obstructions that might derail it, ditch it or cause it to collide with rocks, telegraph poles and other things by the roadside. An elaborate system of signals is required to prevent collisions between locomotives on the rails, but our road locomotives zigzag over uneven and treacherous roadbeds, turn "hairpin" curves on steep grades and take a hundred other chances that would make a railroad engineer's hair stand on end. The daily bulletin of automobile fatalities ought to bring the conviction that common roads are not built for running locomotives at even the lowest speed now authorized by law and that the regulation of automobiles needs to be made stricter and unflinchingly enforced rather than liberalized.

Kidney Diseases Are Too Dangerous for Peterboro People to Neglect

The great danger of kidney troubles is that they get a firm hold before the sufferer recognizes them. Health is gradually undermined. Cure the kidneys with the certain and safe remedy, Booth's Kidney Pills, which have cured people right here in Peterborough.

Mrs. M. J. Cook, of 491 Aylmer St., Peterborough, Ont., says:—"I always find quick relief in Booth's Kidney Pills. They strengthen and relieve my back of a dull heavy pain that settles in the small of it and extends into my shoulders. For years I had suffered with these symptoms of kidney trouble and could find no relief. I had frequent spells of dizziness and headaches. I was restless and weak and would often awake more tired than on going to bed. I never found relief for these painful and weakening symptoms of kidney trouble until I used Booth's Kidney Pills occasionally and they keep me in the best of health." Sold by dealers. RABIES AT MILLBROOK

Dog That Bit Reginald Given Was Suffering From Dreaded Disease

Dr. Turner had a phone communication from Dr. Hodgetts, Toronto, yesterday, who stated that the dog that bit Reg. Given had rabies. Mr. Given took his son to Toronto to-day to receive treatment. We hope that he will soon be pronounced out of danger. Every precaution should be taken, as several dogs in town were fighting with the one that bit Master Given. We would suggest that all owners of dogs keep them shut up till all danger is past.—Millbrook Reporter.

MR. T. E. COLTON AT GRAND OPERA HOUSE TO-NIGHT

Will Speak on the Subject of "The World Without a Foreign Land"

There promises to be a large attendance at the meeting in the Grand Opera House this evening when Mr. E. T. Colton, of New York, will speak on "The World Without a Foreign Land." Mr. Colton is associated with Mr. John R. Mott in the Foreign Department of the Young Men's Christian Association work of North America and having made a visit to most of the world's foreign lands and made a careful and complete study of his subject is eminently fitted to deal with it. Those who heard Mr. Colton in Peterborough about a year ago testify as to his ability to present in a strong and pleasing way his subject matter.

Mr. Colton will have associated with him to-night Messrs. G. E. Truman and G. S. Phelps, who have both been in Japan and will relate some of their experiences.

Miss Pringle, soloist in Charlotte st. Methodist church will contribute to the programme of the evening.

The meeting is under the auspices of the Foreign Work Committee of the local Association and Alderman Turner, chairman of that committee, will preside.

No person who is interested in conditions and current events in foreign lands can afford to miss to-night's meeting, which is open to everybody. No admission is charged.

CALLS TOLL GATES A RELIC OF BARBARISM

Cobourg Sentinel Star:—We fully believe that one of the relics of barbarism, the toll gates, in this part of the country will soon be swept away, and good roads, free of toll, greet the traveller, everywhere. The meeting held last week has done some good, and the negotiations going on through the committee appointed will, we are led to believe, have good results. From what we learn the committee have gone about the matter in a business way, and having met the toll road directors are getting down to a price that will be acceptable to all. If the three roads can be purchased for about $25,000, they can divide amongst themselves, after deducting the one-third payable by the Government, Hamilton, Haldimand, Alnwick Port Hope and Cobourg are interested and should gladly pay their share to do away with these remembrances of early days and crude ways.

The caretaker will be at the Street Railway Rink every evening this week between 8 and 9 o'clock, when people may get toboggans belonging to them. The owners of all toboggans, left at the rink during the summer, will be charged 50c storage.

POLICE TOOK A HAND AND BROKE UP THE SHOW

Local Amateurs Given a Poor Reception on Their Initial Rehearsal at Carters' Roost.

A new vaudeville house was opened last night at the corner of Charlotte and Water streets, when Tom Collins, from Kinmount, and his well selected company of song and dance artists held down the boards at the Carters' Roost, for a rehearsal, but the programme was cut short, owing to police intervention. The company was only organized yesterday, and the promoters are inclined to feel sore because of the action of the police. It was not intended that the rehearsal should become known to the public, but the "something doing" sign went up when word reached the police station that a keg of liquid refreshments was coming from the City Hotel. P.C.'s Meagher, Mcharry and Newhall began to investigate in the vicinity of where the city carters hold out when trade is dull. Sounds of revelry, coming from the ticket office, could be heard and, getting in accordance with their orders, the big three took up positions of vantage and proceeded to watch the amateurs inside.

Collins appeared to be the big noise. He had a $1.29 fiddle, and to the strains of "The Volunteer Organist" the other three shook their pedals and sang funny songs. An eight-gallon keg of lager occupied a conspicuous position and occasionally it would become the centre of attractions. Finally the performance began to lag, and the outside audience stepped in to hand out a few bouquets before the curtain went down. The box office receipts were disappointingly small and the entire cast accepted the hospitality offered to them and followed their noses in the Water Street Actors' Home.

This morning Magistrate Dumble characterized their performance as disorderly conduct, and while his company decided that it was in that category Tommy protested. He claimed that he didn't want to take part in the show in the first place, but had, at the last minute, accepted. None of the four could give any information about the stolen keg, and that part of the affair was dropped, but as a warning to any others musically inclined each of the company, with the exception of their star, was charged $5.75, with the alternative of a ten days' visit to the Jail.

PLAY IS A MOST APPROPRIATE ONE

T.A.S. Dramatic Section Fortunate in Their Selection of "Shaun Rhue"—The Special Numbers

It would seem that the dramatic section of the T.A.S. have been particularly fortunate in the selection of their annual 17th of March play for this year, when they decided on the celebrated Irish drama, "Shaun Rhue." Joe Murphys' masterpiece is rather pretentious for amateurs, but a first-class presentation of it is assured so faithfully have the local players been in their rehearsals and the cast is a capable and well chosen one.

Interesting special numbers will be contributed by Miss Lavina Hallihan, Mr. John King and Master Joe Clancy, and an attractive dancing specialty will be given by Mr. Sam Houlihan.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

The Review does not hold itself responsible for opinions expressed byits correspondents

Anybody Could do It

To the Editor of the Review

Sir.—Anybody could borrow money on the credit of the stocking millions of Canada and expand the West. Both parties did that. But what about the expansion of the East? From Niagara Falls alone there have gone 1,000 people to the West this spring. The fact is Ontario is being ruined by this suicidal policy. When men look askance at industry in Ontario they can soon learn the reason why. We are being made to spend our money for the West, and yet we think we're a clever people, don't you know?

Yours,
CALL A HALT.

Ratepayers' Rejoinder

To the Editor of the Review.

Sir,—I notice a letter from Ald. Turner in last night's Review and would say that the way the city is going behind in the Marathon race is like Billy Naughan and should scare the aldermen out of their self-satisfied sleep. Is the city's idea of selling power to make money out of it?

Don't everybody know our water is much dearer here than in other places, and dirty, too? Thank goodness the Government won't let them put us to the expense of filtration. Here are the aldermen with their crazy hanging to water power to make money out of the town, and the city is gasping for business. Get a move on there!

Yours truly,
RATEPAYER.

Condemns the Practice

To the Editor of the Review.

Sir—In reply to my critic in the Review of the 9th inst., I would say in his letter he clearly points out to us that it was the custom of our Saviour to go to feasts at the homes of His disciples viz., at Bethany in Cana and with Matthew. Yes and with this His custom accords the teaching of St. Paul when he says: "What have ye not houses to eat and to drink in? or despise ye the church of God and shame them that have not?" Yes they had plenty of houses to eat and to drink in as we have to-day without turning our churches into eating houses. In the same connection Paul adds: "If any man hunger let him eat at home." Tell me ye lovers of church suppers, ye advocates of sanctuary high teas and banquets did Christ or His apostles ever go to the sanctuary or exhort the people to go there to buy and eat their meals? Did they? My critic also rightly intimates that it is the business of the church to entertain strangers. Yes she should be to the fore in this good work. But when we set aside our prayer meetings for violin and cornet socials and all sorts of banquets church operettas, concerts, &c., and sing to the strangers such songs as "Yankee Doodle came to town riding on a pony," "Tom, Tom, the Piper's Son stole a pig and away he run" and "Johnnie Smoker," then I must say we are entertaining strangers with a vengeance in the House of God. And I would remark right here that we are entertaining neither saints nor angels at such performances for they would not tolerate them no not for a moment. I am glad to know that the people are getting tired of this thing. Not many hours ago a Presbyterian lady said to me: "Mr Carlisle I have baked my last pies for my preacher's church suppers and I am going to tell him so the first time I see him." The good people are slowly but surely coming to believe that these church suppers, &c., are more a means of grease in the church than a means of grace to the church.

Yours for reverence for holy things.
JOHN CARLISLE.

The caretaker will be at the Street Railway Rink every evening this week between 8 and 9 o'clock, when people may get toboggans belonging to them. The owners of all toboggans, left at the rink during the summer, will be charged 50c storage.

THEATRICAL

There's no doubt that Charley Grapewin has a high place as a popular theatrical favorite, and there's no doubt that he was thoroughly appreciated at the Grand last night as Jimmy Hicks in his new play, "Above the Limit." Miss Anna Chance in leading support of Mr. Grapewin, took the role of Marjory Marsh with much acceptance, and the others of the cast responded satisfactorily to the requirements of their parts. The applause was very hearty and Jimmy Hicks reeled off the bowery talk like a true citizen of the lower east side.

But Grapewin in "Above the Limit" has not as well written a vehicle as he had in "Up to You, John Henry," and "The Awakening of Mr. Pipp," and in many places it is talky and drawn out besides being too conventional in construction. However, it provided considerable entertainment and amusement and features the original Charley to considerable advantage.

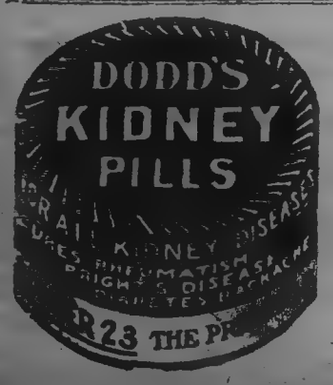
Baseball for Y.M.C.A.

Last night a number of baseball enthusiasts met and informally discussed matters in this connection for the coming season. It was decided to hold another meeting on Monday next at 8 o'clock, when organization will be taken up.

Eva Prudhomme, who was said to have been married, died at Windsor, after an operation for appendicitis.



SPORTING NOTES

Siever the pitcher just secured by Montreal learned to play ball in London Ontario, where he was a locomotive fireman.

Robertson the first baseman purchased by Buffalo from Nashville is incapacitated with rheumatism and will not play this season.

Joe McGinnity's Newark troupe will start next season for Danville, Va. where they will train.

Manager Barrow yesterday sent out letters to minor league managers all over the country offering pitchers Wicker and Hoch for sale. The latter was drafted from Harrisburg.

By landing the championship of the Eastern League race this season the members of the Newark Indians will have the pleasure of dividing $5000, if the plans of a number of well-known residents of that city are carried out. The matter has been put up to Manager Joe McGinnity by some members of the Board of Trade who are ardent baseball fans.

Toronto Telegram says that Joe Kelley is "kidding" when he talks of getting Willie Keeler.

REACH'S GUIDE

Reach's Official American League Guide for 1910, published by the A. J. Reach Company, of Philadelphia, and edited by Mr. Francis C. Richter, of "Sporting Life," is out, and is, as usual, first in the field, thus making it the harbinger of the baseball season. It can be said without any qualification, that, excellent as all of the editions of the Reach Guide have been in recent years, the 1910 Guide is the best hand book of the kind ever issued by this or any other publisher. The special distinction of the 1910 Guide is, next to the text, quality of paper used and the number and beauty of the engravings furnished, the world's championship series being specially well dowered with splendid action pictures. The American League Guide for 1910 is in all respects a first-class hand book for the National game and a decided credit to the American League and to the publishers, the Reach Company. This is the ninth annual issue of the Reach Guide as the official handbook of the American League and the twenty-eighth consecutive year of its publication as a book of record and reference for the entire base ball world.

Hugh Lehman will, after all, be allowed to play in the Berlin-Wanderer match. Lehman, who is a Pembroke boy, lived at Berlin all last summer and signed on with the Galt team, when the latter aggregation came down to Ottawa in quest of the trophy last December. He immediately returned to the Galt club after the Berlin-Ottawa series, finishing out the season with Berlin and leading his team to the Ontario Pro. league championship. Recently he was declared ineligible for Stanley cup competition again this winter, but when the circumstances were explained yesterday to Mr Foran, he waived the previous ruling and informed the Berlin team that the trustees would allow Lehman to play. Lehman is captain of the Berlin team, and without him it would have been sadly crippled.—Ottawa Citizen.

PRESENTED WITH PURSE OF GOLD

Mr. James Kinnee, of Best's Station, Honored by His Friends—Will Reside in the West

A number of neighbors and friends of Mr. James Kinnee, who resides near Best's Station, called at his home on Monday night to say farewell to him and his family, all of whom left yesterday morning for Carlyle, Sask., where they will reside in the future. The evening was pleasantly spent by all, and Mr. Kinnee was presented with a purse of gold by Mr. Thomas McIvor on behalf of those assembled, and Mr. George McAgue read the following address:—

Dear Mr. Kinnee,—It is with feelings of regret that we are gathered here this evening to say farewell to yourself and family on the eve of your departure for the great west. Although, comparatively speaking, a stranger in our midst, yet you have endeared yourself among us by your many acts of neighborly kindness and sociability, and we shall miss your cheerful greeting and hearty hand clasp. We feel, however, that our loss will be your gain, and that the same qualities that have attracted us will draw many friends around you in your new home. As a further token of our friendship we ask you to accept this purse of gold, and with it our best wishes for the future prosperity and happiness of yourself and family.

Insurance Companies Lose About $125,000.00 by the Wreck at Spanish River

Double Liability for About Twenty-five Persons

A loss of somewhere in the neighbourhood of $125,000 is what the Accident Insurance Companies estimate the wreck at Spanish River bridge means to them.

They figure that about 25 of those who met death carried Accident Insurance, and the average insurance, according to the tables, is $5,000. In case of death in a railway disaster there is a double liability, making the figure $6,000, or $5,000 to be more conservative.

Their loss may total more than that, for the commercial travellers, a number of whom were killed, usually carry very heavy insurance. In addition, some of the companies make the policies payable on the death of the wife while travelling, though the policy is taken out in the husband's name. In such cases they pay the husband the same amount as they would have paid the wife were the husband killed.

We issue the BEST Accident and Sickness policy offered to the public.

BY THE WAY

The man who snores in church and keeps the rest of us awake deserves severe censure.

The trouble with the man who shaves himself is that there are so many times he doesn't do it.

Here's a tip for the merchants. It's the custom of advertising that gets customers.

Politics in Alberta appear to be just about as badly mixed up as the power situation in Peterborough.

Looking forward to and backward at a vacation are the most enjoyable features of it.

There is a certain class of dogs that will have to be provided with mirrors in order that they can see if their muzzles are on straight.

Hogs are selling in Buffalo at seven dollars per hundred live weight. The much despised pig is getting a terrible grip on the country.

Hon. Adam Beck is offering prizes in order to encourage the production of cleaner milk. Farmers should bring this to the attention of the cows at once.

The trainmen in the west are losing their nerve as a result of the numerous disasters on the roads. Too bad that some Peterborough people do not become afflicted in the same way.

"Lindsay drinks ozonized water," says the St. Thomas Times. If the editor of the Times will visit Lindsay he will find that ozonized water is not the only liquid consumed there.

The Brantford Courier is complaining because the city clock there is constantly illuminated and the timepiece isn't going. In Peterborough the city clock is going all right, but it is not illuminated. Probably the Brantford clock is kept lighted to show the people that it isn't going.

A phrenologist called at the Review Office to-day and read the head of one of the editorial staff. The only bump he could find was one caused by a blow from a policeman's club.

In to-day's Review appears an item about a bull weighing 2,000 pounds. This is the biggest bull that has been in the Review for several weeks.

HAT PINS HARMLESS IF PROPERLY PLACED

A tirade against that feminine weapon of many shapes and purposes, the hat pin, has been commenced in Chicago, and some other American cities, and is receiving strong support.

The judiciary committee of the Chicago City Council is to draw up an ordinance stipulating that hat pins worn in public places "shall not extend more than one-half inch beyond the crown of the hat."

From conversation with a leading milliner of the city the Review learns that it is not so much the length of the pin which makes it project as the way in which it is stuck into the hat.

"A hat pin should be the exact length of the width of the crown of the hat worn," was contended. "A twelve inch hat pin is not too long for a twelve inch crown, and will not project if properly placed in position but I often see women using a 12-inch hat pin through a nine-inch crown, in which case the pin stands out from the crown and doubtless is dangerous."

The caretaker will be at the Street Railway Rink every evening this week between 8 and 9 o'clock, when people may get toboggans belonging to them. The owners of all toboggans, left at the rink during the summer, will be charged 50c storage.

CAUGHT THE MOOD.

Men of genius are confessedly creatures of mood. Grief and adversity have often been a real help to them rather than a hindrance. Poe, it is said, produced "The Raven" while sitting at the bedside of his sleeping but dying wife. Many similar instances might be cited, but an anecdote of Verdi, told by Carlo Ceccarelli, will suffice.

On one occasion when Verdi was engaged on his well known opera, "Il Trovatore," he stopped short at the passage of the "Miserere," being at a loss to combine notes of sufficient sadness and pathos to express the grief of the prisoner, Manrico.

Sitting at his piano in the deep stillness of the winter night, his imagination wandered back to the stormy days of his youth, endeavoring to extract from the past a plaint, a groan, like those which escaped from his breast when he saw himself forsaken by the world. All in vain!

One day at Milan he was unexpectedly called to the bedside of a dying friend, one of the few who had remained faithful to him in adversity and prosperity. Verdi at the sight of his dying friend felt a lump rise in his throat. He wanted to weep, but so intense was his grief that not a tear flowed to the relief of his anguish.

In an adjoining room stood a piano. Verdi, under one of those sudden impulses to which men of genius are sometimes subject, sat down at the instrument and there and then improvised the sublime "Miserere" of the "Trovatore." The musician had given utterance to his grief.

QUEER JEWELRY.

Telegraph Wire Necklaces and Insulators as Earrings.

The aesthetic and decorative uses to which barbarians will turn objects which to civilized races are things of the humblest utility are amusingly illustrated by this "fashion note" from West Africa taken from an Italian newspaper:

For some time the officials of the German colony in Southwest Africa noticed that the telegraph wires and other accessories of the electrical plant disappeared as by magic immediately after they had been put up. The most diligent inquiries remained fruitless.

From other parts of the German possessions came reports of strange predilections for articles of German commerce, as, for example, rubber heels, garters, buckles, and so forth, things which the natives of those countries do not generally use.

The governor of the colony gave an entertainment one year in honor of the emperor's birthday and invited the chiefs of the different tribes to it. What was his surprise when he saw those native gentlemen appear with the stolen telegraph wires twisted round their illustrious necks. The higher the dignity the more rings of the wire were round the neck.

Inquiries were soon started in the outlying villages, and it came to light that the white china insulators of the telegraph poles had become earrings. A young lady of the highest distinction in native society wore a rubber heel hanging from her nose, and a young man who was a well known dandy wore dangling from his ears a pair of beautiful pink silk garters.

A Soldier's Beginnings.

We were visiting at Sandringham. Sir Evelyn Wood, who is very deaf, crept up as near as he could to the musicians, and in one of the pauses he said to me, "Are you fond of music?" I answered, "Yes." "Do you play anything?" I said, "No." "Well," he went on, "I am so fond of it that, would you believe it, I began to practice scales at twenty-four. But one day my sister came up and put her hand on my shoulder and said, 'My dear boy, you had better give that up,' and so I did." He also told me that he began life as a sailor, then went to the bar and finally entered the army. The only profession he had not tried was the church, and his enemies say he would have tried that, only he did not know what church to choose.—"Life of Sir William Broadbent."

The Falling Branch.

In the grounds of Dalhousie castle, Scotland, is said to be a famous example of the sympathy of the vegetable world with human death. It was anciently believed in the neighborhood that a branch always fell from this oak when a member of the family died. Apparently the fall of the original tree early in the eighteenth century did not break the sympathy, for a new one sprang from the old root, and it is upon record that as lately as 1874 an old forester, seeing a branch fall from this on a still day, cried, "The laird's deed noo!" News of the eleventh Earl of Dalhousie's death soon followed.

Straightforward.

He—You mustn't believe every beggar who comes to your door. She—But this was no common beggar. He was a sea captain who had lost everything in a shipwreck. He—How do you know he was? She—He told a straightforward story about how his ship went to pieces on the coast of Switzerland.

One Barrel of Flour Instead of Two

YES, in the old way there was one kind of flour for bread and another for pastry.

Now, OGILVIE'S ROYAL HOUSEHOLD FLOUR is an all around flour. It makes not only the very best bread but also the very best cakes, pies, biscuits, rolls, muffins, pop-overs, pancakes, dumplings, anything that you want to make or bake from flour.

"ROYAL HOUSEHOLD" saves money and trouble. Instead of having two barrels of flour in the house you can get along much better with one. And you can be certain that it is always uniform—will always come out right whether for Bread or Pastry.

ROYAL HOUSEHOLD FLOUR makes better bread and better pastry than any other flour because it is better flour—made from the finest grade of wheat in the world, Manitoba Red Fyfe wheat, and milled by the very finest machinery, in mills that are a model of cleanliness.

"ROYAL HOUSEHOLD" costs a trifle more by the barrel than ordinary flour but this trifle extra proves real economy when the loaves are counted. For "ROYAL HOUSEHOLD" goes farther than ordinary flour—farther in actual quantity of baked product.

Even if "ROYAL HOUSEHOLD" cost a great deal more than ordinary flour it would be well worth it for it is more nourishing.

You can't afford to buy impoverished flour at any price. You can't afford to skimp on health. And you do skimp on health when you buy flour just because it costs less than "ROYAL HOUSEHOLD".

APSLEY

Special to the Review.

Apsley, March 9.—We have been having some very fine weather for the past week, and the roads are beginning to show the effects of a warmer armosphere.

A little surprise party was held on Thursday evening last at the home of Mrs. Downing. Quite a number of the young people were present and in the event of the taffy pull, might just conclude that —— well, a sweet old time.

Mr. J. W. Stewart, representative of the Singer Sewing Machine Company, made a trip through the neighborhood on Thursday last.

Miss Nellie Gilroy, who is staying with her aunt, Mrs. Albert Hall, of Apsley, made her parents a visit on Sunday last.

Mrs. Robt. McCauley, of Lasswade, is very poorly at present. Her complaint is a stubborn and long standing malady, but it is hoped that she will soon be her old-time self again.

The camp at Methuen, which has been managed by Mr. Geo. Wilson, of Apsley, has broken up owing to the very soft weather of the past week.

There is quite a lot of sickness in this locality just now.

Mr. Robt. Strenn started for the village with a load of oats to get ground and while on the road going down a hill the draw bolt came out and the result was his horses ran away, cutting one very badly. However, no other damage was done.

THE MARKET REPORT

Peterborough.—The cause for some of the high cost of living could be found on the market this week. It is an evident scarcity of meat supply. Even with $9 to $9.25 held up to the farmers as the price for live hogs, the delivery is very light. However those that were brought in sold at those prices, and dressed hogs easily sold at $12.50 to $13. Grain is mostly all marketed in this section apparently very little coming in just now. Wheat brings $1.03 to $1.08 and oats only realize 38c. The hay supply keeps up but the price $16 to $19 is quite an inducement to the seller.

PITCHED BATTLE BETWEEN RIOTERS AND STRIKE BREAKERS

Fifteen Injured, Four Fatally, at Trenton, N.J., To-day—Shots Were Fired—Police Reserves Had to be Called Out.

Special to the Review.

Trenton, N.J., March 11.—In a pitched battle between 5,000 rioters and a band of strike-breakers 15 men were injured, four fatally, early to-day. As sixty non-union men brought from York guarded by police dashed into a waiting car and attempted to run it, but the mob attacked them with revolvers and missiles. While the manifestants fired fusilades the fugitives hid under the seats and the car rushed through the mob to the quarters arranged for the strike-breakers. A few of the newcomers answered the fire of the crowd, firing blindly without daring to raise their heads to view. The police reserves from all over the city were called out and attacked the mob, which finally dispersed.

REV. D. A. CASEY ORDAINED TO THE PRIESTHOOD AT ST. PETER'S THIS MORNING

His Lordship Bishop O'Connor Officiated and Large Congregation Witnessed the Ceremony—Young Priest Gave His First Blessing--Will be Member of Cathedral Staff.

Rev. D. A. Casey was raised to the dignity of the Catholic priesthood this morning at St. Peter's Cathedral by His Lordship, the Right Reverend Bishop O'Connor. The impressive and interesting ceremony was witnessed by a large congregation, and the young priest, who has made himself much beloved since coming to the parish of St. Peter's, will have the prayers and best wishes of the parishioners for a long and fruitful ministration. As Rev. Father Casey is a brilliant scholar and energetic worker and zealous apostle of the Catholic faith, it would not seem an untimely prophecy at the infancy of his secretary responsible calling to predict that their hopes will be fully realized.

Rev. Father McColl, rector of St. Peter's, and Rev. Father Phelan, of Lakefield, assisted His Lordship at the ordination, and Rev. Father McFadden, of Douro, was Master of Ceremonies. Other members of the clergy present were Ven. Archdeacon Casey, of London; Rev. Father O'Leary, of Trout Creek; Rev. Father Galvin, of Galway; Rev. Father Meagher and Rev. Father Toner, of the Cathedral staff. Rev. Father Casey's brother, Mr. T. J. Casey, of Montreal; Hon. Senator Coffey, of London; Mr. Burns, of the Catholic Record, London, and Mr. JJ Coffey, Westmount, Montreal, were also in attendance, and were the first to receive the newly ordained priest's blessing. The young priest immediately sent a message of blessing to his parents, Newport, Tipperary, Ireland, of which place he is a native.

Rev. Father Casey made his philosophical and theological studies at All Hallows College, Dublin, and finished his studies at St. Michael's College, Toronto. He is an able literateur and wind profile and authoritative contributor to American and Old Country periodicals.

The occasion of his inception into the holy offices of the priesthood brought forth many messages of congratulation from friends in the old land, Canada and the United States, and a cable of congratulation from his brother, Father D. C. Casey, P. P., M., of Buenos Ayres, Argentine Republic, South America, as well as the sincere congratulations of his numerous friends of the city.

Rev. Father Casey will be attached to the Cathedral staff.

COMMITTEE SENDS BILL TO THE HOUSE

Ottawa, March 10.—The committee dealing with Mr. Miller's bill which proposes to make race track betting illegal, decided to-day by a vote of five to two to report favorably the measure to the House without any amendment on principle. Some slight changes in phraseology to make the intent absolutely clear was agreed to. Messrs. Monk and McColl favored adopting the amendment suggested by the racing men which would allow book-making, but prohibit handbooks, advance tips, etc. The amendment, however, was defeated, and the bill carried. The division stood:—

Yeas — Messrs. Miller, Stratton, Blain, Marlin and Sinclair.

Nays—Messrs. Monk and McColl.

The bill will now go to the House, and, while the government will consent to allowing a special time being fixed for its discussion, it will not become a government measure.

LINE TO LINK WITH ANTIPODES

Ships Will Bring Australian Produce to Canada and Carry Our Manufactured Goods to Antipodes

It has just been announced by the Canadian Government that a new direct service between Canadian Atlantic ports, and Australia and New Zealand will be put on this summer. This service is the be put on by the New Zealand Shipping Company, which is one of the big steamship companies of the world. It is expected that this new line will result in a large accretion of trade between Eastern Canada and the Antipodes, the boats bringing frozen meats, wool, tallow, hides and other Australasian products to Canada, and taking back manufactured products, such as agricultural implements, flour, carriages, buggies, boots and shoes, sewing machines, and other Canadian manufactured articles, which have for long past been in strong demand in Australia.

The new service will be inaugurated with the sailing of the S.S. "Rakaia," from Montreal on May 15th, and monthly sailings thereafter.

The New Zealand Shipping Company, which is inaugurating this new venture, is one of the strong shipping companies of the world. It was inaugurated in New Zealand in 1873, with several sailing vessels, but speedily grew, until, with the advent of steam vessels, it took on a new phase, and became a concern with world-wide affiliations. At present its headquarters are at London, nEgland, and at Christchurch, New Zealand, and the company owns 17 first-class modern steamships, operating all over the world.

In its origin the company was formed by a number of New Zealand farmers, who felt the necessity for foreign outlet for their trade, but its success speedily caused it to outgrow this limited start.

The service will be operated by five steamships, Montreal being the summer port and West St. John the winter port. The names of the vessels are as follows: 'Rakaia,' 'Whakatane,' 'Waimate,' 'Papanui' and 'Wakanui.'

It is the intention of the New Zealand shipping Company to give the Canadian manufacturer every facility and concession which the American manufacturer now enjoys and which Canadians have felt for some time past they were not obtaining through the Port of New York owing to certain discrimination. A matter worthy of note is that although New Zealand granted to the Canadian a preferential tariff some years ago the same has been of little benefit as it is claimed by Canadian manufacturers that the Steamship Lines operating out of New York immediately advanced freight rates against the Canadians, so as to practically offset the advantage in the duty in order to place the American Manufacturer on an equal footing with the Canadian. The New Zealand Shipping Company and Canadian Government in establishing this service feel confident of the full and undivided support of the Canadian Shipping Public. There is undoubtedly sufficient traffic to warrant the success of the Line.

These vessels are approximately 9,000 tons burden each, and are all equipped with the most modern cold storage facilities for the carriage of frozen meats from the Antipodes.

This service will undoubtedly promote a more friendly feeling between Australia, New Zealand and Canada and also increase the interchange of commodities between these great links of the Empire.

SEYMOUR POWER COMPANY DEALING WITH CAMPBELLFORD

At a special meeting of the Town Council on Tuesday, March 1st, an agreement was entered into between the town and the company by which the corporation will supply the company with about 1300 horse power electric energy.

The agreement in brief as we understand it is this: The Seymour Power Electric Co. will supply cash to purchase another unit in the power house at Crow Bay capable of generating one thousand kilowats, which is equivalent to 1333 horse power. The company will pay to the corporation $12,000 per year for the power, and in case the town should require more power than their present unit supplies, on 12 months' notice, the company will furnish them with 333 horse power. The town agrees to pay the Seymour Power & Electric Co. for the installation and electrical machine in five equal annual instalments, the sum not to exceed $35,000 with interest at five per cent. Thus the company will pay $60,000 for the power and the town will pay them $35,000 for cost of development, leaving $25,000 net to the corporation in five years. There will also be the additional cost to the town of another man at the power house, who would likely get in the neighborhood of $1,000 per year. The town will thus be the better off by nearly $4,000 annually and at the end of five years own the second unit. The agreement we understand terminates in five years.—Campbellford Herald.

PREMIER RUTHERFORD REFUSES TO ACCEPT RESIGNATIONS

Motion to Give Bill the Six Months' Hoist Because Legislature Lack Confidence in the Government is Defeated by 20 to 17.

Edmonton, March 12.—For ten minutes yesterday the fate of the Rutherford Government hung in the balance. The crisis was precipitated by Riley, seconded by Boyle, moving a vote of lack of confidence in the Government, the vote being defeated by a vote of 20 to 17.

Rutherford, Cross, Marshall and Lessard occupied treasury benches, while Buchanan occupied a seat as private member, and voted against the Government.

Cross moved a second reading of a bill respecting towns, and following was moved by Riley "That this bill be given the six months' hoist, as this Legislature has no further confidence in the Government."

Outside of the regular number of insurgents, Buchanan and McKenney switched from the Government ranks. Smith, of Camrose, gave notice of motion that the Government stay all work on the Alberta and Great Waterways Railway until a commission, entirely free from politics, was appointed.

When Premier Rutherford moved the adjournment until Monday, R. B. Bennett immediately demanded an explanation. He enquired if the Attorney-General had resigned, and had then returned to the Government, also had the Minister without portfolio, Buchanan, resigned, as was evident since he had voted against the Government on division? The Prime Minister, he said, was either trying to befuddle members or else he was incompetent.

Rutherford, in reply, stated that he had accepted no resignations.

Bennett—"Has Buchanan resigned? If not, why his vote against the Government?"

Rutherford—"I will make a statement when the proper time arrives."

A local paper declares that Thursday night nineteen members of the Government signed a round robin to the Lieutenant-Governor, asking that he call on Cross to form a Ministry. It is also reported that a hotelkeeper up country has arrived here and has hinted that Boyle would e acceptable to the license-holders as Attorney-General.

PATTEN IS HUSTLED

Manchester Brokers Revile While the Liverpool Men Cheer Him.

London, Eng., March 12.—A hostile demonstration on the floor of the cotton exchange at Manchester, and one directly contracting it for friendliness on the corn exchange at Liverpool, were met with yesterday by James A. Patten, the Chicago wheat and cotton operator.

In the first, Mr. Patten was mobbed and probably escaped injury only by being rescued by the police; in the latter he was greeted with cheering and other manifestations of friendliness. Mr. Patten will sail from Liverpool to-day for New York on the Mauretania.

The brief vacation in England of the Chicago operator had been spent mostly about the Liverpool markets, and yesterday he made up his mind to run over to Manchester to see the city and visit the cotton exchange.

It was known to Mr. Patten that there had been threats of an unpleasant reception should he visit "Cottonopolis," but he refused to believe they would be carried into effect.

These threats, it is said, emanated from persons on the exchange who had lost large sums as a result of Mr. Patten's operations in Chicago and from others who hold him responsible for yesterday's rise in the price of cotton and who believed that his visit to England had for its purpose the manipulation of the market.

Patten's coming to Manchester had been widely heralded since his arrival in Liverpool and the reception was ready for him.

AN EARTHQUAKE IN CALIFORNIA

San Francisco, Cal., March 12.—A sharp earthquake in some parts of the state, the severest shock since the big one of 1906, was experienced throughout the central part of California on Thursday night about 10.54 o'clock.

The vibrations were long and undulatory, but slow. The duration was from one and a half to four seconds.

In San Francisco people were generally aroused. In the telegraph offices virtually every operator left his key.

AUSTRALIAN COAL STRIKE IS ENDED

Sydney, N.S.W., March 12.—The strike of the northern coal miners, which has been in progress since early in November, was declared off yesterday, thus ending the difficulties in the New South Wales coal fields. The southern miners resumed work last month.

During the strike, which affected 12,000 miners, the price of coal jumped from $7 to $16 a ton. The question of higher wages and better working conditions precipitated the conflict. Four of the strike leaders were sentenced to terms of imprisonment during the trouble, having been convicted of obstructing work at the mines.

WILL HAVE PRIVATE AUTO FACTORY

New York, March 12.—One hundred of the leading business men of Wall street are to make automobiles for their own use on designs embodying the best features of both American and foreign cars. The company will have a factory at Springfield, Mass., the output of which will be bought at the actual cost of manufacture to the stockholders.

The concern has been incorporated under the laws of this state, with a nominal capital of $10,000. It is understood that the output will be limited to 100 cars, the number of stockholders.

H. D. LUMSDEN WAS CROSS-EXAMINED

Ottawa, March 12.—H. D. Lumsden, former chief engineer of the National Transcontinental Commission, was cross-examined yesterday morning by R. C. Smith, K.C., in regard to his declaration that he had lost confidence in his engineering staff, and that was why he had resigned.

He admitted that, as chief engineer, he was fully responsible for his staff. The engineers were all appointed and dismissed, where dismissals took place, on his recommendation, and he was never interfered with by the commissioners in that regard.

He could not make his charges more definite nor could he name the engineers in whom he had lost confidence.

Asked as to what he based his loss of confidence on, Mr. Lumsden said that his confidence was weakened to a certain extent as to the manner in which they were carrying out his instructions. He could not, however, give any definite illustration.

"The only difference we had was that their classification did not agree with what I thought it should have been," he said.

Asked if he could give any illustration of where ordinary earth was classed as rock, he said he remembered one case on the Wabana River where he saw a cutting plowed, yet it was afterwards charged as loose rock.

The committee adjourned until Tuesday morning.

ORANGE GRAND LODGE OVER AT ST. CATHARINES

St. Catharines, March 12.—It was nearly five o'clock yesterday morning when the Orange Grand Lodge of Ontario West concluded business. Barrie was chosen for the next place of meeting and these officers were elected:—Grand master, Harry Lovelock; deputy grand master, Fred Dane, Toronto; junior deputy grand master, Dr. J. J. Williams, Woodstock; grand chaplain, Rev. John Coburn, Toronto; grand treasurer, John Hewitt, Toronto; grand secretary, W. M. Fitzgerald; grand lecturer, J. J. D. Banting, Cookstown; grand director of ceremonies, A. H. Jennings, North Toronto; deputy grand secretary, William Cook, Meaford; grand auditors: A. W. Wright, Toronto, and W. T. Taylor, Aurora.

The deputy grand chaplains elected were:—Rev. J. R. Bell, Laurel; Rev. C. H. Buckland, Listowell; Rev. J. P. McInnes, Cedarville; Rev. J. C. Perry, Toronto; Rev. J. A. Robinson, Markdale; Rev. Wm. Walsh, Brampton; Rev. Canon Dixon, Kingston; Rev. G. G. Dryer, Beaton; Rev. W. H. Hartley, Blyth; Rev. J. J. Haylock, Leamington; Rev. F. E. Howitt, Hamilton; Rev. E. W. Hughes, Tilsonburg; Rec. E. C. Laker, Toronto; Rev. T. R. White, Laurel; Rev. R. L. Wilson, Staffa; Rev. Dr. Walter Witten, Barrie; Rev. G. Kain, Sarnia; Rev. J. S. Willoughby, Georgetown; Rev. H. A. Fish, Kleinburg; Rev. J. S. Carrie, Rosbsay.

It was decided after a long discussion, to do away with organizers. This was the outcome of dissatisfaction with the way the work has been carried on, the organizers being under direction of the executive, whereas the delegates claimed they should work in districts under the guidance of county and district masters. A new resolution to this effect was finally submitted and carried.

LEADER R. L. BORDEN ARRAIGNS MANAGEMENT OF TRANSCONTINENTAL

"There Has Been Gross Negligence or the Country is Being Robbed of Millions." — He Declares When Vote for Expenditure Comes Up in the House — Trent Canal Claims in East Peterborough.

Ottawa, March 12.—"There has been gross negligence or incompetence in the beginning, or else the country is being robbed of millions of dollars."

This strong statement was made by R. L. Borden in the Commons relative to expenditures on the National Transcontinental Railway.

On the vote for the expenditure for the next fiscal year being taken up, the Minister of Railways, at the request of Mr. Borden, gave statistics as to the progress of construction, etc., up to the end of 1909. The total expenditure up to that date, he said, had been $67,890,607. The estimated cost per mile still remained at the figures given in the House in 1908, viz., $63,500.

The number of miles graded was 1,062, and the number of miles of tracks laid was 727. Of the track mileage 631 miles were the main line and 106 on sidings.

The estimated cost of the construction of the prairie section still stood at $33,000 per mile. The estimated cost of the mountain section per mile had not been arrived at.

Mr. Graham said the estimates were not so close as they should be. Still, it was difficult to make accurate estimates from surface indications. The same sort of thing occurred on all railways, but the public did not hear of them.

Samuel Barker (Hamilton) said that any board of directors of a railway would dismiss its whole engineering staff if it made such errors in its estimates.

Haughton Lennox said the commission, which had been named to study the classification, had been blocking things for two years.

The Minister gave figures to show that on certain contracts the estimates of common excavation were 1,841,152 cubic yards, whereas with 26 per cent. of the work done, common excavation was only 520,726 cubic yards.

Mr. Borden described these figures as astonishing. He had no personal knowledge of the matter, and did not want to make charges, but it looked as though something was wrong.

Mr. Graham denied that the board was doing no work. The board had commenced the work, and it would be continued as soon as the snow left the ground.

Before the Commons settled down to supply on the railway estimates yesterday, Haughton Lennox (South Simcoe) made serious charges regarding a transaction of which Hon. G. P. Graham and Hon. A. B. Aylesworth will require explanations from two Government agents.

According to a statement by Mr. Lennox, certain lands in East Peterboro were alleged to have been flooded by the building of some dams in connection with the Trent Valley Canal.

Complaints were laid before the Government by owners of these lands, and an investigation and valuation was ordered.

The valuator was a surveyor by name of Dixon, and L. F. Clarry, a former Liberal candidate for the Legislature, was appointed agent of the Justice Department to look after the interests of the Government.

A number of the land owners were paid apparently, on a basis of $10 an acre, but some have not been paid. It is stated, that some of the claims which have not been recognized are genuine.

In support of these charges Mr. Lenox produced a letter said to have been written by Mr. Clarry to a farmer, urging him to influence his brother, who was a claimant, to hang out for twelve or fifteen acres, and also a document alleged to have been sent out by Mr. McClarry soliciting business. Mr. Lennox further stated that Mr. Henry Humphries, a Liberal farmer, had complained of being held up by Mr. Clarry for 15 per cent. commission, with a threat that if he did not pay he would get no compensation.

Hon. Mr. Graham said that if any agent of the Department had been acting improperly, he could not think of allowing him to act for the Department. The Department would institute an enquiry.

Hon. Mr. Aylesworth said he was inclined to doubt the truth of the statement. Clarry was in good standing as a lawyer. However, he would be called upon for an explanation, and if things were not right, he would get no more work from the Justice Department.

There was another bit of a breeze in the House of Commons at the opening of the sitting yesterday afternoon when R. L. Borden, Opposition leader, pointed out an irregularity in connection with the reporting of the proceedings of the Lumsden investigation, which he suggested might have been committed purposely.

E. M. MacDonald of Pictou, who has been the active member of that committee, lost his temper during the debate which ensued, and was sternly called to order by the Speaker, who ordered him to sit down.

Mr. Borden drew attention to an "extraordinary mistake," which had been made by the chairman of the investigation committee. A motion had been made by Haughton Lennox, and agreed to, that the proceedings should be printed and "reported to the House from day to day." In the printed report, the words "reported to the House" had been omitted.

Victor Geoffrion, the chairman, said the report had been printed as prepared by the committee, was submitted to the committee and nobody objected.

Mr. Borden pointed out that the proceedings had not been reported to the House from day to day, as agreed upon, and he thought there must be some connection between the two incidents.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier said some error might have occurred, as sometimes happened.

Mr. MacDonald remarked that a chairman of a committee did not report. If Mr. Borden's friends would attend the committee, they could have had this corrected.

Mr. Borden retorted that this was not a matter for the committee, but for the House.

Mr. MacDonald said Mr. Borden might have taken the trouble to investigate the matter.

Mr. Borden replied warmly that he had investigated the matter, when he discovered that the recommendation of the committee had been altered.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier: "It looks like a clerical error."

Mr. Borden, however, insisted that the proceedings should have been reported from day to day, and the recommendation this should be done had been altered. However, Mr. MacDonald seemed to give a clue.

Mr. MacDonald rose, but the Speaker ruled that he could not continue the discussion. He remained standing, whereupon the Speaker intimated that when the Speaker rose, a member must be seated.

Mr. MacDonald then rose to a point of order. He said that the leader of the Opposition had made a personal reference to him, and he had a right to reply. He objected to Mr. Borden's being allowed to make three speeches and himself only one.

The bill for the construction of a canal from Lake Superior to Lake Winnipeg, over which James Conmee, M.P., the committee, and the Ontario Government have had so much trouble recently, was again before the railway committee yesterday morning, and was temporarily disposed of by being referred to a sub-committee to inquire into the legality of the bill and the desirability of the project.

The sub-committee consist of Messrs. Nesbitt, Conmee, Boyce, Haggart and Congdon.

ADVERTISE IN THE REVIEW.

CHANGES ARE PROPOSED IN THE LIQUOR LICENSE ACT

Although the New Measure is Not Yet Fully Drafted it is Put into the House Merely to Get it on its Way—Nothing Definite About it Yet.

Toronto, March 12.—One of the most important bills of the present Legislature, the long-looked-for amendment to the Liquor License Act, was introduced by Hon. W. J. Hanna yesterday afternoon, in the dying hours of the session. The bill was in blank, being brought in, as Mr. Hanna explained afterward, merely to get the bill on its way.

"We have not definitely decided just what it will include when it comes back from the printers," he said. "But different propositions have been urged, and at our next Cabinet Council it will be decided which we will adopt."

Among the changes most generally urged was one to include Christmas Day in the days on which liquor may not be sold.

Again, cases had arisen in the province on recounts, where it was brought out that certain persons had voted who were not legally entitled to do so. What was to be done in such cases was not clear, though most of the judges held that the vote should be subtracted from the majority, though, as he pointed out, the man in question might have voted against the bylaw.

Where local option had failed to secure a 60 per cent. vote, but had got over 50 per cent., it was proposed to allow the municipality to take another vote in a year's time. "This has been considered," said Mr. Hanna, "but, like the others, nothing definite has been decided."

Regarding corrupt practices in local option contests a short amendment will be introduced making the section of the municipal act, which at present applies only to votes on money bylaws, applicable.

Another bill was introduced by Mr. Hanna, to bring into operation the "Juvenile Delinquents' Act" of the Dominion of Canada, passed in 1908.

Under the provisions of the new act introduced by Hon. Mr. Reaume to amend the game laws, the duck season will be from Sept. 15 to Dec. 15, instead of from Sept. 1 to Dec. 31, as previously, in spite of the protest of J. D. McDougal (East Ottawa), who thought Ontario sportsmen might just as well shoot the ducks themselves instead of protecting them for Americans to bag when the birds migrated.

The commencement of the season for quail was changed from Sept. 1 to Sept. 15.

Capercailzie were given six years more lease of life, and will be protected till 1915.

Mink, which have not been protected heretofore, will in future have the same close season as muskrat.

Hunters will be allowed to shoot only one deer in a season, instead of two.

Non-residents hunting and trapping licenses are placed at $10.

On the understanding that full discussion will be allowed when the measures come to committee on Monday, two bills of Hon. Adam Beck, "Respecting certain Municipal Bylaws and Agreements," and "Respecting the Hydro-Electric Power Commission of Ontario," and a bill of Sir James Whitney "To amend the Department of Education Act," were allowed to pass their second reading without discussion.

Hon. J. J. Foy's bill respecting fees of public officers, was amended in committee by allowing local registrars to retain to their personal use their net income up to $2,500. Over this sum an income from $2,500 to $3,000 they will hand over to the Government 10 per cent.; on income from $3,000 to $3,500, 20 per cent.; on income from $3,500 to $4,000, 30 per cent. The salaries of sheriffs are not touched by the bill.

BRAKEMAN CONFESSES TO HOLD-UP

Vancouver, B.C., March 12.—Fred Belanger, a brakeman, confessed at Fernie, upon his arrest yesterday, that he and another young man, Frank Babcock, were the perpetrators of the hold-up which occurred three weeks ago at Coal Creek. At the point of a gun the two men held up J. W. Quinny, accountant for the Trites-Wood Co., who had just arrived at Coal Creek with $1,200 in cash to pay the workmen. They took this money and $2,000 in checks. Just as they had finished the job of robbing him, a constable, with a drawn revolver approached, but they leaped aboard a passenger train just leaving the station. Belanger was arrested at Cranbrook.

A sensational development occurred last night in the arrest of Provincial Constable Fred Varlow, who appeared when the robbers were running away with the money. He fire several shots at the fleeing bandits, but it is alleged that he used blank cartridges and purposely allowed the men to get away on the outgoing passenger train.

MUZZLE STOLEN THREE TIMES

London, Ont., March 12.—An interesting case came up yesterday morning in the Police Court, when ex-Ald. Dr. H. A. Stevenson was charged with letting his dog go unmuzzled. The doctor showed that the dog had been muzzled ever since the regulation came in force, that three times the animal's muzzle had been stolen, and in the present case the dog was away from the house only two or three minutes when captured. However, Mayor Beattie, acting for Magistrate Love, who is quite ill, was obdurate, and the doctor was fined. He intends taking the matter to a higher court.

TAXATION OF LAND

It is well that the bill to permit municipalities to levy a higher rate of taxation on land than on improvements was withdrawn, for it needs further consideration at least. There are two important principles involved in the bill, in the first place that land should bear a heavier burden of taxation than improvement and in the second place that there should be local option in the application of that principle. The objection of Sir James Whitney to the "system of leaving any question which the Legislature does not care to solve to the discretion of each municipality," was well founded, and applies with force in this case. There would not only be the lack of uniformity in the different municipalities, but also, which would be worse, the absence of a settled system of taxation, in the cities, for the discrimination in force one year might be increased or diminished the next. The Government has resisted any radical amendments to the Assessment Act of 1904, because that act introduced new principles into the system of taxation, and it was desirable that they should be thoroughly tried without any unsettled changes. If, however, the subject was relegated to the municipal councils, in which there are no changes in the membership, there would be danger of frequent changes in the law, one year going far in the direction of Henry Georgeism and in another swinging in the other direction. That would not have a good effect. The Legislature should either deal with the matter and settle it for the Province or leave it alone.

SECURITY FOR PEACE

Peace in its terms was an exposition of policy made by the German Chancellor in reply to a question as to Germany's relations with Britain. That was to be expected for without imputing any bad faith to the Chancellor it would be very surprising if he would refer to a nation with which Germany was at peace in any warlike terms. Whether Germany or any other nation has any present intention of breaking the peace with Britain or not, it would be most unwise to rest on the supposition that preparations for defence should not be made. The attention of the British Government was called to the Chancellor's utterances, but although his statements were not questioned this reply was given that the Government saw no reason for altering its programme for strengthening the British navy. And if the home Government takes the view that it is in the interests of the Empire to proceed with the building of vessels to protect its territory and trade there is no reason why Canada should feel a sense of security and not do its duty in giving the assistance that gratitude, loyalty and self-interest all united call upon it to give. There could be no greater security for peace than would be given by all parts of the Empire showing by actions that they were ready to make sacrifices to join with each other for the safety and protection of the whole. Such a demonstration would be an object lesson that would deter any nation from looking for a cause for quarrel, for the power that would have to be faced would be great. Those Canadians who wish the Dominion to do its part in naval protection have no desire to be embroiled in unnecessary trouble. The British Government has no such desire, but the Empire not only united in sentiment but also actively uniting in strengthening the Imperial navy would be the surest way to preserve peace.

AN INDECISIVE CONFERENCE

There has seemingly been no result from the visit of the United States representatives to Ottawa to discuss tariff matters with the Canadian Government. They have been given the information they desired and it is now for the President to decide whether after March 31st the United States maximum tariff will be applied to imports from Canada or not. Canadians have no wish for other than the friendliest relations with our neighbors on trade and other matters, but there is no discrimination on the part of Canada against United States imports that should cause them to apply the maximum rates to Canadian goods that go over the border. At the same time this is a matter for the United States Government to decide, and if the President takes the view that in the interest of that country the highest rates should be imposed we must accept the position. There was a time when such a prospect would be viewed with deeper concern than it is now. The development of Canadian resources that followed the adoption of of protection under the Conservative Government, and the turning of Canadian trade into British channels by the United States tariff, has made the country more independent. We should not be led into making undue concessions. Canada purchases a great deal more from the United States than that country buys from this side. The United States tariff is much higher than the Canadian tariff, and until their rates are brought nearer to the Canadian scale they should not complain. If they desire special concessions they should offer special inducements to secure them, but should not ask for special treatment in return for placing Canadian imports on their general tariff that applies to countries that do not give them any special consideration. The Canadian Government has repeatedly sent representatives to Washington to try to negotiate trade arrangements, but they have always failed. The visit of representatives from Washinton was a novelty, but they do not appear to have been empowered to negotiate with or to make any offers to Canada, their mission seeming to be more one of enquiry and to make suggestions towards removing obstacles to this country being placed on the maximum tariff scale in the United States. If that country has any offer to make, it will no doubt be received and considered, but the policy of considering Canadian interests solely is the one that must be followed here.

EDITORIAL NOTES

The British Parliament really has no right to blame Canada; it was one of its own constituencies that elected Joseph Martin.

A contribution of one or two Dreadnoughts to the Imperial navy would injure Canada's autonomy about as much as the gift of Quaker Oats to San Francisco damaged Peterborough's self-government.

There would be no complaint of short weights if the size of the loaf was made proportionate with the size of the average loafer.—Kincardine Review.

And many of these loafers were not bred to loaf either.

The Trent Canal, when completed, will add to the wealth of a large part of Ontario by cheapening the cost of transportation. Any cheapening of transportation is equivalent to lessening the cost of production.

Proceedings will not be taken against the County of Lennox to compel it to build a house of refuge, the Government having accepted an arrangement made by the County Council with the House of Industry and the House of Providence for the care of its poor. This arrangement, without the particulars, looks like a suggestion that has been made to meet the difficulty in this city.

As Bad as a Leper.

New York, March 12.—"You are such a low, vile creature that I believe the convicts in Sing Sing prison, where you are going, will shun you as they would the plague, saying, as in days of old 'room for the leper'."

This severe castigation was hurled by Judge Foster in general sessions yesterday at Charles F. Dewolf, a self-confessed "white-slave" trader, who came up for sentence for slashing Flora Thomson, whom he brought from Boston. Dewolf tired of the woman and slashed her throat.

Dewolf was given a term of not less than two years and three months, or not more than four years and seven months.

Not Wrong to Get Drunk.

New York, March 12.—"Three times a year is not too often for a gentleman to get drunk," said Surrogate Daniel Noble at Jamaica, L.I., yesterday, in deciding a will contest where two brothers of the testator sought to have the will declared void on the ground that he was a "habitual drunkard." Surrogate Noble held the will valid and gave the contestants a lecture.

The will was that of Wm. Treater of Evergreen, L.I., who left an estate of $4,000. To his two brothers he left $5 a piece. The two sisters got the residue and the brothers protested.

Farmer's Hard Luck.

Woodstock, March 12.—James Murray left on Wednesday for the northwest, taking six horses, three head of cattle and other stock, intending to start farming.

While near Barrie yesterday morning, the car in which his stock were riding, took fire, from an upturned lantern, and he had a narrow escape from death. All the stock, together with a fur-lined overcoat containing $80, was completely destroyed.

No Evidence of Wrongdoing.

Montreal, March 12.—R. B. Kessen, who took over the Bank of St. Stephen, reports to the Bankers' Association that there is no evidence of anything wrong, that the failure was due to poor judgment in making loans.

As previously announced, the double liability and the assets will protect the note holders and the depositors.

Emigration of Reservists.

London, March 12.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—In the House of Commons Sir Edward Grey stated that the emigration of reservists could only be permitted to a limited extent. Respecting time-expired soldiers the Army Council would be glad if employment with overseas dominions' forces could be guaranteed for a limited period, say two years.

CHAPTER XXXI.

THE SHIPS THAT PASS.

THE next morning was rainy. A quick, violent storm had rushed up from the sea during the night.

Chase, after a sleepless night, came down and, without waiting for his breakfast, hurried out upon the gallery overlooking the harbor. Genevra was there before him, pale, wistful, heavy eyed, standing in the shelter of a huge pilaster.

"Hollingsworth," she said drearily, "do you believe he will come today?"

"He?" he asked, puzzled.

"My uncle. The yacht was to call for me not later than today."

"I remember," he said slowly. "It may come, Genevra. The day is young."

"I almost hope that it may not come for me!" she said, her voice shaking with suppressed emotion. "It will not come. I feel it in my heart. We shall die here together, Hollingsworth. Ah, in that way I may escape the other life. No, no! What am I saying? Of course I want to leave this dreadful island—this dreadful, beautiful, hateful, happy island. Am I not too silly?" She was speaking rapidly, almost hysterically, a nervous, flickering smile on her face.

"Dear one," he said gently, "the yacht will come. If it should not come today my cruisers will forestall its mission. As sure as there is a sea those cruisers will come." She looked into his eyes intently, as if afraid of something there. "Oh, I'm not mad!" he laughed. "You brought a cruiser to me one day. I'll bring one to you in return. We'll be quits."

"Quits?" she murmured, hurt by the word.

"Forgive me," he said, humbled.

"Hollingsworth," she said after a long, tense scrutiny of the sea, "how long will you remain on this island?"

"Perhaps until I die—if death should come soon. If not, then God knows how long."

"Listen to me," she said intensely. "For my sake you will not stay long. You will come away before they kill you. You will! Promise me. You will come—to Paris? Some day, dear heart? Promise!"

"To Paris!" he said, shaking his head sadly. "No, dearest one. Not now. Listen: I have in my bag upstairs an offer from a great American corporation. My headquarters would be in Paris. My duties would begin as soon as my contract with Sir John Brodney expires. The position is a lucrative one; it presents unlimited opportunities. I am a comparatively poor man. The letter was forwarded to me by Sir John. I have a year in which to decide."

"And you—you will decline?" she asked.

"Yes. I shall go back to America, where there are no princesses of royal blood. Paris is no place for the disappointed, castoff lover. I can't go there. I love you too madly. I'd go on loving you, and you, good as you are, would go on loving me. There is no telling what would come of it. It will be hard for me to—to stay away from Paris—desperately hard. Sometimes I feel that I will not be strong enough to do it, Genevra."

"But Paris is huge, Hollingsworth," she argued insistently, an eager, impelling light in her eyes. "We would be as far apart as if the ocean were between us."

"Ah, but would we?" he demanded.

"It is almost unheard of for an American to gain entree to our—to the set in which—well, you understand," she said, blushing painfully in the consciousness that she was touching his pride. He smiled sadly.

"My dear, you will do me the honor to remember that I am not trying to get into your set. I am trying to induce you to come into mine. You won't be tempted, so that's the end of it. Beastly day, isn't it?" He uttered the thought that of the weather had been in his mind. "By the way," he resumed, with a most genial smile, "for some queer, unmasculine reason I took it into my head last night to worry about the bride's trousseau. How are you going to manage it if you are unable to leave the island until—well, say June?"

She returned his smile with one as sweetly detached as his had been, catching his spirit. "So good of you to worry," she said, a defiant red in her cheeks. "You forget that I have a postponed trousseau at home. A few stitches here and there, an alteration or two, some smart summer gowns and hats—Oh, it will be so simple! What is it? What do you see?"

He was looking eagerly, intently toward the long, low headland beyond the town of Aratat.

"The smoke! See? Close inshore too! By heaven, Genevra, there's a steamer off there. She's a small one or she wouldn't run in so close. It—it may be the yacht! Wait! We'll soon see. She'll pass the point in a few minutes."

Already the cititzens of the town were rushing to the pier. Even before the vessel turned the point the watchers at the chateau witnessed a most amazing performance on the dock. Half a hundred natives dropped down as if stricken, scattering themselves along the narrow pier.

The people were simulating death! They were posing as the victims of the plague that infested the land! As he was explaining the ruse to his mystified companion the nose of the vessel came out from behind the tree covered point.

An instant later they were sending wild cries of joy through the chateau, and people were rushing toward them from all quarters.

The trim white thing that glided across the harbor, graceful as a bird, was the marquis' yacht!

It is needless to describe the joyous gale that swept the chateau into a maelstrom of emotions.

They saw the tug put out to meet the small boat; they witnessed the same old maneuvers; they sustained a chill of surprise and despair when the bright white and blue boat from the yacht came to a stop at the command from the tug.

There was an hour of parleying. The beleaguered ones signaled with despairing energy. The flag, limp in the damp air above the chateau, shot up and down in pitiful eagerness.

But the small boat edged away from close proximity to the tug and the nearby dock. They spoke each other at long and ever widening range. At last the yacht's boat turned and fled toward the trim white hull.

Almost before the startled, dazed people on the balcony could grasp the full and horrible truth the yacht had lifted anchor and was slowly headed out to sea.

Chase looked grimly about him into the questioning, stricken faces of his companions. He drew his hand across his moist forehead.

"Ladies and gentlemen," he said seriously and without the faintest intent to jest, "we are supposed to be dead!"

There was a single shriek from the bride of Thomas Saunders. No sound left the dry lips of the other watchers, who stood as if petrified and kept their eyes glued upon the disappearing yacht.

"They have left me here to die!" came from the stiffened lips of the Princess Genevra. "They have deserted me! God in heaven!"

"Look!" cried Chase, pointing to the dock. Half a dozen glasses were turned in that direction.

The dying and the dead were leaping about in the wildest exhibition of gleeful triumph.

The yacht slipped into the unreachable horizon, the feathery cloud from its stack lying over against the leaden sky, shaped like a finger that pointed mockingly the way to safety.

White faced and despairing, the watchers turned away and dragged themselves into the splendid halls of the building they had now come to regard as their tomb.

All day long the islanders rejoiced. Their shouts could be plainly heard by the besieged. Their rifles cracked sarcastic greetings from the forest. Bullets whistled gay accompaniments to the consensus song: "Allah is great! Allah is good!"

No man in the despised house of Tamwell Skaggs slept that night. The guard was doubled at all points open to attack. At 2 in the morning Deppingham, Browne and Chase came up from the walls for coffee and an hour's rest. They were wet and cold. They had heard Rasula's minions shouting derisively all night long: "Where is the warship? Where is the warship?"

"It will come. I am positive," said Chase, insistent in spite of his dejection. They drank their coffee in silence. He knew that the others, including the native who served them, were regarding him with the pity that one extends to the vainglorious braggart who goes down with flying colors.

He went out upon the west gallery and, utterly fagged, threw himself into an unexposed chair and stared through tired eyes into the inscrutable night that hid the sea from view—the faithless, moaning, jeering sea!

When he aroused himself with a start the gray, drizzly dawn was upon him. He had slept.

The next instant he was on his feet, clutching the stone balustrade with a grip of iron, his eyes starting from his head. A shout arose to his lips, but he lacked the power to give it voice. A quaint smile grew in his face. His eyes were bright and full of triumph. After a full minute of preparation he made his way toward the breakfast room outwardly as calm as a May morning.

Browne and Deppingham were asleep in the chairs. He shook them vigorously. As they awoke he said in the coolest, most matter of fact way:

"There's an American cruiser outside the harbor. Get up!"

CHAPTER XXXII.

IN THE SAME GRAVE WITH SKAGGS.

DOWN in the village of Aratat there were signs of a vast commotion. Early risers and the guards were flying from house to house, shouting the news.

Outside the harbor lay the low, savage looking ship. Its guns were pointed directly at the helpless town. Its decks were swarming with white clothed men.

The plague was forgotten. The strategy that had driven off the ships of peace was lost in the face of this ugly creature of war. Rasula's reign of strategy was ended.

"They will not fire! They dare not!" he was shrieking as he dashed back and forth along the dock. "It is chance! They do not come for Chase! Believe in me! The tug! The tug! They must not land!"

The crash of the long unused six pounder at the chateau, followed almost immediately by a great roar from one of the cruiser's guns, brought the panic to a crisis.

The islanders scattered like chaff before the wind, looking wild eyed over their shoulders in dread of the pursuing cannon ball, dodging in and out among the houses and off into the foothills.

Is the Change Dr. Williams' Pink Pills Made in a New Brunswick Woman.

Anaemia—bloodlessness—is a trouble confined largely to woman and growing girls. Its victims are pale; they lose all strength—the least exertion greatly fatigues them and they suffer continually from headaches and depressed spirits. Nothing will cure anaemia so quickly or so surely as Dr. Williams' Pink Pills—they have cured thousands of cases not only in Canada, but throughout the entire world. They do this because they make good blood. Among those cured by these Pills is Mrs. T. Chalmer Hartley, East Florenceville, N.B., who says:—"At the age of sixteen I fell away to a mere shadow. I had scarcely any blood and suffered from all the distressing symptoms of anaemia. Doctors did not help me in the least, and acting on the advice of a friend, I began taking Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. They effected a remarkable change in my condition; indeed I really believe they saved my life, as I have been well and strong ever since I took them. I also recommended the Pills to a neighbor's daughter, who was similarly run down, and they also completely restored her strength."

Every woman and growing girl should take Dr. Williams' Pink Pills occasionally. If you are ailing from any of the many troubles which afflict your sex they will cure you; if you are not ailing they will protect your health and keep you well and strong. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold by all dealers in medicine or direct at 50 cents a box, or six boxes for $2.50, from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

THE MARKET THIS MORNING

Eggs at 25c. and Butter 28c and 30c--Pork 13 to 15c

Twenty-five cents per dozen was the ruling price of eggs at this morning's market. Buyers of large quantities paid 23 and 24 cents. The supply was large. One citizen stated this morning that he asked the price of eggs of one seller, and was told it was 25 cents. Further away he enquired again and was told the price was 28 cents. A lady standing near by, overheard the answer, and she immediately went to the lady who was selling at 25 cents, who, on being acquainted with the fact, boosted her price up to 28 cents, and refused to come down until some time afterwards. Butter sold at 28c., and 30c., and there was scarcely any offerings in the poultry line.

On the market square potatoes brought 45 and 50 cents. Pork sold at 13 cents, 14 cents and 15 cents. Hogs, live weight, brought $9, but $9.50 will be offered next week for hogs delivered before Friday.

THE SLIM WOMAN IS WINNING

The day of the slim woman's triumph has arrived. "The thinner one is the more stylish," say the dressmakers.

This would have been sad news for the fat woman a year ago. She would have had to try dieting or exercise. Nowadays, however, the woman who is too fat for the style goes to a druggist and gets a case of Marmola Prescription Tablets, one of which she takes after each meal and at bedtime and so reduces her superfluous flesh quickly.

These tablets, being made in accordance with the famous prescription, are perfectly harmless, and they are, also, the most economical preparation a person can buy, for they cost only 75 cents a large case, one of which is frequently enough to start a person to losing fat at the rate of 12 to 14 ounces a day. Pretty nearly every druggist keeps this tablet in stock, but should yours be sold out, you can easily obtain a case by sending to the makers, the Marmola Company, 1193 Farmer Bldg., Detroit, Mich.

Y.M.C.A. A POTENT FORCE IN FOREIGN EVANGELIZATION

Comprehensive Addresses on the Growth and Influence of This Splendid Organization in Lands That Have Not Yet Been Fully Redeemed—Conversion by the West Accompanied by Too Much Materialism.

It was a small but much impressed audience that heard the three splendid addresses on the foreign work of the Y.M.C.A. in the cause of Christianity and enlightenment and of the means generally of evangelizing the great east. From the addresses it could be most vividly comprehended that the field of endeavor is one so large that it would be almost discouraging if the record of emphatically successful past efforts was not so encouraging and stimulating to the earnest workers in the highest interests of humanity and world-wide civilization.

The meeting was under Y. M. C. A. auspices and the speakers were Messrs. G. S. Phelps, of Japan, G. E. Truman, of Toronto University, and E. T. Colton, of New York, the speakers delivering their discourses in the order named. Ald. J. J. Turner occupied the chair.

Mr. Phelps spoke optimistically of the future of Japan and said the Japs were a people of many fine qualities. Mr. Truman has been in Japan and said he was going back to do his share in the evangelization of the dwellers of the land of the rising sun. He stated conditions in Japan were bad and the redemption of the race was an immediate necessity. While Mr. Colton devoted considerable attention to Japan his address was broader in relation to countries where the message of the gospel has yet to be spread and in a masterful address made an appealing and convincing plea for the co-operation and assistance of the Christians of the western world to lend sympathetic and material assistance towards the great task that was incumbent upon them and spoke especially on behalf of the Y.M.C.A., which was doing monumental service in religious work and the providing of clean recreation for our brothers of the lands where the gospel had not been generally preached.

A solo was splendidly sung by Miss Pringle, Mrs. Petit acting as accompanist.

Mr. G. S. Phelps, who had lived six years in Japan, spoke very interestingly of Japan and the Japanese people and referred in the highest terms to fine human qualities of the Japs. He spoke of them as being intelligent, forgiving and chivalrous. He cited as a striking example of this in the kind treatment of a Russian trainload of prisoners in a Japanese city. The people with these splendid qualities were bound to make good Christians when converted and good citizens of the world. The Japs were also people of great personal bravery and people with high ideals and not afraid at a great cost to stand for things which were honorable and just. And the speaker said there were not impassible barriers between the people of the east and west and they had to a large extent the same temptations and the ambitions as we of the west and were intensely interesting in education and already had universities which ranked with the best universities of the world.

Mr. Truman spoke on why he was going back to Japan. He said the reason he wanted to return to Japan was because he had been there and realised the necessity there for Christian work. Outside the Young Men's Christian Association there were no places of clean recreation in Japan and there was great necessity for the growth of the Y.M.C.A. in Japan, where it had already made most successful progress.

Mr. Truman had taught school in Japan and done work there in connection with the Y.M.C.A. and was thoroughly familiar with Japanese conditions.

The Y.M.C.A. principles and methods of work were succeeding in Japan and the Japanese membership included the most influential and representative men of Japan.

He spoke of the enthusiasm he felt in the evangelization of Japan, and asked for the heartiest co-operation of all Christian sympathizers.

Mr. Colton in his "The World Without a Foreign Country" address, dwelt on the importance of the business of the foreign lands. So general was the commercial intercourse of the world that there were really no foreign lands from a business standpoint.

But the important question was not one of the interests of the material advancement of the world. There was a higher duty than that, and it was the Christianization of the foreign lands which were inoculated with the undermining commercialism of the west.

The speaker very eloquently and realistically described the wickedness and vice of the great centres of the east. He would have the Anglo Saxon men see to it that the best of the Christian world be given to the foreign lands, and not alone the depravity and sin.

The men of the Y.M.C.A. were doing incalculable good in the foreign countries, but great as was the work they had done, the working force needed to be greatly augmented if the east was to be redeemed by Christian teaching and influences. And besides the Y.M.C.A. workers the Christian diplomats had done much to encourage the introduction of the Y.M.C.A. into un-Christianized countries, and had used great influence in the moral uplift of the countries. Smaller officials and converted foreigners had also done a highly commendable share along the most desirable lines in the development of the countries.

There was an absolute need of the broader establishment of the Young Men's Christian Association. In Japan and China they were turning members away from the doors.

Mr. Colton strikingly showed the wonderful growth of the association in the semi-heathen lands, and made an ardent plea for more men and money to carry on this magnificent work. We had the money, and all was needed was for us to be touched with the compassion of God.

Katherine Wallis and Her Work as a Sculptor

The Canadian Century (Montreal) of March 5, contains a full page article on "Katherine Wallis, the Charming Sculptor of Childhood." It is illustrated by a cut of Miss Wallis, of "Merino," near Peterborough, her birthplace (destroyed by fire) and of the marble bust "Fille D'Aout," and the bronze statuette, "The Pied Piper of Hamelin."

Part of the Century article is as follows:—

Miss Katherine Wallis was born three miles from Peterborough, in the Province of Ontario, in a home and amid surroundings admirably calculated to develop in her the love of the beautiful. Her mother was artistic and cultured, and it was from her, probably, that Miss Wallis inherited her bent and inspiration. She was educated by private tuition in her own home, her governess being a most accomplished lady, Miss Jane Buchanan, daughter of the late Isaac Buchanan, of Hamilton.

Miss Wallis then went to Edinburgh to study art, devoting herself entirely to painting. Her assiduity secured a diploma for her. She returned home and for some time painted in a desultory fashion, purely as an amateur. In 1893 both her parents died. Miss Wallis went abroad, travelling in Italy and Germany for two years. After that she settled in London, where she attended the South Kensington School of Art, taking a course in modelling to strengthen the conception of pure line.

Her artistic wanderings then took her to Berlin, and afterwards to Paris. In Paris a casual meeting determined her final art-vocation. Going through the Jardins des Plantes, one day, she made the acquaintance of Oscar Waldmann, the great sculptor of animal life. He prompted her to go in for sculpture, took her into his own atelier as a student, and she has been studying under him ever since. For art-education goes on until the classes are closed by death.

Although Miss Wallis is, in this sense, a student, she has "arrived." She has often had her work placed at the Salon. At the last Salon four of her pieces were admitted. Lately the Conservatory of the Petit Palais, the Municipal Art Museum of Paris, bought from her two medallions to be added to the art treasures stored in the galleries there.

In France Miss Wallis has been termed by a prominent art critic "le charmant sculpteur de l'enfant," the charming sculptor of childhood. In fact, among our artists she is to the chisel what Miss Laura Muntz is to the brush. The Canadian Century reproduces on this page two photographs of her more recent work, at present on view in Montreal: "The Pied Piper of Hamelin," a bronze statuette, and "Fille D'Aout," daughter of August, a life size marble bust of a little girl with hops twined in her hair.

Miss Wallis has not been entirely without honor in her own country. A marble Mercury of hers was purchased by the Ontario Provincial Government, and now graces the Parliamentary Building in Toronto. With characteristic tact Miss Wallis has remembered her native town and has presented it with the "marquette" or original design of this Mercury.

At present Miss Wallis is at work on what many believe will be her chef d'oeuvre. It is a marble group, a mother holding up a child whose tiny hands reach up further as if groping for the possibilities of the infinite beyond. She proposes to call it "Root and Flower"—the mother being regarded as the root of the child, just as the root is the mother of the flower.

This is Miss Wallis' record of achievement, so far. The future lies before her full of promise. She had adopted a branch of art in which financial success is very coy indeed! Sculpture is, above all others, a public art. To live, the maker of statues has to secure orders for monumental statues chiefly. Everyone buys pictures. Few buy statuary.

ASKED FOR AN ORDER OF PROTECTION

Special to the Review.

Toronto, March 12.—Mrs. James Simpson in the police court this morning asked for an order of protection against her husband. "If I kept off the whiskey, I'd be all right," pleaded Simpson. According to the police, Mrs. Simpson was a widow in Peterborough in fairly good circumstances, and the mother of several grown up children. A short time ago she married Simpson and then her troubles began. Simpson began to drink, and came back to Toronto. He got sick, went to the hospital, and sent begging letters to his wife. Mrs. Simpson sold part of her furniture, paid his bills and gave him a start. The man began drinking again and she was forced to supply for an order of protection. He was remanded until Monday.

EXPLOSION IN STOVE

Mr. and Mrs. John George Had a Startling Experience at Their Home

A peculiar accident occurred yesterday at the home of Mr. John George, who resides about two miles from Millbrook, and who but recently retired from the position of baggagemaster at the local Grand Trunk station to take up a farm. Mr. George was in the city last evening, and he related the facts of the affair to a friend, and the Review learned of them this morning. It appears that Mr. George and his wife were in their home at the time and a wood fire had been started in a new stove, valued at $40. Both occupants of the room were suddenly startled by a loud explosion coming from the stove. Pieces of wood and iron were thrown in all directions, but fortunately neither Mrs. George and her husband were injured. The stove was destroyed, and just what caused the explosion is a mystery.

HAS DEVELOPED INTO CANCER

Injury to Rev. J. A. G. Stirling of Two Years Ago Has Proved Very Serious

At the last meeting of the Presbytery a committee consisting of Rev. J. G. Potter, Rev. H. J Keith and Mr. J. C. Shook was appointed to consider the situation in connection with the Presbyterian church at Havelock in view of the critical illness of the pastor, Rev. J. A. G. Stirling. The committe found Mr. Stirling had been suffering for some time as the indirect results of a wound on his cheat, which he sustained in an accident about two years ago.

Rev. Mr. Keith accompanied Mr. Stirling to Toronto and saw him safely placed in a private hospital under the care of Drs. Gibbwisherd and Primrose. It will be known in a few days if an operation is necessary.

A hearty vote of thanks was passed to Mr. Pearson for his kindness in giving the people of St. Luke's church such a treat.

GRAIN ROUTE MAY NOT TOUCH PETERBOROUGH

Montreal, March 11.—The report was revived to-day that the C.P.R. will double-track the line from Smith's Falls to Bathurst, a distance of about fourteen miles, and will build the proposed new lines from Bathurst to Victoria Harbor. This would be the company's great grain route, and, if this were done, the benefit to Smith's Falls would be incalculable.

Color is lent to the rumor from the fact that an engineer with a large staff of assistants has been surveying in that locality for the past few weeks. Officials at the general offices say that nothing has been definitely determined as to the date at which this important work will be undertaken, but it is generally believed that it will be commenced during the coming summer.

Bathurst is a station on the C.P.R. fifteen miles west of Smith's Falls.

A STABBING AFFAIR AT HOUSE ON BETHUNE STREET

Robert McIlwain Wounded on Right Hand and in the Back by Ferro Bruno, an Italian—Police Arrested Keepers of Disorderly House.

The home of Roland Butcher, at 385 Bethune street, is alleged to have been the scene of a stabbing last night between twelve and one o'clock, and as a result Ferro Bruno, an Italian, who boards with Frank Marino, opposite the Grand Opera House, faced the charge of having stabbed Robert McIlwain, at the police court this morning, and Butcher and his wife were charged with being the keepers of a disorderly house.

Through the court interpreter, Mr. T. Minicola, Bruno pleaded not guilty, and the preliminary hearing on both charges, will be heard before Magistrate Dumble next Thursday morning, the prisoners in the meantime being remanded to gaol. Three small children belonging to Mrs. Butcher will be taken in charge by the Children's Aid Society.

The Buther home has been under the notice of the police for some time because of its questionable character and there have been complaints to the effect that the home was no fit place for the three children. Last night P.C's. Meharry, Adams and Newhall, with the latter carrying a lantern, went down to the home and made the arrests.

McIlwain's explanation of how he was injured is that he, in company with Jack Burns, went down to the house occupied by Butcher and his family. While Burns was knocking at the door Bruno rushed out of another one and forced him into a laneway, and without any provocation, stabbed him on the right hand and on the back. He afterwards received medical attention from Dr. Leach. McIlwain did not appear in court this morning, but was able to be out.

It is stated that there were others implicated in the affair at the house, and also that shots were heard.

CLOTHING FOR THE LITTLE ONES

Generous Contributions to Children's Aid—Committee Have Done Good Work

At the last annual meeting of the Children's Aid Society a special committee was appointed to undertake the work of providing clothing for the children who come into the Shelter. Some idea of what this involves may be gained when it is remembered that last year nearly sixty children passed through the Society's hands, all of whom come in in a destitute condition and have to be provided with clothing and sent out to their foster homes in some kind of comfort. To do this has for years been one of the Society's great burdens. The new committee determined to try to enlist the sympathy of the women of all the Protestant churches and an appeal was made to the ladies' societies of each church to give one afternoon to the making of the necessary clothing. The answer proved to be most hearty and generous and the members of the committee desire to acknowledge their appreciation of the manner in which this response was made. The Ladies' Aid Societies of the following churches gave each an afternoon to help the good work:—Knox, All Saints' Charlotte street, St. Paul's, St. Luke's, St. Andrew's and Mark street and the King's Daughters. In addition the George street Sewing Circle and the Girl's Guild of St. John's did sewing at their meetings.

Many friends of the Society have done much sewing at their homes, while others have made generous gifts of clothing, bedding and material. The committee gratefully acknowledges the assistance in these ways of Mrs. A. E. Coulthard, Mrs. R. R. Hall, Miss Laidlaw, Mrs. Monroe, Mrs. W. M. Roger, Mrs. Logan, Mrs. Yokome, Mrs. H. Morgan, Mrs. Mowat, Mrs. Richard Hall, Mrs. Jas. Wood, Mrs. Conway, Thos. Barrie & Co., Mrs. Mulholland, Mrs. Goodwill, Mrs. Church, Mrs. Crane, Miss Davies, Mrs. Brooks, Mrs. Foster, Mrs. Campbell, Miss Menzies, Mrs. Green, Mrs. Hopwood, Mrs. Hogan, Mrs. Johnston, Mrs. Melville, Mrs. Wolstenholm, Mrs. R. J. McWilliams, Mrs. Adam Hall, Mrs. R. G. Kingan, Mrs. G. H. Thompson, Mrs. A. P. McLean, Mrs. R. D. Hamilton, Miss Hall, Mrs. W. G. Ferguson, Mrs. Heal, Mrs. Henderson, Mrs. G. W. Johnston, Mrs. Bourne, Mrs. Rawlings, Mrs. Wright, Miss Ferguson, Mrs. Robert Hall, Mrs. Scott, Mrs. Miller, Mrs Williamson, Mrs. Gibson, Mrs. Pearse, Mrs. W. A Sanderson, Mrs. R. S David son, St. Aiden's Church, Young's Point, and the Methodist church, Lakefield. The Sewing Circle of George street church sent a large and most welcome contribution of clothing as did also Charlotte street and Park st. Charlotte street Ladies' Aid also contributed $10 to the fund to pay for material which the committee undertook to raise, gifts to which have been already acknowledged.

The work which has now been done has made sufficient provision for the children now in the Shelter, but with new children coming in there is constant need for more sewing. It has therefore, been decided to set aside the first Thursday afternoon in every month for sewing at the Shelter to which everybody who is free to do so, is invited to come. A little help from many hands will ensure a provision for these unfortunate children which will help to give them a new start.

C. M. Hayes estimates that immigration into Canada will show a 25 per cent. increase this year.

STURGEON LAKE SUMMER TRAVEL

It looks as though the Otonabee Navigation Co., of Peterborough, will handle the passenger traffic on the upper lakes and particularly that between Lindsay and Sturgeon Point, from which the Boyd Co. boats were withdrawn last year.

The proposition is to put on the steamer "Manita" covering the route between Lindsay and Sturgeon Point, by one or more daily trips, as the season's traffic may call for.

Lately the agents of the company were in Lindsay arranging the matter and asked for a guarantee of 60 books of trip tickets at $25 per book. This was not received spontaneously, so the proposition was modified to cover issue of books at $25, $20 and $15. Some twenty-five to thirty of these were disposed of, and as the "Manita" will probably be the only large boat on the waters, the company will be assured of a compensating traffic. It is interesting to figure out the cost per mile for transportation on above basis. The rate between Toronto, Hamilton and Niagara, where thousands travel, is about 2c. per mile, while the Lindsay-Sturgeon Point route is handled for a little under a cent a mile. Lindsay people are congratulating themselves on effecting a good bargain, in fact, better than they have had offered before. A cent a mile for water travel is about the ruling figure, and will always be less than land travel for reasons of upkeep and terminal facilities. The Navigation Company give a rate in summer, of a trip to Idylwild and return for 50c. Just one cent per mile, immensely cheaper than steam road street car travel.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

The Review does not hold itself responsible for opinions expressed byits correspondents

Penny Wise and Pound Foolish

To the Editor of the Review.

Sir,—The letter of Ald. Turner on power, shows that he does not understand the question. Peterborough is not supposed to be in the power-selling business nor in the loaning business, nor in the water-selling for profits business.

Municipal advantages and properties such as these are supposed to be handled for the direct benefit of the people and in the case of water that means cheaper power and in the case of power (for lighting, power, etc.), cheaper power, cheaper light, etc. The city is supposed to get the equivalent in greater general prosperity and until the city's representatives get any other idea out of their head they will remain behind all the other enterprising centres in Canada, as they are now. Mind you, Mr. Editor, it was not the city fathers of this day that got the C.G.E. here, and it was not the city fathers of any day that got the Quaker Oats. They tried hard to drive Q. O. away by driving hard bargains and until a man of capacity and understanding, Mr. Cox, took hold of the matter, we were on the lost, strayed or stolen list. It is the same now. We have neither power nor the price of power to offer and I am beginning to think, Mr. Editor, that our Council don't want us to get either. Have we the power already sold for the proposed $70,000 investment? No, and it never will be sold at the prices our Councillors are asking for it. Other places have too big a pull over us for that. If you don't believe it, look at other places. Industries actually going to many towns by the cart-load and Peterborough can't even beg one and they propose to continue the policy that has put us in this mess. If Purity Ware had been put to the people the way the Private Bills Committee amended it, viz.: by including all the machinery in the mortgage it would have passed but our local Smart Alecs raved like mad men about that, and look what they got for their pains. Such obstinacy I never saw before, and some of them shyly pretended that when it came back it was the same by-law that went to Parliament. Wouldn't that jar you? Now then, on top of that failure comes another. The Department of Health says filtration is not as good as ozone. It says that the mechanical purifying of water is not purifying at all in the strict sense. It's only straining. Now our water commissioners are determined to have filtration at a huge expense, but they'll have to back down. Ozone will cost very little and will be right. Now, then, another failure. We turned down the C.P.R. all for a penny; all because we wouldn't give it a strip of land that is no use to us. Can't anybody see that for us a live, hustling burg, with new factories, cheap fine water, cheap light and cheap power, and a big wage list we've got to give something and use a little common sense. Everything's bluff, but what "some men" are doing, of course. That's always the way; but that talk won't mend matters. Never mind the others. Get going. What would an industrial commissioner have to do? He has nothing to offer, and what use would it be for him to try to carry out such instructions as these. It would be the same old failure, the same old coming back with the finger in the mouth. Look at our schools. The expense is horrible. Look at the public library. Wait till that gets onto the rate, too. The sewer system has got to be built over in parts. The tax rate is 22 mills and we have reached nearly the limit of our right to borrow—thank goodness. The men who have been running this town are wonders, sure. It's not water power we want, Mr. Editor, it's brain power, and don't you forget it.

KENDREY CUP COMPETITION OF THIRTEEN YEARS AGO

Few of the Curlers of That Date Are Playing the Game at the Present Time.

Below is given a report of a number of games played by Peterborough curlers, thirteen years ago. The majority of the players whose names appear have since retired from the game, but amongst the others will be found some who competed in the bonspiel which finished Thursday night. The report is as follows:—

Should the result of the Kendrey Cup competition and of the present standing in the Innes medal contest be any indication the Granites will likely scoop in all the envied things this season. At present the Thistles are 25 shots in the minority in the Innes medal matches. Yesterday four games were played and each division secured two victories and the result all around reduced the Thistles minority from 27 to 25.

The scores were;—

INDOOR BASEBALL

Below will be found the correct standing of the teams in the Indoor Baseball League at the armories:

Team.	W.	L.	T.P.
Bugle Band	3	0	2
No. 8 Co.	3	0	2
Battery	1	2	2
No. 2 Co.	2	1	2
No. 7 Co.	1	2	2
No. 6 Co.	0	5	—

Only one game will be played on Tuesday, March 15th, when the Battery and No. 7 Company clash. This should be a fast, snappy game, as both teams play good ball.

On Thursday, March 17th, No. 8 Company and the Bugle Band will clash in the sport. These two teams are putting up a great race for the championship, and the play should be very fast.

The public are invited to attend all games, seats being provided for them in the visitors' gallery.

SPORTING NOTES

This from the Belleville Intelligencer: The Kingston juniors will be given gold watches. Will the overage men get them, too?

The lowest price for the privilege of witnessing the Jeffries-Johnson fight will be $10.

St. Michaels and Parkdale meet tonight to settle the championship of the senior O.H.A. The condition of the ice will favor the Parkdale team, and it would not be a very big surprise to see the honors go their way.

Renfrew defeated Cobalt last night 15—4. Lalonde, for the winners, scored nine times, and thus beats out Ernie Russell as the champion goal-getter of the National Hockey League by two.

"Carney" Galley's basketball team of Port Hope was defeated in Cobourg last night by a 21—18 score. The half time figures stood 11—11.

It is reported that "Newsy" Lalonde, of hockey fame, will play lacrosse in Vancouver this season.

Berlin and Wanderers play tonight for the Stanley Cup.

CAMPBELL'S CRAFTY CUBS CAPTURED CURLING CONTEST

"With arms reversed and muffled drums follow the funeral car," a poet once sang, but last night it was a case of rinks reversed at the curling rink, and Herb Martin and his three more or less trusty men following the hearse. The game was for an oyster supper, and was made unique by the reversing of the rinks, the leads acting as skips, and the skips as leads. The two other positions were also turned around. Campbell's Crafty Cubs jumped into the lead on the first end, and as a result of a combination of luck, skill, generalship and rank bullheadedness, had the whip hand all the way through. The winning rink has been signed to play in the Tankard next season, and will start training at once. As a result of the financial strain on the losers, on account of them having to buy the oysters, a sharp advance in the price of dental work, plumbers' supplies, bats and caps and waterworks dam unskilled labor can be looked for.

The game was marred by strenuous coaching from the side lines, advice burying the two skips like a snowslide in the Rockies.

The rinks were:—

W. D. Campbell	Dr. Wightman
R. P. Best	W. Turner
W. Richardson	E. N. McWilliams
D. B. Meadlee	H. Martin
Skip 15	Skip 6

Insurance Companies Lose About $125,000.00 by the Wreck at Spanish River

Double Liability for About Twenty-five Persons

A loss of somewhere in the neighbourhood of $125,000 is what the Accident Insurance Companies estimate the wreck at Spanish River bridge means to them.

They figure that about 25 of those who met death carried Accident Insurance, and the average insurance, according to the tables, is $5,000. In case of death in a railway disaster there is a double liability, making the figure $6,000, or $5,000 to be more conservative.

Their loss may total more than that, for the commercial travellers, a number of whom were killed, usually carry very heavy insurance. In addition, some of the companies make the policies payable on the death of the wife while travelling, though the policy is taken out in the husband's name. In such cases they pay the husband the same amount as they would have paid the wife were the husband killed.

We issue the BEST Accident and Sickness policy offered to the public.

Facts For Sick Women

We know of no other medicine which has been so successful in relieving the suffering of women, or secured so many genuine testimonials, as has Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

In almost every community you will find women who have been restored to health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Almost every woman you meet has either been benefited by it, or knows some one who has.

In the Pinkham Laboratory at Lynn, Mass., are files containing over one million one hundred thousand letters from women seeking health, in which many openly state over their own signatures that they have regained their health by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is made exclusively from roots and herbs, and is perfectly harmless.

The reason why it is so successful is because it contains ingredients which act directly upon the female organism, restoring it to healthy and normal activity.

Thousands of unsolicited and genuine testimonials such as the following prove the efficiency of this simple remedy.

Belleriver, Que.—"Without Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I would not be alive. For five months I had painful and irregular periods and inflammation of the uterus. I suffered like a martyr and thought often of death. I consulted two doctors who could do nothing for me. I went to a hospital, and the best doctors said I must submit to an operation, because I had a tumor. I went back home much discouraged. One of my cousins advised me to take your Compound, as it had cured her. I did so and soon commenced to feel better, and my appetite came back with the first bottle. Now I feel no pain and am cured. Your remedy is deserving of praise."—Mrs. Emma Chatel, Valleyfield, Belleriver, Quebec.

Women who are suffering from those distressing ills peculiar to their sex should not lose sight of these facts or doubt the ability of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to restore their health.

"FRUIT-A-TIVES"— THE FAMOUS FRUIT MEDICINE

Performs Another Miraculous Cure in the City of Toronto.

Mrs. Lizzie Baxter was a helpless cripple from Rheumatism. She suffered tortures for a year in spite of the best medical treatment. Five boxes of "Fruit-a-tives" completely cured her.

4 HOME PLACE, TORONTO, ONT., December 15th, 1909.

"I was a terrible sufferer from Rheumatism for nearly a year, and my right arm was swollen and the pain was fearful. All down the right side, the pain was dreadful and I could hardly move for the agony. I was treated by two physicians but their medicine did me no good, and I tried numerous other remedies but received no benefit. I was simply a helpless cripple and suffered from Rheumatism all during last winter.

MRS. LIZZIE BAXTER

I saw "Fruit-a-tives" advertised in the "Telegram" and decided to try this remedy. After I had taken one box, I was much better and the pain much less, and I continued the treatment with good hopes. When I had taken three boxes, I was so well that I could use my arm again and the pain was practically gone, and after I had taken five boxes, I was entirely well again—no pain—no suffering—and now I am just as well as I ever was

The cure of my case by "Fruit-a-tives" was indeed splendid because all the doctors failed to even relieve me of my suffering.

For the sake of others who may suffer from this terrible disease, Rheumatism, I voluntarily give you permission to publish this statement."

MRS. LIZZIE BAXTER.

It may be stated, without hesitation, that "Fruit-a-tives" is the only remedy that will actually cure Rheumatism, Sciatica and Lumbago. "Fruit-a-tives" is made from fruit juices, and contains SALICINE obtained from Oranges. Owing to its marvellous action on the bowels, kidneys and skin—"Fruit-a-tives" prevents the formation of Uric Acid, which is the prime cause of Rheumatism. And with the stomach clean, the liver active, the bowels regular, the kidneys strong and the skin healthy, it is utterly impossible to have Rheumatism. "Fruit-a-tives" is the only medicine in the world that acts directly on all these organs and cures them. There is no other remedy "just the same" as "Fruit-a-tives" or "just as good as Fruit-a-tives" Insist on having "Fruit-a-tives" for only by taking "Fruit-a-tives" can you cure yourself of Rheumatism. At all dealers, 50c. a box, 6 for $2.50, or trial box 25c. or sent postpaid on receipt of price by Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa. The original of Mrs. Baxter's letter—as well as the original of all other testimonials published by "Fruit-a-tives" may be seen at the office of Fruit-a-tives Limited, 386-390 Bank St., Ottawa, Ontario.

Household Notes

A little grated cheese improves chicken soup.

If a wire clothesline is used, it should be painted.

Boiled meat should be left in its own liquor to cool.

If lemons are peeled before squeezing, more juice may be had.

Seed raisins, cut in half, will help an apple and nut salad.

In making a French dressing, use twice as much oil as vinegar.

A bay leaf added to a plain tomato soup will give it a pleasant flavor.

Iron napkins first on the wrong side, and then on the right, until perfectly dry.

Chamois leather should frequently be washed if silver is to be kept bright with it.

Rubbing spirits of camphor on the lips morning and night will give relief from cold sores.

Laces, embroideries, and all kinds of braided work are best ironed over a Turkish towel.

When frying mush dip the slices first in white of egg. This will make the mush crisp.

Snap fasteners cut from old gloves may be successfully applied to the plackets of skirts.

If the bottom of a kettle is slightly greased in making custards, the mixture will not stick.

A waxed floor should never be washed with soap and water except just before re-waxing.

Avoid use of strong soaps and soap powders powders in washing fine china on which there is gilt decoration.

Silk handkerchiefs should be washed in clear water with pure castile soap to make them look like new.

Hot chocolate, unsweetened wafers and crystallized prunes from a dainty course for luncheon or supper.

Always line a cake pan (with medium weight yellow paper. Grease the paper, not the pan, except the edges.

Leather covered furniture can be cleaned with pure milk rubbed on with a piece of flannel. Rub gently until dry.

Pots and pans to which foodstuffs cling will soak much more effectively if filled with cold water than if hot is used.

If silk ties or waists are wanted stiff iron them while quite damp; if they are wanted soft and silky, iron when almost dry.

SLEEPING DRAUGHTS AND SOOTHING MIXTURES

A mother should never give her child a sleeping draught, soothing mixture or opiate of any kind except on the advice of a doctor who has seen the child. All these things contain poisons and an overdose may kill the little one. When you give your child Baby's Own Tablets you have the guarantee of a government analyst that this medicine does not contain one particle of opiate or narcotic and cannot possibly do harm—but always do good. The Tablets promptly cure all stomach, bowel and teething troubles, and give healthy, natural sleep. Sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Fashions and Fads

Suit jackets were never shorter.

Crochet buttons are to be much worn.

Dangling earrings are in great favor.

Easter hats generally will be rose-decked.

Plaited skirts with tunics are in the lead.

The splendor of black velvet is everywhere.

Button shoes seem to be the order of the day.

Men's neckwear will be in more vivid colorings.

Turn-back collars and cuffs are to be worn again.

Some of the spring suits for men have two-button coats.

There is a tendence to have girdles quite wide in front.

The elbow sleeve is to return with the summer shirtwaist.

Both for men and women spring colors will be generally lighter.

Jetted net and laces will be much in vogue on elaborate gowns.

A survival of note is that of the self-colored striped materials.

Some of the new light-colored parasols show linings of contrasting color.

It seems that the princess coat has come to stay for some time in full length.

Wreaths of jewelled flowers are the most favored for the bandeau form of head dress.

There is a more fanciful note in the shades of men's spring suits than for many years.

Piping of black will give tone to many of the light-colored linen tailored suits this spring.

Tulle and net are much used to trim hats, forming the crowns of some and huge bows upon others.

Linen coats made entirely of embroidery will be worn with the gown or skirt of plain material.

Many of the collarless lingerie blouses have delicate colorings of mauve and blue added by hand.

Pearl gray, apricot and tan-colored gloves are fast supplanting white for dressy afternoon wear.

Skirts with adaptations of the overskirt are in evidence among the spring and early summer styles.

Not a Laughing Matter.

They were gliding round the ballroom to the strains of a soft, dreamy waltz.

Suddenly he tripped and fell sprawling to the floor, carrying a goodly portion of his charming partner's gown.

Roars of derisive laughter greeted his contortion, and ruefully he extricated himself from the masses of chiffon and lace.

Reaching the side of a gentleman whose face had not assumed even the ghost of a smile, he burst out gratefully:

"Sir, you are a gentleman! You are the only man in the room who did not grin when I had the misfortune to tear that lady's dress!"

"Don't thank me, my dear sir!" replied he of the stony stare. "The lady happens to be my wife, and I paid for that dress!"—Answers.

The Cowardly Egg.

"When I arose to speak," related a martyred statesman, "some one hurled a base, cowardly egg at me, and it struck me on the chest."

"And what kind of an egg might that be?" asked a fresh young man.

"A base, cowardly egg," explained the statesman, "is one that hits you and then runs."—Everybody's.

REAL TRUTH OF THE ROBBERY

Man Who Touched Charley Grapewin for $800 of Jewelry Located in Rochester

As reported at the time, Charley Grapewin was robbed of about $800 worth of jewellery, etc., at the Post Tavern, while playing at Battle Creek, Mich., there last winter. The alleged thief has been located at Rochester, N.Y. He will be taken to Battle Creek at the expiration of a thirty-day's sentence, March 5th. Wearing a necktie with the name of a Battle Creek firm on it led to his identity, and Mr. Grapewin proved to be the owner of a set of agate vest buttons in his possession.

SERVES THREE FOLD PURPOSE

Beautiful New Table at Hotel National, a Writing Table, a Publicity Medium and an Ornamental Fixture

One of the handsomest writing tables conceivable and a most effective means of advertising is the attractive marble and plate glass table with solid oak legs, that has been placed in the writing room at the Hotel National. The table is the product of local firms and was designed and its construction superintended by Mr. E. D. Wilde, who has the Canadian and American rights of it with headquarters at St. Paul and Toronto. All the available space of the table is taken up with artistic and striking advertising of original design, and the plate glass top makes a perfect writing surface. The table is divided into four writing squares by two marble slabs, eighteen inches in height being placed crosswise and lengthwise on the top of it.

The table is a speaking tribute to the skillful workmanship and taste of those who supplied the material and work in connection with its construction. Mr. Fred Cook did the designing and preliminary lettering, and Coughlin Bros. supplied the marble and did the engraving. The oak legs were supplied by Mr. D. Belleghem, the Hunter street furniture dealer. Mr. Wiley says the class of work generally is of a very superior character, and the most satisfactory he has yet had done for him in his experience.

REAL ESTATE BUSINESS SHOWS IMPROVEMENT

Real estate dealers report an improvement in the condition of the local real estate market. The coming of spring has created an active demand for houses for renting, as the days of moving are near at hand. In fact, considerable moving has already been done. Houses renting at from $12 to $15 per month are much in demand.

"We expect an active season in real estate," said a dealer to the Review to-day.

SHE HAD THIS SORE FOR FOUR LONG YEARS!

Now Zam-Buk Has Healed It.

You can't equal Zam-Buk for sores of all kinds, whether recent or of long standing. That is the opinion of Mrs. Wilson, of 110 Wickson Ave., Toronto. Mrs. Wilson says:

"About four years ago a sore first appeared on the right side of my face, just about the angle of the jaw. The spot increased in size until it became about half an inch in diameter, and very troublesome. I went to a doctor from whom at different times during fifteen years I had received treatment, but the ointment I got did not have any good effect on the sore. I had it cauterized, but it was no good, and this continued for four years. A sample of Zam-Buk was one day left at our house and I used it.

"Although the quantity was so small, it seemed to do me some good, so I purchased from Mac Hauld, Druggist, Scollard and Yonge streets, a supply of Zam-Buk. Each box did me more and more good, and to my delight, before I had been using Zam-Buk three weeks, I saw that it was going to heal the sore. In less than a month it was healed! It has now been healed for almost a year, and at the present time the only trace of it is a small patch of skin a little whiter than the surrounding tissue. If Zam-Buk can heal a sore of this kind, which had defied all treatment for four years, I am sure it must be a thing needed in scores of homes."

Try Zam-Buk for eczema, ulcers, sores, bad leg, varicose ulcers, skin eruptions, face spots, baby's rashes, inflamed pisces, piles, blood-poisoning and all skin injuries and diseases. 50c. all druggists and stores, or post free from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, for price. Refuse "just as goods" and imitations.

MAPLE SYRUP 30c PER QUART

No maple syrup has appeared on the market as yet, but small quantities are due to arrive within a short time. One grocery dealer on Charlotte street has displayed in his window a large can of the sweet goods, and to the clear view of all, may be seen a large ticket showing the price to be 30 cents per quart. It is received from a dealer down east of here.

Thieves took considerable jewellery and money from J. H. Fryer's house in Galt.

Guelph's assessment is $6,460,000, or over $150,000 more than in 1909.

AN EVENING REMINISCENT OF THE EARLY PURITANS

A Unique Supper and Programme Provided by Ladies of Murray St. Baptist Church—Was Largely Attended.

The opportunity afforded of spending a New England evening with the ladies of Murray St. Baptist church was taken advantage of by a large and representative number of citizens last night, and the occasion was one of interest and enjoyment to all present, and those who were in charge of the affair are to be congratulated on the splendid success which attended their efforts. Every detail of the entertainment was in keeping with those days that have gone down in history as a result of the great men who figured in the early life of New England. The young ladies in charge of the tables were attired in the dress of the early Puritan girls, and in the addresses the speakers took for their subjects New England characters. The supper was an excellent one, both in quality and quantity, and the fact of the latter being taxed to its utmost, partly suggests the hearty manner in which the variety of edibles was received. Following the supper a particularly pleasing programme was given, during which Mr. T. F. Matthews acted as chairman in his usual capable manner.

DAUGHTERS WILL RETURN HOME

The condition of Mrs. Sharpe and her three daughters, who, it will be remembered, was brought to this city from Hastings about one month ago, suffering from typhoid fever, has made such marked improvement that the two eldest daughters will be able to return to their home next week. Mrs. Sharpe and her youngest daughter are still very weak, but the fever has all gone. All four patients have been under the care of Dr. Leach.

THE LORDS HAVE PLAN TO DELAY CONSIDERATION OF VETO

Situation in England, According to Tribune Correspondent is Very Delicate, and it is Believed That the Upper House Has a Means of Keeping Back Reformatory Policy Until Their Own Plan is Matured.

London, March 14.—(New York Tribune Cable.)—The Lords can play the game of political tactics as cleverly as the Ministers themselves.

The Government, in restricting the supply to six weeks for spending services, has acted on the close calculation that the veto resolution will be passed by the Commons during April, and that the crisis caused by the rejection of the proposals by the Upper House will occur about the time when the present votes on account expire.

The Ministers by resigning office abruptly under these circumstances would compel Mr. Balfour to face the alternative of forming a Government and of appealing to the country when the Treasury was empty and embarrassed with the floating indebtedness and there was no authority for carrying on spending services, or else of declining the responsibilities of administration and of leaving Mr. Asquith at liberty to exact terms from the sovereign before returning to power.

The Lords, however, can interfere with this dexterous little game by deferring the consideration of the veto resolutions until they have disposed of their own resolutions for reforming the Upper Chamber. The votes on account would expire before the crisis over the veto came on, and the Ministers would be forced to obtain fresh supplies themselves before resigning office. Probably this course will be adopted as the best method of meeting the Ministers' expedient of limiting supplies to a deliberately calculated term in order to obtain their continuance in office and to make it impossible for their rivals to make up a business administration.

Lord Rosebery's motion for resolving the Lords into a committee for considering the reform resolutions will be debated exhaustively this week, but the resolutions themselves will not be taken up until April, and the debate may be adjourned from week to week and followed by the long vacation. The Lords can easily contrive to defer action on the veto resolutions until the Ministers have renewed supplies and there is no risk of bringing the national services to a full stop by the power of the purse. The Lords can arrange the time table to suit themselves, and have the crisis come when Mr. Balfour can take office and appeal to the country without a financial difficulty over the supplies.

Lord Rosebery's resolutions, as enlarged by Lords Curson and Newton, will contemplate the restriction in the number of legeislative lords through an order of merit, and the election of English representative peers on the same terms as Irish and Scotch peers. It will be a definite plan for strengthening the Upper House and increasing its efficiency.

The Liberal peers will not waste time in debating a scheme which the present Government is not prepared to support, but they will probably disclose the main lines of Sir Edward Grey's plan for an entirely elective chamber of 159 members, chosen by democratic franchise and uninfluenced by the hereditary principle. Conflicts between the two houses under this plan would be settled by a vote of the united Parliament.

LABOR'S LATEST MOVE

Philadelphia Unionists to Withdraw Their Bank Accounts—Not Much Change in Situation.

Philadelphia, Pa., March 14.—In its efforts to demonstrate the strength of organized labor and to make stronger the sympathetic strike, the Central Labor Union yesterday directed that all milkmen, bakers, grocery clerks and other dispensers of the necessities of life should remain away from their usual vocations to-day and until such time as the grievances of the striking carmen shall have been adjusted.

It was also resolved that union members withdraw all their money from the banks. Their sympathizers, whether organized or not, are also asked by the promoters of the sympathetic strike to do likewise.

The union milk and bread wagon drivers are called upon to strike today. The grocery clerks, 1,000 of whom organized yesterday morning, will quit work to-night. Any one working Tuesday in any line of employment will be considered as a non-union man, and expelled from the union of which they are members.

Pressure was brought to bear on the brewery workers and their representatives voted to join in the general strike, despite the orders of their national officers.

The strike promoters say they take this action to disprove the claims of the authorities that the general strike is a fizzle.

Attracted by a fire in a box car on a railway siding in Kensington, a crowd of several thousand persons collected late yesterday. Small boys threw stones at some of the police, and later the windows of a number of cars were broken before the reserves got the crowd under control. This was the only outbreak of the day in the street carmen's strike. Cars were run without molestation.

It is predicted that thousands of sympathetic strikers will return to their jobs to-morrow.

IS NEARING KHARTOUM

Theodore Roosevelt Will Soon Reach Civilization —On Last Lap of Journey.

Khartoum, Egypt, March 14.—Khartoum is now in gala attire, awaiting the coming of Theodore Roosevelt, who, with the other members of the hunting and scientific expedition, is aboard the steamer Dal, on the last leg of the journey to this city. The steamer is expected to arrive here this afternoon, but an unusually strong northern gale is blowing, which is taking up heavy waves in the river, and it is possible that the coming of the party will be somewhat delayed. His wife and daughter will meet him here.

Roosevelt, it is learned from correspondents who have met him up the river, is particularly glad to learn that the policies advocated by him are marching on the minds of the people. He scouts all talk that he may stand for governor of New York, mayor, Senator or anything else.

He says, however, that the ensuing years will see no idleness on his part. He has already planned work for himself years ahead.

Among other things, he expects to write a book of reminiscences, the publication to be made within three years. The book containing the account of his African hunting expedition will be off the presses soon.

Col. Roosevelt was at first not inclined to accept the reception planned for him on his arrival in New York next June, but later became favorable to the scheme, it having been impressed upon him that everything that might tend to give the affair a political significance would be studiously avoided.

MR. CLARRY SAYS HE DID NOT ACT AS SOLICITOR FOR THE GOVERNMENT

In Reply to Mr. Lennox' Charges Hastings Lawyer Says That He Only Searched Some of the Titles for the Government.

Peterboro, March 14.—L. F. Clarry, barrister of Hastings, was in Peterboro on Saturday, and was interviewed regarding charges of alleged wrong doing on the part of James Dickson, P.L.S., as valuator, and himself as solicitor, preferred by Haughton Lennox, M.P., in the House of Commons on Friday last, in connection with the settlement of damage claims made by certain farmers living on the shores of the Trent Canal, against the Government. Mr. Clarry said:

"I am not now, and never have been at any time, engaged by the Government as its solicitor, nor in any other capacity, to either adjust or assess damage claims against the Government in connection with drowned lands, nor did I at any time, either directly or indirectly, induce or attempt to induce, Mr. Dickson to make any award, either for or against any claimant, in connection with those drowned lands. So far as I know, Mr. Dickson made his valuations, and assessed the damages of the claimants, on his own responsibility, and without any consultation with me.

"The Government has, however, in some cases retained me to search the titles of certain claimants to lands in respect of which damages for flooding has previously been awarded, and the offer of settlement of the claimant had previously been accepted by the Government, before I was ever instructed by the Government to search the titles of such claimants.

"Long before I had ever searched any titles to drowned lands for the Government, Henry Humphries retained me as his solicitor to put in his claim against the Government for damages. I did put in his claim, and shortly afterwards he came to my office and said that he did not want his claim pressed further, for he was going to let the matter drop, and we agreed to cancel my engagement, without any charge for my services being made against him.

"Some time later I was asked by the Government to search the title of Henry Humphries to his lands, which he represented to consist of 200 acres in the Township of Asphodel, and in respect of which he had been awarded by the late W. R. Aylesworth, P.L.S., of Belleville, $800. I searched Mr. Humphries' title to the lands in question, and reported to the Department that Mr. Humphries owned only 163 acres, instead of 200, as represented by him, and that the remained 37 acres had been sold by him before he signed the offer of settlement. I further reported that Mr. Humphries claimed that the 37 acres sold were not damaged by flooding, and that he would make a statutory declaration to that effect.

"A few weeks later I was instructed by the Department that as a result of a re-inspection by James Dickson, P.L.S., who succeeded the late Mr. Aylesworth as valuator, that part of the 37 acres in question was damaged, and that the amount of the award was reduced to $240. Mr. Humphries refused to accept this amount, which I reported to the Department.

"This is the cause of Mr. Humphries' complaint, and the foundation of Mr. Lennox's charges, to which I court the fullest investigation.

"In respect to the Graham charge, I beg to state that Mr. Graham's brother, who was a client of mine, asked me if I would present his brother's claim to the Government for drowned lands. I told him I would, and gave him a retainer to have signed and advised him of the course to pursue. He did not accept my services, nor did he pay me anything, nor have I been asked by the Government to act on its behalf in connection with the Graham case."

HAS STOLE AN IMMENSE SUM

Duez Embezzlements in France Reach Huge Figures — Will Total $200,000,000.

Paris, March 14.—The Duez scandal is a terrible blow to French Parliamentary methods, and especially to the administration of French justice, and comes with telling effect just before the general elections. Public opinion is thoroughly aroused and determined to put an end to such scandals. The root of the evil is due to the careless and perfunctory manner of selecting and appointing the official receivers who act as trustees and liquidators in the administration of sums realized by the forced sales of the property of religious orders, estimated, probably too highly, at $200,000,000.

Premier Briand was nervous and fatigued during the fierce interpellations of MM. Jaures and Berry, but he succeeded in convincing the Chamber that during his tenure of office he did what he could in spite of red tape and the abuses of the bureaucracy of the Ministry of Justice and of the Treasury experts who had repeatedly assured the present Cabinet that the Duez accounts were "models of probity."

It would require a Balzac to describe adequately the reckless gambling and the stock speculations and robberies of Duez, who began his career as a shop boy in the Bon Marche establishment, was afterward secretary to M. Imbert, another liquidator, where he, on his own confession, embezzled $100,000, and in spite of this was afterward pitchforged by political influence into the post of one of the three official receivers and trustees of church property funds.

EMBEZZLERS LIVED HIGH

Paris, March 14.—Martin Gauthier until three years ago confidential clerk to M. Duez, the embezzling liquidator of church properties, was arrested at Nevers Saturday. The house which Gauthier has occupied in this city had been searched and twenty sets of important papers, which are said to reveal Duez's modus operandi, seized. The clerk, after forming a connection with the liquidator, lived on a grand scale, possessing automobiles and other luxuries.

The professor was 79 years of age.

THREE CHILDREN ARE BURNED TO DEATH

Rapid City, Man., March 14.—During the absence of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Willis from their farm house Saturday afternoon it caught fire and their three little daughters, Vera, Florence and Violet, aged from three months to three years, were incinerated with the building.

Willis was digging a drain in the vicinity, but the fire made such rapid headway, that before he could reach it the children were beyond succor.

NOVEL METHOD TO REDUCE DIVORCES

Chicago, March 14.—If man had the lapels of his coat and his collar and necktie in the middle of his back, so his wife would be called upon to assist him in dressing, even as he is called upon to fasten her hooks and eyes, there would be fewer divorces, because conditions would be less one-sided. Anyway, this is the belief of Dr. Luther H. Gullick, director of the child hygiene department of the Russell Sage Foundation, New York, who spoke on "The New Attitude Toward Health," before the Cook County Teachers' Association Saturday.

"What is needed for the harmony of the homes is more co-operation between man and wife," he said. "A man can dress himself, but a woman has to have assistance."

Dr. Gullick will give a series of lectures in Toronto soon.

CORONER'S JURY DID NOT AGREE

Revelstoke, B.C., March 14.—The coroner's jury in the Rogers' Pass disaster, where an avalanche killed sixty men, was dismissed Saturday without bringing in any verdict, the members being evenly divided as to the result of the evidence.

Three members wished to declare it was an unavoidable accident, with a recommendation as to precautions in future, and three others wished to return a verdict of negligence. A further investigation will probably be held.

SIR E. CLOUSTON MAY BE PRESIDENT

Montreal, March 14.—There is a statement going the rounds of the financial community that Sir Edward Clouston, Bart., will be called to the presidency of the Bank of Montreal and retain the general managership as well, that R. B. Angus will be the new vice-president, and that either Robt. Meighen, president of the Lake of the Woods Milling Co., or H. Vincent Meredith, manager of the bank, will be a new director.

Lady Glen-Coats Dead.

London, March 14.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—The death is announced, yesterday, of Lady Glen-Coats, wife of Sir Thomas Glen Glen-Coats, first baronet of Teagustie Park, and a director of the great Coats' thread factory. Lady Glen-Coats, whom he married in 1876, was Elise Agnes Walker, daughter of Alex. Walker of Montreal.

GRIMSBY PARK HAS BEEN SOLD

Hamilton, March 14.—Grimsby Park was sold on Saturday afternoon on the order of Judge Snyder for $50,000. The order, incidentally, brings to an end years of litigation in connection with this famous watering resort. The purchaser was W. H. Wylie, representing the Beach Land Realty Co. of Cleveland, Ohio. Under the terms of the sale the purchaser, whose payments will be made on time, undertakes to build permanent roadways and other specified improvements. The park will be run as before, but on a more extensive scale.

Among those present were John Pearson of the Employers' Liability Co., and Henry Irving of Kilbourne & Irving, representing the Cottagers' Association.

HEROIC CONDUCT OF LIGHTHOUSEMAN

South Norwark, Conn., March 14.—After being continuously on duty for eleven days, with the light always burning and the greater part of the time with the foghorn sounding, Le Roy C. Loughborough, assistant keeper of the Norwark Light, in Long Island Sound, was found lying prostrate by the side of his engines, starving and exhausted by his long vigil.

By his side was his faithful dog, and more than once Loughborough had considered the possibility of killing it for food. But he did not have the heart to do this, and two days before shared with the faithful pet the last of the potatoes and dog biscuits which had been their food for eleven days, while the only drinking water was the condensation of the steam from salt water which was boiled.

John M. Kiarshon, keeper of the lighthouse, left for Norwark on Feb. 28, for the purpose of getting provisions and the salary orders for himself and his assistant, but instead, started out celebrating.

There was a continual fog on Saturday, Sunday and Monday, and for seventy-two hours Loughborough never slept and ate almost nothing. One of the engines broke down and he labored over it for hours, and for part of this time the light was all but extinguished, the jar from the engine causing the glass to become covered with smoke.

DESPONDENT, HE SLASHED THROAT

Toronto, March 14.—After cutting his throat with a razor in his room, Andrew W. Roulston, aged 28, of 253 Borden street, walked to his brother's home at 210 Borden street, at 7.30 Saturday evening. He will probably live. Roulston had to walk almost a block and cross the street. As he was bleeding profusely from his wounds, he left a trail of blood.

He has been dispondent for some time. After he had inflicted the terrible injuries, he apparently repented and went out for help. The trachea or windpipe, was cut and four stitches had to be put in to close it. Besides that, four arteries were severed. In all 21 stitches were necessary to close the gashes.

He was taken in Harry Ellis' ambulance to the Western Hospital, where Dr. H. A. Beatty attended him. He is married.

Francis (former governor of Missouri and secretary of the interior under President Cleveland).

PAPER MONEY IS DANGEROUS

Washington, D.C., March 14—Germs—92,000,000 of them, of manifold variety—were found on a one dollar bill microscopically examined at the request of Representative Wiley of New Jersey, according to his statement before the House committee on banking and currency, in support of his bill to provide clean currency by burning all paper money returned to the treasury.

Among the many diseases found to be circulating about this money were Smallpox, scarlet fever, typhoid, tuberculosis and diphtheria.

Another bill, examined by the Agricultural Department, Mr. Wiley said disclosed the presence of 13,318,000 living bacteria.

MORE VESSELS FOR JAP NAVY

Victoria, B.C., March 14.—Several Japanese journals are calling upon the Government for expansion of the Japanese navy without loss of time. Capt Oguri, in an article in The Osaka Maininehi, says more vessels are urgently required, as by 1930 ten battleships and thirteen cruisers will be useless for active service.

Borden to Speak at Boston.

Ottawa, March 13.—Mr. R. L. Borden, leader of the Opposition, will address the Canadian Club in Boston on March 23.

ANOTHER STRIKE OF COAL MINERS IS THREATENED

Cincinnati, March 14.—"The miners are not talking strike, and don't want to strike, but if a strike must follow a failure by this conference to agree upon a new wage scale, 600,000 men and every industry dependant upon coal will be affected."

This was the explanation offered last night by T. L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers of America of a statement credited to him earlier to the effect that a strike was sure to follow the refusal of the coal mine owners of the central competitive field to meet the demands of the men. President Lewis declared that his remarks had been misconstrued.

Coming close upon the heels of the failure of the scale committee of the conference to reach an understanding, and the reference of the entire dispute to a sub-committee, the alleged threat of the miners' executive caused quite a flurry. The scale sub-committee will meet on Monday.

QUEEN'S OWN TO HAVE PAGEANT

Toronto, March 14.—George I. Riddell, secretary of Queen's Own Reunion, received a communication on Saturday that Mr. Henderson of London, England, who is arranging the pageants for the reunion in June, will arrive in Toronto about the middle of April. Property Commissioner Harris has placed the north St. Lawrence market at the disposal of the regiment from May till June 17, for the holding of rehearsals. Four hundred children in uniform will take part in the program, and hundreds of ladies have signified their willingness to appear in the pageants.

Newspaper all over Canada have been enlisted in the work of promoting the celebration, and Secretary Riddell has many telegrams and letters from them asking for details.

COULD NOT GET CONCESSIONS
